(6) Changes in How Papers May be Filed in the Patent and Trademark Office

Beginning April 21, 1992, an improved service will be offered to people who wish to file papers directly with the Patent and Trademark Office (PTO) by extending the hours of operation for the Attorneys' Window located in Room 1B03 of Crystal Plaza Building 2, Arlington, Virginia. The current hours of operation are from 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday, except Federal holidays within the District of Columbia. The change will extend the hours of operation until 12:00 midnight on Monday through Friday, except holidays, on a trial basis. If, after six months, usage does not warrant retaining operations until midnight, the hours of operation will be reduced.

This change will provide walk-up, personalized service to firms and individuals who are filing documents with the PTO. The PTO will continue to stamp postcard-type receipts to acknowledge the receipt of papers filed at the Attorneys' Window.

Also, effective on April 21, 1992, the PTO is discontinuing the use of drop boxes in the lobby of Crystal Plaza Building 3, Arlington, Virginia, and at the main entrance of the Department of Commerce Building, Washington, D.C. (37 CFR 1.6(c)) as means for receiving papers.

These changes will provide improved services with respect to receipt and processing of documents while, at the same time, overcoming problems with the present arrangement.

Problems encountered with the present arrangement for the drop boxes have occasionally made it difficult to determine the dates of actual deposit of papers. For example, there have been many incidents of papers being found outside of the drop boxes (e.g., on the floor of the main lobby of the Department of Commerce Building, on the guard's desk, on a nearby table, etc.). On occasion, the PTO and/or filers have been denied access to the drop box at the Department of Commerce by building security guards due to a special event taking place in the lobby.

Provisions are also available for filing papers through the use of the certificate of mailing (37 CFR 1.8) and the Express Mail (37 CFR 1.10) procedures.

Electronic Filing of Patent and Trademark Applications

Agency: Patent and Trademark Office Commerce
Action: Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking
Summary: This advance notice of proposed rulemaking is to inform the public that the Patent and Trademark office (PTO) is considering amending its rules of practice: (1) to allow for electronic filing of patent applications and trademark applications; and (2) to require applications filed in paper form to follow a prescribed order and format.

The PTO anticipates that permitting electronic filing of applications will improve the accuracy of the information relied upon in the examination of patent and trademark applications, eliminate delays caused by mailing and data entry, and, as a first step toward a fully-automated processing system, ultimately provide considerable cost savings. The cost savings realized could be used to help reduce the need for future fee adjustments and/or fund improvements in the delivery of services. Requiring applications filed on paper to follow a prescribed order and format will enable the PTO to convert these applications to electronic format.

The purposes of this notice are to: (1) invite interested parties to participate in pilot programs involving electronic filing of patent and trademark applications; and (2) encourage comments on this topic, in the form of responses to the questions posed in this notice, from industry, the patent and trademark bars, and members of the public.

Dates: Comments should be received on or before Feb. 28, 1993.

Addresses: Written comments should be addressed, if sent by mail, to the attention of Edward R. Kazenske, Executive Assistant to the Commissioner and Director of Interdisciplinary Programs, c/o Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Washington, D.C. 20231. If delivered by hand, comments should be brought to the Office of the Executive Assistant to the Commissioner and Director of Interdisciplinary Programs, Room 906, Crystal Park 2, 2121 Crystal Drive, Arlington, Va.

For Further Information Contact: Edward R. Kazenske, Executive Assistant to the Commissioner and Director of Interdisciplinary Programs, (703) 305-8600.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

1. Pilot Programs

Currently, the PTO accepts patent and trademark applications delivered by mail or in person. These applications are in paper form or, in the case of patent applications for nucleotide sequences, a combination of computer-readable (see 37 CFR 1.821-1.825) and paper form.

The PTO is initiating a pilot program that would permit electronic filing of patent and trademark applications, using software now under consideration by the PTO. Initially, it is anticipated that participants in the pilot program would be required to use the PTO software to create a diskette, which would then be mailed to the PTO along with the paper application generated by the diskette. The diskette would serve the limited function of eliminating the initial data entry of applications into the PTO databases.

As part of a second pilot program, a separate group of participants is being solicited to file paper applications following a prescribed order and format. The paper applications would then be scanned and converted to electronic format. Data collected from the pilot programs will be evaluated to determine whether requiring submission of a paper application in a certain order and format facilitates data entry; whether any modifications to the electronic filing software are required; and more fundamentally, whether electronic filing is a feasible, cost-effective alternative to filing in paper form.

2. Paper Applications

The PTO contemplates that paper applications will be required to follow the order and format of the data elements (e.g., inventor, foreign priority information, in the case of a patent application; applicant, mark, in the case of a trademark application) entered in the electronic filing system. This would enable the PTO to scan and convert paper applications to electronic applications upon receipt at the PTO. Once the paper application is converted into electronic form, processing of the application will be done in a purely electronic format. The electronic form of the application would become the official file.

3. Electronic Filing

The PTO contemplates that applicants filing by electronic means would be required to use an "Authoring Program" developed by the PTO, which will be available to facilitate the preparation of an electronic submission and record the submission on electronic media. This "Authoring Program" will include a validation feature so that applicants, themselves, can test whether an electronic submission complies with all requirements.

The "Authoring Program" software under consideration by the PTO will be designed to be compatible with computers capable of creating files of standard ASCII (American Standard Code for Information interchange) text within one or more of the major operating systems environments (e.g., DOS, Windows, Unix, and Apple MacIntosh).

The format for text in patent applications will specify a set of mandatory data elements, similar to those required under the Patent Cooperation Treaty. The format for text in trademark applications will specify a set of mandatory data elements, similar to those required of a "written application" under 15 U.S.C. 1051. In both the patent and trademark software, specific formats will be required for non-textual elements, such as drawings, formulas, tables and specimens. These non-textual elements would be submitted in separate computer files called "Presentations," similar to the presentation of nucleotide sequence information in accordance with 37 CFR 1.821-1.825.

The PTO also contemplates that certain individuals be designated by the agency as qualified "electronic application transmitters." Upon application to the PTO, unlimited parties meeting specified requirements may be issued Personal Identification Numbers to enable them to transmit applications in electronic form on behalf of themselves or other individuals.

In an effort to facilitate public comment to the questions set forth below, the following background information is provided:

4. Background Specific to Electronic Patent Applications

Signature

Under 35 U.S.C. 111, a patent application must include an oath by the applicant. 35 U.S.C. 25 permits a declaration in lieu of oath. The applicant's signed oath or declaration is not required for receipt of a filing date, but may be submitted, upon payment of a surcharge, within a prescribed period.

Certified Copy of Foreign Patent Application

Under 35 U.S.C. 119, a U.S. patent application may be based on a foreign patent application, thus, potentially, conferring the benefit of the earlier foreign patent application's filing date. A certified copy of the foreign patent application is required to be filed in the PTO before the patent is granted.

5. Background Specific to Electronic Trademark Applications

Signature

Under 15 U.S.C. 1051, a trademark application must be verified by the applicant. Prior to implementation of the Trademark Law Revision Act of 1988 (TLRA) on Nov. 16, 1989, the PTO permitted verification of the application to be provided at any time during the examination process. With implementation of the TLRA, the PTO amended its regulations with respect to the verification of an application. 37 CFR 2.21, which sets forth the minimum requirements for an application to receive a filing date, was amended to require that the application be signed by the applicant at the time of filing.

Specimen

Under 15 U.S.C. 1051, a trademark application based on "use in commerce" must include specimens or facsimiles of the mark as used. 37 CFR 2.21(a)(5) requires at least one specimen or facsimile to be included with the "use" application in order to receive a filing date. Applications filed based upon a "bona fide" intention to use the mark in commerce, under 15 U.S.C. 1051(b), must be supplemented with specimens or facsimiles before the registration issues. In order to meet the minimum requirements for filing an amendment to allege use or statement of use, one specimen or facsimile must be submitted. 37 CFR 2.76(e)(2) and 2.88(e)(2).

Certification or Certified Copy of Foreign Registration

Under 15 U.S.C. 1126(e), "an application [based on a foreign registration] shall be accompanied by a certification or a certified copy of the registration of the country of origin of the applicant." 37 CFR 2.21(a)(5) requires the certification or certified copy to be included with the application in order to receive a filing date.

6. Comments on the following Questions and Any Other Related Matters Are Solicited

Questions Common to Patent and Trademark Applications

a. What benefits do you foresee for the applicant if electronic filing is adopted? What disadvantages do you foresee?
b. Should the PTO require paper applications to be filed in a specific order and format to facilitate conversion to electronic format? What advantages and disadvantages do you foresee?
c. Should the electronic file become the official agency file?
d. Should electronic filing be expanded to encompass amendments and other submissions to the PTO?
e. Should paper or electronic application filings receive a filing date only if they meet order and format requirements, or should compliance be subject to a surcharge?
f. Should the PTO accept electronic filing by diskette, on-line, or both?
g. Should applications filed in paper form be converted to electronic form by the PTO? Should the PTO charge a fee for this service?
h. If paper applications are converted to electronic form by the PTO, should the PTO destroy or retain the paper applications?
i. Should fees be processed electronically?
j. Should the PTO create a registry of "electronic application transmitters" capable of transmitting patent and trademark applications for others? If so, what, if any, criteria should be established before one could be "registered" as an "electronic application transmitter?"

Questions Related Solely to Patent Issues

k. Should the PTO require the oath or declaration to an electronically filed patent application be filed on paper to authenticate that applicants believe themselves to be original and first inventors of the subject matter of the electronically filed application?

If not, how should the filing of the oath or declaration be accomplished?

l. How should the filing of certified copies of foreign patent applications be accomplished for an electronically filed patent application?

Questions Related Solely to Trademark Issues

m. Should the PTO require electronically filed applications to include a scanned, signed declaration in order to receive a filing date? Should the PTO accept declarations in electronic form with some type of electronic signature?

If not, should 37 CFR 2.21 be amended to permit unverified applications to be accorded a filing date? if so, within what time period must an unverified application be ratified by the submission of a signed declaration?

How long should the PTO retain the signed declaration after it has been scanned and merged into the electronic file?

n. Should "use" applications submitted without a specimen be given a filing date?

If so, within what time period after filing must the specimens be submitted? Should the number of required specimens be reduced?

How long should the PTO keep the specimens after they are scanned and merged into the electronic file?

o. Should Section 44(e) of the Trademark Act (15 U.S.C 1126(e)) be amended to permit applicants to submit a facsimile of the certification or certified copy of the foreign registration?

Alternatively, should the statute be amended to permit Section 44(e) applicants to obtain a filing date absent a certification or certified copy of the foreign registration? If so, within what time period must a Section 44(e) application be supplemented with a certificate or certified copy of the foreign registration?

How long should the PTO retain the certification or certified copy after it has been scanned and merged into the electronic application?

7. Candidates for the Pilot Programs

Any person interested in participating in one of the pilot programs identified above is requested to contact Edward R. Kazenske, Executive Assistant to the Commissioner and Director of Interdisciplinary Programs, c/o Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Washington, D.C. 20231. If delivered by hand, written statements of interest should be brought to Suite 906, Crystal Park 2, 2121 Crystal Drive, Arlington, Va. 22202. Telephone: (703) 305-8600. Please indicate which pilot program you wish to participate in and please be certain to include a telephone number where you may be reached.

(8) Identifying Application Correspondence With Issue Batch Number

Applicants or their attorney or agent can facilitate matching incoming papers with the corresponding application file by indicating the Issue Batch Number on all papers filed in the Office after receiving the Notice of Allowance and before the time the Issue Fee Receipt is received.

The Issue Batch Number is printed on the Notice of Allowance form in Box 4 in the lower left-hand corner below the address. The Issue Batch Number consists of a capital letter followed by two digits, for example: "A03," "D18," "F42," "J79." Any lower case letters before the Issue Batch Number should be ignored since they are the typist's initials. Use of the Issue Batch Numbers is important since the allowed applications are filed by these numbers.

Any paper filed after receiving the Issue Fee Receipt should include the indicated patent number rather than the Issue Batch Number. At this time in the processing, the Issue Batch Number is no longer useful since the application has been removed from the batch at the time the patent number was assigned.

Assistant Commissioner for Administration

(9) Post Card Receipt Reminder

Applicants and the agents are reminded of the provision in Section 717.01(a) (now Section 503) of the Manual of Patent Examining Procedure relating to the use of post cards as "receipts" of papers filed in the Patent Office.

If a receipt for any paper filed in the Patent Office is desired, it may be had by enclosing with the paper a self-addressed post card identifying the paper. The Patent Office will stamp the receipt date on the card and place it in the outgoing mail.

The identifying data on the card should be so complete as to match the paper with the application or other document to which it is to be associated. For example, the document should be identified by the applicant's name(s), Serial No., filing date, appeal number, interference number, etc., and the paper should be identified by specifying the type thereof, viz, affidavit, amendment, appeal, application papers, brief, drawings, fees, motions, supplemental oath or declaration, petition, etc.

When papers for more than one document are filed under a single cover a return post card should be attached to the paper for each document for which a receipt is desired.

Assistant Commissioner

[857 O.G. 667]

(10) Acknowledgement of Receipt of a Patent or Trademark Application

When early notification of the serial number of newly filed application papers is desired, a stamped, self-addressed post card should be submitted with each application. Immediately after the mail has been opened in the Patent and Trademark Office, the post card will be stamped with both the receipt date and the serial number, and then returned to the addressee.

Within recent months, hundreds of cards could not be successfully returned because of insufficient postage or incomplete or nonexistent forwarding addresses. Accurate and complete addresses, including ZIP codes, are necessary to ensure prompt acknowledgement of the receipt of patent and trademark applications.

To assist in easy identification once the post card has been returned, it is suggested that the post card include applicant's names and title of invention.

When more than one set of application papers is filed under one cover, a return post card should be attached to each set of papers for which a receipt is desired.

(11) Inclusion of Preliminary Classification on Filing Receipts

In response to a request from a patent attorney, we will print the preliminary classification assigned to an application on the filing receipt. It will show the class only and will be labeled "PRELIMINARY CLASS:". The new field will appear on the filing receipt shortly. We will not accept requests to correct the filing receipt for errors in or changes to the preliminary class.

(12) Handling of Status Inquiries

This notice is intended to supplement the discussion set forth in the Official Gazette Notice published at 893 Official Gazette 810 entitled "Status Inquires" (Dec. 21, 1971).

It has come to the attention of the Patent and Trademark Office (PTO) that its employees may have improperly released confidential information concerning pending applications. Specifically, issue date and patent number information assigned to pending applications may have been improperly released.

No information concerning pending or abandoned patent applications (except reissue applications and reexamination proceedings) may be given to the public by the PTO without the authorization of the applicant or the assignee or attorney or agent of record. 35 USC § 122 and 37 CFR § 1.14. Other exceptions are specified at 37 CFR § 1.14.

However, PTO employees will release information on the status of patent applications to the applicant or assignee or attorney or agent of record if the identity of the requestor can be adequately verified as set forth below.

Telephonic status inquiries should continue to be directed to the PTO clerical personnel. The PTO clerical personnel will obtain the caller's full name, the application serial number and the caller's telephone number. The PTO clerical personnel will ask the caller if there is an attorney or agent of record.

If there is an attorney or agent of record, the PTO clerical personnel will ask for his/her registration number. If the registration number is not known, the PTO clerical personnel will ask for the name of the attorney or agent of record. The PTO clerical personnel will inform the caller that an attorney or agent of record will be called after verification of his/her identity and that the requested status information concerning the application will be released to that attorney or agent.

If there is no attorney or agent of record, the PTO clerical personnel will ask the caller why he/she is entitled to information concerning the application. If the caller identifies himself/Herself as an applicant or an authorized representative of the assignee of record, the PTO clerical personnel will ask for the correspondence address of record. Then, the PTO clerical personnel will inform caller that his/her association with the application must be verified before any information concerning the application can be released, and that he/she will be called back. If the caller indicates that he/she is not an applicant or an authorized representative of the assignee of record, the PTO clerical personnel will inform caller that no information concerning that application will be released.

The PTO clerical personnel will then verify the identity of any caller claiming to be associated with the application by checking the Patent Application Locating and Monitoring (PALM) system or the application file.

If an attorney or agent is of record in the application, the PTO clerical personnel will release the status information concerning the application by calling the attorney's or agent's telephone number obtained from PALM or the application file.

If the applicant or an authorized representative of the assignee of record requests information, and there is no attorney or agent of record and the correspondence of record has been verified, the PTO clerical personnel will release the status information to the caller using the telephone number given by the caller. If the caller's association with the application cannot be verified, no information concerning the application will be released. However, the caller should be informed that the caller's association with the application could not be verified.

In handling an in-person status request, PTO clerical personnel will ask the requester to wait while verifying their identification as set forth above.

(13) Change in Legal Holidays

The Commissioner's Notice of Sept. 25, 1979, "Change in Legal Holidays," is hereby rescinded, in view of Public Law 98-144, enacted Nov. 2, 1983, which amended the listing of legal public holidays in 5 USC § 6103. That amendment took effect in 1986 and added a new legal holiday relating to the birthday of Martin Luther King, Jr. This new holiday is designated for the third Mon. in Jan.

Section 6103, as amended, reads as follows:

New Year's Day, Jan. 1.

(19) Iraqi Sanctions Regulations

On January 18, 1991, the Department of the Treasury, Office of Foreign Assets Control (OFAC), published the Iraqi Sanctions Regulations (Regulations) (31 CFR Part 575). 56 Fed. Reg. 2112. The regulations implement Executive Orders 12722 (August 2, 1990) and 12724 (August 9, 1990) relating to certain property and transactions in which the Government of Iraq and persons in Iraq may have an interest.

It appears that the provisions of the Executive Orders and Regulations prohibit transactions relating to the filing or prosecution of applications for patents or for registration of trademarks, where an Iraqi interest is involved. The prohibited transactions, however, may be authorized by a specific license issued pursuant to the proceedures described in Section 575.801 of Subpart H of the Regulations.

This notice is intended to alert practitioners and applicants to the prohibitions which may apply to matters before the Patent and Trademark Office, (PTO) if Iraqi interests are involved. This notice is further intended to advise that where such interests or potential interests come to the attention of the PTO, an appropriate specific license from OFAC may be required.

Communications with the Office of the Solicitor

Agency: Patent and Trademark Office, Commerce.
Action: Final rule; technical amendments.
Summary: On Mar. 24, 1987, final rules regarding the address of certain communications to the Patent and Trademark Office were issued. (52 FR 9394, Mar. 24, 1987.) Also, on Mar. 7, 1985 and Aug. 11, 1986, final rules regarding the court review of decisions by the Patent and Trademark Office Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences and the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board, respectively, were issued. (50 FR 9383, Mar. 7, 1985 and 51 FR 28710, Aug. 11, 1987.)

This notice makes technical corrections to §1.1, 1.302 and 2.145(b) by specifying the address to which correspondence should be sent to the Office of the Solicitor. The change reflects existing practice consistent with rules of court governing service of court papers on the Solicitor. The change also will expedite the processing of other non-court communications with the Office of the Solicitor.
Effective Date: June 9, 1988
For Further Information Contact: John H. Raubitschek by telephone at (703) 557-4035 or by mail marked to his attention and addressed to Box 8, Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Washington, D.C. 20231.
Supplementary Information: The Patent and Trademark Office (PTO) finds for good cause that because the technical changes made by this rule will have no substantive effect, it is unnecessary to seek prior public comment of this rule under 5 U.S.C. 553. Because a notice of proposed rulemaking and an opportunity for public comment is not required for this technical amendment, this rule is also exempt from the provisions of the Regulatory Flexibility Act requiring a regulatory flexibility analysis. The PTO has determined that this rule is not a major rule within the meaning of section 1(b) of Executive Order 12291. The PTO has also determined that this rule has no federalism implications affecting the relationship between the national government and the States as outlined in Executive Order 12612. This rule does not contain a collection of information for purposes of the Paperwork Reduction Act.

(27) Appeals to the Federal Circuit from PTO

This notice was originally prepared by the Solicitor and Associate Solicitor Richard E. Schafer for presentation at the Eighth Annual Judicial Conference of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit. The notice discusses litigation philosophy of the Office of the Solicitor of the Patent and Trademark Office and other matters which may be helpful to appellants and others seeking judicial review of PTO decisions in the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit.

October 5, 1990 FRED E. McKELVEY
Solicitor

I. Introduction

This notice discusses the philosophy of the Office of the Solicitor when representing the Commissioner before the Federal Circuit and other courts. The notice is also designed to assist appellants and others seeking judicial review of Patent and Trademark Office (PTO) decisions in the Federal Circuit. Much of what is said in the notice is also applicable to those instances where judicial review is sought of PTO decisions in a district court.

II. Solicitor's litigation philosophy

The Office of the Solicitor and its attorneys start with the proposition that justice is done when the right result is reached. The Solicitor is not an advocate who needs to win to be satisfied. Rather, the public interest is served when:
(1) a patent issues on a patentable invention;
(2) a patent is refused on an unpatentable invention;
(3) a trademark is registered if entitled to registration under Title 15;
(4) a trademark is refused registration if not entitled to registration under Title 15; or
(5) PTO rules are properly applied within PTO and by reviewing courts.

Our litigation philosophy is expressed in Berger v. United States, 295 U.S. 78, 88 (1935):

> The . . . [Government attorney] is the representative not of an ordinary party to a controversy, but of a sovereignty whose obligation to govern impartially is as compelling as its obligation to govern at all; and whose interest . . . is not that it shall win a case, but that justice shall be done. As such, he is in a peculiar and very definite sense the servant of the law, the twofold aim of which is that guilt shall not escape or innocence suffer.

The Office of the Solicitor does more than simply "defend" an appeal. Rather, it will determine whether:
(a) appeals are ripe for judicial consideration;
(b) there are steps a party might take in PTO to obviate the appeal, e.g., amendments which might be made to claims to conform an argument to the subject matter being claimed - we often find that arguments in a brief are based on limitations which do not appear in the claims;
(c) there is material not in the record which might provide a full answer to an argument - particularly a new one - made in a brief; and/or
(d) the deciding official or board should be approached to see if it wishes to reevaluate its decision in view of a change in the law, a credible argument that the decision may not be correct, or a matter which may have been overlooked.

Most of the time, it takes more effort to implement this philosophy than it would take simply to brief and argue a matter.

Generally, in a Federal Circuit matter, the Office of the Solicitor - apart from designating an appendix - does not "get deeply into" a case until appellant's brief is filed. Exceptions occur, i.e., inter partes patent and trademark cases where the board opinion is reviewed to see if an amicus brief might be appropriate to assist the Federal Circuit with PTO practice.[1] This is not to say that an appellant should not feel free to discuss an appeal with an attorney in the Solicitor's Office. But, ordinarily in an ex parte case, we do not spend time until we see appellant's brief. The reason is that a large number of appeals are simply dismissed without the need for us to do much, if any, work.

Table 1, below, shows the disposition of appeals from October 1985 through April 1990. About 23%, i.e., 146, of the cases were dismissed with little, if any, work having been done by the Office of the Solicitor on the appeal. If we conducted a review of all appeals when filed, our Federal Circuit "workload" would increase about 23%. We do not have the resources to effectively carry on 23% more work.

We find a lot of cases are not ripe or otherwise ready for judicial review. When we determine that more work needs to be done before the Federal Circuit should consider a case, we generally move to remand. Fed. Cir. R. 27(c) provides that a remand generally should be requested prior to briefing. However, since we generally cannot efficiently take up cases until appellant's brief is filed, we now file motions to remand along with our brief. A merits panel is then in a position to evaluate whether it should hear the case on the merits or order a remand.

There are a variety of reasons why we seek remands.

A.

An appellant may argue that a certain feature of a claim is not shown in the prior art. Such an argument may prompt us to determine whether the feature is known. If we find the feature, we will probably ask for a remand for the purpose of making an additional rejection.[4] In like manner, based on our respective backgrounds or other cases handled by the Office of the Solicitor, we may know of prior art which strengthens a rejection.[5]

B.

Similarly, an appellant may argue that a certain fact is true. Upon looking into the matter, we have found literature from the appellant's assignee or other evidence which, in our opinion, demonstrates that the argument may not be factually correct. [6] Since the literature or other evidence is not part of the record, we have asked for a remand so that the case may be fully developed before a merits panel is required to consider the case. We have also filed a brief on the merits asking the Federal Circuit to take judicial notice of a fact while concurrently filing a contingent motion to remand in the event the merits panel believes that judicial notice is not appropriate.[7]

C.

We have had cases where the sole issue is whether a Rule 131, 37 CFR § 1.131, affidavit is sufficient to antedate a reference. When the sufficiency of a Rule 131 affidavit is in issue, we search for a foreign or other equivalent statutory bar. When an equivalent statutory bar is found, we move to remand suggesting that the issue on appeal may well be moot.[8]

D.

In re Steele, 305 F.2d 859, 134 USPQ 292 (CCPA 1962), suggests that indefiniteness should be taken care of prior to considering obviousness. There have been cases in which the claims are so indefinite that judicial review of an obviousness issue simply would not make sense. Remands, over appellant's objection, have been ordered.[9]

E.

There have been occasions where the Board, TTAB, or the Commissioner decides to change or reconsider a decision. A change of decision can occur, inter alia, due to:

1. new "law" as announced in a court or administrative decision,[10] or
2. a deciding official or tribunal determines that:
   (a) a decision may not be correct,
   (b) a matter was overlooked,[11] or
   (c) a decision otherwise needs to be reconsidered.[12]

F.

There have been cases where, although not argued by the appellant, it did not make sense to apply existing law in a particular context. We have moved to remand. In one instance, the Board reconsidered its position, established new law, and granted relief.[13]

G.

In its opinion, the Board — without entering a new ground of rejection under Rule 196(b), 37 CFR § 1.196 — may suggest that if there is to be further prosecution, an examiner may wish to look into several possible rejections. Generally in such a case the appellant will abandon or refile under 35 U.S.C. § 120. On occasion, however, an appellant will seek judicial review. Ordinarily, we seek remands in such a case in order to avoid piecemeal judicial review.[14]

H.

We had one case in which an appellant "dropped" an appeal as to all but a dependent claim — only the independent claim had been discussed in appellant's brief to the Board and the Board discussed only the independent claim. We sought a remand — after the appellant's brief had been filed — so that PTO could articulate a rationale as to the sole claim left in the appeal.[15] Alternatively, we could have argued the appeal on the basis of the independent claim. However, in the context of the particular case, that alternative did not make sense.

I.

We had a case where the application on appeal was deemed to be abandoned. We moved to remand to clarify the status of the application.[16] We also had a trademark appeal in which registration in the United States could not occur until registration took place abroad.[17] Obviously, there was no reason to proceed in the Federal Circuit until registration occurred in the foreign country. When an appeal is taken in a trademark case, we always check to be sure that the registration relied upon is "alive." Appellant also should be sure that the registration has not expired. In one trademark appeal, the likelihood of confusion issue became moot on appeal when we discovered that the registration cited against the appellant expired without being renewed.

Most attorneys representing appellants will agree to a remand when approached by an attorney in the Office of the Solicitor - regardless of the time a suggestion to remand is made. A remand saves appellant, the Federal Circuit and our office time and money and in the long run contributes to the effective administration of justice within PTO and the Federal Circuit. In some cases, our motions to remand have been opposed. In one published opinion, an opposed motion was granted notwithstanding appellant has filed its principal brief;[18] in another opinion, relief was denied.[19] It appears the Federal Circuit has adopted, as a general rule, the latter opinion. See Fed. Cir. R. 27(c).

We will not attempt to reconcile Fed. Cir. R. 27(c) with what we regard to be the better policy expressed in In re Gould. We will point out, however, that if an appeal proceeds in the face of a motion to remand,

(a) an appellant will have to spend money to have its attorney appear for oral argument,

(b) the merits panel will have to spend time preparing for oral argument, holding oral argument, and writing an opinion,

(c) PTO will have to expend resources preparing for and presenting oral argument, and

(d) prosecution on the merits may be reopened after a mandate is entered if a viable rejection remains to be considered.

It is possible, of course, that we might prevail on the merits, thereby obviating any need for a remand. However, if we do not prevail, PTO can — and often does — reopen prosecution of the application upon entry of the Federal Circuit's mandate to consider the matter raised by a motion to remand.[20]

Sometimes an appellant will decide to file a second application, i.e., a continuation application or another trademark application, and simultaneously pursue the appeal. We believe appellant has a responsibility to call our attention to the fact that a second application has been filed. Knowledge of the second application is material to steps we might take.

First, perhaps any appeal (or civil action) should be suspended pending outcome of proceedings on the second application or dismissed without prejudice to another appeal in the event a final adverse Board decision is entered in the second application. In effect, by filing a second application, appellant admits that there are available administrative remedies and that those remedies have not been exhausted.

Second, it is in PTO's best interest that the examiner handling the second application be aware of the existence of an appeal. The examiner may ask our office for assistance, as may the Board, during prosecution of the second application.

III. Notice of appeal

Recent amendments have been made to conform PTO practice as much as possible to Fed. R. App. 4. See 54 Fed. Reg. 29548 (July 13, 1989), reprinted in, 1105 Off. Gaz. Pat. Office 5 (Aug. 1, 1989).

A. Time for appeal

If an appeal from a PTO decision to the Federal Circuit is authorized by law, the time for filing a notice of appeal in PTO was changed in August 1989 to two (2) months or 60 days, whichever is longer. The time for seeking judicial review by civil action under 35 U.S.C. §§ 145 or 146 is also two (2) months or 60 days, whichever is longer.

The filing of a request for reconsideration in PTO tolls the time for filing a notice of appeal. After a decision on reconsideration is entered in PTO, the two month period begins to run.

The time for appeal to the Federal Circuit is set by the Commissioner. 35 U.S.C. § 142; 15 U.S.C. § 1071(a)(2). The period for appeal must be at least 60 days. A notice of final rule was effective in August 1989 setting the time for appeal to two months or 60 days — whichever is longer. The dichotomy which used to exist between the 60-day period for initial decisions and the 30-day period for decisions on reconsideration[21] no longer exists.

B. Cross appeals

In inter partes cases, a cross-appeal may be filed within fourteen (14) days of service of an appeal or two months after the PTO decision being appealed, whichever is later.

C. Requests to extend time to appeal

A request for an extension of time to file a notice of appeal before the appeal period expires can be granted by the Commissioner upon a showing of good cause.

A request after the appeal period expires must establish excusable neglect. The "excusable neglect" standard applied by PTO is the same as that applied by the courts of appeals.

All requests for an extension of time to appeal should be directed to the attention of the Office of the Solicitor.

D. Where to file a notice of appeal

The original notice must be filed in PTO — filing only in the Federal Circuit does not perfect an appeal. However, a copy must also be filed in the Federal Circuit. Fed. Cir. R. 15. A copy of the decision being appealed, and any decision on reconsideration, should be attached to the copy of the notice of appeal filed in PTO and with the Federal Circuit.

The original notice may be filed in any of the following ways:

1. By hand-delivery to the Office of the Solicitor between 8:30 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. at:
   Office of the Solicitor
   2121 Crystal Drive
   Suite 918
   Arlington, Virginia

2. By first-class mail addressed to:
   Box 8
   Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks
   Washington, D.C. 20231
   Attention: Office of the Solicitor

3. By Express Mail under 37 CFR § 1.10 addressed to:
   Box 8
   Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks
   Washington, D.C. 20231
   Attention: Office of the Solicitor

A certificate of mailing under 37 CFR § 1.8 cannot be used to file a notice of appeal. A notice of appeal filed in PTO using a certificate of mailing under 37 CFR § 1.8 is deemed filed when received in PTO. In re Thrifty Corp., 231 USPQ 560 (Comm'r Pat. 1986).

VOL 1170 ISS 1 JAN 3 1995 UMI

A notice of appeal mailed to the Solicitor's Postal Box in Arlington, Virginia is deemed filed when received in the Office of the Solicitor.

E. Content of notice of appeal

A notice of appeal should identify all parties appealing. Fed. R. App. P. 15(a). See Torres v. Oakland Scavenger Co., 487 U.S. 312, 317 (1988) [construing similar requirement of Fed. R. App. P. 3(c)].

Thus, in a case where there are joint inventors, the notice of appeal should identify all inventors. The notice of appeal should not identify John Doe et al. as appellants; rather, it should identify as appellants all named inventors, i.e., "John Doe and Richard Roe appeal . . . ."

A notice of appeal need simply state that:

John Doe and Richard Roe appeal to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit from a final decision entered by the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences on June 15, 1990, and from a decision on reconsideration entered by the Board on July 15, 1990.

There is no need to give reasons in the notice of appeal. See 37 CFR §§ 1.4 and 1.5 for material which should appear in the "heading" of the notice of appeal.

IV. Transmittal of certified list

After a notice of appeal is received, a determination is made whether the notice was timely filed.

Appellant will be advised if the appeal is untimely. Fed. Cir. R. 15(b)(1) governs proceedings when a notice of appeal is not timely filed:

If the Commissioner notifies the clerk that the notice of appeal was not timely, the clerk shall order the appellant to show cause why the appeal should not be dismissed, and thereupon refer the response to the court.

In order to properly respond to the Federal Circuit, an appellant may wish to file a request for an extension of time, which should be filed in the Office of the Solicitor, and establish that the untimely filing of the notice of appeal was a result of excusable neglect. Any decision on the request will be copied to the Clerk of the Federal Circuit for such action as may be appropriate. A decision by the Commissioner granting a request to extend the time for filing the notice of appeal will discharge the show cause order entered by the Clerk.

A certified list, consisting of the contents of the application, interference, opposition, cancellation, or other proceeding is copied and forwarded to the Federal Circuit with a statement indicating whether the notice of appeal was considered timely filed. In ex parte patent appeals the certified list usually does not include the contents to any "parent" applications unless the application involved in the appeal is a "file wrapper continuation" under 37 CFR § 1.62.

A copy of the certified list is mailed to the appellant or, in the case of an inter partes proceeding, all parties.

In ex parte patent or trademark appeals, an attorney in the Office of the Solicitor is assigned to the appeal at the time the certified list is forwarded to the Federal Circuit. Counsel for appellant should initiate a discussion with the Solicitor's Office attorney assigned to the case to determine the contents of the appendix.

Upon receipt of the certified list, the appeal will be docketed by the Federal Circuit. An appeal number is assigned to each appeal by the Federal Circuit. Appellant's 60-day period for filing a brief runs from the later of the date the appeal is docketed by the Federal Circuit or the certified list is served. Fed. Cir. R. 31(a). Since the appeal is docketed after the certified list is served in the case of PTO appeals, the 60-day period almost always runs from the date the appeal is docketed.

V. Service of court papers on the Solicitor

The mail service address for the Solicitor is:

Office of the Solicitor
P. O. Box 15667
Arlington, Virginia 22215

Only litigation papers should be mailed to the Post Office box address. Other papers intended for filing in PTO should be addressed as specified in 37 CFR § 1.1. Non-litigation papers will be returned and will not be forwarded to the Mail Room.

Litigation papers not served by hand must be mailed to our Post Office box. Litigation papers mailed or delivered to the Mail Room of PTO, left in PTO's night deposit box, or left with a PTO employee in an office other than the Office of the Solicitor, are deemed served when received in the Office of the Solicitor.

The Office of the Solicitor is open from 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Litigation papers served by hand must be delivered between 8:30 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. to:

Office of the Solicitor
2121 Crystal Drive
Suite 918
Arlington, Virginia

Unless permitted by court rules or order, delivery does not include facsimile transmission.

VI. Motions

Motions are inevitable in Federal Circuit and other court practice. Before a motion is filed, appellant should contact the Solicitor's Office to see if there is agreement on the requested relief and the proposed order. If there is no opposition to a procedural order, it can be entered by the Clerk, thereby obtaining prompt relief and obviating the need for a judge or motions panel to consider the matter.

VII. Appendix

A. Designation

The Office of the Solicitor typically designates the following items for inclusion in the appendix in addition to the mandatory items specified in Fed. Cir. R. 30.

In ex parte patent cases, we generally designate:

(1) the specification;
(2) any drawings;
(3) the prior art supporting the rejection;
(4) the final rejection and any Office action referenced in the final rejection;
(5) the examiner's answer; and
(6) any evidence submitted to support patentability.

In ex parte trademark cases, we generally designate:

(1) the trademark application, including the drawing;
(2) specimens;
(3) the trademark examining attorney's statement; and
(4) registrations supporting the refusal and any other evidence relied upon by the examining attorney the TTAB.

It should be noted that Fed. Cir. R. 30(a)(2)(iii) prohibits the inclusion of briefs filed by an applicant in PTO without leave of the court. However, the examiner's answer and examining attorney's statement may be designated and included without leave. Fed. Cir. R. 30(a)(2).

While the items in the appendix differ from case to case, a typical appendix in an ex parte patent appeal contains the following items in the following order:

(1) table of contents;
(2) the initial decision of the Board;
(3) any decision on reconsideration;
(4) a copy of the certified list, which corresponds to the docket entries mentioned in Fed. R. App. P. 29(a)(1)] ;
(5) the specification;
(6) the final rejection;
(7) the examiner's answer;
(8) any prior art relied upon by PTO;
(9) any rebuttal evidence, e.g., affidavits under Rule 131, 37 CFR § 1.131, or Rule 132, 37 CFR § 1.132; and
(10) a copy of the rejected claims.

With respect to the last item, Fed. Cir. R. 30(a)(3) provides:

> In appeals from . . . [PTO] , the appendix shall, unless the parties mutually agree to the contrary, include a copy of all rejected claims in an ex parte patent appeal, a copy of all counts in a patent interference appeal, and both a copy of the trademark sought to be registered or cancelled and a copy of any registration relied upon to refuse or oppose registration or to seek cancellation of a registered mark in an ex parte or an inter partes trademark appeal

If the material designated as the appendix exceeds 100 pages, a draft copy of the appendix, with page numbers, should be sent to the Office of the Solicitor. Upon receipt, if we see any problem with the appendix, including any failure to comply with Federal Circuit rules, we promptly advise appellant. Preparation of a draft appendix will also insure that all briefs properly refer to pages of the appendix.

B. Page numbering

Fed. Cir. R. 30(c)(2) requires that page numbers be centered in the bottom margin of each page and that other pagination marks be redacted if necessary to avoid confusion. Numbering the appendix pages with a format such as "0001" generally avoids confusion with other page numbers.

If the designated appendix is less than 100 pages (which should be copied on both the front and back), the appendix is bound with appellant's principal brief. If the designated appendix is more than 100 pages, the appendix is filed separately within seven (7) days of the date the last reply brief is filed. Fed. Cir. R. 30(a)(4).

C. Legible materials

An appendix will often contain copies of materials which are illegible. In cases where counsel for an appellant does not have legible copies of materials which are available in PTO, contact the Office of the Solicitor and we will arrange to send a legible copy.

Handwritten notes in the margin of counsel's copy of Office actions should be removed. The proper place to argue a case is in a brief - not in notes in the margin.

VIII. Briefs

A. Statement of the facts

Fed. R. App. P. 28(a)(3) requires that an appellant file a statement of facts relevant to the issues presented for review. Fed. Cir. R. 28(b) provides that the appellee's statement of the case should be limited to the specific areas of disagreement with those of the appellant. Absent disagreement the appellee shall not include a statement of the case in his brief. Id. In our view these rules place the responsibility to provide a complete and neutral statement of facts on the appellant. Appellant should remember that it lost below. Hence, the "facts" are not those the appellant would like them to be; rather, the "facts" are those found by the Board. The statement of the facts in a brief is not the place to argue that the Board was clearly erroneous in making a finding of fact.

In our experience, appellants' statement of the facts invariably include argument; fail to describe all the facts relevant to the issues; state the facts in a light most favorable to appellant despite contrary findings below; or state conclusions - often without citation to the appendix. As a result, we typically find it necessary to include a detailed and, we believe, a complete and neutral statement of facts - with full citations to the appendix.

We particularly note that when "new" counsel is retained to handle the Federal Circuit appeal, the arguments on appeal often bear no resemblance to the arguments made to the Board. As a matter of logic, it would seem that the Board could not possibly have erred below on the basis of an argument made for the first time in the Federal Circuit. See Keebler Co. v. Murray Bakery Products, 866 F.2d 1386, 9 USPQ2d 1736 (Fed. Cir. 1989) (since Keebler failed to tell the TTAB it was interested in Murray's "intent," it could not use intent as a basis for showing "error" by the TTAB; prescience is not a required characteristic of the board and the board need not divine all possible afterthoughts of counsel that might be asserted for the first time on appeal).

B. References in brief to the appendix

All factual assertions made in the brief should be supported with citation to the appendix. How the Federal Circuit is supposed to know that an assertion is correct, when no reference is made to the appendix in support of the assertion, is something we have not been able to figure out. The Federal Circuit has often noted, with apparent disapproval, the absence of a citation to the appendix in support of a party's position.[22] Failure to cite to the appendix may affect an attorney's credibility before the Federal Circuit and diminish the impact of otherwise meritorious arguments. If counsel feels that it is necessary to make factual assertions and cannot point to the specific portion of the appendix supporting the assertion, consideration should be given to refiling the application. Argument which depends on factual assertions not supported by the record cannot have any relevance to any error in the decision under review.

Moreover, to the extent that we have influence within PTO to bring about a favorable result by way of settlement, we need tobe convinced. Allegations, not supported by references to the appendix, are not likely to convince any attorney in the Office of the Solicitor of the merits of an appellant's position.

IX. Oral argument

A. When we appear

An attorney from the Solicitor's Office will appear and present argument in cases in which the appellant intends to present oral argument. We will submit on the briefs only (1) where appellant submits on brief and (2) no reply brief has been filed or we conclude that the reply brief does not require comment at the oral hearing. On the other hand, if a reply brief raises a substantial issue, particularly a "new" issue, we will appear even if appellant waives oral argument.

B. Discussing the [allegged] error

An appellant has a burden of showing that the Board erred in its decision.[23] Factual findings below must be shown to be clearly erroneous,[24] while legal conclusions are reviewed for correctness or error as a matter of law.[25] Having only a short time for oral hearing, typically fifteen minutes, appellants should direct their remarks to the purported errors in the Board's decision. Based upon the 60 to 80 cases we argue annually, we can assure appellants that Federal Circuit merits panels are familiar with the record and the proceedings under review. Counsel may not want to use part of the 15 minutes normally allocated for oral argument by:

(1) explaining that the case is an appeal from the Patent and Trademark Office (the merits panel already knows that because the briefs have been read),

(2) identifying the appellant or assignee (because it is essentially irrelevant),

(3) reviewing the facts of the case, etc.

However, counsel should be thoroughly familiar with the record and be prepared to identify the portions which support their arguments.

We suggest oral argument by an appellant should start by saying "The error below was . . ." and here's why.

C. Visual aides

Fed. Cir. R. 34(c) encourages the use of visual aids. If the visual aid was not used during the administrative proceeding, written notice of the proposed use must be given at least 15 days prior to the hearing. Any written objections must be filed at least 5 days before the hearing. The rule also provides that counsel may agree on the use of visual aids.

Whether or not we will agree depends on the particular facts. We ordinarily do not disagree with enlargements ("blow-ups") of portions of the record. Where the proposed visual aid is not part of the record, we will not agree until we have had an opportunity to see the visual aid.

X. Petitions for rehearing

Petitions for rehearing can be useful if properly used. But, in our experience, petitions for rehearing filed by appellants simply reargue the case. We do not believe this is a proper function of a petition for rehearing.

Generally we will file a petition for rehearing only when (a) we believe the merits panel has made a genuine mistake - not merely a "judgment" call which happens to differ from our judgment, or (b) even where the result is correct, an opinion contains language which we believe will seriously and adversely affect PTO's ability to properly and effectively administer the patent or trademark laws. See Markey, "Semantic Antics in Patent Cases," 88 F.R.D. 103, 108 (1980) (suggesting rehearing should be requested to modify opinion language which confuses the law of patents).

We suggest, and do not believe, that there is such a thing as a "routine" petition for rehearing. A truly extraordinary situation must exist before a petition for rehearing can be deemed proper.[26] The Office of the Solicitor has been relatively successful with petitions for rehearing. In a 20-year period before the CCPA and Federal Circuit, we can recall filing approximately 12 petitions for rehearing. Some form of relief has been granted in nine, i.e., claims found patentable in the original decision were found unpatentable on rehearing,[27] language was changed in the opinion,[28] relief was granted in part,[29] etc.

XI. Issuance of mandates/termination of proceedings

As provided in Fed. R. App. P. 41(a), the Court's mandate usually issues 21 days after the entry of its decision. A request for rehearing stays the mandate until seven days after an order by the merits panel denying rehearing. Unless there are allowable claims or the Court's decision requires further proceedings by the Office, the receipt of the mandate by PTO "terminates the proceedings" for purposes of continuity under 35 U.S.C. § 120. 37 CFR § 1.197(c), 54 Fed. Reg. 29548, 29552 (July 13, 1989) reprinted in, 1105 Off. Gaz. Pat. Office 5, 9 (Aug. 1, 1989). If an appellant contemplates filing a "continuing" application, it should be filed prior to the receipt of the mandate by PTO to preserve the benefit of the filing date of the parent application. Proceedings terminate on receipt of the mandate, not upon the expiration of the period for applying for certiorari to the Supreme Court.[30]

XII. Costs

In ex parte patent and trademark appeals from PTO, costs are not awarded for or against the Commissioner. See Fed. Cir. Practice Note to Fed. Cir. R. 39.[31] Hence, we do not file bills of costs in ex parte cases.

Changes in Patent and Trademark Assignment Practice

Agency: Patent and Trademark Office, Commerce
Action: Final Rule.
Summary: The Patent and Trademark Office (Office) is amending the rules of practice regarding assignments in patent and trademark cases to improve and clarify the rules, to codify changes in practice and to consolidate the rules. The Office has combined the assignment rules currently in Parts 1 and 2 into a new Part 3 directed to assignments.
Effective Date: Sept. 4, 1992. These rules will be applicable to all documents filed with the Office on or after the effective date.
For Further Information Contact: Trademark related matters: Lynne Beresford by telephone at (703) 305-9464 or by mail marked to her attention addressed to the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Washington, D.C. 20231.
Patent related matters: Jeffrey V. Nase by telephone at (703) 305-9282 or by mail marked to his attention and addressed to Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Box DAC, Washington, D.C. 20231.
Supplementary Information: In a Notice of Proposed Rulemaking published in the Federal Register on May 10, 1991 at 56 FR 21641 and in the Patent and Trademark Office "Official Gazette" of June 4, 1991 at 1127 O.G. 8-16, the Office proposed to amend the rules of practice in patent and trademark cases to revise, simplify, remove, or clarify existing assignment rules or to codify certain practices currently in effect. Changes were proposed for rules relating to the documents that will be recorded, to the requirements for recording a document, to the effect of recording, to new cover sheet requirements, to the appointment of domestic representatives; and to prosecution by assignees and issuance to assignees. While the existing rules do not require a cover sheet to accompany each document submitted for recording, typically a cover letter is submitted to ensure proper processing of the document.

The Office has encouraged the public to use a cover letter containing specific information concerning the document being submitted with each document submitted for recording. See "Helpful Hints", 1114 Official Gazette 77 (May 29, 1990). The public has adopted the suggested procedure to such an extent that most documents now submitted for recordation are accompanied by a cover letter which contains the suggested data. Documents submitted with these cover letters have enabled the Office to greatly improve the quality and efficiency of the recording process. To better ensure that the correct data is captured in recordation and recorded promptly, the Office is making a cover sheet mandatory. The cover sheet will contain all the information necessary for the Assignment Branch to properly and promptly process the document.

Written comments were submitted by 12 firms, 2 individuals, 4 corporationsand 1 organization. No one testified at the oral hearing held on July 17, 1991.

The following includes a brief discussion of the rules being changed and the reasons for those changes, a detailed section-by-section analysis of the final rules, and an analysis of the comments received in response to the notice of proposed rulemaking.
Specific Rules to be Deleted or Added: The existing rules of practice in Parts 1 and 2 of Title 37 of the Code of Federal Regulations which are deleted are §§ 1.32, 1.331, 1.332, 1.333, 1.334, 2.185, 2.186 and 2.187. These rules are deleted in their entirety and rewritten and renumbered under a new Part 3. Table 1 is provided to assist readers in correlating previous rules with the new rules.

Consideration was given to moving § 1.12 (Assignment records open to public inspection.) to Part 3. However, since this section primarily relates to records maintained by the Office and procedures for accessing those records, and no comments were received regarding the placement of § 1.12, this section remains under the general heading "Records and Files" of the Patent and Trademark Office.
Discussion of Specific Rules to be Changed or Added: Section 1.12(a) is revised to reflect the fact that all assignment records related to pre-1955 trademark records and pre-1957 patent records were transferred to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) during 1990. All assignments recorded on or after January 1, 1955, for trademarks and May 1, 1957, for patents continue to be maintained by the Office. The pre-1955/1957 records have been transferred to NARA to allow for greater accessibility to the public, improvement of file integrity for the older records, and preservation of these materials. The pre-1955/1957 assignment cards, digest books, and libers were stored in four locations: the Assignment Search Room (ASR) at the Office, the Federal Records Center in Suitland, Maryland, the National Archives in downtown Washington, D.C., and the National Archives location in Alexandria, Virginia. Storage of information in these various locations made searching of old assignment records difficult. The materials located at the Federal Records Center could be ordered from the ASR. However, many times it took months to receive the materials.

All assignment records from 1837 to December 31, 1954, for trademarks and from 1837 to April 30, 1957, for patents are now maintained and are open for public inspection in the National Archives Research Room located at the Washington National Records Center Building, 4205 Suitland Road, Suitland, Maryland 20746. Assignments recorded before 1837 aremaintained at the National Archives and Records Administration, 841 South Pickett Street, Alexandria, Virginia 22304.

All requests for abstracts of title continue to be provided by the Office upon request and payment of fees set forth in §§ 1.19 and 2.6. Requests for copies and certified copies of the pre-1955 records for trademarks and pre-1957 records for patents should be directed to NARA since those records are not maintained by the Office. Since these records are maintained by NARA, it is more expeditious to request copies directly from NARA, rather than the Office, which would then have to route the requests to NARA. Payment of the fees required by NARA should accompany all requests for copies.

Another change makes clear that separate assignment records are kept for patents and trademarks, and that an extra charge will be imposed by the Office on requests for copies of recorded assignments if the correct reel and frame number are not identified.

Sections 1.17 and 1.46 are amended to make reference to § 3.81, which replaces § 1.334, and delete reference to § 1.334. The amount of the fee for recording a document is not affected by this rule change.

Section 1.104(e) is amended to make reference to Part 3, which replaces § 1.331, and delete reference to § 1.331.

Section 3.1 is added to set out definitions of terms used in Part 3. Terms which are defined include "application," "assignment," "document," "Office" (meaning Patent and Trademark Office), "recorded document," and "registration." Definitions are provided to make clear the intended meanings of the terms used in Part 3. These definitions are intended to be applicable only to Part 3. For example, the term "application" is defined, for the purpose of Part 3, to mean a national application for patent, an international application for patent that designates the United States of America, or an application to register a trademark, unless otherwise indicated.

Section 3.11 replaces and modifies the practice set forth in§ 1.331(a) and 2.185(a), which specify the documents the Office will record. This section specifies that assignments of patents and registrations will be recorded, as well as other documents which affect title to applications, registrations and patents. Section 3.11 requires that a completed cover sheet as specified in §§ 3.28 and 3.31 be submitted with the document to be recorded.

Section 3.16 is added to incorporate the limitation set out in 15 U.S.C. § 1060 proscribing the assignment of an intent-to-use trademark application prior to the filing of a statement of use, except as a part of the sale of an on-going business. Because the rules in Part 3 are intended to address all rules relating to assignments, it is appropriate to refer to the statutory requirements of an assignment of an intent-to-use trademark application.

Section 3.21 replaces and modifies the practice of § 1.331(c). Section 3.21 sets forth requirements for the identification of patents or patent applications in documents submitted for recording. An assignment relating to a patent must identify the patent by number. The name of the inventor, the issue date, and title of the invention as stated in the patent may also be given in the assignment to provide additional information on the patent being assigned. An assignment relating to a national patent application must identify the national patent application by application number (consisting of the series code and the serial number, e.g., 07/123,456) or serial number and filing date. An assignment relating to an international patent application which designates the United States of America must identify the international application number (e.g., PCT/US90/01234). The name of the inventor, date of filing, and title of the invention as stated in the patent application may also be given in the assignment. If an assignment is executed concurrently with, or subsequent to, the execution of the patent application, but before the patent application is filed, it must identify the patent application by its date of execution, name of each inventor, and title of the invention so that there can be no mistake as to the patent application intended. Assignments submitted for recording that do not identify the patent or patent application as required by this section will not be recorded, but will be returned to the correspondence address that is required to be provided on the cover sheet by § 3.31(e).

Section 3.24 is added to set out formal document requirements to facilitate and expedite the recording process. This section requires that documents, either the original or a true copy of the original, submitted for recording be-legible, using only one side of each page. The paper used should be flexible, white, durable, and preferably no larger than 21.6 x 33.1 cm. (8 x 14 inches), with a 2.5 cm. (one-inch) margin on all sides. Documents submitted in this form are camera-ready and can be recorded expeditiously with little additional handling required. Documents that fail to meet the legibility and single-sided paper requirements of this section will be returned as set forth in 3.51.

Section 3.26 replaces and modifies the practice of §§ 1.331(b) and 2.185(a)(2). Section 3.26 provides that the Office will accept and record non-English documents provided they are accompanied by a verified English translation signed by the translator. Documents submitted that fail to meet the requirements of this section will be returned as set forth in § 3.51.

Section 3.27 is added to set out how documents submitted for recording should be addressed to the Office. To ensure prompt and proper processing, documents and their cover sheets should be addressed to the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Box Assignments, Washington, D.C. 20231, unless they are filed together with new applications or with a petition under § 3.81(b). Petitions under § 3.81(b) should be addressed to the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Box DAC, Washington, D.C. 20231. New applications and other petitions should be addressed to the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Washington, D.C. 20231.

Section 3.28 is added to set out the requirement that all documents submitted to the Office for recording be accompanied by at least one coversheet referring either to the patent applications and patents or to the trademark applications and registrations against which the document is to be recorded. Only one set of documents and cover sheets to be recorded should be filed. If a document to be recorded includes interests in, or transactions involving, both patents and trademarks, separate patent and trademark coversheets must be submitted. If a document to be recorded is not accompanied by a completed cover sheet, the document and any incomplete cover sheet will bereturned to the correspondence address for proper completion of the cover sheet and resubmission of the cover sheet and document. While the previous rules did not require a cover sheet to accompany each document submitted for recording, typically a cover letter is submitted to ensure proper processing of the document. The Office is making a cover sheet mandatory in order to betterensure prompt and proper processing of all documents submitted for recording. The cover sheet contains all the information necessary for the Office toprocess the document.

Section 3.31 is added to set out the formal requirements of the cover sheet. Section 3.31 requires that each patent or trademark cover sheet must contain (1) the name of the party conveying the interest; (2) the name and address of the party receiving the interest; (3) a brief description of the interest conveyed or transaction to be recorded (e.g., assignment, license, change of name, merger, security agreement, etc.); (4) each application number, patent number or registration number against which the document is to be recorded, or an indication that the document is filed together with a patent application; (5) the name and address of the party to whom correspondence concerning the document to be recorded should be mailed; (6) the number of applications, patents or registrations identified in the cover sheet and the total fee; (7) the date the document was executed; (8) an indication that the assignee of a trademark application or registration who is not domiciled in the United States has designated a domestic representative; (9) a statement by the party submitting the document that to the best of the person's knowledge and belief, the information contained on the cover sheet is true and correct, and (10) the signature of the party submitting the document. The term "party" as used in this rule means the person whose name appears on the documents to be recorded, that person's attorney or registered agent, or a corporate officer where a corporation's name appears on the document. Sample cover sheets for patent documents and for trademark documents are shown in Appendices A and B.

Section 3.34 is added to set out the procedure to correct obvious errors in a recorded cover sheet. This section requires that if a recorded cover sheet contains an error that is apparent when the cover sheet is compared with the recorded document, the error will be corrected only if a corrected cover sheet is filed for recordation. The corrected cover sheet must be accompanied by the originally-recorded document or a copy of the originally-recorded document and by a new assignment recording fee in the appropriate amount.

Section 3.41 replaces and consolidates practice under §§ 1.331(a) and 2.185(a)(3) regarding recording fees. Section 3.41 requires that all requests to record documents be accompanied by the appropriate fee. A fee is charged for each application, patent and registration identified in the cover sheet. The recording fee for patents and patent applications is specified in § 1.21(h). The recording fee for trademark registrations and applications is specified in § 2.6(q).

Section 3.51 replaces and modifies the practice of §§ 1.332 and 2.185(c). Section 3.51 sets the date of recording of a document as the date the document meeting the requirements for recording set forth in this Part is filed in the Office. A document which does not comply with the identification requirements of § 3.21 will not be recorded. For documents not accepted for recording, parties can petition under 37 CFR §§ 1.181 and 2.146(a). Other documents not meeting the requirements for recording, for example, a document submitted without a completed cover sheet, without the required fee, or without any required translation, will be returned for correction to the sender when a return address is available. The returned papers, stamped with the official date of receipt in the Office, will be accompanied by a letter indicating that if the returned papers are corrected and resubmitted to the Office within time specified in the letter, the Office will consider the original date of filing of the papers as the date of recording of the papers. Submitters can use the certificate procedure under either § 1.8 or § 1.10 for resubmissions of returned papers if they desire to have the benefit of the date of deposit in the United States Postal Service. If the returned papers are not corrected and resubmitted within the specified period, the date of filing of the corrected papers will be considered to be the date of recording of the papers. Extensions of time will not be available to extend the specified period to resubmit the returned papers.

Section 3.54 is added to set out the effect of recording a document. This section states that the recording of a document is not a determination by the Office of the validity of the document or the effect that document has on the title to an application, a patent, or a registration. The Office will determine, when necessary, what effect a document has, including whether a party has the authority to take an action in a matter pending before the Office. Examples of when the Office will need to determine whether a party has the authority to take an action in a matter pending before the Office include: (1) prosecution by the assignee as in § 3.71; (2) consent of an assignee to the filing of a reissue application as provided in § 1.172; and (3) execution of a disclaimer under § 1.321 by an assignee.

Section 3.56 replaces and modifies the practice of § 1.333. Section 3.56 provides that an assignment, which at the time of its execution is conditional on a given act or event, will be treated by the Office as an absolute assignment. This section serves as notification as to how a conditional assignment will be treated by the Office in any proceeding requiring a determination of the owner of an application, patent or registration. Since the Office will not determine whether a condition has been fulfilled, the Office will treat the submission of such an assignment for recordation as signifying that the act or event has occurred.

Section 3.61 replaces and modifies the practice of § 2.185(a)(4). Section 3.61 sets forth that an assignee of a trademark application or registration not domiciled in the United States must designate a domestic representative in writing to the Office. Assignees of patent applications or patents may designate domestic representatives if the assignee is not residing in the United States. 35 U.S.C. § 293. The designation is required to state the name and address of a person residing within the United States on whom may be served process or notice of proceedings affecting the application, patent or registration or rights thereunder.

Section 3.71 replaces and modifies the practice of §§ 1.32 and 2.186. Section 3.71 sets forth that the assignee of record of the entire right, title and interest in an application for patent is entitled to conduct the prosecution of the patent application to the exclusion of the named inventor. Similarly, the assignee of an application for registration is entitled to conduct the prosecution of the trademark application to the exclusion of the applicant.

Section 3.73 is added to set out the procedure by which an assignee can establish the right to take action in an application, patent or registration. The inventor is presumed to be the original owner of a patent application and any patent that may issue therefrom, unless there is an assignment. The original applicant is presumed to be the original owner of a trademark application and any registration that may issue therefrom, unless there is an assignment. Any action before the Office with respect to an assigned patent application, patent, or reexamination may be taken by the assignee of the entire right, title, and interest, provided ownership is established to the satisfaction of the Commissioner. The assignee may establish ownership by submitting to the Office documentary evidence of a chain of title from the original owner to the assignee or by specifying (e.g., reel and frame number, etc.) where such evidence is recorded in the Office. Additionally, when a patent assignee is not represented by an attorney or registered agent, a statement signed by the assignee must also be submitted stating the evidence has been reviewed and certifying that, to the best of the party's knowledge and belief, title is in the party seeking to take the action. Documents submitted to establish ownership may be required to be recorded in the Office as a condition to permitting the requesting party to take action in a matter pending before the Office. Any action before the Office with respect to an assigned trademark registration, application or post-registration matter, may be taken by the assignee provided ownership is established to the satisfaction of the Commissioner by recording an assignment to the assignee or by submitting other proof of the assignment.

Section 3.81 replaces and modifies the practice of § 1.334. Section 3.81 sets forth the procedure for issuance of a patent to an assignee. If an assignment of the entire right, title, and interest is recorded before the issue fee is paid for a patent application, the patent may issue in the name of the assignee. If the assignee holds an undivided part interest, the patent may issue jointly to the inventor and the assignee. At the time the issue fee is paid, the name of the assignee must be provided if the patent is to issue solely or jointly to that assignee. If the assignment is submitted for recording after the date of payment of the issue fee, but prior to issuance of the patent, the assignee may petition that the patent issue to the assignee. Any such petition must be accompanied by the fee set forth in § 1.17(i)(1).

Section 3.85 replaces and modifies the practice of § 2.187. Section 3.85 sets forth the procedure for issuance of a registration to an assignee. The certificate of registration may be issued to the assignee of the applicant, or in a new name of the applicant, provided that the party files a written request in the trademark application record by the time the application is being prepared for issuance of the certificate of registration, and an appropriate document is recorded in the Office. If the assignment or name change document has not been recorded in the Office, then the written request must state that the document has been filed for recordation. The address of the assignee must be made of record in the trademark application file.

Response to Comments on the Rules

The comments received in response to the notice of proposed rulemaking have been given careful consideration and a number of the suggested modifications have been adopted. The comments and responses are discussed below.

In this discussion, "Patent and Trademark Office" is abbreviated as "Office" or "PTO".

Comment: Two comments were received addressed to the overall rule package. One comment expressed concern over the potential confusion of instituting a new Part 3. It was suggested that Parts 1 and 2 be amended to contain the necessary changes. Another comment was concerned that the rules and specifically the new cover sheet requirement would impede promptness and accuracy of the recordation process.

Response: The Office has determined that the new rules will result in greater efficiency and accuracy in the recordation process and improve the integrity of the records maintained by the PTO. Further, the PTO believes that a new Part 3, containing all rules relating to assignments, will be beneficial to the majority of patent and trademark system users.

Comment: Section 3.1 was proposed to define "application" as an application for patent or an application to register a trademark. One comment questioned whether international applications filed under the Patent Cooperation Treaty were included in the definition of the word "application."

Two comments were received concerning the definition of "assignment." As proposed, § 3.1 defines "assignment" of a trademark in terms of a "trademark application" or "registration." The comments suggested that because Section 10 of the Trademark Act, 15 U.S.C. § 1060, speaks in terms of a "registered mark" or a "mark for which application to register has been filed," which was reflected in previous trademark rule 2.186, the different terminology may be construed to permit assignment of a trademark without assignment of the underlying goodwill.

Response: The wording of § 3.1 has been changed to include both national applications for patent and international applications that designate the United States in the term "application."

Also to avoid any potential confusion over the definition of a trademark assignment, the Office adopted the suggestion to reflect Section 10 of the Trademark Act and to refer to a "registered mark" or a "mark for which application to register has been filed" in its definition of assignment.

Comment: As proposed, § 3.16 provides that an application to register a mark under 15 U.S.C. § 1051(b) cannot be assigned before a statement of use is filed except to a successor to an ongoing business of the original applicant. One comment suggested § 3.16 be further amended to correct a legislative oversight and permit assignment of the application after an amendment to allege use is filed.

One other comment suggested the PTO define the statutory language "successor to the business of the applicant."

Response: As proposed, Rule 3.16 merely restates the statute. To permit the filing of an assignment to a successor to an ongoing business before an amendment to allege use has been filed would make the rule inconsistent with the statute.

As to the definition of "successor to the business of the applicant," it has been determined that in the absence of any statutory definition, it is better left to case law to establish the meaning. A business, or portion thereof, can be transferred or assigned in a variety of ways, and the question of valid ownership might arise in a variety of circumstances. For the PTO to define what constitutes a successor may be duly restrictive.

Accordingly, the suggested modifications have not been adopted.

Comment: Section 3.21, as proposed, provides that an assignment of a patent or patent application must be identified by number. One comment requested a further amendment to allow the filing of a patent assignment after filing an application for patent but before knowing the application number by allowing identification by the execution date, inventors and title of the invention instead of the application number.

Another comment suggested that assignments relating to trademark applications and registrations should also be required to have the identifying serial and registration numbers within the body of the assignment document.

One comment questioned whether the patent identification number was required in the document or whether the number could just appear on the cover sheet.

Response: Providing the identifying number in the assignment document allows for greater efficiency and accuracy in recording assignments. However, unlike patents, trademarks can have an indefinite life. Assignments may be recorded years after an assignment has occurred to clear up the chain of title. It may not be possible to execute a new assignment to include identifying numbers in the document years later. Accordingly, it is preferable for the PTO to be more flexible in recording trademark assignments which may contain the identifying number in the cover sheet rather than in the document itself. Because of the nature of a patent, less flexibility is permitted. Patent rights, unlike trademark rights, do not exist apart from the issued patent. Accordingly, when an interest in a patent is transferred, the patent identifying number must be in the assignment document. This requirement only applies to assignments, not to documents other than assignments.

The PTO makes every effort to provide applicants with the application numbers for newly-filed patent applications as soon as possible. It is suggested, however, that assignment documents may be written to allow entry of the identifying number after the execution of the assignment. An example of acceptable wording is: "I hereby authorize and request my attorney, (Insert name), of (Insert address), to insert here in parentheses (Application number_____ filed) the filing date and application number of said application when known."

Accordingly, the suggested modifications have not been adopted.

Comment: Section 3.24, as proposed, provides the formal requirements for the documents which are to be recorded and the cover sheet. Three comments stated that the one-side only requirement was unreasonable in light of PTO's issuance of two-sided patent and trademark copies and of the practices of other governments and corporations over which the submitter would have no control.

One comment requested clarification of "bond weight paper" and suggested the language used in the rules setting out drawing requirements be adopted.

One comment stated that the document size requirements should only pertain to documents prepared and executed by parties who wish to convey title.

Two comments questioned whether the PTO would permit the filing of copies or true copies in lieu of the original documents for recording.

Response: The formal requirements set out in § 3.24 are related to PTO's ability to capture on film papers filed with the PTO. The requirements are not related to the other printing or photocopying services PTO provides. Micrographics reproduction requires that only one side of each page be used for efficiency. If the original document is two-sided or the wrong size, the practitioner can comply with this requirement by providing a true copy of the original document using only one side of each page on the correct size paper. The language in § 3.24 has been changed to clarify that true copies or originals are acceptable. Further, the language describing the type of paper to be used has been changed to be consistent with the drawing requirement rules.

Comment: Section 3.28, as proposed, provides that all requests to record a document must be accompanied by the document to be recorded and at least one cover sheet. One comment expressed confusion over whether the document must be accompanied by a cover letter as well as a request for recording. One comment stated the requirement for a cover sheet did not help the PTO with the documents which are filed with applications and the commenter did not see the need for an additional paper included among the papers for a new application.

Response: The first sentence has been rewritten to clarify that only the document and a cover sheet(s) must be submitted. A separate request for recording is not required or needed. Because the cover sheet provides all pertinent information in one place, it will greatly assist the processing of assignments by the PTO. For those applications which are filed with an assignment, the additional cover sheet required for the assignment aids the processing of the assignment.

Comment: Numerous comments were received on the proposed cover sheet requirements of § 3.31. One comment questions whether the form or the contents of the form are being required and cautioned that the cover sheet should not become a technical obstacle to recordation.

Two comments claimed the cover sheet requirement would be burdensome and the documents recorded should speak for themselves.

Two comments objected to the requirement for the characterization of the interest being conveyed. One of the commentors indicated it was not the best evidence of what the interest is and may be misleading while the second comment or was concerned practitioners would be subject to malpractice claims and be made parties to litigation involving the transfer.

One comment stated that requiring the assignee's address was burdensome and excessive. Three comments questioned the lack of consistency between proposed subsections (a) and (b) of § 3.31 which requires only the name of the conveyor but both the name and address of the receiver.

Two comments stated that the language of the rule was unclear as to whether the list of properties within the assignment document should be retyped on the cover sheet, which would be burdensome and fraught with potential errors.

One comment was received suggesting that properties be identified with as much information as possible (i.e., serial number, patent number, filing date, inventors, etc.).

Four comments stated that the requirement for an execution date of the document is excessive and burdensome. One of the comments stated that the execution date may not be as important as the effective date of the document. One suggested the effective date would be more accurate and another suggested the document should speak for itself. One additional comment stated that a nunc pro tunc assignment of the substantive rights of an assignee or assignor may be unduly affected by the requirement for recitation of the execution date.

Nine comments were received objecting to the language of the proposed verification. Some comments recommended that the verification statement be deleted. Other comments recommended that the verification statement be based on "information and belief." The comments indicated (1) practitioners did not want to be held responsible for the information entered on the cover sheet, (2) there was no purpose served by signing the cover sheet because the documents should speak for themselves and (3) under 37 C.F.R. § 10.18, a registered practitioner's signature indicates that the filing is correct.

One comment suggested that proposed § 3.31(i) does not recognize the right of some non-lawyers to practice in trademark matters before the PTO.

Additionally, many comments and suggestions were received on the layout of the sample cover sheets.

Response: The proposed purpose of the cover sheet is to provide a synopsis of the vital information contained in a recorded document. The cover sheet form itself is not required, only the information outlined in § 3.31 is required. Use of the sample cover sheet formats appearing as Appendices A and B to the rule package is encouraged. The Office will make paper copies of the sample cover sheets available for customer use. Persons wishing to obtain paper copies of the sample cover sheets should contact the Public Service Center at (703) 305-HELP. Questions regarding the sample cover sheets should be directed to the Assignment and Certification Services Division at (703) 308-9700.

As indicated in the proposed rule package, a majority of documents presently filed for recording are accompanied by a cover letter containing much of the information required in § 3.31. The PTO does not believe standardization of the information submitted is an undue burden. Standardization ensures easy reference to all critical information. Further, the parties or their representatives are in a better position to know or ascertain the nature of the interest involved than the PTO. The document will always speak for itself. However, a characterization assists in putting others on notice as to the nature of the transaction.

It was determined that a verification is not required. The language has been changed to a statement on the cover sheet based on "information and belief." Further, § 3.31(i) has been divided into two paragraphs, one for the statement that is required and one for the signature.

The address of the assignee or receiving party is vital information for maintaining complete assignment records. The original owner is the applicant, for which the Office has the address of record. Each subsequent assignee address is then obtained under this requirement and is of record if the PTO or public needs to contact the present assignee. The execution date is required to determine whether an assignment has been recorded within three months provided in 35 U.S.C. § 261 and 15 U.S.C. § 1060.

When there is a listing of properties contained within a document, any listing may be copied and attached to the cover sheet to reduce the amount of typing necessary. A notation of this attachment can be made in lieu of entering every property identification number on the cover sheet. Should submitters provide information in addition to that required by § 3.31, it is always welcome, but not required.

The comments received on the layout of the sample cover sheets have all been considered and some modifications have been made. However, the sample cover sheet is not required and it is not part of the rules.

Comment: Section 3.34, as proposed, provides for correction of errors in a recorded cover sheet when the error is apparent by comparing the information on the cover sheet with the recorded document itself. One comment received expressed confusion regarding the correction procedure. Another comment suggested that corrections should not be limited to apparent errors.

Response: The PTO will not compare the cover sheet with the original documents during the recording process except to assure that application and patent numbers are present in patent assignments. Otherwise, it will only check to see that the cover sheet is complete. When a submitter discovers an obvious error on the recorded cover sheet, the PTO will consider a request to correct it when it receives: (1) the original recorded document (or a copy); (2) a corrected cover sheet; and (3) the appropriate fee for each property to be corrected. The PTO will then compare the cover sheet with the document to determine whether the error is apparent on its face. If the error is obvious, the corrected cover sheet will be recorded and the respective Office records corrected. If the error is not obvious, the procedure set forth in the Manual of Patent Examining Procedure, MPEP § 323 will govern for patents and the procedure set forth in In re Abacab International Computers Ltd. (Assignee of IHEC, Ltd.), 21 USPQ2d 1078 (Comm'r Pats. 1987), on reconsideration, 21 USPQ2d1079 (Comm'r Pats. 1988) will govern for trademarks. Submitters may also petition under § 1.833 or § 2.146 for other corrections. Typographical errors made by the Office will be corrected without charge when brought to our attention.

Accordingly, the suggested modification has not been adopted. The rule has only been changed to correct a cross reference.

Comment: As proposed, § 3.51 provides that the date of recording is the date all of the required information is filed in the Office. Incomplete documents will be returned. If the returned documents are resubmitted timely, the document will retain the date on which it was received as incomplete. Two comments were received regarding the time period to be set by the PTO. One comment indicated that any delay may affect the requirements of 15 U.S.C. § 1060. It was therefore recommended that the PTO make some type of "conditional entry" in the records indicating an assignment has been submitted so interested members of the public could ascertain that there may be an effective recording date. The other comment suggested the time period for resubmission be long enough to allow communication with foreign parties, but it should be no longer than six months.

Response: After a review of the proposed rule, it was determined that the language of § 3.51 should be clarified to reflect that the originally-submitted papers with the official Office date stamp indicating the original receipt date in the Office must be returned in order to retain the original date. It is the intent of the PTO to set the time for response at one month from the date of mailing of the returned documents from the PTO. It is believed that most correctable errors will involve an incomplete cover sheet or the amount of the fee submitted, both of which can be corrected within one month.

Further, it is the policy of the PTO to make of record only those documents which meet the requirements for recording. It is not beneficial to cloud title to properties with potential transfers.

Comment: Section 3.56, as proposed, is a restatement of former § 1.333 and is made applicable to trademarks. It provides that an assignment which is made conditional upon a condition subsequent will be regarded by the Office as an absolute assignment. One comment was received inquiring as to whether § 3.56 applied to security interests, another was received requesting a reference in the rules to recording of security agreements.

Response: Section 3.56 is applicable only to assignments, as they are defined by § 3.1, that is, a transfer of right, title and interest in a patent or a trademark. A security interest or a security agreement is in the nature of a lien, not an assignment. Accordingly, § 3.56 would not apply to security interests or security agreements which are also recordable. It applies to conditional assignments because the Office has no way of determining whether and when conditions are satisfied and therefore must address this type of assignment in a uniform manner. The reference to the recordability of security agreements is referred to here in the final rule package.

Comment: The second sentence of § 3.71, as proposed, provides: "[t]he assignee of record of the entire right title and interest in a trademark application or registration is entitled to conduct the prosecution of the trademark application or registration to the exclusion of the original applicant or previous assignee." One comment suggested, as had been recommended for the definitions in § 3.1, that language be adopted consistent with Section 10 of the Trademark Act, 15 U.S.C. § 1060, so there be no confusion as to what can be assigned in the trademark area and further, that the language requiring "entire right, title and interest" be deleted.

Response: As was the case with the PTO's review of § 3.1, the language in § 3.71 has also been modified to eliminate any confusion. Accordingly, § 3.71 now provides for assignments of registered marks or a mark for which an application for registration has been filed, making it consistent with § 3.1. While this change cannot prevent assignments from being made without the underlying goodwill, it may eliminate some confusion.

Comment: Section 3.73, as proposed, provided that a full assignee could take any action before the Office with respect to the assigned application, patent, or registration provide ownership is established to the satisfaction of the Commissioner. The rule further provided that ownership could be established by providing documentary evidence of the chain of title to the assignee. The assignee was also required to submit a verified statement stating the evidence had been reviewed and certifying to the best of the party's belief, title is in the party seeking to take the action. The Office reserved the right to require recordation of any ownership documents. One comment suggested the procedure was too "elaborate" and "confusing" to permit the submitting party to act rapidly. Another comment suggested the Office use the language of former § 2.186 which only required "the assignment has been recorded or that proof of the assignment has been submitted" to enable action by the assignee.

Another comment suggested that a simple statement identifying the documents thought to place ownership in a party should be sufficient. It was believed that no additional benefit accrued by having the party state that they believed they were entitled to take the action because whether or not a party can act is a determination the PTO must make.

Two comments suggested that a literal reading of the rule would require every paper filed on behalf of an assignee be accompanied by a proof of ownership. One comment suggested it was too harsh to preclude a party from taking action in a trademark matter until proof of ownership is established to the satisfaction of the Commissioner. Rather, it was suggested that a party be permitted to take action once documents establishing ownership are filed.

One comment received pointed to the proposed language of § 3.73 providing the statement must be signed by the party or its attorney or agent of record which was a greater requirement than § 1.34(a), if that was intended.

Another comment suggested that the proposed language be changed by deleting the provision that ownership must be established to the satisfaction of the Commissioner and substituting therefore "provided the assignee is owner of the entire right, title, and interest in the patent application, patent, registered-mark or mark for which an application for registration has been filed."

One final comment suggested that § 3.73 be changed to specifically set forth that it applied to secure Office acceptance of a Section 8 or 15 affidavit or a Section 9 application, 15 U.S.C. §§ 1058, 1059, for trademark filings, and requested examples of the types of documents necessary to establish ownership.

Response: Ownership need only be established the first time the new party wants to act in patent and trademark cases, provided the appropriate documents are recorded. Section 3.73(b) is modified to provide that a statement of ownership need only be provided when a patent assignee wishes to act on a matter. For patents, the PTO believes it is appropriate for the patent assignee to review the documents it believes establishes its ownership prior to filing a paper signed by that assignee. Additionally, the statement will certify that to the best of the assignee's knowledge and belief, title is in that assignee. This will establish, to the satisfaction of the Commissioner, that the assignee knows of no other document establishing title in someone other than the assignee. The PTO will still make the determination of whether the assignee is entitled to take action after a review of the documents.

For trademarks the action sought to be taken can be submitted simultaneously by the party. The action will be examined as will the claim of ownership and the party will be notified whether it is satisfactory. As in the past, "any action" refers to post-registration documents as well.

Other Considerations

The rule changes are in conformity with the requirements of the Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C. 601 et seq.), Executive Orders 12291 and 12612 and the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et seq.

The General Counsel of the Department of Commerce has certified to the Chief Counsel for Advocacy, Small Business Administration, that these rule changes will not have a significant adverse economic impact on a substantial number of small entities (Regulatory Flexibility Act, 5 U.S.C. 605(b)). The principal impact of these changes is to require that a cover sheet accompany each document submitted for recording. The rule change includes no additional or increased fees. Substantive rights to use trademarks and patents are not adversely affected.

The Office has determined that these rule changes are not a major rule under Executive Order 12291. The annual effect on the economy will be less than $100 million. Because most of the changes reduce procedural burdens, there will be no major increase in costs or prices for consumers; individual industries; Federal, state or local government agencies; or geographic regions. There will be no significant adverse effects on competition, employment, investment, productivity, or innovation, or on the ability of United States-based enterprises to compete with foreign-based enterprises in domestic or export markets.

These rule changes contain a collection-of-information requirement subject to the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et seq. The rule changes add a requirement for a cover sheet to be submitted with each document to be recorded that will expedite the recording process and improve quality. This collection of information requirement is cleared under OMB Control No. 0651-0011. The public reporting burden for this requirement is estimated to be one-half hour per filing, including the time for reviewing instructions, searching existing data sources, gathering and maintaining the data needed, and completing and reviewing the collections of information.

The Office has also determined that this notice has no Federalism implications affecting the relationship between the National Government and the States as outlined in Executive Order 12612.

For purposes of this part, the following definitions shall apply:

Application means a national application for patent, an international application that designates the United States of America, or an application to register a trademark unless otherwise indicated.

Assignment means a transfer by a party of all or part of its right, title and interest in a patent or patent application, or a transfer of its entire right, title and interest in a registered mark or a mark for which an application to register has been filed.

Document means a document which a party requests to be recorded in the Office pursuant to § 3.11 and which affects some interest in an application, patent, or registration.

Office means the Patent and Trademark Office.

Recorded document means a document which has been recorded in the Office pursuant to § 3.11.

Registration means a trademark registration issued by the Office.

DOCUMENTS ELIGIBLE FOR RECORDING

§ 3.11 Documents which will be recorded.

Assignments of applications, patents, and registrations, accompanied by completed cover sheets as specified in §§ 3.28 and 3.31, will be recorded in the Office. Other documents, accompanied by completed cover sheets as specified in §§ 3.28 and 3.31, affecting title to applications, patents, or registrations, will be recorded as provided in this Part or at the discretion of the Commissioner.

§ 3.16 Assignability of trademark prior to filing of use statement.

No application to register a mark under 15 U.S.C. 1051(b) is assignable prior to the filing of the verified statement of use under 15 U.S.C. 1051(d) except to a successor to the business of the applicant, or portion thereof, to which the mark pertains, if that business is ongoing and existing.

REQUIREMENTS FOR RECORDING

§ 3.21 Identification of patents and patent applications.

An assignment relating to a patent must identify the patent by the patent number. An assignment relating to a national patent application must identify the national patent application by the application number (consisting of the series code and the serial number, e.g., 07/123,456) or the serial number and filing date. An assignment relating to an international patent application which designates the United States of America must identify the international application by the international application number (e.g., PCT/US90/01234). If an assignment is executed concurrently with, or subsequent to, the execution of the patent application, but before the patent application is filed, it must identify the patent application by its date of execution, name of each inventor, and title of the invention so that there can be no mistake as to the patent application intended.

§ 3.24 Formal requirements for documents and cover sheets.

The document and cover sheet must be legible. Either the original document or a true copy of the original document, may be submitted for recording. Only one side of each page shall be used. The paper used should be flexible, strong, white, non-shiny, durable, and preferably no larger than 21.6 x 33.1 cm. (8 1/4 x 14 inches) with a 2.5 cm. (one-inch) margin on all sides.

§ 3.26 English language requirement.

The Office will accept and record non-English language documents only if accompanied by a verified English translation signed by the individual making the translation.

§ 3.27 Mailing address for submitting documents to be recorded.

Documents and cover sheets to be recorded should be addressed to the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Box Assignments, Washington, D.C. 20231, unless they are filed together with new applications or with a petition under 3.81(b).

§ 3.28 Requests for recording.

Each document submitted to the Office for recording must be accompanied by at least one cover sheet as specified in § 3.31 referring either to those patent applications and patents, or to those trademark applications and registrations, against which the document is to be recorded. If a document to be recorded includes interests in, or transactions involving, both patents and trademarks, separate patent and trademark cover sheets must be submitted. Only one set of documents and cover sheets to be recorded should be filed. If a document to be recorded is not accompanied by a completed cover sheet, the document and any incomplete cover sheet will be returned pursuant to § 3.51 for proper completion of a cover sheet and resubmission of the document and a completed cover sheet.

COVER SHEET REQUIREMENTS

§ 3.31 Cover sheet content.

(a) Each patent or trademark cover sheet required by § 3.28 must contain:

(1) the name of the party conveying the interest;

(2) the name and address of the party receiving the interest;

(3) a description of the interest conveyed or transaction to be recorded;

(4) each application number, patent number or registration number against which the document is to be recorded, or an indication that the document is filed together with a patent application;

(5) the name and address of the party to whom correspondence concerning the request to record the document should be mailed;

(6) the number of applications, patents or registrations identified in the cover sheet and the total fee;

(7) the date the document was executed;

(8) an indication that the assignee of a trademark application or registration who is not domiciled in the United States has designated a domestic representative (see § 3.61); and

(9) a statement by the party submitting the document that to the best of the person's knowledge and belief, the information contained on the cover sheet is true and correct and any copy submitted is a true copy of the original document; and

(10) the signature of the party submitting the document.

(b) A cover sheet may not refer to both patents and trademarks.

§ 3.34 Correction of cover sheet errors.

(a) An error in a cover sheet recorded pursuant to 3.11 will be correctedonly if:

(1) the error is apparent when the cover sheet is compared with the recorded document to which it pertains and

(2) a corrected cover sheet is filed for recordation.

(b) The corrected cover sheet must be accompanied by the originally recorded document or a copy of the originally recorded document and by the recording fee as set forth in § 3.41.

FEES

§ 3.41 Recording fees.

All requests to record documents must be accompanied by the appropriate fee. A fee is required for each application, patent and registration against which the document is recorded as identified in the cover sheet. The recording fee is set in § 1.21(h) of this Chapter for patents and in § 2.6(q) of this Chapter for trademarks.

DATE AND EFFECT OF RECORDING

§ 3.51 Recording date.

The date of recording of a document is the date the document meeting the requirements for recording set forth in this Part is filed in the Office. A document which does not comply with the identification requirements of § 3.21 will not be recorded. Documents not meeting the other requirements for recording, for example, a document submitted without a completed cover sheet or without the required fee, will be returned for correction to the sender where a correspondence address is available. The returned papers, stamped with the original date of receipt by the Office, will be accompanied by a letter which will indicate that if the returned papers are corrected and resubmitted to the Office within the time specified in the letter, the Office will consider the original date of filing of the papers as the date of recording of the document. The certification procedure under either § 1.8 or § 1.10 of this Chapter may be used for resubmissions of returned papers to have the benefit of the date of deposit in the United States Postal Service. If the returned patent was not corrected and resubmitted within the specified period, the date of filing of the corrected papers will be considered to be the date of recording of the document. The specified period to resubmit the returned papers will not be extended.

§ 3.54 Effect of recording.

The recording of a document pursuant to § 3.11 is not a determination by the Office of the validity of the document or the effect that document has on the title to an application, a patent, or a registration. When necessary, the Office will determine what effect a document has, including whether a party has the authority to take an action in a matter pending before the Office.

§ 3.56 Conditional assignments.

Assignments which are made conditional on the performance of certain acts or events, such as the payment of money or other condition subsequent, if recorded in the Office, are regarded as absolute assignments for Office purposes until cancelled with the written consent of all parties or by the decree of a court of competent jurisdiction. The Office does not determine whether such conditions have been fulfilled.

DOMESTIC REPRESENTATIVE

§ 3.61 Domestic representative.

If the assignee of a trademark application or registration is not domiciled in the United States, the assignee must designate, in writing to the Office, a domestic representative. An assignee of a patent application or patent may designate a domestic representative if the assignee is not residing in the United States. The designation shall state the name and address of a person residing within the United States on whom may be served process or notice of proceedings affecting the application, patent or registration or rights thereunder.

PROSECUTION BY ASSIGNEE

§ 3.71 Prosecution by assignee.

The assignee of record of the entire right, title and interest in an application for patent is entitled to conduct the prosecution of the patent application to the exclusion of the named inventor or previous assignee. The assignee of a registered trademark or a trademark for which an application to register has been filed is entitled to conduct the prosecution of the trademark application or registration to the exclusion of the original applicant or previous assignee.

(a) The inventor is presumed to be the owner of a patent application, and any patent that may issue therefrom, unless there is an assignment. The original applicant is presumed to be the owner of a trademark application unless there is an assignment.

(b) When the assignee of the entire right, title and interest seeks to take action in a matter before the Office with respect to a patent application, trademark application, patent, registration, or reexamination proceeding, the assignee must establish its ownership of the property to the satisfaction of the Commissioner. Ownership is established by submitting to the Office documentary evidence of a chain of title from the original owner to the assignee or by specifying (e.g. reel and frame number, etc.) where such evidence is recorded in the Office. Documents submitted to establish ownership may be required to be recorded as a condition to permitting the assignee to take action in a matter pending before the Office. In addition, the assignee of a patent application or patent must submit a statement specifying that the evidentiary documents have been reviewed and certifying that, to the best of assignee's knowledge and belief, title is in the assignee seeking to take the action.

ISSUANCE TO ASSIGNEE

§ 3.81 Issue of patent to assignee.

(a) For a patent application, if an assignment of the entire right, title, and interest is recorded before the issue fee is paid, the patent may issue in the name of the assignee. If the assignee holds an undivided part interest, the patent may issue jointly to the inventor and the assignee. At the time the issue fee is paid, the name of the assignee must be provided if the patent is to issue solely or jointly to that assignee.

(b) If the assignment is submitted for recording after the date of payment of the issue fee, but prior to issuance of the patent, the assignee may petition that the patent issue to the assignee. Any such petition must be accompanied by the fee set forth in 1.17(i)(1) of this Chapter.

§ 3.85 Issue of registration to assignee.

The certificate of registration may be issued to the assignee of the applicant, or in a new name of the applicant, provided that the party files a written request in the trademark application by the time the application is being prepared for issuance of the certificate of registration, and the appropriate document is recorded in the Office. If the assignment or name change document has not been recorded in the Office, then the written request must state that the document has been filed for recordation. The address of the assignee must be made of record in the application file.

(29) Issuance of a Patent to an Assignee

The purpose of this notice is to clarify the procedures to have a patent issue to an assignee. See 37 CFR 3.81 and Manual of Patent Examining Procedure § 307.

Section 3.81(a) permits a patent to issue to an assignee, provided that at the time the issue fee is paid, the assignment has been submitted for recordation and the name of the assignee is provided. The name of the assignee is usually provided in item 5 of the Issue Fee Transmittal form (PTOL-85B).

Section 3.81(b) permits a patent to issue to an assignee when the assignment is submitted for recording after the date of payment of the issue fee, but prior to issuance of the patent, provided a petition and fee are filed requesting that the patent issue to the newly recorded assignee.

When the correct name of the assignee was not provided in accordance with either section 3.81(a) or (b) (i.e., either no name or an incorrect name was provided in item 5 of the Issue Fee Transmittal when the assignment had been recorded or submitted for recordation at the time the issue fee was paid, or an incorrect name was provided in the petition required by section 3.81(b) when the assignment is submitted for recording after the date of payment of the issue fee, but prior to issuance of the patent), a correction can be made by filing a petition under 37 CFR 1.183 requesting that the requirements of 37 CFR 3.871 be waived. This procedure is required at any time after the issue fee is paid, including after issuance of the patent. A petition under 37 CFR 1.183 should include: (1) the petition fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(h) (currently $130); (2) the correct name of the assignee; and (3) the reel and frame number where the assignment is recorded or proof of the date the assignment was submitted for recordation.

If the petition under 37 CFR 1.183 is filed and granted prior to issuance of the patent, the patent will either: (1) be printed with the correct assignee's name; or (2) be printed without the correct assignee's name. In the latter case, patentee would be entitled to a certificate of correction under 37 CFR 1.322 to correct an Office mistake in not correctly printing the assignee's name on the patent.

If the petition under 37 CFR 1.183 is filed and/or granted after issuance of the patent, the patent would be printed without the correct assignee's name. However, if the petition is granted, patentee would be entitled to a certificate of correction under 37 CFR 1.323 due to the mistake in not complying with 37 CFR 3.81.

Changes in Patent and Trademark Assignment Practice

Agency: Patent and Trademark Office, Commerce
Action: Final Rule; correction.
Summary: The Patent and Trademark Office (Office) amended the rules of practice regarding assignments in patent and trademark cases to improve and clarify the rules, to codify changes in practice and to consolidate the rules into a new Part 3 directed to assignments. In the final assignment rules a fee change promulgated in January 1992 was inadvertently omitted from the § 1.17(i)(1) listing.
Effective Date: September 4, 1992.
For Further Information Contact: Jeffery V. Nase by telephone at (703) 305-9282 or by mail marked to his attention and addressed to Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Box DAC, Washington, D.C. 20231.
Supplementary Information: The amended assignment rules first appeared in a notice of proposed rulemaking published in the Federal Register on May 10, 1991, at 56 FR 21641, and the Patent and Trademark Office Official Gazette of June 4, 1991, at 1127 OG 8-16. The final rules appeared in the Federal Register on July 6, 1992, at 57 FR 29634. Between the time the proposed and final rules were published, 37 CFR § 1.97(d) was amended, effective March 16, 1992, by a final rule which appeared in the Federal Register of January 17, 1992, 57 FR 2021, relating to the duty of disclosure. The amendment provided for a new petition fee which was referenced in 37 CFR § 1.17, patent application processing fees. The reproduction of § 1.17 in the final assignment rule package neglected to add the reference to the new petition under § 1.97(d).

Section 1.17(i)(1) is reproduced in its entirety to include the reference to § 1.97(d) which was inadvertently omitted. The amount of the fee for considering an information disclosure statement is not affected by this rule change.

(31) Taking Action in a Patent Matter Before the Office by the Assignee under 37 CFR 3.73.

When the assignee of the entire right, title and interest first seeks to take action in a matter before the Office with respect to a patent application, patent or reexamination proceeding, the assignee must establish its ownership of the property to the satisfaction of the Commissioner. 37 CFR 3.73(b). The assignee's ownership may be established either 1) by submitting to the Office copies of the documentary evidence of a chain of title from the original inventor to the assignee, or 2) by specifying, by reel and frame number, for example, where such documentary evidence is recorded in the Office. In addition to the establishment of ownership, there is further requirement that the assignee submit a statement specifying that the evidentiary documents have been reviewed and certifying that, to the best of the assignee's knowledge and belief, title is in the assignee seeking to take action. Once 37 CFR 3.73(b) is complied with by an assignee, that assignee may continue to take action in that application, patent or reexamination proceeding without filing a 37 CFR 3.73(b) statement each time, provided that ownership has not changed.

When an assignee files a continuation or divisional application (under 37 CFR 1.53, 1.60 or 1.62), reference may be made to a statement filed under 37 CFR 3.73(b) in the parent application or a copy of that statement may be filed. A newly executed statement under 37 CFR 3.73(b) must be filed when a continuation-in-part application is filed by an assignee.

The statement under 37 CFR 3.73(b) may be signed on behalf of the assignee in the following two manners if the assignee is an organization (e.g., corporation, partnership, university, government agency, etc.).

(1) The statement may be signed by a person in the organization having apparent authority to sign on behalf of the organization. An officer (president, vice-president, secretary, or treasurer) is presumed to have authority to sign on behalf of the organization. The signature of the chairman of the board of directors is acceptable, but not the signature of an individual director. A person having a title (manager, director, administrator, general counsel) that does not clearly set forth that person as an officer of the assignee is not presumed to be an officer of the assignee or to have authority to sign the statement on behalf of the assignee. A power of attorney from the inventors in an organization to a practitioner to prosecute a patent application does not make the practitioner an official of an assignee or empower the practitioner to sign the statement on behalf of the assignee.

(2) The statement may be signed by any person, if the statement includes an averment that the person is empowered to sign the statement on behalf of the assignee and, if not signed by a registered practitioner, the statement must be in oath or declaration form. Where a statement does not include such an averment, and the person signing does not hold a position in the organization that would give rise to a presumption that the person is empowered to sign the statement on behalf of the assignee, evidence of the person's authority to sign will be required.

Examples of situations where ownership must be established and the statement under 37 CFR 3.73(b) must be submitted are when the assignee: signs a request for status of an application or gives a power to inspect an application; acquiesces to express abandonment of an application; appoints its own legal representative; signs a terminal disclaimer; consents to the filing of a reissue application; consents to the correction of inventorship; files an application under 37 CFR 1.47(b) or 37 CFR 1.475; signs an Issue Fee Transmittal (PTOL-85B); or signs a response to an Office action.

Examples of situations where ownership need not be established and a statement under 37 CFR 3.73(b) is not required to be submitted are when the assignee: signs a small entity declaration; signs an affidavit or declaration of common ownership of two inventions; signs a NASA or DOE property rights statement; signs an affidavit under 37 CFR 1.131 where the inventor is unavailable; signs a Certificate of Mailing under 37 CFR 1.8; or files a request for reexamination of a patent under 37 CFR 1.510.

An acceptable certification under 37 CFR 3.73(b) is attached to this notice.

(32) Submission of Uniform Assignee Names on the Issue Fee Payment Form PTOL-85b

The Patent and Trademark Office is experiencing problems when computer-sorting assignee names for the Patentee Index because of the non-uniform use of the names of certain companies and corporations on the issue fee payment form PTOL-85b. The use of different spellings or nomenclature for the same company requires the Office to expend time and effort to determine whether the various name forms are in fact for the same company. If such inconsistencies are not corrected, patents to the same company will appear in different locations in the Patentee Index. An example of inconsistent use is "ABC Company, Ltd." and "ABC Co., Limited."

Therefore, persons who list assignee names on issue fee payment form PTOL-85b should ensure that the same company name form is used for all patents issuing to a particular company.

(33) Indexing Against a Recorded Assignment

It has been the practice of the Patent and Trademark Office (PTO) to process requests for indexing against a recorded document by adding the newly requested property to the data base record for the previously recorded document, except if the previously recorded document was an assignment. The PTO only required a transmittal letter with the recording fee and not a copy of the previously recorded document to process the indexing request. While indexing the additional properties resulted in the assignment data base being updated, the indexing request itself was never microfilmed to become part of the official record.

Effective immediately, the PTO will no longer process such indexing requests. Such indexing requests do not comply with 37 CFR 3.11, 3.28, and 3.31 which require that each request for recordation include the document to be recorded and a cover sheet. Instead of filing an indexing request, a party should submit a cover sheet in conformance with 37 CFR 3.31, a true copy of the document, and the recording fee. PTO will assign a new recording date to that submission, update the assignment data base, and microfilm the cover sheet and document to become part of the official record.

(34) Recordability of Foreclosures for Assignment Purposes

It has been the practice of the Assignment Branch to record security agreements between a secured party and a debtor which refer specifically to a patent or a patent application and which are signed by the debtor. However, foreclosures by the secured party were not recorded because they were not signed by the debtor. Accordingly, before recording a foreclosure not signed by a debtor, the Assignment Branch required a Court order. This requirement forced the secured party to bring action in a court of law where otherwise Court action might not have been necessary.

To facilitate recording of foreclosures not signed by a debtor and avoid unnecessary court proceedings, the Office will record foreclosures which comply with all of the following criteria:

(1) Submission of the foreclosure document with original endorsement by the secured party, or a verified copy thereof;
(2) Identification of the patent by patent number or the patent application by serial number, or other acceptable identifier(s) as specified in 37 CFR 1.331(c), in the body of the foreclosure document itself or any addenda incorporated by reference;
(3) Reference to the security agreement recorded under 37 CFR 1.331; and
(4) Submission of a verified statement by a representative of the secured party stating that the patent or the patent application has been legally foreclosed on based upon the applicable state laws.

A foreclosure document complying with the above criteria will be deemed to be a recordable instrument in accordance with 37 CFR 1.331.

Revision of Patent and Trademark Fees

Agency: Patent and Trademark Office, Commerce

Action: Final Rule.

Summary: The Patent and Trademark Office (PTO) is amending the rules of practice in patent and trademark cases, Parts 1 and 2 of title 37, Code of Federal Regulations, to adjust certain patent and trademark fee amounts to reflect fluctuations in the Consumer Price Index (CPI) and to recover costs of operation. The PTO is also establishing fees for providing public access to APS-Text in Patent and Trademark Depository Libraries (PTDLs), and for dividing a trademark application. In response to comments received from the Libraries in which they expressed their concerns about the administrative burdens of collecting fees from the public for use of APS-Test, the Commissioner is immediately suspending collection of that fee to provide additional time for the PTO to solicit input from the private sector on alternative collection methods, and other options for accessing patent search and retrieval in the Libraries.

Dates: Effective Date: October 1, 1992. Rule 1.21(p) will take effect on October 1, 1992 but will immediately be suspended by the Commissioner. Comment Date: The PTO will accept comments on alternative collection methods, and other options for accessing patent search and retrieval in the PTDLs (37 CFR 1.21(p)) until January 4, 1993. The Office will provide written notice in the Federal Register and the Official Gazette of the United States Patent and Trademark Office thirty days before starting to collect fees for accessing APS-Text in the PTDLs.

Addresses: Address written comments to the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Washington, D.C. 20231, Attention: Frances Michalkewicz, Suite 507, Crystal Park 1, or by FAX to (703) 305-8436.

For Further Information Contact: Frances Michalkewicz by telephone at (703) 305-8510 or by mail marked to her attention and addressed to the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Washington, D.C. 20231.

Supplementary Information: This rule change is designed to adjust the Patent and Trademark Office fees in accordance with the applicable provisions of title 35, United States Code, section 31 of the Trademark (Lanham) Act of 1946 (15 U.S.C. 1113), and section 10101 of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 (Public Law 101-508), all as amended by the Patent and Trademark Office Authorization Act of 1991 (Public Law 102-204).

Background:

Statutory Provisions: Patent fees are authorized by 35 U.S.C. 41 and 35 U.S.C. 376. A 50 percent reduction in the fees paid under 35 U.S.C. 41(a) and 41(b) by independent in-ventors, small business concerns, and nonprofit organizations who meet prescribed definitions is authorized by 35 U.S.C. 41(h).

Subsection 41(f) of title 35, United States Code, provides that fees established under 35 U.S.C. 41(a) and (b) may be adjusted on October 1, 1992, and every year thereafter, to reflect fluctuations in the Consumer Price Index (CPI) over the previous 12 months.

Section 10101 of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 (Pub. L. 101-508) provides that there shall be a surcharge on all fees established under 35 U.S.C. 41(a) and 41(b) to collect $99 million in fiscal year 1993.

Subsection 41(d) of title 35, United States Code, authorizes the Commissioner to establish fees for all other processing, services, or materials related to patents to recover the average cost of providing these services or materials, except for the fees for recording a document affecting title, for each photocopy, and for each black and white copy of a patent.

Section 376 of title 35, United States Code, authorizes the Commissioner to set fees for patent applications filed under the Patent Cooperation Treaty.

Subsection 41(g) of title 35, United States Code, provides that new fee amounts established by the Commissioner under section 41 may take effect thirty days after notice in the Federal Register and the Official Gazette of the Patent and Trademark Office.

Subsection 41(i)(3) of title 35, United States Code, authorizes the Commissioner to establish reasonable fees for access to automated search systems of the PTO.

Section 31 of the Trademark (Lanham) Act of 1946, as amended (15 U.S.C. 1113), authorizes the Commissioner to establish fees for the filing and processing of an application for the registration of a trademark or other mark, and for all other services and materials furnished by the PTO relating to trademarks and other marks.

Section 31(a) of the Trademark (Lanham) Act of 1946 (15 U.S.C. 1113(a)), as amended, allows trademark fees to be adjusted once each year to reflect, in the aggregate, any fluctuations during the preceding 12 months in the CPI.

Section 31 also allows new fee amounts to take effect thirty days after notice in the Federal Registration and the Official Gazette of the Patent and Trademark Office.

Recovery Level Determination: Fees have been adjusted for a planned recovery of $486,000,000 in fiscal year 1993, as proposed in the Administration's budget request to the Congress.

Fees established by 35 U.S.C. 41(a) and 41(b) (patent statutory fees) may be adjusted on October 1, 1992, to reflect any fluctuations occurring during the previous 12 months in the CPI. The Office of Management and Budget (OMB) has determined that the PTO should use Consumer Price Index-U to adjust patent statutory fees. The Department of Labor's Consumer Price Index is made public approximately 21 days after the end of the month being calculated. The patent statutory fees are being adjusted by 3.3 percent, which reflects the Administration's projected Consumer Price Index-U for the 12-month period beginning October 1, 1991.

The patent statutory fees established by rule (56 FR 65142) on December 13, 1991, are being adjusted by the projected changes in the CPI of 3.3 percent. Amounts were rounded by applying standard arithmetic rules so that the amounts rounded would be convenient to the user. Fees of $100 or more were rounded to the nearest $10. Fees between $2 and $99 were rounded to an even number so that the comparable small entity fee would be a whole number.

Patent statutory fees also are subject to the provisions of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990, as amended by Public Law 102-204. These provisions require that $99 million be collected in fiscal year 1993 for deficit reduction purposes in lieu of seeking general taxpayer funds from the U.S. Treasury. The $99 million is deposited in a special account in the U.S. Treasury, and is reserved exclusively for use by the PTO, and is made available to the PTO through the appropriation process.

In establishing the 1993 patent statutory fees, the PTO applied the projected Consumer Price Index-U rate of 3.3 percent to the 1992 fees. The 1993 fees were rounded as explained above. Of the total amount of section 41(a) and (b) income expected to be collected in 1993, $99 million must be deposited to the Fee Surcharge Fund.

Non-statutory patent service fees established under section 41(d) of title 35, United States Code, as amended, and PCT processing fees are being adjusted to recover planned costs in 1993, except in the case of three patent service fees set by statue. The three fees are assignment recording fees, printed patent copy fees and photocopy charge fees.

Trademark fees are being adjusted in fiscal year 1993, in the aggregate, to reflect changes over the prior 12 months in the CPI. The OMB has determined that the PTO should use Consumer Price Index-U to adjust trademark fees, which is made public by the Department of Labor approximately 21 days after the end of the month being calculated. The trademark fees are being adjusted, in the aggregate, by 3.3 percent, which reflects the Administration's projected Consumer Price Index-U for the 12 month period beginning October 1, 1991. The PTO is adjusting only two trademark fees in 1993: for filing an application (37 CFR § 2.6(a)(1)) and for assignment records, abstract of title and certification (37 CFR § 2.6(b)(7)). One new fee is being set for dividing an application (37 CFR 2.6 (a)(19)). No other trademark fees are changing in 1993. The net effect of these changes is to increase trademark fees, in the aggregate, by 3.3 percent, the expected Consumer Price Index-U rate for the prior 12 month period.

Workload Projections: Determination of workloads varies by fee. Principal workload projection techniques are as follows:

Patent and trademark application workloads are projected from statistical regression models using recent application filing trends. Patent issues are projected from an inhouse patent production model and reflect examiner production achievements and goals. Patent maintenance fee workloads utilize patents issued 3.5, 7.5 and 11.5 years prior to payment and assume payment rates of 75 percent, 50 percent and 25 percent, respectively. Trademark affidavit projections are based on filing trends for marks registered five to six years prior to 1993. Trademark renewal projections are based on marks registered 20 years prior to 1993. Service fee workloads follow linear trends from prior year activities.

Public Access to Automated Systems: In April 1989, the PTO began providing access to APS-Text in the Patent Search Room at its facilities in Arlington, Virginia. On February 12, 1990, the PTO began charging a fee for access to APS-Text in the Patent Search Room. In September 1991, the PTO began providing, without charge, APS-Text to 14 Patent and Trademark Depository Libraries (PTDLs) as a pilot test program. APS-Text provides users of the patent search files with a value added search tool that enables them to conduct more comprehensive searches.

Although many PTDLs believe that government information should be available to the public free of charge, the PTO's fiscal year 1993 budget does not include any general taxpayer funds, but requires that all of the expenses of the PTO be recovered through user fees. These expenses include the cost of providing APS-Text to the public, both in the Patent Search Room in Virginia and at the PTDLs. Continuation of this service in the PTDLs, without direct charge to the users of the automated system, would require support from all other customers who pay for products and services from the PTO.

A second issue raised by many PTDLs concerns the method that PTO would use to collect fees from the users of APS-Text in the PTDLs. Users of APS-Text in the Patent Search Room pay for use of the system directly to the PTO. PTDLs have commented that collecting fees would be an administrative burden for many, while some are legally precluded from collecting fees.

The PTO has a strong interest in expanding access to APS-Text to all PTDLs that wish to participate, but considers allocating user fees paid for other products and services to subsidize this effort to be inappropriate. Therefore, PTO concludes that establishment of a fees for access to APS-Text is necessary.

At the same time, PTO wants to limit the administrative burden imposed on the PTDLs to collect user fees. Therefore, PTO intends to enter into an agreement establishing a service bureau arrangement for administering the collection of fees at participating PTDLs. This arrangement provides one alternative for providing administrative services, but PTO is seeking others. Therefore, through this rulemaking notice, the PTO is soliciting alternatives from other organizations, including the libraries themselves, for providing the administrative services associated with APS-Text. Likewise, the Office would like to consider other options for accessing patent search and retrieval in the PTDLs. The PTO will accept comments on alternative collection methods, and other options for accessing patent search and retrieval in the PTDLs until January 4, 1993.

In rule 1.21(p), the PTO is establishing a $70 per connect hour fee to recover the cost of providing APS-Text services in participating PTDLs, but the Commissioner is immediately suspending collection of that fee until alternative methods of collecting the fee from users of APS-Text in the PTDLs are identified. Although access to the 14 pilot PTDLs will continue for further evaluation purposes, the PTO will not extend access to additional PTDLs until a fee collection arrangement is established. Section 41(i)(3) of 35 U.S.C. states that if PTO establishes fees for access to the automated search system "a limited amount of free access shall be made available to users of the systems for purposes of education and training."

The $70 per connect hour fee amount established by this rule is based on a calculation of the costs of PTO services, and preliminary cost estimates that were provided by a potential service bureau contractor. The cost elements for PTO include training; training software for personal computers (to be developed); manuals and documentation; additional mainframe CPU; and additional staff time for client support. The cost elements for services provided by the service bureau include billing, account administration, and user support; telecommunication costs to the network; and the Messenger Software enhancement fee.

After PTO has evaluated other options for a service bureau arrangement, a notice will be published in the Federal Registration and the Official Gazette of the Patent and Trademark Office. At that time, PTO will provide administrative procedures for public use of APS-Text in the PTDLs. Depending on responses to the solicitation for alternatives for providing the administrative services associated with APS-Text, the fee amount could be reduced at that time.

General Procedures: Any fee amount that is paid on or after October 1, 1992, would be subject to the new fees then in effect. For purposes of determining the amount of the fee to be paid, the date of mailing indicated on a proper Certificate of Mailing, where authorized under 37 CFR 1.8, will be considered to be the date of receipt in the PTO. A "Certificate of Mailing under Section 1.8" is not "proper" for items which are specifically excluded from the provisions of § 1.8. Section 1.8 should be consulted for those items for which a Certificate of Mailing is not "proper." Such items include, inter alia, the filing of national and international applications for patents and the filing of trademark applications. However, the provisions of 37 CFR 1.10 relating to filing papers and fees with an "Express Mail" certificate do apply to any paper or fee (including patent and trademark applications) to be filed in the PTO. If an application or fee is filed by "Express Mail" with a proper certificate dated on or after the effective date of the rules, as amended, the amount of the fee to be paid would be the fee established by the amended rules.

A comparison of existing and revised fee amounts is included as an Appendix to this final rule.

In order to ensure clarity in the implementation of the revised fees, a discussion of specific sections is set forth below.

37 CFR 1.20 Post-issuance fees.

Section 1.20, paragraphs (a), (c) and (i), is revised to adjust fees established therein to recover costs.

Section 1.20, paragraphs (e)-(g), is revised to adjust fees established therein to reflect fluctuations in the CPI.

37 CFR 1.21 Miscellaneous fees and charges.

Section 1.21, subparagraphs (a)(1), (a)(5), (a)(6), (b)(2), (b)(3), and paragraphs (e) and (i), is revised to adjust fees established therein to recover costs.

Section 1.21, paragraph (p), is added to establish the fee for providing public access to the Automated Patent System full-text search (APS-Text) capability in Patent and Trademark Depository Libraries. The $70.00 per connect hour fee would recover the marginal cost of providing the service to the public, including the cost for a service bureau to handle billing, account administration, and user support.

37 CFR 1.26 Refunds.

Section 1.26, paragraph (a), is revised to increase the minimum amount of a refund, without a request, from one dollar to twenty-five dollars in accordance with the Treasury Fiscal Manual, Volume One, Part Six, Chapter 3000.

Section 1.26, paragraph (c), is revised to provide for a refund of $1,690 if the Commissioner decides not to institute reexamination proceedings. The $1,690 refund would apply to those instances where the reexamination fee of $2,250 under 37 CFR 1.20(c) was paid. The current $1,635 refund would be made in those cases where the current $2,180 reexamination fee was paid.

37 CFR 1.445 International application filing, processing, and search fees.

Section 1.445, is revised to adjust the fees authorized by 35 U.S.C. 376 to recover costs.

37 CFR 1.482 International preliminary examination fees.

Section 1.482, subparagraphs (a)(1), and (a)(2)(ii), is revised to adjust the fees authorized by 35 U.S.C. 376 to recover costs.

37 CFR 1.492 National stage fees.

Section 1.492, subparagraphs (a)(1)-(a)(3), and paragraphs (b)-(d), is revised to adjust fees established therein to reflect fluctuations in the CPI.

Section 1.492, subparagraph (a)(5), is revised to adjust the fee authorized by 35 U.S.C. 376 to recover costs.

37 CFR 2.6 Trademark fees.

Section 2.6, subparagraphs (a)(1) and (b)(7), is revised to adjust the fees authorized by the Trademark (Lanham) Act of 1946 to reflect fluctuations in the CPI.

New section 2.6(a)(19), is added to establish a fee for dividing a trademark application in accordance with 37 CFR 2.87. Section 2.6(a)(19) is revised from the proposal by adding the words "file wrapper" to clarify that the fee amount is due for each new file wrapper created.

37 CFR 2.87 Dividing an Application.

Section 2.87, is revised to establish a fee for dividing an application into two or more applications. Currently, no fee is charged for the physical act of dividing an application. Experience to date reveals that the creation of so-called "divisional" applications is labor intensive. For that reason, and because the creation of a divisional application is a significant benefit to an applicant, the PTO will charge a fee for dividing an application. The fee will be due for each new file wrapper created.

Section 2.87, is revised to divide paragraph (a) into paragraphs (a) and (b), and renumber paragraphs (b) and (c) as (c) and (d).

Response to Comments on the Rules: A notice of proposed rulemaking to adjust patent and trademark fees in accordance with the proposed provisions of Public Law 102-204 was published in the Federal Register on May 20, 1992, at 57 FR 21536, and in the Official Gazette on May 26, 1992, at 1138 OG 58. Corrections were published in the Federal Register on June 2, 1992, at 57 FR 23257.

A public hearing was held on June 24, 1992. A total of 28 comments were received: 27 respondents submitted written comments and three people presented oral testimony (two of whom also submitted written comments) at the public hearing. Over half of the comments received represented the views of libraries. All of the written and oral comments were considered in adopting the rules set forth herein.

Comment: Two people claimed that the proposed fees for filing an application under the Patent Cooperation Treaty (PCT) is discriminatory against applicants who file under the PCT route.

VOL 1170 ISS 1 JAN 3 1995 UMI

Response: The PTO is undertaking a thorough analysis of all PCT fees. The results of this analysis, and the recommendations concerning PTO's fee structure to be made to the Secretary of Commerce by the Advisory Commission on Patent Law Reform, will be taken into consideration when PTO proposes the fiscal year 1994 fee adjustments.

Comment: One respondent, although not objecting to the proposed 3.3 percent fee increase, suggested that the PTO may be understating its projected income from maintenance fees which could be used to offset inflationary increases and possibly reduce PCT fees.

Response: When maintenance fees first were imposed, the Office looked at historical payment trends experienced by other offices, such as the European Patent Office. The PTO conservatively projected the number of maintenance fees to be paid for two reasons. First, there is not a long history of maintenance fee payments on which to base income projections; for example, second stage maintenance fees only recently have started to come due, and third stage maintenance fees will not become due for many patent owners until 1995. Second, the percentage of patent owners paying second stage maintenance fees in recent months has declined from the renewal rate that was experienced during the first year that second stage maintenance fees were paid. Therefore, PTO is properly conservative in its maintenance fee payment projections. We will conduct a comprehensive analysis of projected maintenance fee payments prior to proposing the fiscal year 1994 fee adjustment.

Comment: Eighteen respondents opposed establishment of fees for the public to access APS-Text at the Patent and Trademark Depository Libraries, primarily because the public has a right to free access to patent information. One person asked about administrative procedures for providing APS-Text in the PTDLs, and suggested that CD-ROM products continue to be made available free of charge and access fees for APS-Text be kept as low as possible.

Response: As a fully fee-funded agency, the costs to the PTO of providing access to APS-Text in the 74 Patent and Trademark Depository Libraries (PTDLs) would have to be borne either by the individual users of the system, or by all users of the patent system (e.g., patent applicants). In June 1988, the PTO published in 53 Federal Register 23677 the results of comments solicited on alternatives for funding access to the PTO's automated systems. In response, the PTO received 21 comments, 12 of which advocated the use of taxpayer revenues, and seven supported at least some reliance on user fees. The latter based their decisions on the reality of budget deficit problems; the inequity of providing taxpayer funds to subsidize on-line searchers who charge fees for their services; and the need to have an equitable fee structure that applies throughout the United States.

The PTO has a strong interest in expanding access to APS-Text to all PTDLs that wish to participate, with the least amount of administrative burden to the PTDLs, but considers allocating user fees paid for other products and services to subsidize this effort to be inappropriate. Therefore, the PTO is establishing a fee of $70 per connect hour for accessing APS-Text in the PTDLs, which includes the cost of having a service bureau provide billing, account administrative, and user support. However, the Commissioner is immediately suspending collection of that fee to provide additional time to solicit comments through this rulemaking for providing the administrative services associated with APS-Text. Likewise, the Office would like to consider other options for accessing patent search and retrieval in the PTDLs. The Office will publish a notice in the Federal Register and the Official Gazette of the Patent Trademark Office thirty days before it begins collecting a fee for public access tThe PTO has a strong interest in expanding access to APS-Text to all PTDLs that wish to participate, with the least amount of administrative burden to the PTDLs, but considers allocating user fees paid for other products and services to subsidize this effort to be inappropriate. Comment: One respondent claimed that proposed 37 CFR 1.21(p) is not in accord with the rulemaking provision of 5 U.S.C. 553(b) which requires that the issues involved be described in the notice of proposed rulemaking.

Response: The Notice of Proposed Rulemaking 57 FR 21536, referenced 35 U.S.C. 41(i)(3) which authorizes the Commissioner to establish reasonable fees for access to automated search systems of the PTO. Further in the notice at 57 FR 21537, under the discussion of the proposed revision to 37 CFR § 1.21, it was stated that the proposed $40.00 fee would recover the PTO's estimated marginal cost of providing the service to the PTDLs. The notice also indicated the PTO was investigating the use of a contract service bureau to provide access in which case the fee would be approximately $70.00. This fully described the issue involved in the proposed rule change.

Comment: Two respondents commented on the administrative burden caused by a change to the fee structure at this time, particularly in light of prior fee changes and the small amount of the adjustment.

Response : The PTO proposed to adjust its fees because operating costs have increased over the past year. The Commissioner is authorized to adjust patent and trademark fees on October 1, 1992 and every year thereafter to reflect fluctuations in the Consumer Price Index over the prior twelve months. Future charges are expected to occur annually on October 1st. The fee increases that will be implemented on October 1, 1992, are expected to generate $15.1 million. Without this revenue, PTO would be forced to make cuts in patent and trademark operations that would affect the quality of examination.

Comment: One person expressed concern about the quality and timeliness of services for which new or increased fees are proposed, complaining specifically of the delay in receiving an official filing receipt when a trademark application is divided and in the recording of assignments.

Response: A major objective of the Office is to assure continuous quality improvements throughout all operations. The Office has taken steps to address the areas of concern identified.

Comment: One organization and one person objected to the PTO's sole reliance on fee income, particularly for funding automation development costs.

Response: The Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 requires that a user fee surcharge on certain patent fees replace taxpayer funds for the five year period 1991-1995. Whether PTO should receive funds from other sources in future fiscal years is beyond the scope of the rule package.

The automation programs, which are funded from user fees, are designed to improve the quality and timeliness of PTO services and products, and to discontinue reliance on manual processes and paper references.

Comment: One person said that small entities do not benefit from the 50 percent reduction to certain patent fees, because many small companies, particularly those in high technology areas, must license their patent rights and thus pay large entity status fees.

Response: The purpose of the small entity subsidy is to ensure that individual inventors, small businesses and non-profit organizations are not barred from using the patent system because of the PTO's fee structure. Once a small entity assigns the rights to a patent application or a patent to a large entity, presumably receiving compensation from the large entity, the reduced fee amounts no longer apply.

Comment: One organization said that trademark fees appear to be justified but PTO must ensure that trademark functions are being discharged in the most efficient and economical manner. For example, the organization questioned whether it is efficient for the Office to continue to maintain a paper search file and to continue to pay the General Services Administration (GSA) for building services.

Response: The Office is committed to ensuring that its trademark functions are being discharged effectively and, as part of its quality improvement program, is currently reviewing various work-related processes. No decision has yet been made as to when the paper search file will be eliminated and no such decision will be made until the public has been given an opportunity to comment. The Office has asked GSA to review the level of charges assessed in light of current market conditions.

Other Considerations: The rule change is in conformity with the requirements of the Regulatory Flexibility Act (Pub. L. 96-354); Executive Orders 12291 and 12612; and the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501, et seq. There are no information collection requirements relating to patent and trademark fee rules.

The PTO has determined that this notice has no Federalism implications affecting the relationship between the National Government and the States as outlined in Executive Order 12612.

The General Counsel of the Department of Commerce has certified to the Chief Counsel for Advocacy, Small Business Administration, that the rule change would not have a significant adverse impact on a substantial number of small entities (Regulatory Flexibility Act, Pub. L. 96-354). The rule change increases fees by changes in the CPI as authorized by 35 U.S.C. 41(f). Further, the principal impact of the major patent fees has already been taken into account in 35 U.S.C. 41(h), which provides small entities with a 50-percent reduction in the major patent fees.

The PTO has determined that this rule change is not a major rule under Executive Order 12291. The annual effect on the economy would be less than $100 million. There would be no major increase in costs or prices for consumers; individual industries; Federal, state, or local government agencies; or geographic regions. There would be no significant adverse effects on competition, employment, investment, productivity, or innovation, or on the ability of United States-based enterprises to complete with foreign-based enterprises in domestic or export markets.

Section 2.87 Dividing an Application

(a) An application may be physically divided into two or more separate applications upon the payment of a fee for each new application created and submission by the applicant of a request in accordance with paragraph (d) of this section.

(b) In the case of a request to divide out one or more entire classes from an application, only the fee under paragraph (a) of this section will be required. However, in the case of a request to divide out some, but not all, of the goods or services in a class, an application filing fee for each new separate application to be created by the division must be submitted, together with the fee under paragraph (a) of this section. Any outstanding time period for action by the applicant in the original application at the time of the division will be applicable to each new separate application created by the division.

(c) A request to divide an application may be filed at any time between the filing of the application and the date the Trademark Examining Attorney approves the mark for publication or the date of expiration of the six-month response period after issuance of a final action; or during an opposition, upon motion granted by the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board. Additionally, a request to divide an application under section 1(b) of the Act may be filed with a statement of use under § 2.88 or at any time between the filing of a statement of use and the date the Trademark Examining Attorney approves the mark for registration or the date of expiration of the six-month response period after issuance of a final action.

(d) A request to divide an application should be made in a separate paper from any other amendment or response in the application. The title "Request to divide application." should appear at the top of the first page of the paper.

Revision of Patent Fees

Agency: Patent and Trademark Office, Commerce
Action: Notice of Final Rulemaking and Lifting of Suspension.
Summary: The Patent and Trademark Office (PTO) is amending the rules of practice in patent cases, Part 1 of title 37, Code of Federal Regulations, to adjust certainpatent fee amounts to reflect fluctuations in the Consumer Price Index (CPI) and to recover costs of operation. The PTO also is providing notice that, beginning on October 1, 1994, the suspension of the fee for access to the Automated Patent System's Full Text Search capability (APS-Text) at a Patent and Trademark Depository Library (PTDL) will be lifted. However, the PTO is rescinding this hourly fee, which was established by 37 CFR 1.21(p), and in its place assessing an annual subscription fee on PTDLs providing such service. On October 1, 1994, the PTO also will begin collecting a fee for access to the Automated Patent System's Classified Search and Image Retrieval capability (APS-CSIR) from the search facilities Arlington, Virginia.
Effective Date: October 1, 1994.
For Further Information Contact: Robert Kopson by telephone at (703) 305-8510, fax at (703) 305-8525, or by mail marked to his attention and addressed to the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Washington, D.C. 20231.
Supplementary Information: This rule change is designed to adjust PTO fees in accordance with the applicable provisions of title 35, United States Code, and section 10101 of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 (Public Law 101-508), all as amended by the Patent and Trademark Office Authorization Act of 1991 (Public Law 102-204).

There are two objectives of this final rule package. The first objective is to adjust certain patent fee amounts to reflect fluctuations in the Consumer Price Index (CPI) and to recover costs of operation.

The second objective is to provide notice that PTO is lifting the suspension or on the fee for access to APS-Text at a Patent and Trademark Depository Library (PTDL). This was established by rule on October 1, 1992 (published in the Federal Register on August 21, 1992 at 57 FR 38190). Collection of the fee was immediately suspended by the Commissioner to provide additional time for the PTO to solicit input from the private sector on alternative collection methods, and other options for accessing patent search and retrieval in the Libraries. In response to public comments, the PTO will rescind the fee established by 37 CFR 1.21(p), and assess a subscription fee under 37 CFR 1.21(k) on each PTDL that provides its patrons with access to APS-Text. The basis for the subscription amount is less than the fee amount that was established in 37 CFR 1.21(p). Each participating library will be responsible for establishing policies for providing access to their patrons.

The PTO also will begin charging a fee for on-line access to APS-CSIR at the Patent Search and Image Retrieval Facility (PSIRF) in Arlington, Virginia. Free access to APS-CSIR has been offered at the PSIRF since July 12, 1993. The PTO now will begin recovering the cost of providing this on-line access in accordance with 37 CFR 1.21(k).

The PTO will make any necessary adjustments to these automated system fees based upon actual fiscal year 1995 usage. Future adjustments will be made based upon deviations in system costs and/or public usage.

BACKGROUND

Statutory Provisions

Patent fees are authorized by 35 U.S.C. 41 and 35 U.S.C. 376. A fifty percent reduction in the fees paid under 35 U.S.C. 41(a) and 41(b) by independent inventors, small business concerns, and nonprofit organizations who meet prescribed definitions is required by 35 U.S.C. 41(h).

Subsection 41(f) of title 35, United States Code, provides that fees established under 35 U.S.C. 41(a) and (b) may be adjusted on October 1, 1992, and every year thereafter, to reflect fluctuations in the Consumer Price Index (CPI) over the previous 12 months.

Section 10101 of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 (Pub. L. 101-508) provides that there shall be a surcharge on all fees established under 35 U.S.C. 41(a) and 41(b) to collect $107 million in fiscal year 1995.

Subsection 41(d) of title 35, United States Code, authorizes the Commissioner to establish fees for all other processing, services, or materials related to patents to recover the average cost of providing these services or materials, except for the fees for recording a document affecting title, for each photocopy, and for each black and white copy of a patent.

Section 376 of title 35, United States Code, authorizes the Commissioner to set fees for patent applications filed under the Patent Cooperation Treaty (PCT).

Subsection 41(i)(3) of title 35, United States Code, authorizes the Commissioner to establish reasonable fees for access to automated search systems of the PTO.

Subsection 41(g) of title 35, United States Code, provides that new fee amounts established by the Commissioner under Section 41 may take effect thirty days after notice in the Federal Register and the Official Gazette of the Patent and Trademark Office.

Recovery Level Determinations

This rule adjusts patent fees for a planned recovery of $571,439,000 in fiscal year 1995, as proposed in the Administration's budget request to the Congress. The fee amounts established for automated access to PTO's data bases will recover reasonable costs of providing these services to the public. The total amount expected to be collected is consistent with the budgeted amount.

The patent statutory fees established by 35 U.S.C. 41(a) and 41(b) are being adjusted on October 1, 1994, to reflect any fluctuations occurring during the previous 12 months in the Consumer Price Index (CPI-U). In calculating these fluctuations, the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) has determined that the PTO should use CPI-U data as determined by the Secretary of Labor. However, the Department of Labor does not make public the CPI-U until approximately 21 days after the end of the month being calculated. Therefore, the latest CPI-U information available is for the month of May 1994. In accordance with previous rulemaking methodology, the PTO uses the Administration's projected CPI-U for the 12-month period ending September 30, 1994, which is 3.0 percent. Based on this projection, patent statutory fees are being adjusted by 3.0 percent. Before the final fee schedule is published, the fees may be slightly adjusted based on actual data available from the Department of Labor.

Certain non-statutory patent processing fees established under 35 U.S.C. 41(d) and PCT processing fees established under 35 U.S.C. 376 are being adjusted up to the three percent fluctuation in the CPI in order to recover their estimated average costs in 1995. Three patent service fees that are set by statute are not adjusted. The three fees that are not being adjusted are assignment recording fees, printed patent copy fees and photocopy charge fees.

The Office calculated unit costs for all fees based on OMB Circular A-25, "User Fees", and OMB Circular A-130, "Management of Federal Information Resources". Costs were determined from the best available records (for example, financial statements of the Office) and included direct and indirect costs to the Office for carrying out the activity, as directed by OMB Circular A-25. The patent statutory fee amounts were rounded by applying standard arithmetic rules so that the amounts rounded would be convenient to the user.

Fees of $100 or more were rounded to the nearest $10. Fees between $2 and $99 were rounded to an even number so that the comparable small entity fee would be a whole number.

The Office has detailed cost calculation worksheets for each fee amount. These worksheets are available for public inspection in Suite 507 of Crystal Park 1, 2011 Crystal Drive, Arlington, Virginia

Workload Projections

Determination of workloads varies by fee. Principal workload projection techniques are as follows:

Patent application workloads are projected from statistical regression models using recent application filing trends. Patent issues are projected from an in-house patentproduction model and reflect examiner production achievements and goals. Patent maintenance fee workloads utilize patents issued 3.5, 7.5 and 11.5 years prior topayment and assume payment rates of 80 percent, 57 percent and 25 percent, respectively. Service fee workloads follow linear trends from prior years' activities.

Any fee amount that is paid on or after October 1, 1994, would be subject to the newfees then in effect. For purposes of determining the amount of the fee to be paid, the date of mailing indicated on a proper Certificate of Mailing or Transmission, where authorized under 37 CFR 1.8, will be considered to be the date of receipt in the PTO. A Certificate of Mailing or Transmission under Section 1.8 is not "proper" for items which are specifically excluded from the provisions of Section 1.8. Section 1.8 should be consulted for those items for which a Certificate of Mailing or Transmission is not "proper." Such items include, inter alia, the filing of national and international applications for patents. However, the provisions of 37 CFR 1.10 relating to filing papers and fees with an "Express Mail" certificate do apply to any paper or fee (including patent applications) to be filed in the PTO. If an application or fee is filed by "Express Mail" with a proper certificate dated on or after the effective date of the rules, as amended, the amount of the fee to be paid would be the fee established by the amended rules.

COST CALCULATIONS

APS-Text at a Patent and Trademark Depository Library

(PTDL) The costs for one hour terminal session time on APS-Text at a PTDL include licensefees that must be paid to Chemical Abstracts Service (CAS) for its proprietary text and structure search software. Other costs are included for a portion, projected at 3.65 percent, of the lease of a computer mainframe for memory storage purposes; all costs associated with training PTDL staff (equipment rental, materials and time); personnel to provide client support to the PTDLs; and telecommunication costs. A summary of the costs are listed below.

APS-Text Cost of One Hour of Terminal Session Time at a Patent and Trademark Depository Library

Cost Element	Public Share
Client Support Overtime	$10,203
Additional Mainframe Costs	$43,216
Software (license fee)	$273,000
Training Costs	$10,000
Subtotal	$336,419
General & Admin. Overhead @ 12.2%	$40,976
Total Cost	$377,395
Estimated Annual Usage (hours)	54,600
Unit Cost (per hour)	$6.91
Telecommunication Costs (per hour)	$8.00
Total Cost (per hour)	$14.91
Total Cost (per hour - rounded)	$15.00

The PTDLs will pay an annual maximum use subscription rate based on one of five tier levels, roughly equivalent to one to five hours of use per day, five days per week. Each PTDL will select a maximum use subscription tier based on its anticipated usage and be responsible for monitoring their own use. The PTDLs will also be responsible for establishing their own policies regarding the provision of APS-Text in their library. If during the year a PTDL is about to exceed its chosen level of maximum use, the PTDL will be allowed to move to a higher tier (and pay the additional subscription rate) or to use up to the subscribed level and cease continued access mid-year.

Tiers	Annual Usage	Annual Subscription Rate
I	0 - 300 hours	$2,250
II	301 - 600 hours	$6,750
III	601 - 900 hours	$11,250
IV	901 - 1200 hours	$15,750
V	1201 - 1500 hours	$20,250

The subscription rates were derived using the $15.00 per hour access charge previously calculated. There will be no additional charges or refunds to each library. For each tier, a discount mechanism is included in the annual subscription calculation. For example, the annual subscription rate of $2,250 for Tier I is calculated by taking the mean average of the annual usage range (in this case 150 hours is the mean of zero and 300 hours) and multiplying it by the $15.00 per hour access charge. Therefore, fora PTDL in Tier I, any usage over 150 hours is free to the library. But if a PTDL in Tie were to not use at least 150 hours, the PTO would not be required to refund the amount of the subscription fee that was not used.

APS-CSIR at the Patent Search and Image Retrieval Facility (PSIRF)

The costs for one hour terminal session time on APS-CSIR at the PSIRF include proprietary text and structure search software. It is estimated that 40 percent of the terminal time license fees that must be paid to Chemical Abstracts Service (CAS) for its will be used for text searching, which requires the search software from CAS.

Other costs are included for a portion, projected at 2.25 percent, of the lease of a computer mainframe for memory storage purposes; additional personnel for the PSIRFand the Office of Computer and Telecommunications Operations; computer acquisition, installation, and maintenance; supplies and equipment dedicated to public use; and general and administrative overhead. A summary of the costs are listed below.

APS-CSIR Cost of One Hour of Terminal Session Time at the Patent Search and Image Retrieval Facility

Cost Element	Total Cost
Compensation and Benefits	$250,813
Additional Hardware and Mainframe Costs	$226,792
Software (license fee)	$25,000
Supply Costs	$10,512
Installation Costs (amortized)	$25,366
Subtotal	$538,483
Space Costs	$41,759
General & Admin Overhead @ 12.2%	$65,695
Total Cost	$645,937
Estimated Annual Usage (hours)	13,000
Unit Cost (per hour)	$49.68
Rounded Fee Amount (per hour - prorated)	$50.00

A comparison of existing and revised fee amounts is included as an Appendix to thisnotice of final rulemaking.

In order to ensure clarity in the implementation of the revised fees, a discussion of specific sections is set forth below.

Response to Comments on the Rules

Patent Fee Increase

A notice of proposed rulemaking to adjust patent fees was published in the Federal Register on May 27, 1994, at 59 FR 27519, and in the Official Gazette on June 7, 1994, at 1163 OG 14.

A public hearing was held on June 28, 1994. Three comments were received and considered in adopting the rules set forth herein.

Comments: The respondents, although not objecting to the three percent fee increase, strongly oppose any fee increase for the purpose of making up patent fee surcharge money that is being withheld from the PTO. The respondents support theAdministration's proposal to ensure that all user fees assessed by the PTO are used exclusively by the PTO.

Response: The Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 (Public Law 101-508) requires the PTO, in fiscal year 1995, to collect $107 million in patent fee surcharges and to deposit these collections to the Patent and Trademark Office Fee Surcharge Fund. In the past, Congress has only appropriated part of these deposits back to the PTO. Deposits not made available to the Office reside in the Fund. To date, the reserve in the Fund is slightly in excess of $35 million. For fiscal year 1995, the PTO requested that all patent fees be provided directly to the Office, thereby eliminating reliance on appropriations from the Fee Surcharge Fund. This language will not be enacted. The House of Representatives has recommended that an additional $18.7 million in patent fee surcharges not be made available to the Office in fiscal year 19 Final action on the 1995 appropriations bill is pending. The Administration does not propose to increase patent fees in fiscal year 1995 other than the increase that reflects fluctuations in the Consumer Price Index.

A fee for access to APS-Text at a PTDL was set in the final rule package published in the Federal Register on August 21, 1992 (57 FR 38189). The final rule became effective October 1, 1992. On that date, the fee took effect but collection was immediately suspended by the Commissioner to provide additional time to solicit input from the private sector on alternative collection methods, and other options for accessing patent search and retrieval in the Libraries.

The Office received six comments.

Comment: Two respondents stated that many of the PTDLs already have considerable experience in collecting fees for access to on-line patent and trademark services provided by private sector vendors. They suggested that mechanisms already in place could be adapted to the collection of fees for PTO-provided services.

These respondents also suggested that the PTO procure access for the PTDLs to private sector on-line patent and trademark services, using a Federal procurement mechanism, such as Fedlink.

Response: The PTO encourages the PTDLs to provide a variety of patent and trademark services for their patrons. However, the PTDLs are not required to provideaccess to private sector on-line services, and the PTO can only provide support and training to the PTDLs for products and services it develops.

In the case of APS access, participation on the part of the PTDLs will be voluntary. With respect to other services, the PTDLs will make the decision as to which ones best fit the needs of their user communities. Fedlink, which provides on-line services to Government agencies, cannot extend its charter to include the PTDLs.

Under the proposed subscription method, libraries should develop policies and procedures which best suit their particular circumstances.

Comment: One respondent suggested that the access to APS be expanded beyond the PTDLs, with a small fee for general use, and discounted fees for independent inventors and/or off-peak usage.

Response: At this time, allowing direct access by the public would impact internal PTO operations. Access at PTDLs will ensure usage in a controlled environment, where end-users will have access to knowledge and skills of trained librarians.

Comment: One respondent suggested that the PTO permit voluntary participation by the individual PTDLs.

Response: Participation on the part of the PTDLs will be voluntary. The level of participation by the PTDLs will not affect their relationship with the PTO in any manner.

Comment: One respondent suggested that the PTO provide access to APS-Text on a subscription basis. This method would set a fee for anticipated usage over a determined period of time.

Response: The PTO will provide access to APS-Text to the PTDLs on an annual subscription basis. All of the libraries will have the option of subscribing. Each library that chooses to subscribe will establish a policy for providing the public with access to APS-Text.

Comment: One respondent suggested that the PTO set up a system that allows users to input credit or debit card numbers.

Response: Currently, the PTO is studying this collection option. The current equipment in use does not allow access via a credit or debit card. This option may be feasible in the near future.

Other Considerations

This final rule change is in conformity with the requirements of Executive Order 12612, and the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501, et seq. There are no information collection requirements relating to these patent fee rules. This final rule has been determined to be significant for purposes of Executive Order 12866.

The PTO has determined that this final rule change has no Federalism implications affecting the relationship between the National Government and the States as outlined in Executive Order 12612.

The General Counsel of the Department of Commerce has certified to the Chief Counsel for Advocacy, Small Business Administration, that the final rule change would not have a significant impact on a substantial number of small entities (Regulatory Flexibility Act, Pub. L. 96-354). The final rule change increases fees by changes in the CPI as authorized by 35 U.S.C. 41(f). The principal impact of the major patent fees has already been taken into account in 35 U.S.C. 41(h), which provides small entities with a 50-percent reduction in the major patent fees.

Patent and Trademark Automated Search System Fees

Agency: Patent and Trademark Office, Commerce
Action: Final Rule
Summary: The Patent and Trademark Office (Office) is amending the rules of practice in patent and trademark cases, Parts 1 and 2 of Title 37, Code of Federal Regulations, to set forth fees for public access to the text data bases resident on the Automated Patent System (APS) and the automated trademark search system (T-Search). Pub. L. 100-703, enacted on November 19, 1988, allows the Commissioner to establish reasonable fees for on-line access to the automated search systems.

The Office will provide on-line access to its USPAT data base (full text of U.S. patents issued after 1974), the U.S. classification data from 1790 to the present, and to English abstracts of Japanese and Chinese patents (to the extent they are available), hereinafter referred to as APS-Text, in its Patent Search Room and to T-Search in its Trademark Search Library, located in Arlington, Virginia. Except for a series of pilot experiments which may occur over the next one or two years, the Office does not plan to provide routine remote on-line access to these data bases at any other facilities at the present time. A separate rulemaking process will be followed when the Office determines to provide such remote on-line access.

Both search systems have been made available to the public free of charge since April 3, 1989, for the purposes of education and training (familiarization).

The paper and/or microfilm collections of U.S. patents, foreign patents documents and U.S. trademark registrations continue to be available to the public free of charge, as provided by section 104(b) of Pub. L. 100-703. The Office reaffirms its commitment to hold a public hearing prior to making any decision concerning the elimination of the paper files.

This final rule establishes fees for use of the on-line automated search systems. In addition, procedures for public use of the automated search systems, including training and charging of fees, are presented.

In response to the notice of proposed rulemaking published in the Federal Register on May 3, 1989 (54 FR 18907), and at a public hearing held on June 30, 1989, the Office received many comments regarding problems encountered by the public in the use of T-Search. The Office believes that T-Search has proven effective for searches performed by Trademark examining attorneys in connection with their examination of applications for the registration of marks. Although the Office is establishing a fee for accessing the T-Search system, the Commissioner is immediately suspending collection of that fee to provide additional time for the public to familiarize themselves with T-Search. The Office will provide the public with sixty days notice before starting to collect the fee.

Effective Date: February 12, 1990. Rule 2.6(w) will take effect February 12, 1990 but immediately be suspended by the Commissioner. The Office will provide written notice in the Federal Register sixty days before starting to collect fees for accessing T-Search.

Supplementary Information: The purpose of this final rule is to establish new fees for the on-line use by the public of APS-Text, and T-Search that are to be provided in the Office's facilities in Arlington, Virginia. This final rule is consistent with the Office's Electronic Data Dissemination Policies and Guidelines, which were published in final form in the Federal Register on May 3, 1989, at 54 FR 18920. Establishment and adjustment of patent fees is provided for by section 6 and section 41 of Title 35, United States Code, and section 103(b) of Pub. L. 100-703. Establishment and adjustment of trademark fees is authorized by section 31 of the Trademark (Lanham) Act 1946, as amended (15 U.S.C. 1113), and section 103(a) of Pub. L. 100-703. Information on the procedures for public use of the automated systems, including training, waivers, and the charging of fees, also is presented.

Background: In response to Pub. L. 96-517, the 1980 legislation which amended patent and trademark laws, the Office prepared and submitted a plan for the automation of its operations to Congress on December 13, 1982. The plan centered on two basic concepts: the creation of electronic data bases that (1) would eventually replace the Office's all-paper patent and trademark files, and thereby improve the integrity and quality of Office records; and (2) would support searches, examinations, Office actions and other Office functions through electronic workstations which would provide text and image retrieval capabilities and perform other automation functions.

Over 700,000 active Federal trademark registations have been converted to an electronic data base of textual and digital image data. A computer system has been installed to enable trademark examining attorneys to search the data base for registered and pending trademarks and associated textual data, including marks containing designs, and to retrieve, display and print all information as a substitute for paper file searches. Trademark examining attorneys have been using T-Search exclusively since January 1988 via a network of approximately 40 terminals. After a six-month experimental T-Search evaluation program conducted between June and December 1988, the capability was deployed for public use in the Trademark Search Library on April 3, 1989.

The T-Search "dead data base", trademarks cancelled, expired or abandoned since March 1984, also is available to the public, but approximately 17,000 images are missing and an additional 184,000 registrations and applications have not been quality checked. Trademark examining attorneys do not search this data base in connection with examining activities.

An Automated Patent System (APS) was installed for test and evaluation purposes, using one patent examining group as an operational testbed. Major operational components of APS, that is, large scale computers with conventional magnetic storage devices, a high-speed local data communications network, and electronic workstations equipped with two high resolution graphic displays and laser printers were interconnected on July 1, 1986, to enable system test and evaluation to begin in the testbed group.

On-line access to the full-text of all U.S. patents granted after 1974 and then to English language abstracts of Japanese patents was deployed to the patent examining staff beginning in 1986. On-line access to APS-Text permits examiners to search the text of approximately one million U.S. patents containing more than five billion words. Today, all examiners have been trained in the use of the full-text searching tool, and it has become a routine part of the patent examination process for many examiners. Searches are conducted from approximately 71 single screen text terminals located throughout the Office. The APS-Text capability was deployed to the public in the Patent Search Room on April 3, 1989.

The Office intends to enter the text of virtually all U.S. patents issued after 1970. In addition, selected tubular data and chemical and mathematical equations will be added to the current full text file. Ultimately, approximately 1.2 million U.S. patents will be available to both patent examiners and the public for search in full text form.

Public evaluation of the APS full-text search capability was conducted between January 11 and April 15, 1988. Forty-two (42) public users were trained an APS-Text during January 1988, and allowed first-come/first-serve access to several terminals. Reactions of public users to APS-Text were positive. Public users found APS-Text useful for pre-application and state-of-the-art searches.

A total of 38 public users were trained on T-Search during a public evaluation period conducted between June and December 1988. Preliminary review indicated that public users considered T-Search to be useful both as a source for registrability searching and for verifying paper searches. In addition, T-Search was found to facilitate searches by class and ownership.

Pub. L. 100-703, enacted on November 19, 1988, allows the Commissioner to establish reasonable fees for public access to the automated search systems while it continues the requirements that no more than 30 percent of automation resources may be from user fees and that the Office may not enter into exchange agreements relating to automatic data processing resources.

Section 104(c) of Pub. L. 100-703 allows the Commissioner to waive the payment by an individual of fees for accessing the automated search systems upon a showing of need or hardship, and if such waiver is in the public interest.

The information contained in the automated data bases, which will be available to the public at the Patent and Trademark Office in Arlington, Virginia, is available free of charge at that location in paper form, and is substantially available through commercial vendors. The Office believes it to be in the public interest to waive the fee for public access to its text data bases in situations where access to the data base is needed for a personal, educational purpose by an individual or member of an educational or non-profit organization, or where payment of the fee would pose a genuine financial hardship to the user.

A personal, educational purpose is one in which the person using the data base is attempting to satisfy a personal need, and is not conducting a search or otherwise using the data base for compensation in any form. Examples of appropriate waiver situations would include students or teachers doing a term paper, a university professor collecting background information for the preparation of an application for a research grant. An example of a situation where a waiver would not be appropriate would include an individual doing work for renumeration -- e.g., a law student doing a pre-examination or infringement search for a law firm.

The Commissioner will further consider a fee waiver based on a genuine financial hardship. The person requesting a waiver will be required to provide information that would demonstrate a clear inability to pay the fee.

A waiver for the payment of fees is intended to be granted sparingly, and generally only when terminals are available. It is not anticipated that fees will be waived for any one individual more than once or twice each year. The Commissioner reserves the authority to control access to the data bases and deny a waiver to any individual.

The waiver policy would apply only to use of the automated system, and not to the printing or sale of copies. Any abuse of the waiver policy could lead to a ban on the use of any public search facility for that individual.

Cost Calculations: The Office calculated unit costs for all fees based on OMB Circular A-25 "User Fees", and OMB Circular A-130, "Management of Federal Information Resources." Costs were determined from the best available records (for example, financial statements for the Office) and included direct and indirect costs to the Office of carrying out the activity, as directed by OMB Circular A-25. User charges for both APS-Text and T-Search were based on the marginal costs of providing these services to the public.

In calculating the costs of providing access to T-Search and APS- Text to the public, the Office followed Congressional direction that fees be resonable by reflecting the marginal cost for providing the new service and not include the costs of designing or installing the automated system for use by Office examiners, or the development of the new systems.

Prior to preparation of this final rule, all of the cost assumptions and cost calculations were reviewed and modified to ensure that they included the Office's best estimates and projections.

APS-Text

The Office is establishing the $40.00 fee for each hour of terminal session time on APS-Text. The marginal costs for one hour terminal session time on APS-Text include a portion of the lease cost of a new computer mainframe which originally was to be acquired in fiscal year 1990 for use by Office patent examiners. To meet public search requirements, the mainframe is being leased earlier than originally planned. That portion of lease costs for the three (3) month period March 1990 through May 1990 over and above the lease costs for a mainframe sized to meet only examiner needs is being passed on to the user. After May 1990, the mainframe was intended to be procured and installed to support APS. Therefore, no costs are being passed on to the public user after that time. When public usage reaches the level where a mainframe dedicated for public use is required, fee adjustments will be proposed to pass all of the costs of that mainframe on to the public.

The level of public use will affect the amount of main memory needed to support the additional search sessions. It is projected than an additional increment of main memory will be required in fiscal years 1991 and 1992. This increment would not be required to support the examiner workload alone.

The fee calculations for public access also include the costs for equipment: network interface units, text terminals, printer noise dampeners and text terminal printers.

Other costs include a portion of the license fees that must be paid to Chemical Abstracts Service for its proprietary text and structure search software; additional personnel for the Patent Search Room, and the Office of Information Systems; computer installation costs; supplies and equipment dedicated to public use; and general and administrative overhead.

The Office is providing free access time during training on the automated search systems in accordance with § 104(c) of Public Law 100-703 which reads. "...a limited amount of free access shall be made available to all users of the systems for purposes of education and training."

The usage rate estimates are based on the three-month public user study performed from January through March 1988. For this study, 42 frequent Patent Search Room users were selected to be trained in the use of APS-Text. Three text terminals were made available to the trained public users at no charge. During the three-month study period, use of the three terminals averaged approximately 50 percent. While it is impossible to accurately predict future use by a more diverse group of public users, the cost calculations attempted to take into account the following factors and assumptions:

1. Future public users, on averge, would use APS-Text less frequently than the 42 frequent users selected for the 1988 study, many of whom routinely used commercially available automated text search tools.

2. Collection of a fee for use (as opposed to the absence of any charge during the study) would reduce demand for text search services when compared with usage data obtained during the study period.

3. The potential universe of public users is expected to average no more than 300 per day.

4. The average length of a public user search session is projected to be approximately 22 minutes -- the average length of a search session during the 1988 test of public use.

5. Based on the preceding assumptions, if all 300 potential public users conducted a single search session during a workday, a total of 110 hours of access would be required. Twenty-five text terminals available five days a week, twelve hours a day, would provide a maximum potential of 300 hours of available text search time. Under these assumptions, the number of text terminals appeared to be adequate for the foreseeable future.

6. For purposes of actual use of available text terminals, the following estimates were used:

(a) In fiscal year 1990, between four (4) and six (6) terminals would be available during the first quarter. An estimate of 45 percent utilization of available text terminal time was projected. By increasing the number of text terminals to 10 in January 1990 and 20 in April 1990, an estimate of 40 percent utilization of available text terminal time was projected. By increasing the number of text terminals to 25 in July 1990, an estimate of 35 percent utilization of available text terminal time was projected.

(b) During fiscal year 1991 and beyond, stable levels of usage were projected to be achieved, yielding an estimated 35 percent average utilization of the 25 available terminals. This utilization rate equates to 105 session hours per day, or an average of 4.2 session hours per terminal per day. At an average of 22 minutes per session, a total of 286 search sessions per day. Although usage rates since the system was made available to the public in April 1989 have been higher than projected, the Office believes these projections are valid for the three-year fee cycle.

A summary of the fee calculations is as follows:

T-Search

The marginal cost for one hour of terminal session time on T-Search includes the costs of personnel in the Trademark Search Library, maintenance of the T-Search terminals, routine site preparation, supplies and forms, and general and administrative overhead. The Office is establishing the $40.00 fee for each hour of terminal session time on T-Search, but is immediately suspending collection of that fee in order to provide public users additional time to familiarize themselves with the system.

The comments submitted in response to the proposed rulemaking indicate that the public users have not adequately adjusted to the T-Search system. During the period collection of the fee is suspended, the public will have an opportunity to better learn the system so as to perform more effective searches than they may be experiencing now. The Office will publish a notice in the Federal Register sixty days before it begins collecting a fee for public access to T-Search.

Usage rates for T-Search during fiscal years 1990-1992 were projected to be 28 percent of the hours the system would be available to the public. This rate was extrapolated from actual usage rates during the T-Search public user pilot program which was conducted from June through December 1988. A total of 38 members of the public were trained on T-Search, and about 24 to 28 public users were active on T-Search each month. The overall usage rate of these active users was 14 percent of the hours the system was available to the public. In projecting usage rates on which to base a fee amount, it was anticipated that the overall number of users and the usage rate would double once T-Search was made available in the Trademark Search Library to all users of that search facility and training was provided on a routine basis. Although usage rates since the system was made available to the public in April 1989 have been higher projected, the Office believes these projections are valid for the three-year fee cycle.

A summary of the fee calculations are as follows:

The proposed fee of $25.00 for each hour of Office staff search assistance to conduct a search using T-Search has been withdrawn. The T-Search system can be used by the public with routine assistance provided by the regular staff of the Trademark Search Library. This is similar to assistance on how to use the paper files now provided free of charge by the Trademark Search Library staff. Office employees will neither work one-on-one with members of the public in conducting searches, nor conducted searches for members of the public.

Rounding Procedures: Fee amounts were rounded so that the amount rounded would be de minimis and convenient to the user. This procedure is consistent with section 103(b) of Pub. L. 100-703 which allows the Office to adjust patent fees in the aggregate, and with section 103(a) of Pub. L. 100-703 which allows the Office to adjust trademark fees in the aggregate.

The Office has detailed cost calculation worksheets for each fee item, which are available for public inspection in Suite 904 of Building 2, Crystal Park at 2121 Crystal Drive, Arlington, Virginia.

PROCEDURES FOR PUBLIC USE OF APS-TEXT AND T-SEARCH

Patent Search Room Configuration

Initially four (4) text search terminals will be installed and available for public use in the Patent Search Room. A printer will be associated with each text search terminal. An additional terminal will be located in Patent Search Room employee office space for control and adminstrative activities. Up to twenty-one (21) more terminals and printers are planned to be added for public use during fiscal year 1990, if necessary.

Trademark Search Library Configuration

Initially three (3) T-Search terminals with associated printers all be installed and available for public use in the Trademark Search Library. The terminals will be clustered in one area of the Trademark Search Library. An additional terminal will be located in Trademark Search Library employee office space for control and administration activities. Additional terminals printers will be added as demand warrants and space permits.

Training

To enable prospective public users to become effective on APS-Text, approximately fourteen (14) hours of free basic training is being offered. For those familiar with automated search systems, a shorter course of six (6) hours is provided. Ten (10) members of the public can be trained during each class. Training is being held at the Office's Arlington, Va. complex during normal work hours.

Four (4) hours of basic training is being offered on the use of T-Search. For those familiar with automated search systems, a shorter course of one (1) hour is available. T-Search training is being held in the Office's Arlington, Va. complex during morning, evening and weekend hours.

Enrollment in all training classes initially was on a lottery basis. Public users who wished to be trained on APS-Text or T-Search were required to submit an application form. The Office is now accepting requests for training and adding the names to the list. As of August 31, 1989, 696 people or 70 percent of all those requesting training have been trained.

System Use and Fee Procedures

To ensure equity of public access to the automated systems, as well an efficient operations, rules for use will be posted at the terminals. Users of the systems will be expected to comply with the rules and with all other regulations regarding the use of facilities.

Users are strongly encouraged to register in advance for system use. Each week, the next week's schedule will be available in the Patent Search room and the Trademark Search Library. Should requests for blocks of terminal time exceed the availability of terminals, limits on the amount of reserved time may be instituted. Up to three (3) of the initial four (4) terminals in the Patent Search Room and up to two (2) of the initial three (3) terminals in the Trademark Search Library will be allocated to public users with advance reserved times. The remaining terminal in the Patent Search Room will be available for walk-up users and for assisted searches for infrequent users. The remaining terminal in the Trademark Search Library will be available for walk-up users. The terminal time reservation system and the number of terminals available for walk-up public use and for assisted searches (in the Patent Search Room) is subject to change based upon operational experience.

All public use of APS-Text and T-Search, with the exception of scheduled training classes, is on a pre-payment basis. In pre-paying for use of the systems, the public may use a blank signed check, major credit card or charge to a deposit account. At the end of the search or the pre-paid amount of time, users will receive an accounting from Patent Search Room or Trademark Search Library staff for terminal time used and prints produced. The user must then finalized payment.

Discussion of Specific Rules

37 CFR 1.21 Miscellaneous fees and charges.

Section 1.21 is amended to add new paragraph (o) to set the fees for access to the Automated Patent System full-text search capability (APS-Text) and to provide for the waiver of fees under certain circumstances.

Section 1.21 is amended to add new paragraph (p) to set the fees for APS-Text search assistance by Office staff.

Section 1.21 is amended to add new paragraph (q) to set the fee for a printed copy from APS-Text.

37 CFR 2.6 Trademark fees

VOL

UMI

Section 2.6 is amended to add new paragraph (w) to set the fees for access to the automated trademark search system (T-Search) and to provide for the waiver of fees under certain circumstances.

Section 2.6 is amended to add new paragraph (x) to set the fee for a printed copy from T-Search.

A final rule package establishing two new fees under the provisions of Pub. L. 100-667, the Trademark Law Revision Act of 1988, has been published which added paragraphs (u) and (v) to section 2.6. Therefore, the rule has been modified from the proposal to add paragraphs (w) and (x) instead of paragraphs (u), (v) and (w).

Response to Comments on the Rules

A notice of proposed rulemaking to establish a basis for the charges for use of the on-line automated search systems in the Patent Search Room and Trademark Search Library located at the Patent and Trademark Office in Arlington, Virginia was published in the Federal Register on May 3, 1989, at 54 FR 18907. Corrections were published in the Federal Register on May 12, 1989, at 54 FR 20670. A notice also was published on May 30, 1989, in volume 1102 of the Official Gazette of the United States Patent and Trademark Office, pages 94 through 98 for patents, and pages 96 through 100 for trademarks.

A public hearing was conducted on June 30, 1989. A total of 25 comments were received: 24 respondents submitted written comments and five people presented oral testimony (four of whom also submitted written comments) at the public hearing. On the 25 comments, twelve (12) were from individuals, seven (7) from libraries, five (5) from organizations and one (1) from business. All of the written and oral comments were considered in adopting the rules set forth herein.

Many of the comments from the representatives of the Patent Depository Libraries raised questions or commented on the proposed rules from the perspective of their impact on Patent Depository Libraries. The proposed rules and policies set forth in the Federal Register Notice of May 3, 1989 are applicable only to the automated search systems provided in PTO's facilities located in Arlington, Virginia. When the Office is prepared to offer the automated search systems at the Patent Depository Libraries, a proposed notice will be published for public comment. Therefore, any comments relating to procedures for accessing the automated search systems in the Patent Depository Libraries will not be addressed at this time.

Comment: Overall, nine respondents acknowledged the usefulness of the automated search systems, particularly APS-Text. Although seven respondents alleged that T-Search is not adequate to meet the needs of the public, that its response time is too slow, and that it is not sufficiently accurate to meet the specific needs of the commentor, most of these respondents acknowledged that T-Search had the potential for being a useful tool. Documentaton of specific problems, for example, those associated with conducting a phonetic search, were provided. Two respondents said that T-Search is flawed and the decision to require examiners to use the system on an exclusive basis was ill-advised and regrettable.

Response: Trademark examining attorneys have been using T-Search for word mark searches since August 1987, and for word mark and design searches since January 1988. The public has been using the system since April 3, 1989.

The minutes to the September 27, 1988, meeting of the Public Advisory Committee for Trademark Affairs, express the view that: "...T-Search searches are more thorough than manual searches." The transcript to that meeting contains the following comments: "I don't think there is any question, but a T-Search [sic] properly done gives an excellent result" and "...from the corporate point of view, ... I am pleased to say that I like what I see. I like the very fast action we're getting on the first action." From the transcript to the February 23, 1988 meeting: "I'd like to start with a glowing report. I think that the registration process is working very well. From my own personal experience in terms of what the examiners are doing, they get an A plus. They're really doing a good job."

The concensus of the management of the Trademark Examining Operation is that the T-Search system meets the needs of the Office at this time. There is no indication in any records or activities in the PTO which would indicate that the use of T-Search has caused a deterioration in the quality of searches conducted by Trademark examining attorneys.

The difference between the perceptions of the Trademark examining attorneys and the public may be attributed to several factors; Trademark examining attorneys use the system on a daily basis; they know what the system can do and what it cannot do and avoid the latter; and they know how to utilize the system's functionalities to perform the best search possible. Further, Trademark examining attorneys do different types of searches, and have different needs, than the public. T-Search use statistics for the period April 1989 through August 1989 demonstrate that the public is making extensive use of the system. Following is a summary of those statistics:

Month	Available Hours	Hours Used By Public	Rate of Usage	Average Session Time
April	513	108	21%	13.02 min.
May	513	126	24%	12.25 min.
June	627	183	29%	10.84 min.
July	570	186	33%	12.51 min.
August	656	217	33%	9.66 min.

This usage rate compares favorably to the projected usage rate of 28 percent.

Comment: Seven respondents claimed that the paper Trademark files have been allowed to deteriorate and, therefore, are not reliable for use by the public.

Response: The Office contracts for file maintenance sevices in both the Trademark Search Library and the Patent Search Room. Among the tasks performed by the contractor in the Trademark Search Library are maintaining the pending files, filing newly registered Trademarks, pulling erroneous registrations from the file, etc. The contract for the Trademark Search Library includes a monitoring system based on MIL-STD 105, which is a sampling plan that provides a 97 percent accuracy level. Once the contractor completes a task, Office staff check the required sample levels to ensure that filing was performed accurately. The Office is constantly monitoring the status of the paper files, but notes that maintenance of paper file integrity is subject to inherent limitations.

Comment: In view of the above comments about the inadequacy of the Trademark paper search files and T-Search, six respondents advocated the need for T-Search, at no charge to the user, as an adjunct or back-up to the paper files. One respondent suggested a similar arrangement in the Patent Search Room.

Response: The Office has adopted the $40.00 fee amount for one hour of terminal session time on both APS-Text and T-Search. In order to give the public more time to become familiar with the T-Search system, the Commissioner is immediately suspending collection of that fee. This will enable users to learn the system so as to perform more effective searches. The Office will publish a notice in the Federal Register announcing its decision regarding the imposition of the fee at least 60 days before starting to collect the fee amount. At that time, the Office also will publish validated cost estimates based on usage rates and actual costs documented from the present time to the time the decision to collect a fee is made.

Comment: Two respondents claimed that the objective of automation necessarily comtemplated a free search system to give meaning to the constructive notice provisions of the Trademark Act.

Response: Registration of a trademark constitutes constructuve notice and records of all active trademark registrations and pending applications are available for searching free of charge in the paper file and on TRAM (Trademark Reporting and Monitoring System) data base.

Comment: One respondent claimed that PTO is required to provide access to disclosed patent information as the information is made public; four respondents were opposed to the Office charging fees for accessing the automated search systms; two other respondents commented that the Office should not charge fees for using systems designed to be the sole searching source of the public records which the Office is charged by law to provide; and one respondent commented that the proposal to limit access to the automated data bases only to those who can pay a fee is deplorable policy at a time when there is concern about industrial competitiveness with Japan.

Response: The Office will continue to make the paper and/or microfilm collections of U.S. patents, foreign patent documents and U.S. trademark registrations available for pubic access free of charge. The Office also has adopted a policy whereby the hourly terminal session fee for access to the data base can be waived when it is needed for a personal, educational purpose by an individual or member of an educational or non-profit organization, or where payment of the fee would pose a genuine financial hardship to the user. In this way, the Office will continue to provide public access to all available information free of charge.

Comment: One respondent commented that user fees for electronic data is a form of dual taxation when information was gathered, organized and produced at taxpayers expense; and two respondents claimed that users of information have contributed up to 30 percent of the $120 milllion for development of the APS system to date — in other words, the public already has paid for APS.

Response: In calculating the proposed fees, the Office is consistent with the Office of Management and Budget's proposed policy on user charges for Government information products, as clarified in the June 15, 1989 Federal Register notice entitled "Second Advance Notice of Further Policy Development on Dissemination of Information." In that notice, OMB's stated policy is that user charges for Government Information products should be no higher than a level sufficient to recover the costs of disseminating, not collecting, the information.

The costs associated with the fees for accessing APS-Text and T-Search are directly related to the public's use of the systems; for example, the costs associated with the acquisition of the APS-Text terminals that are being used by the public. No costs associated with designing or installing the automated system for use by Office examiners, or the development of the new systems have been included. Neither have costs been included for gathering, organizing or producing information.

The Federal Register notice of June 15, 1989 (54 FR 25554, 25558) dealing with policy development on dissemination of information states that: "As to double taxation, OMB notes that user charges policy has a basis in statute (31 U.S.C. 9701), and the Congress has not viewed user charges as double taxation because they are applied when the recipient receives special benefits."

Comment: Two respondents stated that Government information is the same, whether it is provided in printed or electronic form.

Response: Charging fees for access to the automated search systems is consistent with PTO's fee policy. For example, fees are charged for manual search services (e.g., for a search of Office records or for a search of assignment records), and for printed copies of patents and trademarks and for copies of Office documents.

Comment: The Japanese system is available at four locations at no cost, and includes U.S. information made available at U.S. taxpayer expense.

Response: The Japanese automated search system, like the automated search systems in the PTO's search facilities, is being made available free of charge at the present time. The costs of such use, however, are being paid from general fee revenues collected by the Japanese Patent Office. Additionally, the APS-Text system currently includes Japanese English language abstracts and the Office is in the process of acquiring Japanese patent information in digital facsimile form.

Comment: One respondent commented that PTO has no responsibility to provide an expensive, complex, internal Government on-line value-added computer service, that this is far beyond the requirements of public access to patent files; and another respondent commented that it is in the public interest to have the same system that is being used by the examiners also available to the public.

Response: The Office agrees that it is in the public interest to provide the same search system capability to the public that is being used by the examiners.

Comment: One respondent stated that providing free access is not competing with the private sector, and that there always is a place for the private sector to provide value-added information.

Response: The user charges adopted for public access to the APS-Test and T-Search systems are consistent with OMB Circulars A-25 "User Charges" and A-130 "Management of Federal Information Resources", and with the PTO's Electronic Data Dissemination Policies and Guidelines. The PTO's user's fees are designed to recover the marginal costs associated with providing access to the automated search systems to the public.

Comment: Five respondents stated that the proposed fees are not "reasonable" and the Office does not have documented cost estimates and usage rates to support the proposed fee amounts.

Response: The Office is meeting Congressional direction to establish "reasonable" fees by recovering only the marginal costs associated with providing public access to the automated search systems. Costs and projected usage rates were determined from the best available records, for example, financial statements for the Office and the results of the public evaluations of the APS-Text and T-Search systems. A summary of the costs used in the fee calculations is included above under "Cost Calculations." Full details of these cost calculations are available for public inspection at the Patent and Trademark Office in Suite 904 of Building 2, Crystal Park, at 2121 Crystal Drive, Arlington, Virginia.

Comment: Two respondents questioned the proposed fees for search assistance. If the search assistance is similar to that which is provided free now, there should be no fee. If the search assistance entails doing searches, the Office should not be getting into that business.

Response: The PTO is withdrawing the proposed fee for staff search assistance to conduct a search using T-Search capabilities. The fee for staff search assistance to conduct a search using APS-Text capabilities is being adopted, because an untrained user cannot conduct a search without significant help from Office staff. Users of course, have the option of obtaining free training on the system.

Comment: One respondent commented that user fees cannot be justified under the theory that electronic search provides a new service or offers an enhancement to the public's ability to search the patent data base, and that the public has an option of paying the fee or using the paper files. Another respondent commented that APS-Text and T-Search represent enhancements to services already provided.

Response: The fees are specifically authorized under $ 104 (c) of Pub. L. 100-703 and are calculated to allow recovery of only the marginal cost for providing the system to the public.

Comment: Two respondents claimed that the Office should ask Congress for funding to offer free access here and at the PDLs.

Response: It continues to be PTO policy, consistent with OMB Circular A-130, that costs for access to the automated search systems be borne by those who actually use the automated search systems.

Comment: One respondent claimed that the accuracy of the trademark data base is suspect.

Response: All of the backfile data base elements (registrations issued prior to September 9, 1980) have been corrected except owner information. As originally planned, the owner field will be cleaned up the active registrations issued prior to September 9, 1980. It is projected that this owner field will be cleaned up by the third quarter of fiscal year 1991.

Comment: Three respondents claimed that the public requires access to the dead data base.

Response: The Office will consider this proposal further. The dead data base is now available in electronic format for all applications and registrations that were active on January 1, 1983 and are now inactive. However, many of these records are of poor quality. Costs for cleaning up these records would be significant, and those costs would likely be reflected in the T-Search user fee.

Comment: Four respondents addressed the fee waiver policy. The proposal to waive fee appears inconsistent wih PTO's position that the free paper search files provide an equal and viable resource to anyone not wanting to pay for the automated files. If paper records are inferior, then anyone seeking access to T-Search should be able to qualify for the fee waiver. If the paper records are adequate, then there should be no need to waive the access fee for anyone.

Response: The waiver policy authorized by Pub. L. 100-703 is designed for those individuals who, for some reason in the public interest, such as an educational purpose, need the capabilities of the automated system, for example, to manipulate the data.

Comment: One respondent commented that the procedure to enroll people in training classes by the use of a lottery was unfair and that everyone who wants to be trained should be enrolled.

Response: The lottery was a method for establishing the initial schedules to provide training. Everyone who requests training will be trained. As of August 31, 1989, 449 out of 623 people requesting training on APS-Text, and 247 out of 376 people requesting training on T-Search have been trained.

Comment: One respondent commented that advance registration is an unrealistic approach for many searchers.

Response: At least one terminal in the Patent Search Room and one in the Trademark Search Library will be available for walk-up users. The other terminals will be available first for users with a reservation and then, if needed, for walk-up users. The system is designed to ensure equity of public access to the automated systems.

Comment: Two respondents asked for information justifying that this is not a "Major Rule" as defined by Executive Order 12291, and that the rule will not have a significant adverse impact on small entities.

Response: The no "major rule" determination and no significant adverse impact on small entities was based on the fact that the automated systems are being offered only at the Patent and Trademark Office's public search facilities located in Arlington, Virginia. The total number of users of these facilities averages less than 400 a day, and many of these users are members of law firms or commercial search services. The annual effect on the economy is expected to be about $1 million, far less than the $100 million annual threshold specified in the Executive Order. The fees for accessing the automated search systems are reasonable and should not burden small entities and, at the same time, the Office is continuing to maintain the paper search files which are available to the public free of charge. Finally, there should be no significant adverse effects on competition, because the systems are being offered only at one location, the Patent and Trademark Office in Arlington, Virginia, and the public may continue to use paper files without payment of any fee.

Comment: Five respondent commented that user fees burden small entities and run counter to a fundamental objective of the patent system which is to advance technology through dissemination of the technical information contained in patents.

Response: The Office does not believe that the fee amounts adopted will burden small entities or negatively impact the dissemination of technical information. The Office also will continue to maintain the paper search files using taxpayer funds, and provide access to the public free of charge. Further, the Office has adopted a fee waiver policy whereby the fee amount can be waived where access to the data base is needed for a personal, educational purpose by an individual or member of an educational or non-profit organization, or where payment of the fee would pose a genuine financial hardship to the user. Full details are included above under "Background".

Comment: One respondent commented that the Office needs a policy to ensure that no user of the patent and trademark information is disenfranchised due to an inability to pay for the services necessary to its access.

Response: The Commissioner will consider a fee waiver for users with a genuine financial hardship.

Other Considerations:

The rule change is in conformity with the requirements of the Regulatory Flexibility Act (Pub. L. 96-354), Executive Orders 12291 and 12612, and the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501, et seq. There are no information collection requirements relating to patent and trademark fee rules.

The Office has determined that this notice has no Federalism implications affecting the relationship between the National Government and the States as outlined in Executive Order 12612.

The General Counsel of the Department of Commerce has certified to the Chief Counsel for Advocacy, Small Business Administration, that the rule change will not have a significant adverse economic impact on a substantial number of small entities (Regulatory Flexibility Act, Pub. L. 96-354). The rules make the Office's on-line, automated patent full-text search and trademark search systems available to the public at rates significantly less than commercial systems.

The Office has determined that this rule change is not a major rule under Executive Order 12291. The annual effect on the economy will be less than $100 million. There will be no major increase in costs or prices for consumers, individual industries, Federal, State or local government agencies, or geographic regions. There will be no significant adverse effects on competition, employment, investment, productivity, innovation, or on the ability of United States-based enterprises to compete with foreign-based enterprises in domestic or export markets.

37 CFR Part 2

Patent and Trademark Automated Search System Fees

Agency: Patent and Trademark Office, Commerce
Action: Listing of suspension of final rule
Summary: The Patent and Trademark Office (Office), on December 11, 1989, amended the rules of practice in patent and trademark cases, Parts 1 and 2 of Title 37, Code of Federal Regulations, setting forth the fees for public access to the Office's text data bases: the Automated Patent System (APS) and the automated trademark search system (T-Search). 54 FR 50942. That final rule became effective on February 12, 1990. On that date, 37 CFR 2.6(w), dealing with T-Search fees, took effect, but was immediately suspended by the Commissioner.

The collection of the fee was initially suspended to permit users to become familiar with the T-Search system. The T-Search system has been available to the public since April 1989, a sufficient time for users to become familiar with the system. Therefore, as provided in the final rule, the Office now gives notice that the suspension is lifted. The Office will begin to collect the fees set forth in 37 CFR 2.6(w) sixty (60) days from the date of this notice. Cost estimates based on usage and actual costs are available for inspection in the Office of Long-Range Planning and Evaluation, Room 507, Crystal Park 1, Crystal Drive, Arlington, Virginia.
Dates: The suspension of 37 CFR 2.6(w) is lifted as of Nov. 13, 1990. The collection of fees under 37 CFR 2.6(w) will begin on November 13, 1990

The rights of the nonprofit organization or small business firm shall be subject to the provisions of paragraph (c) of this section and the other provisions of this chapter.

Funding agreement

Written determination.

"(b)(1) Any determination under (ii) of paragraph (a) of this section shall be in writing and accompanied by a written statement of facts justifying the determination. A copy of each such determination and justification shall be sent to the Comptroller General of the United States within thirty days after the award of the applicable funding agreement. In the case of determinations applicable to funding agreements with small business firms copies shall also be sent to the Chief Counsel for Advocacy of the Small Business Administration.

"(5) The right of the Federal agency to require periodic reporting on the utilization or efforts at obtaining utilization that are being made by the contractor or his licensees or assignees: Provided, That any such information may be treated by the Federal agency as commercial and financial information obtained from a person and privileged and confidential and not subject to disclosure under section 552 of title 5 of the United States Code.

"(7) In the case of a nonprofit organization, (A) a prohibition upon the assignment of rights to a subject invention in the United States without the approval of the Federal agency, except where such assignment is made to an organization which has as one of its primary functions the management of inventions and which is not, itself, engaged in or does not hold a substantial interest in other organizations engaged in the manufacture or sale of products or the use of processes that might utilize the invention or be in competition with embodiments of the invention (provided that such assignee shall be subject to the same provisions as the contractor); (B) a prohibition against the granting of exclusive licenses under United States Patents or Patent Applications in a subject invention by the contractor to persons other than small business firms for a period in excess of the earlier of five years from first commercial sale or use of the invention or eight years from the date of the exclusive license excepting that time before regulatory agencies necessary to obtain premarket clearance unless, on a case-by-case basis, the Federal agency approves a longer exclusive license. If exclusive field of use licenses are granted, commercial sale or use in one field of use shall not be deemed commercial sale or use as to other fields of use, and a first commercial sale or use with respect to a product of the invention shall not be deemed to end the exclusive period to different subsequent products covered by the invention; (C) a requirement that the contractor share royalties with the inventor; and (D) a requirement that the balance of any royalties or income earned by the contractor with respect to subject inventions, after payment of expenses (including payments to inventors) incidental to the administration of subject inventions, be utilized for the support of scientific research or education.

"(f) (1) No funding agreement with a small business firm or nonprofit organization shall contain a provision allowing a Federal agency to require the licensing to third parties of inventions owned by the contractor that are not subject inventions unless such provision has been approved by the head of the agency and a written justification has been signed by the head of the agency. Any such provision shall clearly state whether the licensing may be required in connection with the practice of a subject invention, a specifically identified work object, or both. The head of the agency may not delegate the authority to approve provisions or sign justifications required by this paragraph.

Any such determination shall be on the record after an opportunity for an agency hearing. Any action commenced for judicial review of such determination shall be brought within sixty days after notification of such determination.

" § 203. March-in rights 35 USC 203.

"(a) action is necessary because the contractor or assignee has not taken, or is not expected to take within a reasonable time, effective steps to achieve practical application of the subject invention in such field of use;

"(b) action is necessary to alleviate health or safety needs which are not reasonably satisfied by the contractor, assignee, or their licensees;

"(c) action is necessary to meet requirements for public use specified by Federal regulations and such requirements are not reasonably satisfied by the contractor, assignee, or licensees; or

" § 204. Preference for United States industry 35 USC 204.

"Notwithstanding any other provision of this chapter, no small business firm or nonprofit organization which receives title to any subject invention and no assignee of any such small business firm or nonprofit organization shall grant to any person the exclusive right to use or sell any subject invention in the United States unless such person agrees that any products embodying the subject invention or produced through the use of the subject invention will be manufactured substantially in the United States. However, in individual cases, the requirement for such an agreement may be waived by the Federal agency under whose funding agreement the invention was made upon a showing by the small business firm, nonprofit organization, or assignee that reasonable but unsuccessful efforts have been made to grant licenses on similar terms to potential licensees that would be likely to manufacture substantially in the United States or that under the circumstances domestic manufacture is not commercially feasible. Waiver.

" § 205. Confidentiality 35 USC 205.

"Federal agencies are authorized to withhold from disclosure to the public information disclosing any invention in which the Federal Government owns or may own a right, title, or interest (including a nonexclusive license) for a reasonable time in order for a patent application to be filed. Furthermore, Federal agencies shall not be required to release copies of any document which is part of an application for patent filed with the United States Patent and Trademark Office or with any foreign patent office.

" § 206. Uniform clauses and regulations 35 USC 206.

"The Office of Federal Procurement Policy, after receiving recommendations of the Office of Science and Technology Policy, may issue regulations which may be made applicable to Federal agencies implementing the provisions of sections 202 through 204 of this chapter and the Office of Federal Procurement Policy shall establish standard funding agreement provisions required under this chapter.

" § 207. Domestic and foreign protection of federally owned inventions 35 USC 207.

"Each Federal agency is authorized to—

"(1) apply for, obtain, and maintain patents or other forms of protection in the United States and in foreign countries on inventions in which the Federal Government owns a right, title, or interest;

"(2) grant nonexclusive, exclusive, or partially exclusive licenses under federally owned patent applications, patents, or other forms of protection obtained, royalty-free or for royalties or other consideration, and on such terms and conditions, including the grant to the licensee of the right of enforcement pursuant to the provisions of chapter 29 of this title as determined appropriate in the public interest; 35 USC 281 et seq.

"(3) undertake all other suitable and necessary steps to protect and administer rights to federally owned inventions on behalf of the Federal Government either directly or through contract; and

"(4) transfer custody and administration, in whole or in part, to another Federal agency, of the right, title, or interest in any federally owned invention.

" § 208. Regulations governing Federal licensing 35 USC 208.

" § 209. Restrictions on licensing of federally owned inventions 35 USC 209

"(a) No Federal agency shall grant any license under a patent or patent application on a federally owned invention unless the person requesting the license has supplied the agency with a plan for development and/or marketing of the invention, except that any such plan may be treated by the Federal agency as commercial and financial information obtained from a person and privileged and confidential and not subject to disclosure under section 552 of title 5 of the United States Code. "(c)(1) Each Federal agency may grant exclusive or partially exclusive licenses in any invention covered by a federally owned domestic patent or patent application only if, after public notice and opportunity for filing written objections, it is determined that—

"(A) the interests of the Federal Government and the public will best be served by the proposed license, in view of the applicant's intentions, plans, and ability to bring the invention to practical application or otherwise promote the invention's utilization by the public;

"(B) the desired practical application has not been achieved, or is not likely expeditiously to be achieved, under any nonexclusive license which has been granted, or which may be granted, on the invention,

"(C) exclusive or partially exclusive licensing is a reasonable and necessary incentive to call forth the investment of risk capital and expenditures to bring the invention to practical application or otherwise promote the invention's utilization by the public; and

"(D) the proposed terms and scope of exclusivity are not greater than reasonably necessary to provide the incentive for bringing the invention to practical application or otherwise promote the invention's utilization by the public.

"(2) A Federal agency shall not grant such exclusive or partially exclusive license under paragraph (1) of this subsection if it determines that the grant of such license will tend substantially to lessen competition or result in undue concentration in any section of the country in any line of commerce to which the technology to be licensed relates, or to create or maintain other situations inconsistent with the antitrust laws. Antitrust factors

"(3) First preference in the exclusive or partially exclusive licensing of federally owned inventions shall go to small business firms submitting plans that are determined by the agency to be within the capabilities of the firms and equally likely, if executed, to bring the invention to practical application as any plans submitted by applicants that are not small business firms. Small business preference.

"(d) After consideration of whether the interests of the Federal Government or United States industry in foreign commerce will be enhanced, any Federal agency may grant exclusive or partially exclusive licenses in any invention covered by a foreign patent application or patent, after public notice and opportunity for filing written objections, except that a Federal agency shall not grant such exclusive or partially exclusive license if it determines that the grant of such license will tend substantially to lessen competition or result in undue concentration in any section of the United States in any line of commerce to which the technology to be licensed relates, or to create or maintain other situations inconsistent with antitrust laws. "(2) the right of the Federal agency to terminate such license in whole or in part if it determines that the licensee is not executing the plan submitted with its request for a license and the licensee cannot otherwise demonstrate to the satisfaction of the Federal agency that it has taken or can be expected to take within a reasonable time, effective steps to achieve practical application of the invention;

The purpose of H.R. 6260 is to authorize appropriations for the Patent and Trademark Office for fiscal years 1983 through 1985.

STATEMENT

The Subcommittee on Courts, Civil Liberties and the Administration of Justice previously held two days of hearings on the legislation, receiving testimony from a representative group of witnesses including the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, the American Bar Association Section of Patent, Trademark and Copyright Law, the American Patent Law Association, the Patent, Trademark and Copyright Section of the State Bar of Virginia, the United States Trademark Association and the General Patent Counsel of the General Electric Corporation.

H.R. 6260 reflects the recommendation of the Administration with three modifications as follows. First, the Administration proposal authorized the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks to establish fees administratively. The subcommittee approved an amendment to set forth specific fees in the statute and limited the Commissioner's authority to raise fees. Second, the Administration recommended that user fees recover 100% of the costs of actual processing of patents and trademarks. The subcommittee amended the bill to reduce by 50% patent filing and maintenance fees for individual inventors, small businesses and not for profit institutions. The effect of the amendment is to increase by $8 million the authorized appropriation which would have been provided under the original Administration request. Third, the subcommittee adopted a recommendation of the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, the American Bar Association and a coalition of corporate patent counsel permitting arbitration of patent disputes.

H.R. 6260 was considered by the Full Committee on the Judiciary on May 11, 1982 and was approved as reported by the subcommittee with an amendment offered by Mr. Frank described below.

Authorizes the Patent and Trademark Office for fiscal year 1983 at an appropriations level of $76,000,000 and for fiscal years 1984 and 1985 such sums as may be necessary. This would be augmented by additional fee income under the bill of approximately $79 million for a total budget of $155 million. In fiscal year 1982 the Patent and Trademark Office was authorized at a level of $118,961,000 of which $29,600,000 was provided through fee income. Fiscal year 1983 will be the first year in which fee income under P.L. 96-517 will be credited to the Patent and Trademark Office without being counted as part of its authorized appropriation. Had this new accounting procedure been applied to fiscal year 1982 the authorization and appropriation for the Patent and Trademark Office would have been $89 million. This constitutes the actual level of taxpayer support of the Office. Thus, H.R. 6260 authorizes the expenditure of tax revenue in fiscal 1983 to support the Patent and Trademark Office at a level $21 million lower than for fiscal 1982. H.R. 6260 proposes to double current fees as the means of making up for the difference between a lower level of taxpayer support and an increased total budget. Further, maintenance fees which were first authorized in P.L. 96-517 and which will not begin to be collected until fiscal year 1986 (Oct. 1, 1985) will also be doubled over the amounts provided for under P.L. 96-517.

The overall objective of H.R. 6260 is to provide for increased user support for the Patent and Trademark Office costs associated with the actual processing of patent applications by fiscal year 1996. The fee schedule is designed to return to the government 100% of actual costs. However, an amendment to the original Administration proposal adopted by the subcommittee would reduce by half the fees for individuals, small businesses and nonprofit inventors. At the present time less than 25% of the actual costs of processing patent applications are supported by fee revenue and under P.L. 96-517, which becomes effective on Oct. 1, 1982, this amount will gradually begin to rise but will only reach 50% of actual costs in 1996.

The amendment offered by Mr. Frank and approved by the Committee modifies that portion of Section 3 of H.R. 6260 dealing with Trademark fees. Public Law 96-517 (35 United States Code, section 31(a)) provides, "Fees will be set and adjusted by the Commissioner to recover in aggregate 50 per centum of the estimated average cost to the Office of such processing. Fees for all other services or materials related to trademarks and other marks will recover the estimated average cost . . . of performing the service or furnishing the material."

The Administration requested that the figure, "50 per centum", be changed to "100 per centum", thus mandating full recovery to the Treasury of all costs associated with processing trademarks. An amendment offered during subcommittee consideration of the legislation proposed to reduce fee generated revenue supporting processing of trademarks to less than the 100 per centum recovery level. The amendment was not agreed to. The author of the amendment, Mr. Frank, then proposed to amend the law to provide a statutory fee schedule which would return revenue to the Patent and Trademark Office at a level designed to recover 100 per centum of costs. However, following consultations with interested parties, Mr. Frank modified his amendment simply to repeal those portions of P.L. 96-517 which mandate a specified level of cost recovery for the processing of trademark registrations. Thus, the level of cost recovery for processing of trademark registrations will be within the discretion of the Commissioner. The Committee is aware of the concerns of users of the Trademark registration system, however, and intends to exercise vigorous oversight with respect to the Commissioner to ensure that fees remain at a reasonable level and that trademark registrations are processed in an efficient and cost effective manner. As part of this oversight, the Committee recommends the following fee structure to the Commissioner for Fiscal Year 1983.

[1]100 plus for each mark in addition to 1.

Section 3(d) also permits the Commissioner of Patents to accept late payment of maintenance fees where it is established that the delay in payment was unavoidable.
Section 4 permits the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks to appoint temporary examiners in chief for the Board of Patent Appeals to deal more flexibly with workload.
Section 5 permits late filing of the oath and fee accompanying submission of specifications and drawings which accompany patent claims.
Section 6 permits greater flexibility in correcting mistakes in the naming of inventors on a patent application.
Section 7 allocates funds from the Patent and Trademark Office to the Department of State to pay the financial obligations of administering the patent Cooperation Treaty.
Section 8 clarifies the Trademark law with respect to what constitutes use of a mark "in commerce".
Section 9 deletes the burdensome technical requirement that trademark oppositions be verified.
Section 10 makes the date of registration rather than the date of publication the crucial date for purposes of establishing the incontestability of a trademark. This eliminates an ambiguity in the present law.

Section 11 limits the declaration ofinterferences under the trademark law to situations where extraordinary circumstances exist.
Section 12 authorizes the Commissioner of the Patent and Trademark Office the flexibility to deal with problems of delay in filing due to postal service breakdowns.
Section 13 permits the Commissioner [redacted] to enter into cooperative studies, programs, exchanges and similar ventures associated with the administration of the Patent Office.
Section 14 conforms U.S. Patent and Trademark Law to a recent international treaty governing diplomatic or consular legalization of documents.
Section 15 corrects a mistaken citation in P.L. 96-517.
Section 16 creates a uniform term for design patents.
Section 17 establishes the effective dates for provisions of the Act. Increased filing fees would apply to all applications made on or after the date of enactment of H.R. 6260.
Section 18 permits voluntary arbitration of patent disputes.

SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS
SECTION 1

This section authorizes appropriations for the Patent and Trademark Office for the payment of salaries and necessary expenses of the Office. For Fiscal Year 1983, this section authorizes appropriations of $76,000,000, and in fiscal years 1984 and 1985 such sums as may be necessary, as well as such additional and supplemental amounts as may be necessary to cover any increases in salary, pay, retirement, or employee benefits which may be authorized by law. Funds made available by these appropriations are to be used to reduce by 50 per centum the amount of the fees to be paid under title 35, United States Code, section 41(a) and (b) by independent inventors and nonprofit organizations as defined in regulations established by the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, and by small business concerns as defined in section 3 of the Small Business Act and by regulations established by the Small Business Administration.

In addition, fees collected pursuant to title 35, United States Code, and the Trademark Act of 1946, as amended (15 U.S.C. 1051 et seq.), will augment the authorized appropriation to provide the resources needed to conduct the operations of the Office for fiscal year 1983. The total resources for the Office in fiscal year 1983, that is, the amount appropriated pursuant to this section plus fees collected pursuant to the patent and trademark laws, which will be available to the Office, are estimated to be $154,934,000. The corresponding levels for fiscal year 1984 and fiscal year 1985 are estimated in the President's Budget to be $167 million and $176 million, respectively. Any additional amounts to cover increases in salary, pay, retirement, or other employee benefits which may be authorized by law will be in addition to, and will therefore increase, those program levels. Finally, any funds appropriated pursuant to this section and all fees collected, when specified in an appropriation act, will remain available without any fiscal year limitation.

This section provides that, notwithstanding any other provision of law, there is authorized to be appropriated to the Patent and Trademark Office for fiscal year 1982, $121,461,000 and such additional or supplemental amounts as may be necessary for increases in salary, pay, retirement, or other employee benefits authorized by law. This section increases the amount authorized for the Patent and Trademark Office by 2.5 million over that authorized in Public law 97-35. The President is recommending a supplemental appropriation of $2,500,000 for the Patent and Trademark Office for fiscal year 1982 in order to carry out the program recommendations included in his fiscal year 1983 Budget.

This section establishes certain statutory fees which are to be charged by the Commissioner and authorizes the Commissioner to establish other fees whose amounts are not specifically set. Thus, the major routine fees which are applicable to patents and patent application processing are established (e.g., filing, issuance, and maintenance fees). The Commissioner is authorized to establish fees for all other processing, services, or materials related to patents which are not specifically established by statute. The processing and service fees, which would be established at a level to recover the estimated average costs to the Office. A more specific discussion of the various provisions of this section is set forth below.

Section 3(a) amends section 41(a) of title 35 to provide the amounts of the fees for filing and issuance of patent applications. In addition, the section includes provisions for increasing the filing fees due to increased complexities presented by certain applications, e.g., applications containing more than a specified number of claims and any application containing a multiple dependent claim. The section also provides that fees will be charged when the number of claims is increased above the specified number or when a multiple dependent claim is first presented, whether on filing or at a later point in processing.

Under section 41(a)1, the filing fee for an original patent, except in design or plant cases, is $300. In addition, on filing or on presentation at any other time, $30 is due for each claim in independent form which is in excess of three, $10 is due for each claim (whether independent or dependent) which is in excess of twenty, and $100 is due for each application containing a multiple dependent claim. The latter fee is a one-time charge per application due the first time a multiple dependent claim is presented for examination. For the purpose of computing fees, a multiple dependent claim as referred to in section 112 of title 35, United States Code, or any claim depending therefrom, will be considered as separate dependent claims in accordance with the number of claims to which reference is made. Under the section, errors in payment ofthe additional fees may be rectified in accordance with regulations of the Commissioner. This will enable the Commissioner to establish regulations whereby patent applications may correct, without prejudice, errors in the additional fees, i.e., those in addition to the basic fees established.

Under section 41(a)2, the fee for issuing all original and reissue patents, except in design or plant cases, would be a uniform amount of $500. No supplemental issue fees are required.

Section 41(a)3 establishes fixed fees for filing applications for, and issuance of design and plant patents. For design patent cases, the filing fee would be $200 and the issue fee $250.

Section 41(a)4 relates to fees in reissue cases and establishes a fee of $300 for filing each application for the reissue of a patent. In addition, on filing or on presentation at any other time, $30 is due for each claim in independent form which is in excess of the number of independent claims of the original patent, and $10 is due for each claim (whether independent or dependent) which is in excess of twenty and also in excess of the number of claims of the original patent. Errors in payment of the additional fees may be rectified in accordance with regulations of the Commissioner.

Under section 41(a)5, a fee of $50 would be established for filing each disclaimer in a patent or patent application.

Section 41(a)6 establishes a fee due on filing an appeal from the examiner to the Board of Appeals of $115. In addition, a fee of $115 is due on filing a brief in support of the appeal, and a fee of $100 is due for requesting an oral hearing before the Board of Appeals.

Section 41(a)7 establishes two different fees for filing petitions with different standards to revive abandoned patent applications. The same two fees are applicable to petitions to accept the delayed payment of the fee for issuing a patent. The fees set forth in this section are due on filing the petition. Since the section provides for two alternative fees with different standards, the section would permit the applicant seeking revival or acceptance of a delayed payment of the fee for issuing a patent to choose one or the other of the fees and standards under such regulations as the Commissioner may establish. Under the section the Commissioner could establish time limits within which petitions under each of the different fees and standards can be filed. The section establishes a fee of $500 for filing each petition for revival or for acceptance of the delayed payment of an issue fee where the abandonment or the failure to pay the issue fee is unintentional. In order to prevent abuse and injury to the public the Commissioner could require a terminal disclaimer equivalent to the period of abandonment and could require applicants to act promptly after becoming aware of the abandonment. The section establishes a fee of $50 for filing a petition under sections 133 or 151 of title 35 in accordance with standards presently in effect requiring that the delay resulting in the abandonment, or the delay in payment of the issue fee, be unavoidable. Under this section a petition accompanied by either a fee of $500 or a fee of $50 would not be granted where the abandonment or the failure to pay the fee for issuing the patent was intentional as opposed to being unintentional or unaviodable. This section would permit the Commissioner to have more discretion than present law to revive abandoned applications and accept late payment of the fee for issuing a patent in appropriate circumstances.

Section 41(a)8 establishes fees for filing of petitions for extensions of time. Various time periods are set by the Office for taking actions on matters relating to patent applications. These time periods are set pursuant to statute or by regulations established by the Commissioner under the authority granted to the Commissioner by statute. This section would provide for fees for filing petitions to extend the time periods set pursuant to statute or by regulations for taking action within any limitations set by statute.

A fee of $50 is established for filing a request for a first one month extension of time, an additional fee of $100 for filing a request for a second one month extension of time which would expire two months after the end of the time period set for taking action, and an additional fee of $200 for filing a request for a third one month extension of time which would expire three months after the end of the time period set for taking action. A subsequent or fourth extension could be requested if additional time was available under the statute. In no case could a period be extended beyond the maximum time set by statute.

The Commissioner may issue regulations providing when, within any maximum period permitted by statute, petitions for extensions of time, and the required fee therefor, may be filed. This section does preclude the Commissioner from waiving the fee for filing a petition for an extension of time where the Office extends the period due to equity considerations or sufficient cause.

Section 41(b) provides that the Commissioner charge the following fees for maintaining a patent other than a design or plant patent, in force: at three years and six months after grant, $400; at seven years and six months after grant, $800; and at eleven years and six months after grant, $1,200. Unless payment of the applicable maintenance fee is received in the Patent and Trademark Office on or before the date the fee is due or within a grace period of six months thereafter, the patent will expire as of the end of such grace period. The Commissioner may require the payment of a surcharge as a condition of accepting within such six-month grace period the late payment of a maintenance fee.

In order to avoid an inequitable loss of patent rights, the Commissioner is given the authority to accept payment of any maintenance fee after the six-month grace period if it is established that the delay in payment was unavoidable. It is intended that the Commissioner will issue regulations establishing guidelines for acceptance of late payment. After the expiration of a reasonable period of time, the patentee would bear a heavy burden of proof that the delay was unavoidable. A surcharge may be imposed by the Commissioner as a precondition to acceptance of a late fee. This surcharge may be in addition to any surcharge imposed for payment during the grace period.

A provision is included to protect the rights of one who began using or who took steps to begin use of a patent which expired for failure to pay a maintenance fee and which was subsequently reestablished by acceptance of the late payment. The intervening rights provision in section 41(c)(2) is similar to the intervening rights provision in 35 U.S.C. 252 concerning reissued patents.

Section 41(d) provides that the Commissioner establish fees for all other processing services, or materials related to patents not specified in section 41 at an amount calculated to recover the estimated average cost to the Office of such processing, services, or materials. Such processing and other services includes, but is not limited to, the processing of various petitions desiring certain actions to be taken regarding patent applications, recording of assignments, reexamination of patents and the processing of international applications. Fees for materials include the price of patent copies, certifications and other copying services. The yearly fee for providing a library specified in section 13 of title 35 with uncertified copies of the specifications and drawings for all patents issued in that year is set at $50.

Section 41(f) provides that the fees established in subsections (a) and (b) of section 41 may be adjusted by the Commissioner on Oct. 1, 1985, and every third year thereafter, to reflect any fluctuations occurring during the previous three years in the Consumer Price Index, as determined by the Secretary of Labor. Changes of less than one per centum may be ignored by the Commissioner in making such adjustments.

Subsection (a) of section 31 of the Trademark Act of 1946, as amended (15 U.S.C. 1113), is being changed to grant the Commissioner discretion to establish the level of recovery of office costs related to trademarks. It is expected that the Commissioner will set the fees in a way that the filing fee will be kept as low as possible to foster use of the Federal registration system. This may require that other fees for services or materials related to trademarks recover more than their actual estimated cost in order that the Commissioner achieve in the aggregate adequate cost recovery for the entire trademark operation.

A provision is inserted in section 42(c) of title 35 in order to ensure that the trademark fees collected are used to fund trademark operations only and not the processing of patent applications.

SECTION 4

Section 3 of title 35 is amended by deleting specific reference to the number of examiners-in-chief in the first sentence. Elimination of the upper limit on the number of permanent members of the Board of Appeals would provide greater flexibility in filling most of its personnel needs, thereby avoiding an excess of examiner details. The authority to appoint acting examiners-in-chief, however, is maintained in order that temporary fluctuations in the workload of the Board may be accommodated.

Under revised section 111 of title 35, the filing date of an application would be that on which the specification and any required drawings are received by the Patent and Trademark Office. The oath or declaration and filing fee could be submitted at such later time as established by the Commissioner, without any loss of the original filing date. Under the amendment, an applicant could either file the oath or declaration (including the applicant's signature) and fee together with an application or submit them at a later time as determined by the Commissioner.

The section would also authorize the imposition of a surcharge as a condition for accepting filing of the oath of payment of the filing fee after the filing date of the application. Since an application filed without the oath or declaration would not be signed or "made" by the applicant, the amendment permits a patent attorney or agent, authorized by the applicant, to submit the specification and drawings for the purpose of obtaining a filing date. Should the applicant, however, fail to file the oath or declaration, or pay the filing fee within the time limits set by the Commissioner, the application would be regarded as having been abandoned.

The third paragraph of section 116 of title 35 is amended to enlarge the possibilities for correcting misnamed inventive entities. As a consequence, correction would be permitted also in cases where the person originally named as inventor was in fact not the inventor of the subject matter contained in the application. If such error occurred without any deceptive intention on the part of the true inventor, the Commissioner would have the authority to substitute the true inventor for the erroneously named person. Although probably rarer, instances such as changes from a mistakenly identified sole inventor to a different, but actual, joint inventors, conversions from erroneously identified joint inventors to different but actual, joint inventors, and conversions from erroneously identified joint inventors to a different, but actual, sole inventor would also be permitted. In each instance, however, the Commissioner must be assured of the presence of innocent error, without deceptive intention on the part of the true inventor or inventors, before permitting substitution of a true inventor's name.

The ability to receive a filing date based on a specification and drawings without signature as set forth in revised section 111 of title 35, and to file the oath or declaration and pay the filing fee within such period as determined by the Commissioner is also available to joint inventors.

Section 256 of title 35, which is a companion to section 116, would be amended to similarly enlarge the possibilities for correction of misnamed inventors in issued patents.

SECTION 7

Section 6(d) of title 35, which provides for the allocation of appropriated Patent and Trademark Office funds to the Department of State for payment of United States financial obligations under the Patent Cooperation Treaty, is deleted. The Department of State has traditionally assumed responsibility for financial obligations for international agreements to which the United States adheres.

SECTION 8

Section 8(a) of the Trademark Act is amended to clarify that the continued use required to be shown in the sixth year be use "in commerce". Although it is believed by some that omission of the words "in commerce" may have been inadvertent in the 1946 Act, this section has been interpreted so that use in a foreign country, or use in intrastate commerce, is sufficient. Such interpretation is fundamentally in conflict with other requirements of the Act.

Section 8(b) of the Act is also amended to clarify that the continued use required to be shown in the sixth year be use "in commerce". Although it is believed by some that omission of the words "in commerce may have been inadvertent in the 1946 Act, this section has interpreted so that use in a foreign country, or use in intrastate commerce, is sufficient. Such interpretation is fundamentally in conflict with other requirements of the Act.

Section 8(b) of the Act is also amended to clarify that the continued use required to be shown in the sixth year be use "in commerce" for registrations published under section 12(c) of the Act. (This pertains to registrations issued under the Act of Mar. 3, 1881 and the Act of Feb. 20, 1905).

The word "still" has been deleted from section 8(a) and 8(b). Thus, the owner of a registration issued on the basis of a foreign registration under the provisions of section 44(e) of the Act will have to submit an affidavit to the effect that the mark is in use in commerce. Since the mark need not be used in commerce when it is registered, the requirement cannot be required to state that it is "still" in such use.

Section 13 of the Trademark Act is amended to delete the requirement that an opposition be verified. The sentence which allowed an unverified application to be verified at a later date has been deleted. In addition, a phrase has been added to make it clear that any subsequent extension of time to file an opposition, beyond the first extension, must be requested before the end of the preceding extension.

Section 14 of the Trademark Act would also be amended to delete the requirement that a petition to cancel a registration be verified.

SECTION 10

Section 15 of the Trademark Act is amended to change the term "the publication" to "registration" in the first sentence. This change makes the date of registration rather than the date of publication the crucial date for purposes of incontestablility. It will also make section 15 consistent with sections 22 and 33 of the Act.

SECTION 11

Section 16 of the Trademark Act is amended to limit the declaration of interferences to those situations where a petition to the Commissioner shows that extraordinary circumstances exist, the rights of the parties can be determined adequately by the existing opposition and cancellation procedures. Additionally, if an interference is declared between an application and a registration and the applicant wins, a cancellation must still be initiated against the registration.

SECTION 12

A new subsection (a) has been added to section 21 of title 35 to authorize, but not to require, the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks to give as the filing date of any paper or fee which is required to be filed in the Patent and Trademark Office the date on which the paper or fee was deposited with the United States Postal Service. The Commissioner may also give as the filing date of any paper or fee which was required to be filed in the Patent and Trademark Office the date it would have been deposited with the United States Postal Service but for postal service interruptions or emergencies which the Commissioner designates. The requirements governing whether any given paper or fee may be given the filing date of the day on which it was, or would have been deposited with the United States Postal Service will be set forth in regulations established by the Commissioner.

Section 21(b) of title 35 is identical to existing section 21 with two minor amendments. The word "federal" has been inserted before the phrase "holiday within the District of Columbia" to clarify the nature of the holiday.

This section clarifies the authority of the Commissioner in section 6(a) of title 35 to enter into a wide range of cooperative agreements concerning the patent and trademark laws or the administration of the Patent and Trademark Office. These agreements are in addition to the exchange of publications authorized in 35 U.S.C. 11(b) and 12. These cooperative agreements may take the form of studies, programs, exchanges, and other similar ventures. Thus, the Patent and Trademark Office could, for example, exchange patent copies, non-patent literature, tapes or services in return for goods or services of value to the Patent and Trademark Office.

SECTION 14

The amendments of 35 U.S.C. 115 and Section 11 of the Trademark Act of 1946 recognize the Hague "Convention Abolishing the Requirement of Legalization for Foreign Public Documents" which entered into force in the United States on Oct. 15, 1981. The Convention abolishes the requirement of diplomatic or consular legalization for foreign public documents which are sworn to or acknowledged by a notary public in any of the countries adhering to the Convention. For documents executed by a notary public of all other foreign countries, diplomatic or consular legalization will still be required.

The amendment of 35 U.S.C. 261 is intended to give affirmative effect to acknowledgments executed pursuant to the Hague Convention.

SECTION 15

This section corrects an incorrect citation. Public Law 96-517 amended section 41 of title 35, United States Code, in a way which eliminated 35 U.S.C., § 41(a)(9). Unfortunately, section 13 of title 35, United States Code, was not amended accordingly by Public Law 96-517. This section corrects that oversight.

SECTION 16

This section sets a uniform term of fourteen years for all design patents.

SECTION 17

Sections 17(a) and (c) specify the effective dates of the Act. Section 17(a) also specifies that the maintenance fees provided for in section 3(b) of this Act will only apply to patents in which the application was filed on and after the date of enactment or to maintenance fees later established by law.

Section 17(b) adds a section to title 35 providing for the voluntary arbitration of patent disputes by the parties to the dispute. The section requires that the Commissioner be notified in writing of an award made by an arbitrator or modified by a court. Such notification will be entered in the record of the prosecution of the patent.

At present, agreements to arbitrate some aspects of disputes arising under patent licenses are enforceable by the courts; however, there have been court decisions that have disapproved arbitration of disputes concerning patent validity or infringement. In this regard, see, for example, Zip Mfg. Co. v. Pep Mfg. Co. 44 F.2d 184, 7 U.S.P.Q. 62 (D. Del. 1930) and Beckman Instruments, Inc. v. Technical Developments Corp. 433 F.2d 55, 167 U.S.P.Q. 10 (7th Cir. 1965).

Partly as a reaction to those decisions, during the 93rd Congress both the Department of Commerce and the Department of Justice endorsed a provision specifically authorizing arbitration of validity and infringement disputes. This provision, included in an omnibus patent law revision bill, S. 2504, was never enacted due to the many controversial aspects of that legislation.

In the view of the Committee, a statutory authorization of voluntary agreements to arbitrate validity and infringement disputes would benefit both the parties to these disputes and the public.

Statutory endorsement of arbitration agreements would assure the parties that they could avail themselves of the numerous advantages of arbitration without the possibility of having to reargue the dispute in court. The advantages of arbitration are many: it is usually cheaper and faster than litigation; it can have simpler procedural and evidentiary rules; it normally minimizes hostility and is less disruptive of ongoing and future business dealings among the parties; it is often more flexible in regard to scheduling of times and places of hearings and discovery devices; and, arbitrators are frequently better versed than judges and juries in the area of trade customs and the technologies involved in these disputes.

The enforcement of voluntary arbitration provisions would serve the public in two ways. First, the availablity of arbitration with its numerous advantages will enhance the patent system and thus will encourage innovation. This view is supported by the Committee for Economic Development in their Jan. 1980 statement entitled "Stimulating Technological Progress." Secondly, arbitration could relieve some of the burdens on the overworked Federal courts. Chief Justice Burger in his speech to the American Bar Association on Jan. 24, 1982, generally endorsed the use of arbitration to reduce the judicial backlog. Also, I think it is important to note that the American Bar Association's Section on Patent, Trademark and Copyright Law has endorsed court enforcement of arbitration agreements calling for arbitration of validity and infringement.

The recommendations of the Secretary of Commerce to increase substantially patent and trademark user fees were made on the promise that such increases "will lay the groundwork for revitalizing the patent and trademark systems." The Secretary committed to three major goals: (1) to reach an average patent application pendency time of 18 months by FY 1987, (2) to issue an examiner's first action on trademark registrability in three months and disposal of an application within 13 months, and (3) to move realistically toward a fully automated Office by the 1990's. In accepting the Administration's recommendations on user fees, the Committee fully expects the Administration to live up to its end of the bargain to bring about a first-class Patent and Trademark Office. To provide an opportunity for timely and effective Committee oversight of progress toward improving the Patent and Trademark Office, the Committee directs that the Secretary of Commerce report annually to the Committee on progress toward achieving the three major goals of the Patent and Trademark Office, as outlined above, and, in addition, promptly inform the Committee at any time it appears that any of the goals, for any reason, is viewed as not attainable.

OVERSIGHT STATEMENT

The Committee on the Judiciary has oversight responsibility over the Patent and Trademark Office in the Department of Commerce. STATEMENT OF THE BUDGET COMMITTEE

No statement has been received on H.R. 6260 from the House Committee on the Budget.

STATEMENT OF THE CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE

Pursuant to clause 7, rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives and section 403 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, the following is the cost estimate of H.R. 6260, as amended, prepared by the Congressional Budget Office.

U.S. CONGRESS
CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE,
Washington, D.C., May 13, 1982.

Hon. PETER W. RODINO, Jr.,
Chairman, Committee on the Judiciary, House of Representatives, Washington, D.C.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: Pursuant to Section 403 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, the Congressional budget Office has prepared the attached cost estimate for H.R. 6260, a bill to authorize appropriations to the Patent and Trademark Office in the Department of Commerce, and for other purposes.

Should the Committee so desire, we would be pleased to provide further details on this estimate.

Sincerely

ALICE M. RIVLIN,
Director.

CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE COST ESTIMATE

1. Bill number: H.R. 6260.

2. Bill title: A bill to authorize appropriations to the Patent and Trademark Office in the Department of Commerce, and for other purposes.

3. Bill status: As ordered reported by the House Committee on the Judiciary, May 11, 1982.

Bill purpose: H.R. 6260 would authorize 1982 appropriations at a level $2.5 million above the amount already appropriated, and would provide a $76 million authorization level in 1983 to carry out the activities of the Patent and Trademark Office (PTO). In addition, such sums as may be necessary are authorized for fiscal years 1984 and 1985, plus such additional or supplemental amounts as may be necessary for increases in salary, pay, retirement, or other benefits authorized by law for each fiscal year 1983 thorugh 1985. PTO would also have available for obligation offsetting fee collections as provided for in Public Law 96-517, plus the additional fees as specified in H.R. 6260.

Assuming enactment of H.R. 6260, total PTO collections over time would result in recovery of approximately 100 percent of patent and trademark processing costs. Individuals, small businesses, and non-profit institutions would be exempt from the proposed additional fees, however, but would continue to follow the fee schedule outlined in P.L. 96-517, which assumes the ultimate recovery of approxiamtely 50 percent of all processing costs.

The President's 1982 budget includes a request for a $2.5 million supplemental for the PTO. The Administration has recommended increasing user fees to ultimately recover 100 percent of processing costs beginning in 1983, but does not provide for any exemptions to the proposed fee increases relative to current law. The effect of exemptions is to increase by approximately $8 million the authorized level of appropriations relative to the Administration's request.

In addition, the bill would make a number of other changes that are not expected to have a cost impact.

5. Cost estimate:

[By fiscal years, in millions of dollars]

	1982	1983	1984	1985	1986
Authorization level:
Specified	2.5	76.0	....	....	....
Estimated	....	6.8	86.4	86.8	....
Subtotal	2.5	82.8	86.4	86.8	....
Total estimated outlays	2.4	61.8	82.4	82.8	5.5

Including outlays from appropriations to date for PTO, total 1982 outlays are estimated to be $121.5 million, and total 1983 outlays are estimated to be $79.8.

The costs of this bill fall within budget subfunction 376.

6. Basis of estimate: The authorization levels for PTO for 1982 and 1983 are those specified in the bill. The estimate authorization levels for 1984 and 1985 assume a level of funding sufficient to maintain a program level of $167 million and $176 million, respectively, including offsetting collections. In addition, authorization for increases in pay and other benefits of approximately $6.8 million, $7.4 million, and $7.8 million for fiscal years 1983 through 1985, respectively, were estimated based on CBO's current inflators. Outlays are based on historical spending patterns.

The estimated collections to PTO as a result of fees charged to cover the costs of processing trademarks and patents were provided by the agency, and assume the fee structure outlined in the bill. The estimated collections, under current law and under H.R. 6260, are shown in the table below.

[By fiscal years, in millions of dollars]

	1982	1983	1984	1985	1986
Estimated offsetting collections:
Current law	....	47.8	52.7	57.7	....
Added by H.R. 6260	....	31.2	35.3	39.3	....
Total-H.R. 6260	....	79.0	88.0	97.0	....

7. Estimate comparison: None.

8. Previous CBO estimate: None.

9. Estimate prepared by: Mary B. Maginniss.

10. Estimate approved by: C. G. Nuckols (James L. Blum, Assistant Director for Budget Analysis).

COMMITTEE VOTE

The Committee on the Judiciary ordered H.R. 6260 as amended reported by a voice vote, without objection being heard, with a quorum of Members being present.

Unless payment of the applicable maintenance fee is received in the Patent and Trademark Office on or before the date the fee is due or within a grace period of six months thereafter, the patent will expire as the end of such grace period. [(d) By the first day of the first fiscal year beginning on or after one calendar year after enactment, fees for all other services or materials related to patents will recover the estimated average cost to the Office of performing the service or furnishing the material. For the purpose of computing fees, a multiple dependent claim as referred to in section 112 of this title or any claim depending therefrom shall be considered as separate dependent claims in accordance with the number of claims to which reference is made. Errors in payment of the additional fees may be rectified in accordance with regulations of the Commissioner.

The Commissioner may require the payment of a surcharge as a condition of accepting payment of any maintenance fee after the six-month grace period. If the Commissioner accepts payment of a maintenance fee after the six-month grace period, the patent shall be considered as not having expired at the end of the grace period.

(2) No patent, the term of which has been maintained as a result of the acceptance of a payment of a maintenance fee under this subsection, shall abridge or affect the right of any person or his successors in business who made, purchased or used after the six-month grace period but prior to the acceptance of a maintenance fee under this subsection anything protected by the patent, to continue the use of, or to sell to others to be used or sold, the specific thing so made, purchased, or used. The court before which such matter is in question may provide for the continued manufacture, use or sale of the thing made, purchased, or used as specified, or for the manufacture, use or sale of which substantial preparation was made after the six-month grace period but before the acceptance of a maintenance fee under this subsection, and it may also provide for the continued practice of any process, practiced, or for the practice of which substantial preparation was made, after the six-month grace period but prior to the acceptance of a maintenance fee under this subsection, to the extent and under such terms as the court deems equitable for the protection of investments made or business commenced after the six-month grace period but before the acceptance of a maintenance fee under the subsection.

(d) The Commissioner will establish fees for all other processing, services, or materials related to patents not specified above to recover the estimated average cost to the Office of such processing, services, or materials. (3) The Commissioner may waive the payment of any fee for any service or material related to patents in connection with an occasional or incidental request made by a department or agency of the Government, or any officer thereof. [(f) Fees will be adjusted by the Commissioner to achieve the levels of recovery specified in this section; however, no patent application processing fee or fee for maintaining a patent in force will be adjusted more than once every three times.

(f) The fees established in subsection (a) and (b) of this section may be adjusted by the Commissioner on Oct. 1, 1985, and every third year thereafter, to reflect any fluctuations occurring during the previous three years in the Consumer Price Index, as determined by the Secretary of Labor. Changes of less than 1 per centum may be ignored.

(g) No fee established by the Commissioner under this section will take effect prior to sixty days following notice in the Federal Register.

CHAPTER 11-APPLICATION FOR PATENT

[Application for patent shall be made by the inventor, except as otherwise provided in this title, in writing to the Commissioner. Such application shall include: (1) a specification as prescribed by section 112 of this title; (2) a drawing as prescribed by section 113 of this title; and (3) an oath by the applicant as prescribed by section 115 of this title. The application must be signed by the applicant and accompanied by the fee required by law.]

SEC. 111. Application for patent shall be made, or authorized to be made, by the inventor, except as otherwise provided in this title, in writing to the Commissioner. Such application shall include (1) a specification as prescribed by section 112 of this title; (2) a drawing as prescribed by section 113 of this title; and (3) an oath by the applicant as prescribed by section 115 of this title. The application must be accompanied by the fee required by law. The fee and oath may be submitted after the specification and any required drawing are submitted, within such period and under such conditions, including the payment of a surcharge, as may be prescribed by the Commissioner. Upon failure to submit the fee and oath within such prescribed period, the application shall be regarded as abandoned, unless it is shown to the satisfaction of the Commissioner that the delay in submitting the fee and oath was unavoidable. The filing date of an application shall be the date on which the specification and any required drawing are received in the Patent and Trademark Office.

§ 115. Oath of applicant

The applicant shall make oath that he believes himself to be the original and first inventor of the process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or improvement thereof, for which he solicits a patent; and shall state of what country he is a citizen. Such oath may be made before any person within the United States authorized by law to administer oaths, or when, made in a foreign country, before any diplomatic or consular office of the United States authorized to administer oaths, or before any officer having an official seal and authorized to administer oaths in the foreign country in which the applicant may be, whose authority [shall be] is proved by certificate of a diplomatic or consular officer of the United States, or apostille of an official designated by a foreign country which, by treaty or convention, accords like effect to apostilles of designated officials in the United States and such oath shall be valid if it complies with the laws of the state or country where made. When the application is made as provided in this title by a person other than the inventor, the oath may be so varied in form that it can be made by him.

When an invention is made by two or more persons jointly, they shall apply for patent jointly and each sign the application and make the required oath, except as otherwise provided in this title.

If a joint inventor refuses to join in an application for patent or cannot be found or reached after diligent effort, the application may be made by the other inventor on behalf of himself and the omitted inventor. The Commissioner, on proof of the pertinent facts and after such notice to the omitted inventor as he prescribes, may grant a patent to the inventor making the application, subject to the same rights which the omitted inventor would have had if he had been joined. The omitted inventor may subsequently join in the application.

Whenever [a person is joined in an application for patent as joint inventor through error, or a joint inventor is not included in an application through error] through error a person is named in an application for patent as the inventor, or through error an inventor is not named in an application, and such error arose without any deceptive intention on his part, the Commissioner may permit the application to be amended accordingly, under such terms as he prescribes.

CHAPTER 25-AMENDMENT AND CORRECTION OF PATENTS

[Whenever a patent is issued and it appears that a person was a joint inventor, but was omitted by error and without deceptive intention on his part, the Commissioner may, on application of all the parties and assignees, with proof of the facts and such other requirements as may be imposed, issue a certificate adding his name to the patent as a joint inventor.

[The misjoinder or nonjoinder of joint inventors shall not invalidate a patent, if such error can be corrected as provided in this section. The court before which such matter is called in question may order correction of the patent on notice and hearing of all parties concerned and the Commissioner shall issue a certificate accordingly.]

Whenever through error a person is named in an issued patent as the inventor, or through error an inventor is not named in an issued patent and such error arose without any deceptive intention on his part, the Commissioner may, on application of all the parties and assignees, with proof of the facts and such other requirements as may be imposed, issue a certificate correcting such error. The error of omitting inventors or naming persons who are not inventors shall not invalidate the patent in which such error occurred if it can be corrected as provided in this section. The court before which such matter is called in question may order correction of the patent on notice and hearing of all parties concerned and the Commissioner shall issue a certificate accordingly.

A [verified] petition to cancel a registration of a mark, stating the grounds relied upon, may, upon payment of the prescribed fee, be filed by any person who believes that he is or will be damaged by the registration of a mark on the principal register established by this Act, or under the Act of Mar. 3, 1881, or the Act of Feb. 20, 1905—

(a) within five years from the date of the registration of the mark under this Act; or

(b) within five years from the date of publication under section 12(c) hereof of a mark registered under the Act of Mar. 3, 1881, or the Act of Feb. 20, 1905; or

(c) at any time if the registered mark becomes the common descriptive name of an article or substance, or has been abandoned, or its registration was obtained fraudulently or contrary to the provisions of section 4 or of subsections (a), (b), or (c) of section 2 of this Act for a registration hereunder, or contrary to similar prohibitory provisions of said prior Acts for a registration thereunder, or if the registered mark is being used by, or with the permission of, the registrant so as to misrepresent the source of the goods or services in connection with which the mark is used; or

(d) at any time if the mark is registered under the Act of Mar. 3, 1881, or the Act of Feb. 20, 1905, and has not been published under the provisions of subsection (c) of section 12 of this Act; or

(e) at any time in the case of a certification mark on the ground that the registrant (1) does not control, or is not able legitimately to exercise control over, the use of such mark, or (2) engages in the production or marketing of any goods or services to which the certification mark is applied, or (3) permits the use of the certification mark for purposes other than to certify, or (4) discriminately refuses to certify or to continue to certify the goods or services of any person who maintains the standards or conditions which such mark certifies:

Provided, That the Federal Trade Commission may apply to cancel on the grounds specified in subsections (c) and (e) of this section any mark registered on the principal register established by this Act, and the prescribed fee shall not be required.

Sec. 15. Incontestability under certain conditions of right to use mark.

Except on a ground for which application to cancel may be filed at any time under subsections (c) and (e) of section 14 of this Act, and except to the extent, if any, to which the use of a mark registered on the principal register infringes a valid right acquired under the law of any State or Territory by use of a mark or trade name continuing from a date prior to the date of [the publication] registration under this Act of such registered mark, the right of the registrant to use such registered mark in commerce for the goods or services on or in conncection with which such registered mark has been in continuous use for 5 consecutive years subsequent to the date of such registration and is still in use in commerce, shall be incontestable: Provided, That—

(1) there has been no final decision adverse to registrant's claim of ownership of such mark for such goods or services, or to registrant's right to register the same or to keep the same on the register; and

(2) there is no proceeding involving said rights pending in the Patent Office or in a court and not finally disposed of; and

(3) an affidavit is filed with the Commissioner within 1 year after the expiration of any such 5-year period setting forth those goods or services stated in the registration on or in connection with which such mark has been in continuous use for such 5 consecutive years and is still in use in commerce, and the other matters specified in subsections (1) and (2) hereof; and

(4) no incontestable right shall be acquired in a mark which is the common descriptive name of any article or substance, patented or otherwise.

Subject to the conditions above specified in this section, the incontestable right with reference to a mark registered under this Act shall apply to a mark registered under the Act of Mar. 3, 1881, or the Act of Feb. 20, 1905, upon the filing of the required affidavit with the Commissioner within 1 year after the expiration of any period of 5 consecutive years after the date of publication of a mark under the provisions of subsection (c) of section 12 of this Act.

The Commissioner shall notify any registrant who files the above-prescribed affidavit of the filing thereof.

Sec. 16. Interference.

[Whenever application is made for the registration of a mark which so resembles a mark previously registered by another, or for the registration of which another has previously made application, as to be likely when applied to the goods or when used in connection with the services of the applicant to cause confusion or mistake or to deceive, the Commissioner may declare that an interference exists.] Upon petition showing extraordinary circumstances, the Commissioner may declare that an interference exists when application is made for the registration of a mark which so resembles a mark previously registered by another, or for the registration of which another has previously made application, as to be likely when applied to the goods or when used in connection with the services of the applicant to cause confusion or mistake or to decieve. No interference shall be declared between an application and the registration of a mark the right to the use of which has become incontestable.

§ 31. Fees

Patent and Trademark Office

Appropriation Authorization

(a) The Commissioner of Patents will establish fees for the filing and processing of an application for the registration of a trademark or other mark and for all other services performed by and materials furnished by the Patent and Trademark Office related to trademarks and other marks. [Fees will be set and adjusted by the Commissioner to recover in aggregate 50 per centum of the estimated average cost to the Office of such processing. Fees for all other services or materials related to trademarks and other marks will recover the estimated average cost to the Office of performing the service or furnishing the material.] However, no fee for the filing or processing of an application for the registration of a trademark or other mark or for the renewal or assignment of a trademark or other mark will be adjusted more than once every three years. No fee established under this section will take effect prior to sixty days following notice in the Federal Register.

(b) The Commissioner may waive the payment of any fee for any service or material related to trademarks or other marks in connection with an occasional request made by a department or agency of the Government, or any officer thereof. The Indian Arts and Crafts Board will not be charged any fee to register Government trademarks of genuineness and quality for Indian products or for products of particular Indian tribes and groups.

(42) Request for Refunds

In order to expedite the processing of refunds for payment of fees by actual mistake or in excess of the designated fees, attorneys and applicants requesting refunds should direct their correspondence to the attention of the "Refund Section, Accounting Division, Office of Finance." This procedure should be followed whether the request is for a refund check or for a credit to the deposit account. The problems of misrouting the request for a refund in the Patent and Trademark Office would be alleviated and the payment of refunds accelerated.

Assistant Commissioner for Finance & Planning.

(43) Deposit Account Authorizations

The rules of practice were amended effective Oct. 1, 1982, at 37 CFR 1.25(b) to state that: "A general authorization to charge all fees, or only certain fees, set forth in §§ 1.16 to 1.18 to a deposit account may be filed in an individual application, either for the entire pendency of the application or with respect to a particular paper filed." A general authorization would not apply to document supply fees under § 1.19, such as those required for certified copies; to post-issuance fees under § 1.20 such as those required for maintenance fees; or to miscellaneous fees and charges under § 1.21, such as assignment recording fees.

Many applications filed prior to Oct. 1, 1982, contain broad language authorizing any additional fees which might have been due to be charged to a deposit account. The Patent and Trademark Office does not interpret such broad authorizations, filed in an application on or after Oct. 1, 1982, will be interpreted as authorization to charge the issue fee; as well as any other fee set forth in §§ 1.16, 1.17 or 1.18. Fees under sections 1.19, 1.20 and 1.21 will not be charged as a result of a general authorization under section 1.25.

It is recommended that authorizations to charge fees to deposit accounts include reference to the particular fees or fee sections of the rules which applicant intends to authorize. For example, if filing and processing fees under §§ 1.16 and 1.17 only are intended to be included in the authorization, and not the issue fee under § 1.18, the authorization could read: "The Commissioner is hereby authorized to charge any fees under 37 CFR 1.16 and 1.17 which may be required during the entire pendency of the application to Deposit Account No. ." Such an authorization would clearly exclude issue fees under 37 CFR 1.18 while including all the filing and processing fees listed in 37 CFR 1.16 and 1.17. Similarly, if it were intended to authorize the charging of fees relating only to a specific paper, the authorization could read "The Commissioner is hereby authorized to charge any fees under 37 CFR 1.16 and 1.17 which may be required by this paper to Deposit Account No. ." Such authorizations would cover situations in which a check to cover a filing and processing fee under 37 CFR 1.16 and 1.17 was omitted or was for an amount less than the amount required.

It is extremely important that the authorization be clear and unambiguous. If applicants file authorizations which are ambiguous and which deviate from the usual forms of authorizations, the Office may not interpret the authorizations in the manner applicants intend. In such cases applicants could be subject to further expenses, petitions, etc. in order to correct fees which were not charged as intended due to an ambiguous authorization.

(44) Deposit Account Authorization to Charge Issue Fee

This notice supplements the Official Gazette notice, dated July 1, 1983, published at 1032 O.G. 33 on July 26, 1983.

The rules of practice were amended effective Oct. 1, 1982, at 37 CFR 1.25(b) to state that: "A general authorization to charge all fees, or only certain fees, set forth in 37 CFR 1.16 to 1.18 to a deposit account may be filed in an individual application, either for the entire pendency of the application or with respect to a particular paper filed."

The Patent and Trademark Office will treat broad language to "charge any additional fees which may be required at any time during the prosecution of the application" as authorization to charge the issue fee on applications filed on or after Oct. 1, 1982.

(45) Unpaid Fee Checks

Beginning Dec. 1, 1987, the Office will change the procedure for handling fee checks of attorneys and agents that are returned to the Office unpaid. Presently, when a check submitted as payment for an application, a processing, an issue or any other fee is returned to the Office unpaid, the Office of Finance sends a letter to the attorney or agent who represents the applicant, or to the applicant if unrepresented by an attorney or agent, enclosing the check and calling attention to the fact that the check was returned unpaid. Beginning Dec. 1, 1987, the Office of Finance will send a copy of its letter to the applicant if the letter is addressed to an attorney or agent. The prohibition of 37 CFR §§ 1.33 and 2.18 against double correspondence is waived in view of the submission of a check that is returned unpaid to the Office.

A registered patent attorney or agent who repeatedly submits checks that are returned unpaid through no fault of the bank may expect to have the matter referred to the Office of Enrollment and Discipline.

(46) Posting of Filing Fee Codes

We are making a minor change in the recording of fees so that we can speed up the processing of mail.

First, a brief explanation of the problem. Incoming mail to the PTO has soared. The number of envelopes received in the Mail Room in the first four months of this fiscal year is almost 30% higher than for the same period last year. This sudden increase has taxed existing resources and a backlog has developed. It takes a new employee over one year to become proficient in recognizing the hundreds of different types of documents entering the Office, the appropriate fee codes to apply, and the appropriate destination.

One of the most time-consuming functions of the Mail Room initial review clerks is the determination of how many independent and dependent claims there are in a patent application so that the appropriate amounts can be coded for the basic application fee, the extra independent claim fee, the extra total claim fee, and the multiple dependent claim fee. This can involve a substantial amount of time in complicated cases, particularly when there are preliminary amendments. With over 30,000 individual documents patent applications and all other mail to be processed and routed each day, such time-consuming delays have a severe adverse impact in moving all the work.

So, effective immediately, we are making a change which will move the mail more quickly. Rather than go through the time-consuming computation in the Mail Room to determine the amount to charge to each specific claim fee code, the total amount received will be recorded in one filing code. The detailed calculations will continue to be done later in the process where, in conjunction with the formality review of the application, the analysis takes place as to whether or not the fee submitted was correct. The individual charges remain the same and the information on claims contained in the application will continue to be reported on the application filing receipt without change. Here's what would be seen on deposit account charges and checks:

101-Includes amount for basic filing fee, extra independent claims, extra total claims, and multiple dependent claims, previously recorded as 101, 102, 103, and 104, respectively.
201-Includes same items as above for small entity applications, previously recorded as 201, 202, 203, and 204.
108-Includes same items as above for reissue applications, previously recorded as 108, 109, and 110.
208-Includes same items as above for small entity reissue applications, previously recorded as 208, 209, and 210.

This revised procedure allows us to be more efficient.

(47) Use of Metric System of Measurements in Patent Applications

The ability of the United States to compete in world trade and improve our trade balance is becoming more important and more difficult each day as our competitors get stronger. Presently, the United States is the only industrial country which has not adopted the metric system of weights and measures. The lack of U.S. goods being produced and packaged under metric standards results in our country being at a competitive disadvantage in world markets.

To improve our competitiveness, in the 1988 trade bill, Congress established metric as the Nation's "preferred system of units for United States trade and commerce," and set a 1992 date for Federal agencies to complete their transition to metric uses in "procurement, grants and other business related activities".

To implement the congressional designation of the metric system of measurement for U.S. trade and commerce, the President on July 25, 1991, issued an Executive Order (Metric Usage in Federal Government Programs) for the Federal Government to lead the way in metric usage. The Department of Commerce has been designated as the lead agency responsible for coordinating usage by the Federal Government.

The Patent and Trademark Office (PTO) does not currently require weights and measures in patent applications to be stated in the metric system. However, in Section 608.01 of the Manual of Patent Examining Procedure, all patent applicants are strongly encouraged to use either (1) only metric units or (2) inch-pound units together with their metric equivalents, when describing their inventions in the specifications of patent applications.

In the spirit of the Executive Order, the PTO reiterates and emphasizes strong encouragement for patent applicants to use the metric system of weights and measurements in patent applications. At some future time when there has been a sufficient conversion to metric usage by U.S. research and development industries, the PTO will consider making it a requirement that patent applicants use metric units in patent applications.

Changes in Signature and Filing Requirements for Correspondence Filed in the Patent and Trademark Office

Agency: Patent and Trademark Office, Commerce.
Action: Final Rule.
Summary: The Patent and Trademark Office (Office) is amending the rules of practice in patent and trademark cases to: specify the types of correspondence which will no longer require original signatures; provide for facsimile transmission of certain correspondence to the Office; discontinue use of the drop boxes at Crystal Plaza Building 3 and at the Department of Commerce Building in Washington, D.C.; and clarify other provisions with respect to practice before the Office.
Effective Date: November 22, 1993. These rules will be applicable to all correspondence filed with the Office on or after the effective date.
For Further Information Contact: Abraham Hershkovitz by telephone at (703) 305-9282, by facsimile transmission at (703) 305-8825, or by mail marked to his attention and addressed to Office of the Assistant Commissioner for Patents, Box DAC. Washington, D.C. 20231.
Supplementary Information: In a Notice of Proposed Rulemaking published in the Federal Register at 57 FR 36034

(August 12, 1992) and in the Patent and Trademark Office Official Gazette at 1142 Off. Gaz. Pat. Office 8-13 (September 1, 1992), the Office proposed to amend the rules of practice in patent and trademark cases to simplify the manner in which correspondence may be transmitted to the Office and clarify other provisions with respect to practice before the Office. This rulemaking includes changes to expand those situations where a party can use the Certificate of Mailing or Transmission procedure, and minor technical modifications in Part 2 of Title 37 of the Code of Federal Regulations which were not part of the proposed rulemaking. This rule making also expands the acceptability of facsimile transmissions to certain trademark documents which were not part of the proposed rulemaking.

Written comments were submitted by twenty-two law firms, five individuals, nine corporations, two organizations and three agencies. An oral hearing was not conducted.

The following includes a discussion of the rules being changed and the reasons for those changes, and an analysis of the comments received in response to the notice of proposed rule-making.

Discussion of Specific Sections to be Changed or Added:

(1) Types of Correspondence No longer Requiring Original Signatures (Section 1.4)

Section 1.4 is amended to include a new paragraph (d) to specify that most correspondence filed in the Office, which requires a person's signature, may be an original, or a copy thereof. See §§ 1.4 (e) and (f) for types of correspondence where the original must be filed in the Office. The word original, as used in this rulemaking, is defined as correspondence which is personally signed in permanent ink by the person whose signature appears thereon. Where copies of correspondence are acceptable, photocopies or facsimile transmissions may be filed. For example, a photocopy or facsimile transmission of an original of an amendment, declaration, petition, issue fee transmittal form, authorization to charge a deposit account, etc., may be submitted in a patent or trademark application. Furthermore, where copies are permitted, second and further generation copies (i.e., copy of a copy) are acceptable. The original, if not submitted to the Office, should be retained as evidence of proper execution in the event that questions arise as to the authenticity of the signature reproduced on the photocopy or facsimile-transmitted correspondence. If a question of authenticity arises, the Office may require submission of the original.

Section 1.4(e) identifies types of correspondence in which an original must be submitted to the Office. Where an original is required, copies are not acceptable and will not be accorded a receipt date. Correspondence, as referred to in this section, includes application forms for registration to practice before the Office and data sheets for the register of patent attorneys and agents.

Section 1.4(f) provides that when a document that is required by statute to be certified must be filed (such as a certified copy of a foreign patent application, pursuant to 35 U.S.C. 119; a certified copy of an international application, pursuant to 35 U.S.C. 365; a certified copy of a foreign trademark registration, pursuant to 15 U.S.C. 1126(e); a certified copy of a final court order, pursuant to 15 U.S.C. 1119; or a certified copy of a U.S. trademark registration), a copy of the certification, including a photocopy or facsimile transmission, will not be acceptable. The requirement for an original certification does not apply to certifications such as required under §§ 1.8, 1.10, 1.60, 1.97(e) and 3.73(b), since these certifications are not required by statute.

(2) Identification of Applications (Section 1.5) Section 1.5(a) is amended to make reference to the certificate procedure under § 1.8 consistent with the new title for § 1.8.

(3) Receipt of Correspondence (Section 1.6)

A descriptive heading is added to each paragraph of § 1.6 to identify the content of that paragraph.

The phrase "correspondence" is used in § 1.6 since the terms "papers", "letters" and "fees" all fall within the generic definition of "correspondence".

Section 1.6(a) is amended to clarify that correspondence transmitted by facsimile on weekends or Federal holidays within the District of Columbia, will be accorded the next business day as the date of receipt.

Sections 1.6(b) and (c) are amended to clarify that weekdays refer to any day except a Saturday, Sunday, or Federal holiday within the District of Columbia.

Section 1.6(c) is amended to delete reference to the box locations in the lobby of Crystal Plaza Building 3, Arlington, Virginia, and at the Department of Commerce Building in Washington, D.C. The use of the drop boxes was discontinued on April 21, 1992, and the hours of operation for the attorney's window were extended to midnight, the same hours the drop boxes were available. The public can now deposit correspondence with the Office and obtain an acknowledgment of receipt after normal business hours. See "Changes in How Papers May Be Filed in the Patent and Trademark Office", 1137 Off. Gaz. Pat. Office 7 (April 7, 1992).

Use of the drop boxes at Crystal Plaza Building 3 and Department of Commerce Building locations had caused problems for both the public and the Office. Occasionally, it had been difficult to determine the dates of actual deposit of correspondence in the boxes. On occasion, Office employees and/or members of the public had been denied access to the drop box at the Department of Commerce by building security guards due to a special event taking place at the Department. Additionally, there were instances of correspondence being found outside of the drop boxes (e.g., on the floor of the main lobby of the Department of Commerce Building, on the guard's desk, on a nearby table, etc.). As a result, on occasion, the Office lacked confidence in assigning correct dates of receipt to correspondence deposited in the boxes at Crystal Plaza Building 3 and at the Department of Commerce Building. Given these difficulties, and the fact that the necessity for these boxes has been greatly diminished as a result of the facsimile transmission and certificate of mailing procedures,1.6(c) is amended by deleting reference to the drop boxes at Crystal Plaza Building 3 and the Department of Commerce Building.

A new section 1.6(d) is added to specify the types of correspondence which may be transmitted by facsimile and former § 1.6(d) is revised to be consistent with § 1.8(b) and redesignated as § 1.6(e). The widespread use of facsimile transmission and the resulting time saved in correspondence between applicants and the Office prompted the Office to establish a trial program to accept facsimile transmission of certain correspondence. The policy on "Filing of Certain Papers and Authorizations to Charge Deposit Accounts by Facsimile Transmission" was published at 1096 Off. Gaz. Pat. Office 30 (November 15, 1988) and was supplemented in the notice "Filing of Certain Papers with the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences by Facsimile Transmission" published at 1108 Off. Gaz. Pat. Office 15 (November 14, 1989). The policy on "Filing of Certain Trademark Papers and Authorizations to Charge Deposit Accounts by Facsimile Transmission" was published at 1123 Off. Gaz. TM. Office 18 (February 12, 1991). In light of the success of the trial program, a policy on acceptance of facsimile transmission is incorporated into § 1.6(d). The situations where transmission of correspondence by facsimile is permitted have been increased over those permissible under the trial program outlined above. The situations where transmissions by facsimile remain prohibited are identified in 1.6(d)(1)-(9). Prohibitions cover situations where originals are required as specified in §§ 1.4 (e) and (f), and situations where accepting a facsimile transmission would be unduly burdensome on the Office. As a courtesy, the Office will attempt to notify senders whenever correspondence is sent to the Office by facsimile transmission that falls within one of these prohibitions. Senders are cautioned against submitting correspondence by facsimile transmission which is not permitted under § 1.6(d) since such correspondence will not be accorded a receipt date.

This final rulemaking expands the acceptability of facsimile transmission to certain patent interference proceedings, not included in the proposed rulemaking, to reflect the practice set forth at 1108 Off. Gaz. Pat. Office 15 (November 14, 1989).

This final rulemaking also expands the acceptability of facsimile transmission to certain trademark documents, not include in the proposed rulemaking. These addditional documents are:

(1) An affidavit showing that a mark is still in use or containing an excuse for nonuse under section 8(a) or (b) or section 12(c) of the Trademark Act, 15 U.S.C. 1058(a), 1058(b), 1062(c);

(2) An application for renewal of a registration under section 9 of the Trademark Act, 15 U.S.C. 1059;

(3) In an application under section 1(b) of the Trademark Act, 15 U.S.C. 1051(b), the filing of an amendment to allege use in commerce under section 1(c) of the Trademark Act, 15 U.S.C. 1051(c); or the filing of a statement of use under section 1(d)(1) of the Trademark Act, 15 U.S.C. 1051(d)(1).

The Certificate of Mailing or Transmission provisions of § 1.8 do not apply to correspondence listed in (1)-(3) above, nor to the filing of correspondence in an international application before the U.S. Receiving Office, the U.S. International Searching Authority, or the U.S. International Preliminary Examining Authority or to the filing, in an application under section 1(b) of the Trademark Act, 15 U.S.C. 1051(b), of a request under section 1(d)(2) of the Trademark act, 15 U.S.C. 1051 (d)(2), for an extension of time to file a statement of use under section 1(d)(1) of the Trademark Act, 15 U.S.C. 1051 (d)(1). See §§ 1.8 (a)(2)(i)(E) and 1.8 (a)(2)(ii)(B), (C), (E) and (F). If the transmission of any of these documents is completed after midnight (Eastern time) of the due date, the papers are untimely.

Under § 1.6(d)(4) as adopted in this final rulemaking, drawings submitted under §§ 1.81, 1.83-1.85, 1.152, 1.165, 1.174, 1.437, or 2.21 may not be filed by facsimile in patent and trademark applications. The experience of the Office is that the quality of the drawings received by facsimile transmission is generally not sufficient to comply with the drawing requirements set forth in these rules. However, applicants may submit by facsimile transmission proposed drawing corrections for approval by the Office.

In trademark proceedings, the facsimile transmission of specimens in response to an Office action will be permitted. Facsimile-transmitted specimens must be legible in order to be accepted and examined as specimens. This final rulemaking also expands the acceptability of specimens filed in conjunction with amendments to allege use under section 1(c); statements of use under section 1(d); affidavits of use or excusable nonuse under section 8 (a) or (b) or 12(c); and applications for renewal under section 9 of the Trademark Act. 15 U.S.C. 1051 (c) and (d); 1058 (a) and (b); 1062(c) and 1059.

The date of receipt accorded to any correspondence permitted to be sent by facsimile transmission is the date the complete transmission is received by an Office facsimile unit, unless the transmission is completed on a Saturday, Sunday, or Federal holiday within the District of Columbia. Correspondence for which transmission was completed on a Saturday, Sunday, or Federal holiday within the District of Columbia, will be accorded a receipt date of the next succeeding day which is not a Saturday, Sunday, or Federal holiday within the District of Columbia. For example, a facsimile transmission to the Office from California starting on a Friday at 8:45 p.m. Pacific time and taking 20 minutes, would be completed at 9:05 p.m. Pacific time. The complete transmission would be received in the Office around 12:05 a.m. Eastern time on Saturday. The receipt date accorded to the correspondence is the date of the following business day, which in this case, would be Monday (assuming that Monday was not a Federal holiday within the District of Columbia).

The following lists itemize types of correspondence which may not be filed by facsimile transmission, and, if submitted by facsimile, will not be accorded a date of receipt:

Correspondence Relative to Patents and Patent Applications Where Filing by Facsimile Transmission is Not permitted

(1) A document that is required by statute to be certified;
(2) A national patent application specification and drawing or other correspondence for the purpose of obtaining an application filing date;
(3) Drawings submitted under §§ 1.81, 1.83-1.85, 1.152, 1.165, 1.174, or 1.437;
(4) Correspondence in an interference which an examiner-in-chief orders to be filed by hand or "Express Mail";
(5) Agreements between parties to an interference under 35 U.S.C. 135(c);
(6) Correspondence to be filed in an interference proceeding which consists of a preliminary statement under § 1.621; a transcript of a deposition under § 1.676 or of interrogatories, cross-interrogatories, or recorded answers under 1.684(c); or an evidentiary record and exhibits under § 1.653;
(7) Correspondence to be filed in a patent application subject to a secrecy order under §§ 5.1-5.8 of this chapter and directly related to the secrecy order content of the application;
(8) An international application for patent;
(9) A copy of the international application and the basic national fee necessary to enter the national stage, as specified in § 1.494(b) or § 1.495(b);
(10) A request for reexamination under § 1.510.

Correspondence Relative to Trademark Registrations and Trademark Applications Where Filing by Facsimile Transmission is Not Permitted

(1) The filing of a trademark application;
(2) Drawings submitted under § 2.21;
(3) A petition to cancel a registration of a mark under section 14, subsection (1) or (2) of the Trademark Act, 15 U.S.C. 1064;
(4) Request for cancellation or amendment of a registration under section 7(e) of the Trademark Act, 15 U.S.C. 1057(e); and certificates of registration surrendered for cancellation or amendment under section 7(e) of the Trademark Act, 15 U.S.C. 1057(e);
(5) Correspondence to be filed with the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board, except the notice of ex parte appeal.

Correspondence Relative to Practitioner Registrations, Investigations, and Disciplinary Proceedings Where Filing by Facsimile Transmission is Not Permitted

Correspondence requiring a person's signature and relating to:
(1) Registration to practice before the Patent and Trademark Office in patent cases;
(2) Enrollment and disciplinary investigations; or
(3) Disciplinary proceedings.
(4) Certificate of Mailing or Transmission Procedure (Section 1.8)

The title of § 1.8 is changed from Certificate of Mailing to Certificate of Mailing or Transmission so as to include facsimile transmission.

Section 1.8(a) prescribes procedures for the use of a certificate of mailing or transmission to file papers or fees in the Office by first class mail or by facsimile transmission. The description of the Certificate of Mailing or Transmission practice is set forth in § 1.8(a)(1), and the list of exceptions to the certificate practice is found in § 1.8(a)(2). The phrase papers or fees"in § 1.8(a) is changed to correspondence" since both "papers and "fees" fall within the generic definition of correspondence. Paragraphs (a) and (b) of § 1.8 are amended to include correspondence transmitted by facsimile. In the event that correspondence is filed by facsimile transmission, it is recommended that the sending facsimile machine generate a report confirming transmission for each transmission session. This report should be retained by the applicant, along with the correspondence used as the original, as evidence of content and date of transmission. Paragraph (a)(2) of § 1.8 is amended to include separate headings for correspondence which relate to patents, trademarks and disciplinary proceedings. The sequence of some of the paragraphs found in 1.8(a)(2) has been changed in order to have those paragraphs listed under the appropriate heading. The ability to use the Certificate of Mailing or Transmission procedures has been expanded to the filing of an affidavit under section 15, subsection (3) of the Trademark Act, 15 U.S.C. 1065(3), the filing of a notice of election to proceed by civil action in an inter partes proceeding under 35 U.S.C. 141 or 15 U.S.C. 1071(a)(1), in response to another party's appeal to the Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit, the filing of a notice and reasons of appeal under 35 U. S.C. 142 or a notice of appeal under 15 U.S.C. 1071(a)(2), and the filing of a statement under 42 U.S.C. 2182 or 42 U.S.C. 2457(c).

Paragraph (a)(2)(vi) of § 1.8 is redesignated as paragraph (a)(2)(x) and amended to refer to section 14(1) or 14(2) of the Trademark Act, 15 U.S.C. 1064, to conform with the numbering of the Trademark Law Revision Act of 1988. Other sections of paragraph (a)(2) of § 1.8 are amended to identify the types of correspondence which will not receive the benefit of a certificate of mailing or transmission.

Paragraph (b) of § 1.8 outlines procedures to be followed to document the timely filing of correspondence in accordance with § 1.8(a) where such correspondence is not received by the Office. The phrase "correspondence or fees" in § 1.8(b) is changed to "correspondence" since "fees" fall within the generic definition of "correspondence". Before adoption of this final rule, 1.8(b) required that the party forwarding the correspondence or fee include a declaration, under §§ 1.68 or 2.20 of this chapter, attesting to the previous timely mailing or transmission. In order to be consistent with other sections in Parts 1 and 2 of this chapter, the practice under § 1.8(b) is amended to permit a practitioner, as defined in § 10.1(r), to submit a statement rather than an oath or declaration under §§ 1.68 or 2.20 of this chapter. New paragraph (c) of § 1.8 is added to explicitly provide for a requirement for additional evidence relating to the mailing or transmission of correspondence in accordance with paragraph (a) of this section. The Office may invoke this requirement when it is deemed appropriate to establish an actual date of mailing or transmission. See, e.g., In re Klein, 6 USPQ2d 1547 (Comm'r Pat. 1987), aff'd sub nom. Klein v. Peterson, 696 F. Supp. 695, 8 USPQ2d 1434 (D.D.C. 1988), aff'd 866 F.2d 412, 9 USPQ2d 1558 (Fed. Cir.), cert. denied, 490 U.S. 1091 (1989).

(5) Time for Appeal or Civil Action (Section 1.304)

In section 1.304, paragraphs (a) and (c) are amended to delete a statement that use of the certificate procedure under § 1.8 is prohibited so as to be consistent with changes to § 1.8. Also, a cross reference to 1.658 in paragraph (a) is clarified.

(6) Submission of Maintenance Fees (Section 1.366)

Section 1.366(b) is amended by deleting the words "of mailing" to conform with the new title for § 1.8.

(7) Filing Date of Application for Extension of Patent Term Section 1.741(a) Section 1.741(a) is amended to conform with the new title for the certificate procedure under § 1.8.

(8) Appeal to Court and Civil Action (Section 2.145)

Sections 2.145(c)(3) and 2.145(d)(1) are amended to conform with the revised list of types of correspondence excluded from the certificate of mailing or transmission procedure set out in § 1.8. Formerly, the notice of election to proceed by civil action in an inter partes proceeding under 35 U.S.C. 141 or section 21(a)(1) of the Trademark Act, 15 U.S.C. 1071(a)(1), and the filing of notice and reasons of appeal under 35 U.S.C. 142 or a notice of appeal under section 21(a)(2) of the Trademark Act, 15 U.S.C. 1071(a)(2), were specifically excluded, under §§ 1.8(a)(2) (viii) and (ix), respectively, from the certificate of mailing procedure. Since these notices are no longer excluded under amended § 1.8(a)(2), sections 2.145(c)(3) and 2.145(d)(1) are amended to conform with § 1.8 by deleting the last sentence which provided that the certificate of mailing procedure was not available.

(9) Reconsideration of Affidavit or Declaration (Section 2.165) Section 2.165(a)(1) is amended to refer to the new title for the certificate procedure under § 1.8 of this chapter.

(10) Signature and Certificate of Practitioner (Section 10.18) Section 10.18 is modified to clarify signature requirements for correspondence signed by practitioners. The reference to § 1.4 of this chapter will make it apparent that copies, including photocopies or facsimile transmissions, of correspondence signed by practitioners will be accepted under appropriate circumstances.

(11) Misconduct (Section 10.23(c))

Section 10.23(c) is amended to refer to the new title for the certificate procedure under § 1.8 of this chapter.

Response to Comments on the Rules

The comments received in response to the notice of proposed rulemaking have been given careful consideration and a number of the suggested modifications have been adopted. The comments and responses are discussed below.

Comment: In order to clarify how the Office will treat a copy of a paper, one comment suggested changing the second sentence in proposed § 1.4(d) to indicate that, except as provided in §§ 1.4 (e) and (f), a copy would be treated by the Office as if the original had been filed.

Response: While the suggested language was not adopted, the rule was modified to clarify that, except as provided in §§ 1.4 (e) and (f), an original or a copy thereof may be filed. The rules as stated in this final rulemaking are clear that, where an original is not required, a paper filed will be treated in the same way regardless of whether it is an original or a copy.

Comment: Five comments objected to a perceived requirement in § 1.4(d) that the color of ink used for signing a paper be different from the printing on the paper.

Response: Proposed § 1.4(d) did not require that the color of ink used for signing a paper be different from the printing on the paper. The suggested use of different colors of ink is a preferred procedure for distinguishing between an original and a copy. However, in order to avoid further confusion, the suggestion that a different color of ink be used has been deleted.

Comment: One comment recommended that the issue of signature authenticity end upon issuance of a patent in order to reduce the need to keep files in storage for long periods of time and to remove the burden on applicants of having to retrieve files from storage.

Response: Once a patent issues, the Office is not likely to inquire into any matters related to signature authenticity of correspondence filed in that patent application. Nevertheless, on rare occasions, a question of signature authenticity might arise after issuance of a patent. Applicants must therefore make their own decisions as to how long to retain originals.

Comment: Two comments questioned the justification for proposed § 1.4(e) requiring originals to be submitted in international patent applications.

Response: Section 1.4(e), as adopted, does not prohibit the filing of photocopies in an international patent application. With regard to facsimile transmissions, Patent Cooperation Treaty (PCT) Rule 92.4, as revised on July 1, 1992, permits the filing by facsimile of certain correspondence related to an international patent application. However, as indicated in §§ 1.6(d)(3), 1.8(a)(2)(iv) and 1.8(a)(2)(vi), the filing by facsimile is not permitted in the following situations relative to international applications for patent: (1) the filing of an international application for patent and (2) the filing of a copy of the international application and the basic national fee necessary to enter the national stage, as specified in §§ 1.494(b) or 1.495(b).

Applicants are cautioned, however, that the Certificate of Mailing or Transmission provisions of § 1.8 do not apply to correspondence filed in an international application before the U.S. Receiving Office, the U.S. International Searching Authority, or the U.S. International Preliminary Examining Authority, regardless of whether the correspondence was filed by mail or facsimile transmission. See § 1.8(a)(2)(5).

Comment: One comment suggested that, in applications filed under § 1.60, the certification that the application and papers being filed are true copies of those filed in the parent application should be excluded from the original signature requirement.

Response: Filing of copies of statements under § 1.60 as well as certifications under §§ 1.8, 1.10, 1.97(e) and 3.73(b) will be permitted. The certified documents referred to in § 1.4(f) are those which are required to be certified by statute (e.g., certified documents under 35 U.S.C. 119).

Comment: One comment questioned whether routine papers could be photocopied with a practitioner's signature thereon with appropriate information being filled in later by another person.

Response: Section 10.18(a) states that the signature of a practitioner, on correspondence filed, constitutes a certificate that the correspondence has been read by the practitioner. Accordingly, the photocopying of papers with a practitioner's signature thereon and subsequently having appropriate information filled in by another person, is not authorized or permitted under the rules.

Comment: One comment questioned whether a docket clerk could use a signature stamp of a registered attorney on a transmittal letter.

Response: Section 10.18(a) states that correspondence filed by a practitioner must be personally signed by that practitioner. Accordingly, use of a signature stamp of a registered attorney by a docket clerk would not be permitted.

Comment: Two comments suggested that the facsimile transmission practice be further liberalized to permit scanned-in signatures to be affixed to facsimile or electronically transmitted correspondence. The personal, handwritten signature would be affixed on a copy of the transmitted correspondence which would be kept by the applicant or his or her representative.

Response: The Office is actively considering acceptance of electronically filed applications and papers related thereto. See "Electronic Filing of Patent and Trademark Applications" published at 57 FR 56537 (November 30, 1992) and 1145 Off.

Gaz. Pat. Office 378 (December 22, 1992). Until an acceptable program is established, every paper, requiring a signature, filed in the Office, regardless of the manner in which it was transmitted, will have to be a paper which was signed by the person whose signature appears thereon, or be a copy thereof. Scanned signatures affixed to papers which were not personally signed will not be permitted at this time.

Comment: One comment indicated that proposed § 1.5(a) appeared to be contrary to PCT Article 27(1) in that it added the additional requirement not set forth in the PCT of requiring correspondence concerning an international application to identify the international application number.

Response: PCT Rule 92.1 requires any paper relating to an international application to identify the international application to which it relates. In order to ensure prompt and proper association of correspondence with the intended application file, it is essential to use the application number on all papers. The practice (which was not a new one added in this rulemaking) is a mere implementation of the requirement in PCT Rule 92.1 and is not contrary to PCT Article 27(1) as no additional requirement is being placed on applicants.

Comment: Two comments recommended an increase from two weeks to 30 days or one month in the period provided in § 1.5(a) for resubmission of correspondence.

Response: The two-week period provided in § 1.5(a) is to enable applicants to provide the necessary identifying data where such data was not provided during the original submission. This is intended to permit immediate resubmission and no additional time is deemed to be necessary. Extending this period to 30 days would unnecessarily delay prosecution of applications.

Comment: Section 1.5(a) suggests that all letters directed to the Office concerning applications for patents should also state "Patent Application". One comment suggested that § 1.5(a) be amended to replace the restrictive reference to a "Patent Application" to read "identifying the correspondence a relating to a patent application".

Response: In order to make it easier for Office employees handling incoming correspondence to direct mail, § 1.5(a) recommends that letters relating to a patent application should state "Patent Application". The suggestion in the comment was not adopted since uniformity in the reference to "Patent Application" is desirable. Furthermore, this suggested labeling is not a requirement as evidenced by the use of the word "should" rather than "must".

Comment: Section 1.5(a) states that "No correspondence relating to an application should be filed prior to when notification of the application number is received from the Patent and Trademark Office". One comment suggested that the phrase "notification of the application number" was not adequately defined as it was not clear if applicants had to wait for the official filing receipt before information disclosure statements or other papers could be filed.

Response: The phrase "notification of the application number" as used in 1.5(a) includes any manner in which an applicant becomes aware of the application number. The phrase is purposely broad and is not limited to the mailing of an official filing receipt. Rather, it includes a return post card which has an application number stamped thereon. The reasoning behind the statement in § 1.5(a) that no correspondence should be filed prior to notification of the application number is that correspondence received without an application number is difficult to match with the appropriate file. Further defining the phrase "notification of the application number" in 1.5(a) is not warranted.

Comment: One comment suggested defining a business day as Monday through Friday, except for Federal holidays in the District of Columbia.

Response: It is not clear which section the comment was directed to, but § 1.6 indicates that no correspondence will be received by the Office on Saturdays, Sundays or Federal holidays within the District of Columbia. Since the language has not created problems in the past, the suggestion will not be adopted.

Comment: Two comments suggested amending § 1.6(c) to indicate the hour of operation of the "walk-up window".

Response: Specifying in the regulations the hours of operation of the "walk-up window" is unnecessary. The hours of operation have been published in Official Gazette announcements and if those hours are changed in the future, the new schedule will published. Should the hours of operation of the "walk-up window" be changed due to unforeseen circumstances (i.e., snow emergency, etc.), a sign will be posted at the "walk-up window" giving an alternate location to deposit correspondence for the Office.

Comment: Two comments requested that the Office reconsider and withdraw the proposal to eliminate the mail drop box at the guard's desk at the Department of Commerce Building in Washington, D. C.

Response: As indicated in the notice of proposed rulemaking, members of the public were occasionally denied access to the drop box at the Department of Commerce. Additionally, the Office lacked confidence in assigning correct dates of receipt to correspondence deposited in the box as a result of instances when correspondence was found outside of the drop box. Further, since there are many ways to file papers with the Office (i.e., certificate of mailing or transmission, Express Mail, facsimile transmission, longer hours at the "walk-up-window"), there is no need to maintain an off-site drop box.

Comment: One comment suggested that the Office publish phone numbers for facsimile machines at various locations, (i.e., Publishing Division, various examining groups, etc.), in order to enable the public to direct their transmissions to a particular location, rather than a central location.

Response: The suggestion has been adopted. See "Patent and Trademark Office (PTO) Information Contacts", 1149 Off. Gaz. Pat. Office 67 (April 27, 1993). The Office will publish in the Official Gazette periodic updates of this list.

Comment: Three comments advocated a further expansion of the facsimile transmission practice to permit transmission of any paper which did not require an original signature. According to the comment, it was difficult to understand why the Office would not permit facsimile transmission of certain papers directly to the Office, but would accept those same papers if transmitted by facsimile to a third party who then hand-delivered the papers to the Office.

Response: The only papers, not requiring an original signature or certification, which the Office will not accept by facsimile transmission are those which, for various reasons, would cause an undue burden on the Office. For example, papers submitted for the purpose of obtaining an application filing date are often rather voluminous difficult to collate and would create inefficiencies in tying up the Office facsimile machines for long periods of time. In addition, there is a time and content criticality to papers filed for the purpose of obtaining a filing date which is not shared by other types of papers. Another example would be drawings submitted under §§ 1.81, 1.83-1.85, 1.152, 1.165, 1.174, 1.437, or 2.21. Experience has shown that the quality of drawings received by facsimile transmission would typically result in an objection by the Official Draftsman. Disputes might arise at that point as to whether the cause of the poor quality was applicant's transmitting unit or the receiving unit of the Office. Hence, the Office will continue to prohibit facsimile transmission of certain papers as specified in § 1.6(d). However, the suggestion has been adopted to the extent that the office will accept, via facsimile transmission, an affidavit showing that a mark is still in use or containing an excuse for nonuse under section 8(a) or (b) or section 12 (c) of the Trademark Act, 15 U.S.C. 1058(a), 1058(b), 1062(c); an application for renewal of a registration under section 9 of the Trademark Act, 15 U.S.C. 1059; and in an application under section 1(b) of the Trademark Act, 15 U.S.C. 1051(b), the filing of an amendment to allege use in commerce under section 1(c) of the Trademark Act, 15 U.S.C. 1051(c); or the filing of a statement of use under section 1(d)(1) of the Trademark Act, 15 U.S.C. 1051 (d)(1).

Comment: Section 1.6(d) states that the receipt date accorded to a paper transmitted by facsimile will be the date on which the complete transmission is received in the Office. Three comments objected to this language by arguing that this practice discriminated against West Coast practitioners and gave an advantage to East Coast practitioners because the West Coast practitioners had only until 9 P.M. to complete a transmission in order to receive the benefit of that day's filing.

Response: The facsimile transmission practice is similar to regular mail practice. Thus, a West Coast practitioner depositing correspondence with the local postal service without a certificate of mailing will receive as a receipt date the date on which the Office receives the correspondence, rather than the date on which the correspondence was deposited. Similarly, a paper transmitted by facsimile will be accorded, as the date of receipt, the date on which the complete transmission was received in the Office, unless the date of receipt is a Saturday, Sunday, or Federal holiday within the District of Columbia, in which case, the date of receipt will be the next business day.

The certificate practice provided in § 1.8, on the other hand, permits the sender to indicate on the correspondence the date of mailing or transmission from the sender's perspective, which date would then be effective to meet a deadline set for response. Use of the certificate of mail or transmission is applicable to correspondence submitted by mail and correspondence transmitted by facsimile. If transmitted by facsimile, the person signing the certificate certifies the expectation that the transmission would be initiated before midnight, local time.

By way of example, a West Coast practitioner preparing a response on the last day of the period for response would have to use the § 1.8 certificate of mailing procedure or the § 1.10 Express Mail procedure, for the response to be considered timely, if the correspondence was sent by way of the U. S. Postal Service. If the practitioner chose to send the correspondence by facsimile on the last day for response and the transmission was started before 9:00 p.m. Pacific time, but was completed after 9:00 p.m. Pacific time, the Office would accord that correspondence a receipt date as of the next business day, which would be after the period for response expired because the Office would have received the correspondence after midnight Eastern time of the last day for response. However, if the practitioner affixed a certificate of transmission to the correspondence sent by facsimile transmission, indicating that the correspondence was being transmitted on the last day in the period for response, then the correspondence would be considered timely filed.

As another example, a transmission started before midnight, Pacific time, on the last day for response and having a certificate of transmission affixed thereto, would be considered timely filed even though the transmission was completed after midnight Pacific time and was received in the Office the day after the deadline for response.

Comment: One comment suggested replacing "drawings" in § 1.6(d)(4) with "formal drawings" for clarity.

Response: The suggestion has not been adopted because the phrase "formal drawings" does not find support or antecedent basis in sections referred to in § 1.6(d)(4).

Comment: One comment objected to the perceived requirement for a certificate of transmission in order for a facsimile-transmitted document to be accorded a date of receipt.

Response: The receipt date accorded to correspondence eligible for facsimile transmission, whether containing a certificate of transmission or not, will be the date of receipt in the Office of the complete transmission (unless that date is a Saturday, Sunday, or Federal holiday within the District of Columbia, in which case the date accorded will be the next business day). The certificate of transmission, if used, is for purposes of establishing timely filing if the correspondence is transmitted within the period for response but is (1) received in the Office after expiration of the period for response, or (2) lost or (3) not received by the Office.

Comment: One comment requested clarification as to what constituted a "complete transmission" as used in § 1.6(d).

Response: The context in which the phrase "complete transmission" was used in 1.6(d) was to indicate that the transmission was finished. For example, if page 1 of a ten-page facsimile transmission is received in the Office at 11:55 p.m. on a Tuesday and page 10 ofthat transmission is received at 12:05 a.m. Wednesday, the receipt date accorded to that correspondence will be the date of that Wednesday. (This example assumes that Wednesday is not a Federal holiday within the District of Columbia).

Comment: One comment questioned whether a confirmation in the sender's facsimile machine that the entire facsimile was received constituted sufficient proof that a transmission was complete.

Response: A confirmation by the sender's facsimile machine is evidence that a transmission was made. As such, the confirmation will be considered together with any other evidence presented when questions of filing by facsimile transmission arise. It is therefore suggested that a certificate of transmission be used to enable the sender to rely on the procedures set forth in § 1.8(b).

Comment: One comment requested clarification as to what constituted an incomplete, faulty or illegible facsimile. Also, if an incomplete transmission was sent near the end of the period for response, will the sender be able to rely on the date the facsimile was initially transmitted, or would the sender have to rely on § 1.137 to revive the application if it became abandoned?

Response: If an incomplete, faulty or illegible facsimile transmission is received, that correspondence will be treated by the Office in the same manner that a comparably incomplete, faulty or illegible piece of correspondence would be treated if the correspondence were hand-delivered or mailed to the Office. Whether the application would be held abandoned upon receipt of an incomplete facsimile transmission or whether an opportunity would be provided to complete the transmission will be decided on a case-by-case basis using the same standards that are currently used - for example, for incomplete responses to Office actions, see § 1.135(c).

Comment: One comment indicated that the proposed practice of not accepting papers related to international applications if transmitted by facsimile and the indication that papers transmitted by facsimile, when prohibited, may be disposed of is contrary to PCT practice wherein PCT expressly provides for facsimile transmission of such papers and when not acceptable, an opportunity to correct is provided.

Response: PCT does not mandate acceptance of facsimile transmissions; it merely authorizes their acceptance. See PCT Rule 92.4(h). Additionally, as indicated above, the suggestion that the Office permit facsimile transmission of correspondence relative to an already filed international application has been adopted to a large extent.

There is no provision in PCT to provide an opportunity for correction when correspondence is filed by facsimile in spite of a refusal by a national Office to accept that type of correspondence by facsimile. As with national applications, the Office will attempt to notify senders whenever a facsimile transmission received is of a type which the Office has not agreed to accept by facsimile. Senders are cautioned against submitting such correspondence by facsimile transmission since the correspondence will not be accorded a filing date or date of receipt in the Office.

Comment: One comment suggested changing the phrase "Certificate of Transfer" in § 1.8 to "Certificate of Transmittal" or "Certificate of Sending" because "transfer" typically implies transfer of ownership interest in patents or trademarks.

Response: While each phrase has its own advantages and drawbacks, the suggestion will not be adopted. Nevertheless, in order to avoid confusion, this rulemaking leaves the old "Certificate of Mailing" intact, while adding "or Transmission" to include correspondence filed by facsimile transmission.

Comment: In the notice of proposed rulemaking, it was recommended that the facsimile machine transmission report be retained by the sender along with the correspondence used as the original, as evidence of content and date of transfer. One comment indicated that the correspondence used as the original can only be retained using the older stand-alone type of facsimile machine, since there is no such physical document with the newer in-computer facsimile cards.

Response: Section 1.4(d)(2) provides for submission of copies, e.g., by facsimile, of originals as defined in § 1.4(d)(1). Section 1.4(d)(2) does not provide for transmission of unsigned correspondence from a computer. While 1.4(d)(2) does not require the sender to retain the original, there may be occasions when the sender will have to document the date and content of a document previously filed by facsimile transmission. The recommendation made in the notice of proposed rulemaking will apply to any situation where a paper document served as the original from which a facsimile was transmitted. If a facsimile transmission by using a computer is desired, a paper copy of the document to be transmitted may be printed out, signed and retained by the sender as evidence of content of the document transmitted. Once signed, if filing of a copy is permitted, the document could be scanned into the computer and facsimile transmitted to the Office.

Comment: In proposed section 1.8(a)(1) published in the Federal Register, paragraphs (i) and (ii) were joined with the alternative "or" to indicate that correspondence could be filed by being deposited with the U. S. Postal Service or transmitted by facsimile. This same section was published in the Official

Gazette, by having paragraphs (i) and (ii) joined with the connective "and". Numerous comments, received apparently from individuals who saw the proposed rules in the Official Gazette, objected to the requirement that, in order to receive benefits under § 1.8, correspondence transmitted by facsimile also had to be mailed.

Response: Section 1.8(a)(1) as published in the Federal Register was correct, while the version published in the Official Gazette contained a typographical error. Hence, §§ 1.8(a)(1)(i) (A) and (B), as adopted in this rulemaking, make clear that the certificate of mailing or transmission practice will be applicable to correspondence mailed or sent by facsimile. The Office discourages the practice of having the same papers submitted by both methods as this practice would result in unnecessary duplication of papers and processing requirements.

Comment: One comment indicated that since all facsimile transmissions include the date and time of the actual facsimile transmission, the Office should not require a certificate of transmission, in order to get the benefit of an earlier filing date under § 1.8(a), when correspondence is transmitted by facsimile.

Response: The Office is concerned that some older machines may not print the date and time of the actual transmission. Furthermore, even on the new machines the date and time printed by the sending unit may not always be correct, particularly after a temporary electrical disconnection, change in time, etc. Hence, for purposes of being considered timely filed, if the sender wishes to obtain the benefits of a date earlier than the date the complete transmission is received in the Office, the correspondence must include a certification in accordance with § 1.8(a).

A suggested format for a Certificate of Mailing and a Certificate of Transmission under § 1.8, to be included with the correspondence, is reproduced below:

OTHER CONSIDERATIONS

The rule changes are in conformity with the requirements of the Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C. 601 et seq.), Executive Orders 12291 and 12612 and the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et Seq.

The General Counsel of the Department of Commerce has certified to the Chief Counsel for Advocacy, Small Business Administration, that these rule changes will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities (Regulatory Flexibility Act, 5 U.S.C. 605(b)). The principal impact of these changes is to incorporate existing Office policy into the regulations, permit the filing of certain correspondence without an original signature and permit the filing of certain correspondence by facsimile transmission.

The Office has determined that these rule changes are not major rules under Executive Order 12291. The annual effect on the economy will be less than $100 million. There will be no major increase in costs or prices for consumers, individuals, industries, Federal, state or local government agencies, or geographic regions because most of the changes reduce procedural burdens. There will be no significant effects on competition, employment, investment, productivity, innovation, or on the ability of United States-based enterprises to compete with foreign-based enterprises in domestic or export markets.

The Office has also determined that these changes have no Federalism implications affecting the relationship between the National Government and the States as outlined in Executive Order 12612.

These rule changes contain collection-of-information requirements subject to the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et seq., which have previously been approved by the Office of Management and Budget under Control Nos. 0651-0009 and 0651-0011. The public reporting burden for these collections of information for Certificates of Mailing or Transmission is estimated to average 0.1 hours each, including the time for reviewing instructions, searching existing data sources, gathering and maintaining the data needed, and completing and reviewing the collections of information. Send comments regarding these burden estimates, or any other aspect of these collections of information, including suggestions for reducing the burden, to Abraham Hershkovitz, Office of the Assistant Commissioner for Patents, Box DAC, Washington, D.C. 20231, and to the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs, Office of Management and Budget, Washington, D.C. 20503 (ATTN: Paperwork Reduction Act Projects 0651-0009 and 0651-0011).

For the reasons set out in the preamble, and pursuant to the authority contained in 15 U.S.C. 1123 and 35 U.S.C. 6, parts 1, 2 and 10 of title 37 of the Code of Federal Regulations are amended as set forth below:

PART 1 - RULES OF PRACTICE IN PATENT CASES

1. The authority citation for 37 CFR Part 1 continues to read as follows:
Authority: 35 U.S.C. 6, unless otherwise noted.

2. In Section 1.4, the title is revised and paragraphs (d) through (f) are added to read as follows:

§ 1.4 Nature of correspondence and signature requirements.

(d) Each piece of correspondence, except as provided in paragraphs (e) and (f) of this section, filed in a patent or trademark application, reexamination proceeding, patent or trademark interference proceeding, patent file or trademark registration file, trademark opposition proceeding, trademark cancellation proceeding, or trademark concurrent use proceeding, which requires a person's signature, must either:

(1) be an original, that is, have an original signature personally signed in permanent ink by that person; or

(2) be a copy, such as a photocopy or facsimile transmission (§ 1.6(d)), of an original. In the event that a copy of the original is filed, the original should be retained as evidence of authenticity. If a question of authenticity arises, the Patent and Trademark Office may require submission of the original.

(e) Correspondence requiring person's signature and relating to registration to practice before the Patent and Trademark Office in patent cases, enrollment and disciplinary investigations, or disciplinary proceedings must be submitted with an original signature personally signed in permanent ink by that person.

(f) When a document that is required by statute to be certified must be filed, a copy, including a photocopy or facsimile transmission, of the certification is not acceptable.

3. Section 1.5(a) is revised to read as follows:

§ 1.5 Identification of application, patent or registration.

(a) No correspondence relating to an application should be filed prior to when notification of the application number is received from the Patent and Trademark Office. When a letter directed to the Patent and Trademark Office concerns a previously filed application for a patent, it must identify on the top page in a conspicuous location, the application number (consisting of the series code and the serial number, e.g., 07/123,456), or the serial number and filing date assigned to that application by the Patent and Trademark Office, or the international application number of the international application. Any correspondence not containing such identification will be returned to the sender where a return address is available. The returned correspondence will be accompanied with a cover letter which will indicate to the sender that if the returned correspondence is resubmitted to the Patent and Trademark Office within two weeks of the mail date on the cover letter, the original date of (a) No correspondence relating to an application should be filed prior to when notification of the application number is received from the Patent and Trademark Office. Applicants may use either the Certificate of Mailing or Transmission procedure under § 1.8 or the Express Mail procedure under § 1.10 for resubmissions of returned correspondence if they desire to have the benefit of the date of deposit in the United States Postal Service. If the returned correspondence is not resubmitted within the two-week period, the date of receipt of resubmission will be considered to be the date of receipt of the correspondence. The two-week period to resubmit the returned correspondence will not be extended. If for some reason returned correspondence is resubmitted with proper identification later than two weeks after the return mailing by the Patent and Trademark Office, the resubmitted correspondence will be accepted but given its date of receipt. In addition to the application number, all letters directed to the Patent and Trademark Office concerning applications for patent should also state "PATENT APPLICATION," the name of the applicant, the title of the invention, the date of filing the same, and if known, the group art unit or other unit within the Patent and Trademark Office responsible for considering the letter and the name of the examiner or other person to which it has been assigned.

4. In section 1.6, is revised, to read as follows:

§ 1.6 Receipt of correspondence.

(a) Date of receipt and Express Mail date of deposit.

Correspondence received in the Patent and Trademark Office is stamped with the date of receipt except as follows:

(1) No correspondence is received in the Patent and Trademark Office on Saturdays, Sundays or Federal holidays within the District of Columbia;

(2) Correspondence filed in accordance with § 1.10 will be stamped with the date of deposit as "Express Mail" with the United States Postal Service unless the date of deposit is a Saturday, Sunday, or Federal holiday within the District of Columbia in which case the date stamped will be the next succeeding day which is not a Saturday, Sunday, or Federal holiday within the District of Columbia;

(3) Correspondence transmitted by facsimile to the Patent and Trademark Office will be stamped with the date on which the complete transmission is received in the Patent and Trademark Office unless that date is a Saturday, Sunday, or Federal holiday within the District of Columbia, in which case the date stamped will be the next succeeding day which is not a Saturday, Sunday, or Federal holiday within the District of Columbia.

(b) Patent and Trademark Office Post Office pouch.

Mail placed in the Patent and Trademark Office pouch up to midnight on any day, except Saturdays, Sundays and Federal holidays within the District of Columbia, by the post office at Washington, D.C., serving the Patent and Trademark Office, is considered as having been received in the Patent and Trademark Office on the day it was so placed in the pouch by the U.S. Postal Service.

(c) Correspondence delivered by hand.

In addition to being mailed, correspondence may be delivered by hand during hours the Office is open to receive correspondence.

(d) Facsimile transmission.

Except in the cases enumerated below, correspondence, including authorizations to charge a deposit account, may be transmitted by facsimile. The receipt date accorded to the correspondence will be the date on which the complete transmission is received in the Patent and Trademark Office, unless that date is a Saturday, Sunday, or Federal holiday within the District of Columbia. See § 1.6(a)(3). To facilitate proper processing, each transmission session should be limited to correspondence to be filed in a single application or other proceeding before the Patent and Trademark Office. The application number of a patent or trademark application, the control number of a reexamination proceeding, the interference number of an interference proceeding, the patent number of a patent, or the registration number of a trademark should be entered as a part of the sender's identification on a facsimile cover sheet. Facsimile transmissions are not permitted and if submitted, will not be accorded a date of receipt, in the following situations:

(1) Correspondence as specified in § 1.4(e), requiring an original signature;

(2) Certified documents as specified in § 1.4(f);

(3) Correspondence which cannot receive the benefit of the certificate of mailing or transmission as specified in §§ 1.8(a)(2)(i)(A) through (D) and (F); 1.8 (a)(2)(ii)(A) and (D); and 1.8 (a)(2)(iii)(A);

(4) Drawings submitted under §§ 1.81, 1.83 through 1.85, 1.152, 1.165, 1.174, 1.437, 2.51, 2.52, or 2.72;

(5) A request for reexamination under § 1.510;

(6) Correspondence to be filed in a patent application subject to a secrecy order under §§ 5.1 through 5.8 of this chapter and directly related to the secrecy order content of the application;

(7) Requests for cancellation or amendment of a registration under section 7(e) of the Trademark Act, 15 U.S.C. 1057(e); and certificates of registration surrendered for cancellation or amendment under section 7(e) of the Trademark Act, 15 U.S.C. 1057(e);

(8) Correspondence to be filed with the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board, except the notice of ex parte appeal;

(9) Correspondence to be filed in an interference proceeding which consists of a preliminary statement under § 1.621; a transcript of a deposition under § 1.676 or of interrogatories, cross-interrogatories, or recorded answers under § 1.684(c); or an evidentiary record and exhibits under § 1.653.

(e) Interruptions in U.S. Postal Service.

If interruptions or emergencies in the United States Postal Service which have been so designated by the Commissioner occur, the Patent and Trademark Office will consider as filed on a particular date in the Office any correspondence which is:

(1) Promptly filed after the ending of the designated interruption or emergency; and

(2) Accompanied by a statement indicating that such correspondence would have been filed on that particular date if it were not for the designated interruption or emergency in the United States Postal Service. Such statement must be a verified statement if made by a person other than a practitioner as defined in § 10.1(r) of this chapter.

5. Section 1.8 is revised to read as follows:

§ 1.8 Certificate of mailing or transmission.

(a) Except in the cases enumerated in paragraph (a)(2) of this section, correspondence required to be filed in the Patent and Trademark Office within a set period of time will be considered as being timely filed if the procedure described in this section is followed. The actual date of receipt will be used for all other purposes.

(1) Correspondence will be considered as being timely filed if:

(i) the correspondence is mailed or transmitted prior to expiration of the set period of time by being:

(A) deposited with the U.S. Postal Service with sufficient postage as first class mail addressed to the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Washington, D.C. 20231; or

(B) transmitted by facsimile to the Patent and Trademark Office in accordance with § 1.6(d); and

(ii) the correspondence includes a certificate for each piece of correspondence stating the date of deposit or transmission. The person signing the certificate should have reasonable basis to expect that the correspondence would be mailed or transmitted on or before the date indicated.

(2) The procedure described in paragraph (a)(1) of this section does not apply to, and no benefit will be given to a Certificate of Mailing or Transmission on the following:

(i) Relative to Patents and Patent Applications

A. The filing of a national patent application specification and drawing or other correspondence for the purpose of obtaining an application filing date;

B. The filing of correspondence in an interference which an examiner-in-chief orders to be filed by hand or "Express Mail";

C. The filing of agreements between parties to an interference under 35 U.S.C. 135(c);

D. The filing of an international application for patent;

E. The filing of correspondence in an international application before the U.S. Receiving Office, the U.S. International Searching Authority, or the U.S. International Preliminary Examining Authority;

F. The filing of a copy of the international application and the basic national fee necessary to enter the national stage, as specified in § 1.494(b) or § 1.495(b).

(ii) Relative to Trademark Registrations and Trademark Applications

A. The filing of a trademark application;

B. The filing of an affidavit showing that a mark is still in use or containing an excuse for nonuse under section 8 (a) or (b) or section 12(c) of the Trademark Act, 15 U.S.C. 1058(a), 1058(b), 1062(c);

C. The filing of an application for renewal of a registration under section 9 of the Trademark Act, 15 U.S.C. 1059;

D. The filing of a petition to cancel a registration of a mark under section 14, subsection (1) or (2) of the Trademark Act, 15 U.S.C. 1064;

E. In an application under section 1(b) of the Trademark Act, 15 U.S.C. 1051(b), the filing of an amendment to allege use in commerce under section 1(c) of the Trademark Act, 15 U.S.C. 1051(c); or the filing of a statement of use under section 1(d)(1) of the Trademark Act, 15 U.S.C. 1051(d)(1);

F. In an application under section 1(b) of the Trademark Act, 15 U.S.C. 1051(b), the filing of a request under section 1(d)(2) of the Trademark Act, 15 U.S.C. 1051(d)(2), for an extension of time to file a statement of use under section 1(d)(1) of the Trademark Act, 15 U.S.C. 1051(d)(1).

(iii) Relative to Disciplinary Proceedings

A. Correspondence filed in connection with a disciplinary proceeding under Part 10 of this chapter.

B. Reserved.

(b) In the event that correspondence is considered timely filed by being mailed or transmitted in accordance with paragraph (a) of this section, but not received in the Patent and Trademark Office, and the application is held to be abandoned or the proceeding dismissed, terminated, or decided with prejudice, the correspondence will be considered timely if the party who forwarded such correspondence:

(1) informs the Office of the previous mailing or transmission of the correspondence promptly after becoming aware that the Office has no evidence of receipt of the correspondence,

(2) supplies an additional copy of the previously mailed or transmitted correspondence and certificate, and

(3) includes a statement which attests on a personal knowledge basis or to the satisfaction of the Commissioner to the previous timely mailing or transmission. Such statement must be a verified statement if made by a person other than a practitioner as defined in § 10.1(r) of this chapter. If the correspondence was sent by facsimile transmission, a copy of the sending unit's report confirming transmission may be used to support this statement.

(c) The Office may require additional evidence to determine if the correspondence was timely filed.

6. Section 1.304 paragraphs (a) and (c) are revised to read as follows:

§ 1.304 Time for appeal or civil action.

(a)(1) The time for filing the notice of appeal to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit (§ 1.302) or for commencing a civil action (§ 1.303) is two months from the date of the decision of the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences. If a request for reconsideration or modification of the decision is filed within the time period provided under § 1.197(b) or § 1.658(b), the time for filing an appeal or commencing a civil action shall expire two months after action on the request. In interferences, the time for filing a cross-appeal or cross-action expires:

(i) 14 days after service of the notice of appeal or the summons and complaint, or

(ii) Two months after the date of decision of the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences, whichever is later.

(a)(2) The time periods set forth in this section are not subject to the provisions of §§ 1.136, 1.550(c) or § 1.645 (a) or §§ (b). (a)(3) The Commissioner may extend the time for filing an appeal or commencing a civil action:

(i) For good cause shown if requested in writing before the expiration of the period for filing an appeal or commencing a civil action, or

(ii) Upon written request after the expiration of the period for filing an appeal or commencing a civil action upon a showing that the failure to act was the result of excusable neglect.

(c) If a defeated party to an interference has taken an appeal to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit and an adverse party has filed notice under 35 U.S.C. 141 electing to have all further proceedings conducted under 35 U.S.C. 146 (§ 1.303(c)), the time for filing a civil action thereafter is specified in 35 U.S.C. 141. The time for filing a cross-action expires 14 days after service of the summons and complaint.

7. Section 1.366(b) is revised to read as follows:

(b) A maintenance fee and any necessary surcharge submitted for a patent must be submitted in the amount due on the date the maintenance fee and any necessary surcharge are paid and may be paid in the manner set forth in § 1.23 or by an authorization to charge a deposit account established pursuant to § 1.25. Payment of a maintenance fee and any necessary surcharge or the authorization to charge a deposit account must be submitted within the periods set forth in § 1.362 (d), (e) or (f). Any payment or authorization of maintenance fees and surcharges filed at any other time will not be accepted and will not serve as a payment of the maintenance fee except insofar as a delayed payment of the maintenance fee is accepted by the Commissioner in an expired patent pursuant to a petition filed under § 1.378. Any authorization to charge a deposit account must authorize the immediate charging of the maintenance fee and any necessary surcharge to the deposit account. Payment of less than the required amount, payment in a manner other than that set forth in § 1.23, or the filing of an authorization to charge a deposit account having insufficient funds will not constitute payment of a maintenance fee or surcharge on a patent. The certificate procedures of either §§ 1.8 or 1.10 may be utilized in paying maintenance fees and any necessary surcharges.

8. Section 1.741, paragraph (a) is revised to read as follows:

§ 1.741 Filing date of application.

(a) The filing date of an application for extension of patent term is the date on which a complete application is received in the Patent and Trademark Office or filed pursuant to the "Certificate of Mailing or Transmission" provisions of 37 CFR 1.8 or "Express Mail" provisions of 37 CFR 1.10.

PART 2-RULES OF PRACTICE IN TRADEMARK CASES

9. The authority citation for 37 CFR Part 2 continues to read as follows:
Authority: 15 U.S.C. 1123; 35 U.S.C. 6, unless otherwise noted.

10. Section 2.145 is amended by revising Paragraphs C(3) and D(1) to read as follows:

§ 2.145 Appeal to Court and Civil Action.

(c) ***

(3) Any adverse party to an appeal taken to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit by a defeated party in an inter partes proceeding may file a notice with the Commissioner within twenty days after the filing of the defeated party's notice of appeal to the court (paragraph (b) of this section), electing to have all further proceedings conducted as provided in section 21(b) of the Act. The notice of election must be served as provided in § 2.119.

(d) Time for appeal or civil action.

(1) The time for filing the notice of appeal to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit (paragraph (b) of this section), or for commencing a civil action (paragraph (c) of this section), is two months from the date of the decision of the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board or the Commissioner, as the case may be. If a request for rehearing or reconsideration or modification of the decision is filed within the time specified in §§ 2.127(b), 2.129(c) or § 2.144, or within any extension of time granted thereunder, the time for filing an appeal or commencing a civil action shall expire two months after action on the request. In inter partes cases, the time for filing a cross-action or a notice of a cross-appeal expires

(i) 14 days after service of the notice of appeal or the summons and complaint; or

(ii) two months from the date of the decision of the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board or the Commissioner, whichever is later.

11. Section 2.165(a)(1) is revised to read as follows:

§ 2.165 Reconsideration of Affidavit or Declaration

(a)(1) If the affidavit or declaration filed pursuant to § 2.162 is insufficient or defective, the affidavit or declaration will be refused and the registrant will be notified of the reason. Reconsideration of the refusal may be requested within six months from the date of the mailing of the action. The request for reconsideration must state the grounds for the request. A supplemental or substitute affidavit or declaration required by section 8 of the Act of 1946 cannot be considered unless it is filed before the expiration of six years from the date of the registration or from the date of publication under section 12(c) of the Act. The Certificate of Mailing or Transmission" procedure provided by § 1.8 does not apply to affidavits or declarations or to supplemental or substitute affidavits or declarations filed under section 8(a) or (b) of the Act, but the certificate by "Express Mail" procedure provided by § 1.10 does apply thereto.

12. The authority citation for 37 CFR Part 10 continues to read as follows:
Authority: 5 U.S.C. 500; 15 U.S.C. 1123; 35 U.S.C. 6, 31, 32 41.

13. Section 10.18, is revised to read as follows:

§ 10.18 Signature and certificate of practitioner.

(a) Except where a copy, including a photocopy or facsimile transmission, of a personally signed piece of correspondence is permitted to be filed pursuant to § 1.4 of this chapter, every piece of correspondence filed by a practitioner on behalf of himself or herself or representing an applicant or a party to a proceeding in the Patent and Trademark Office must bear an original signature personally signed in permanent ink by such practitioner except for correspondence which is required to be signed by the applicant or party. The signature of a practitioner on correspondence filed by the practitioner, regardless of whether the correspondence has an original signature or is a copy, including a photocopy or facsimile transmission, of correspondence bearing an original signature, constitutes a certificate that:

(1) The correspondence has been read by the practitioner;

(2) The filing of the correspondence is authorized;

(3) To the best of practitioner's knowledge, information, and belief, there is good ground to support the correspondence, including any allegations of improper conduct contained or alleged therein; and

(4) The correspondence is not interposed for delay.

(b) Any practitioner knowingly violating the provisions of this section is subject to disciplinary action. See § 10.23(c)(15).

14. Section 10.23, paragraph (c)(9), is revised to read as follows:

10.23 Misconduct

(c) ***

(9) Knowingly misusing a "Certificate of Mailing or Transmission" under 1.8 of this chapter or a certificate of "Express Mail" under § 1.10 of this chapter.

Changes in Practice Relating to Filing Patent Applications

Agency: Patent and Trademark Office, Commerce.
Action: Final Rule.
Summary: The Patent and Trademark Office (Office) is amending the rules of practice in patent cases to provide a uniform practice with respect to filing an oath or declaration and filing fees in continuing applications.
Effective Date: Jan. 4, 1993. These rules will be applicable to all papers and applications filed with the Office on or after the effective date.
For Further Information Contact: Jeffrey V. Nase by telephone at (703) 305-9282 or by mail marked to his attention and addressed to Office of the Assistant Commissioner for Patents, Box DAC, Washington, D.C. 20231.
Supplementary Information: In a Notice of Proposed Rulemaking published in the Federal Register (57 FR 31344) on July 15, 1992, and in the Patent and Trademark Office Official Gazette (1141 Off. Gaz. Pat. Office 9) on Aug. 4, 1992, the Office proposed to amend § 1.60. The due date for submitting written comments was extended to Sept. 10, 1992, in an Extension of Comment Period published in the Federal Register (57 FR 38640) on Aug. 26, 1992.

One comment was received. The comment favored adoption of the proposed rule changes.

A continuation or divisional application filed under § 1.60 did not receive a filing date until a complete copy of the prior application was filed, including a true copy of the oath or declaration. Since the Office is in possession of the oath or declaration of the prior application, § 1.60 is being modified to be consistent with §§ 1.53 and 1.62 by permitting filing of a true copy of the oath or declaration within a time specified in a notice of missing parts mailed by the Office.

The specific revisions are discussed below:

(1) Correction of inventorship (§ 1.48)

Section 1.48(a) is amended to replace the designation by letter of various requirements therein with numbered designations so as to avoid confusion when making reference to this section.

(2) Procedures for completing applications filed under § 1.60

Section 1.60 outlines one of the procedures that may be followed by applicants to file a continuation or divisional application. One of the requirements under this section is that applicants file a true copy of the complete parent application as filed, including the oath or declaration. Paragraph (c) ofthis section had specified that a filing date would not be granted if applicant failed to file a complete application under this section. When the missing item was filed, a filing date was granted as of the date of receipt of the missing item. Practice under § 1.60 is being modified to be similar to the procedures for filing continuing applications under §§ 1.53(d) and continuation-in-part applications under § 1.62. More specifically, a new paragraph (d) is added in § 1.60 to indicate that if an application filed pursuant to § 1.60(b) is otherwise complete, but does not include the appropriate filing fee or a true copy of the oath or declaration from the prior complete application, a filing date will be granted. The copy of the oath or declaration, as well as payment of the appropriate filing fee must be submitted within a time period specified in a notice of missing parts mailed by the Office. In a manner similar to the practice under §§ 1.53(d) and 1.62(d), the appropriate oath or declaration and/or filing fee as well as the surcharge set forth in § 1.16(e) must be filed within the time period specified in the notice of missing parts in order to avoid abandonment of the application. Paragraphs (b) and (c) of this section are amended to make reference to the exception specified in paragraph (d) discussed above.

OTHER CONSIDERATIONS

The rule change is in conformity with the requirements of the Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C. 601 et seq.), Executive Orders 12291 and 12612 and the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et seq.

The General Counsel of the Department of Commerce has certified to the Chief Counsel for Advocacy, Small Business Administration, that these rule changes will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities (Regulatory Flexibility Act, 5 U.S.C. 605(b)). The principal impact of these changes is to accord a filing date to certain continuing applications which, through oversight, fail to include certain papers which can be submitted after the filing date.

The Office has determined that this rule change is not a major rule under Executive Order 12291. The annual effect on the economy will be less than $100 million. There will be no major increase in costs or prices for consumers; individuals; industries; Federal, state or local government agencies; or geographic regions most of the changes reduce procedural burdens. There will be no significant adverse effects on competition, employment, investment, productivity, innovation, or on the ability of the United States-based enterprises to compete with foreign-based enterprises in domestic or export markets.

The Office has also determined that this notice has no Federalism implications affecting the relationship between the National Government and the States as outlined in Executive Order 12612.

The rule change will not impose a burden under the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et seq., since no record keeping or reporting requirements within the coverage of the Act are placed upon the public.

37 CFR Part 1

Administrative practice and procedure, Freedom of information, Inventions and patents, Reporting and record keeping requirements.

For the reasons set out in the preamble, and pursuant to the authority contained in 35 U.S.C. 6, part 1 of title 37 of the Code of Federal Regulations is amended as set forth below.

PART 1 - RULES OF PRACTICE IN PATENT CASES

1. The authority citation for 37 CFR Part 1 would continue to read as follows:

Authority: 35 U.S.C. 6, unless otherwise noted.

2. Section 1.48, paragraph (a) is revised to read as follows:

§ 1.48 Correction of inventorship

(a) if the correct inventor or inventors are not named in an application for patent through error without any deceptive intention on the part of the actual inventor or inventors, the application may be amended to name only the actual inventor or inventors. Such amendment must be diligently made and must be accompanied by:

(1) a petition including a statement of facts verified by the original named inventor or inventors establishing when the error without deceptive intention was discovered and how it occurred;

(2) an oath or declaration by each actual inventor or inventors as required by § 1.63;

(3) the fee set forth in § 1.17(h); and

(4) the written consent of any assignee.

When the application is involved in an interference, the petition shall comply with the requirements of this section and shall be accompanied by a motion under § 1.634.

3. In Section 1.60, paragraphs (b) and (c) are revised and paragraph (d) is added to read as follows:

§ 1.60 Continuation or divisional application for invention disclosed in a prior application.

(b) An applicant may omit signing of the oath or declaration in a continuation or divisional application (filed under the conditions specified in 35 U.S.C. 120 and 121 and § 1.78(a)) if:

(1) the prior application was a complete application as set forth in § 1.51(a),

(2) applicant indicates that the application is being filed pursuant to this section and files a true copy of the prior complete application as filed including the specification (with claims), drawings, oath or declaration showing the signature or an indication it was signed, and any amendments referred to in the oath or declaration filed to complete the prior application,

(3) the inventors named in the continuation or divisional application are the same or less than all the inventors named in the prior application, and

(4) the application is filed before the patenting or abandonment of or termination of proceedings on the prior application. The copy of the prior application must be accompanied by a statement that the application papers filed are a true copy of the prior application and that no amendments referred to in the oath or declaration filed to complete the prior application introduced new matter therein. Such statement must be by the applicant or applicant's attorney or agent and must be a verified statement if made by a person not registered to practice before the Patent and trademark Office. Only amendments reducing the number of claims or adding a reference to the prior application (2 1.78(a)) will be entered before calculating the filing fee and granted the filing date. If the continuation or divisional application is filed by less than all the inventors named in the prior application, a statement must accompany the application when filed requesting deletion of the names of the person or persons who are not inventors of the invention being claimed in the continuation or divisional application. Except as provided in paragraph (d) of this section, if a true copy of the prior application as filed is not filed with the application or if the statement that the application papers are a true copy is omitted, the application will not be given a filing date earlier than the date upon which the copy and statement are filed, unless a petition with the fee set forth in § 1.17(i)(1) is filed which satisfactorily explains the delay in filing these items.

(c) if an application filed pursuant to paragraph (b) of this section is incomplete for reasons other than those specified in paragraph (d) of this section, applicant will be notified and given a time period within which to complete the application in order to obtain a filing date as of the date of filing the omitted item provided the omitted item is filed before the patenting or abandonment of or termination or proceedings on the prior application. If the omission is not corrected within the time period set, the application will be returned or otherwise disposed of; the fee, if submitted, will be refunded less the handling fee set forth in § 1.21(n)

(d) If an application filed pursuant to paragraph (b) of this section is otherwise complete, but does not include the appropriate filing fee or a true copy of the oath or declaration from the prior complete application, showing the signature or an indication it was signed, a filing date will be granted and applicant will be so notified and given a period of time within which to file the fee, or the true copy of the oath or declaration and to pay the surcharge as set forth in § 1.16(e) in order to prevent abandonment of the application. The notification pursuant to this paragraph may be made simultaneously with any notification pursuant to paragraph (c) of this section.

Patent and Trademark Office
37 CFR Part 1
Changes in Patent Drawing Standards

Agency: Patent and Trademark Office, Commerce
Action: Final Rule
Summary: The Patent and Trademark Office (Office) is amending the rules of practice regarding patent drawings to adopt international standards and to eliminate unnecessary requirements. The Office is amending the rules to provide clarification and adopt international standards; to delete the reference to changes by bonded draftsmen since the Office will no longer release drawings from patent applications and to include the option of submitting black and white photographs in lieu of black ink drawings.
Effective Date: October 1, 1993. These rules will be applicable to all drawings and papers filed with the Office on or after the effective date.
For Further Information Contact: Richard A. Bawcombe by telephone at (703) 305-8594, by mail marked to his attention addressed to the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Washington, D.C. 20231, or by facsimile transmission to his attention at (703) 305-4372.
Supplementary Information: In a Notice of Proposed Rulemaking published in the Federal Register (57 FR 42721) on September 16, 1992, and in the Patent and Trademark Office Official Gazette (1143 Off. Gaz. Pat Office 13) on Oct. 6, 1992, the Office proposed to amend the rules of practice in patent drawings. Drawings acceptable for patent applications filed outside of the United States are not always acceptable in a patent application filed in the United States. Therefore, the rules relating to drawing requirements are being amended to enable the Office, when appropriate, to accept drawings that are capable of clear reproduction for the printing of any resulting patent. Drawings in compliance with the old § 1.84 will be in compliance with the new § 1.84. An oral hearing was not conducted. However, six written comments were submitted.

Response to Comments on the Rules

The comments received in response to the notice of proposed rulemaking have been given careful consideration and several of the suggested modifications have been adopted.

Another modification, since the "Notice of Proposed Rulemaking," is under § 1.84 wherein five sets of drawings were required, but the total has been decreased to three sets due to a reassessment of the need for the additional copies for Office use. The comments and responses are discussed below.
Comment: Three comments were received regarding the proposed changes within § 1.84(b). Three other comments were received regarding the proposed changes to § 1.165. All six comments suggested that the Office continue to accept mounted photographs.
Response: The Office will adopt the suggestion and continue to accept mounted photographs for utility, design, and plant patent applications. The initial reason the Office sought to change the rule was to overcome the problem of mounted photographs becoming detached and separated from the file. The apparent burden to applicants associated with the Office not accepting mounted photographs is the reason the Office will continue to permit mounted photographs provided they are permanently affixed.

Several of the commenters mentioned that they have never had problems with mounted photographs. As commentary on these remarks, it is not the person filing the drawings who would have problems with mounted photographs; it is the Office. And, indeed, the Office has, in the past, experienced problems with mounted photographs coming loose from the paper they are mounted on. When this happens, the photographs can become displaced from the file and lost. This has occurred many times, leading to frustration and wasted effort on the part of many practitioners, as well as on the part of Office personnel. If mounted photographs are to be used, they must be mounted in such a way that they cannot become loose from the bristol board to which they are mounted.
Comment: Two of the comments regarding 1.84(b) also mentioned that the proposed rules would not allow more than one figure on each sheet of drawings where photographs are being used, and sought relief from this proposed change.

VOL 1170 ISS 1 JA 3 1995 UMI

Response: Since the Office will continue to accept mounted photographs, the Office will also accept sheets of drawings where more than one photograph appears on the drawing sheet provided that all other drawing requirements are met.

Comment: Two of the comments suggested that the Office not require photographs to be on A4 size paper.

Response: The Office will adopt the suggestion. The Office will accept photographs on one of the four paper sizes specified in § 1.84(f), as long as all sheets are the same size.

Comment: Regarding § 1.84(f), one comment suggested that the Office permit use of an additional size of paper, i.e., 21.6 cm. by 27.9 cm. (8 1/2 by 11 inches).

Response: The Office will adopt the suggestion. The adoption of the suggestion to add an additional paper size under § 1.84(f), results in the need for an additional margin size. Therefore, an additional paragraph is added to § 1.84(g) to state that "On 21.6 cm. by 27.9 cm. (8 1/2 by 11 inch) drawing sheets, each sheet must include a top margin of 2.5 cm. (1 inch) and bottom and side margins of .64 cm. (1/4 inch) from the edges, thereby leaving a sight precisely 20.3 by 24.8 cm. (8 by 9 3/4 inches)."

Comment: Regarding 1.84(p)(3), one comment suggested liberalization for drawings which include typewritten subject matter, such as gene or protein sequences that consist predominantly of letters, sometimes with underlining and boxes around them. Other situations cited were graphs and photographs of gels, which often appear in biotechnological inventions, which include typed matter as legends.

Response: The suggestion has not been adopted because letters need to stand at the designated height to maintain legibility when reductions become necessary to accommodate the various photocomposed products.

Comment: Regarding § 1.84(w), one comment mentioned that correction fluid is not permanent and has a tendency to flake and fall from the surface it covers.

Response: Section 1.84(w) permits correction fluid to be used provided the correction fluid is durable and permanent. If correction fluid is used on drawings submitted to the Office, the applicant will be required by the Office to correct the drawings if the correction fluid becomes loose before the patent printing process is completed.

Comment: One comment suggested that § 1.152 was improper in permitting either ink drawings or photographs to be submitted with an application for a design patent, but not both, and in requiring any photographs submitted to show only the design claimed and none of the environment in which it is used. The comment argued that prohibition against using both ink drawings and photographs is inconsistent with 35 U.S.C. 112. Under that section of the statute, a design patent application must disclose the invention "in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as enable any person skilled in the art ... to make and use" the invention and "set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention."

Response: Section 1.152 is consistent with 35 U.S.C. 112. The introduction of both photographs and ink drawings in a design application would result in a high probability of inconsistencies between corresponding elements on the ink drawings as compared with the photographs. However, if special circumstances warrant use of both ink drawings and photographs, applicant can file a petition under § 1.183 to permit both in a design application if such drawings do not introduce inconsistencies between the views.

DISCUSSION OF SPECIFIC SECTIONS CHANGED OR ADDED:

Section 1.17(h) is amended to include a reference to § 1.84 for accepting color drawings or photographs in utility patent applications.

Section 1.19(a)(3) is amended to change the citation of § 1.84(p) to § 1.84(a)(2) in view of the amendments to § 1.84.

Section 1.71(d) is amended to change the citation of § 1.84(o) to § 1.84(s) in view of the amendments to § 1.84.

Section 1.84 is revised as follows:

(a) Drawings. This paragraph is added to classify drawings into two categories, i.e., black ink and color, and deletes the limitation that the use of white pigment to cover lines is not normally acceptable. The black ink drawing requirements are amended to allow computer-generated drawings to be accepted subject to the same standards applied to all black ink drawings. Color drawing requirements are moved from § 1.84(p) to § 1.84(a). Color drawings may be acceptable upon the granting of a petition filed under this paragraph explaining why the color drawings are necessary. A petition is required because the special handling necessary for color drawings is time consuming and the Office cannot permit such a special procedure except in extenuating circumstances. Since utility patents are not printed in color, 3 sets of color drawings are necessary for proper distribution within the Office. One color set will be attached to the Letters Patent for routing to the applicant. The remaining two color sets will be routed to (1) the patent file, and (2) the Office of Publication and Dissemination, Patent and Trademark Copy Sales, for copying purposes when a copy in color of a utility patent containing a color drawing, as provided for in § 119(a)(3), is requested.

(b) Photographs. This paragraph permits the acceptance of photographs upon granting of an applicant's petition. The Office will accept black and white and color photographs or photomicrographs(not photolithographs or other reproductions of photographs made by using screens) developed on double weight photographic paper or permanently mounted on bristol board, in lieu of ink drawings. The photographs must be of sufficient quality so that all details in the drawing are reproducible in the printed patent.

(c) Identification of drawings. This paragraph permits an applicant to provide proper identification information on the reverse side of each sheet of drawings. The identification information allows the Office to match drawing sheets with the proper application. The identification information should include the application number, if known, or the title of the invention, inventor's name, docket number (if any), and name and telephone number of the person to call if the drawings cannot be matched to the proper patent application. The Office will not object if identifying information is not present; however, if the drawings become separated, it will be virtually impossible for the Office to match the drawings with the application. This paragraph is restructured from previous § 1.84(1) and revised to state that the preferred placement of the information is on the back side of the drawing sheets.

(d) Graphic forms in drawings. This paragraph is added to set standards for chemical and mathematical formulae to align Office standards for formulae, tables, and waveforms with international standards.

(e) Type of paper. This paragraph is a revision of previous §1.84(a) to set forth the requirements for the type of paper to be used for drawings, including the type of paper for photographs.

(f) Size of paper. This paragraph clarifies Office requirements set forth in previous § 1.84(b) and permits one additional size of paper, i.e., 21.6 cm. by 27.9 cm. (8 1/2 by 11 inches) for drawings.

(g) Margins. This paragraph is restructured from previous § 1.84(b) to indicate how the size of the paper changes the margin requirements. The Office will accept four sizes of paper, however, the sight (i.e. the usable surface) is the same for two of the paper sizes, i.e., 21.6 cm. by 33.1 cm. (8 1/2 by 13 inches), and 21.6 cm. by 35.6 cm. (8 1/2 by 14 inches). The sight is 17 0 cm. by 26.2 cm. for DIN size A4 paper. The sight is 20.3 cm. by 24.8 cm. (8 by 9 3/4 inches) for the added paper size of 21.6 cm. by 27.9 cm. (8 1/2 by 11 inches).

(h) Views. This paragraph is added to reformat previous § 1.84(i) to provide a logical arrangement of the different views provided in the rules, to revise the standards for purposes of clarification, to include the standard for waveforms to show the relative timing, to provide clearer language relative to hatching shown on drawings, to set forth the standard for depicting hatching in sectional views as regularly spaced parallel oblique strokes which precludes use of cross-hatching strokes, and to include requirements pertaining to alternate positions. In addition, both Roman and Arabic numerals are acceptable to designate the section being illustrated.

(i) Arrangement of views. This paragraph is relocated from previous § 1.84(j) and revised to incorporate international standards. In addition, this paragraph is changed and broadened to provide for placement of words on drawings. One view is not to be superimposed within the outline of another. The changes expand the possibilities for presenting graphs to conform to standard scientific conventions, while using a format which is compatible with automated patent searching displays. See 1121 Off. Gaz. Pat. Office 54 (Dec. 25, 1990) and 1129 Off. Gaz. Pat. Office 22 (Aug. 13, 1991).

(k) Scale. This paragraph is relocated from previous § 1.84(e) and § 1.84(i) and revised to indicate that the words "actual size" or "scale 1/2" on the drawings are not permitted since the meaning is lost in reduction/enlargement. The paragraph provides that elements of the same view must be in proportion to each other, unless a difference in proportion is indispensable for the clarity of the view. As a preferred alternative to a difference in proportion within one view for the purpose of achieving the necessary clarity, a supplementary view may be added giving a larger-scale illustration of an element from the initial view. When a supplementary view is included, it is recommended that the enlarged element shown in the second view be surrounded by a finely drawn or "dot-dash" circle in the first view pinpointing its location, without obscuring the view.

(l) Character of lines, numbers, and letters. This paragraph is relocated from previous § 1.84(c) and revised to indicate that lines and strokes of different thicknesses may be used in the same drawing where different thicknesses have different meanings. In addition, this paragraph is changed and broadened to allow drawings to be made by any process which will give them satisfactory reproduction characteristics.

(m) Shading. This paragraph is changed and broadened to expand definitions for shading and deletes the limitation that drawings transmitted to the Office should be sent flat, protected by a sheet of heavy binder's board, or rolled for transmission in a suitable mailing tube. This change provides the individual practitioner with greater discretion on how to send drawings. In addition, this paragraph is relocated from previous § 1.84(d) to separate shading requirements from hatching requirements by stating that shading may be used to indicate the surface or shape of spherical, cylindrical, and conical elements of an object, and that spaced lines are preferred for shading purposes. Solid black areas are not permitted, except when used to represent bar graphs or color.

(n) Symbols. This paragraph is relocated from previous § 1.84(g) to separate symbols requirements from legends requirements and enlarges the number of acceptable symbols. Known devices should be illustrated by symbols which have a universally-recognized meaning, and which are generally accepted in the art, provided no further detail is essential for understanding the subject matter of the claimed invention. Symbols which are not universally recognized may be used if they are not likely to be confused with existing conventional symbols and if they are readily identifiable, subject to approval by the Examiner.

(o) Legends. This paragraph is relocated from previous § 1.84(g) to separate legends requirements from symbols requirements and revised to integrate international standards. Where text matter is (1) deemed indispensable for understanding the drawing or (2) may be required by the Examiner, a minimum of words should be used. While such requirement by the Examiner was not contained in the "Notice of Proposed Rulemaking," it was contained in former § 1.84(g). Words should not be used to describe the figure itself, such as "this is a bar graph." All text legends are subject to approval by the examiner.

(p) Numbers, letters, and reference characters. This paragraph is relocated from previous § 1.84(f) and revised to include numbers and letters in the heading formerly designated "reference characters." This section has been reformatted into five subsections and revised to integrate international standards, where possible. Although the Latin alphabet is used in the international standard, the Office takes the view that the English alphabet is more universally acceptable for letters, except where another alphabet is customarily used, such as the Greek alphabet to indicate angles, wavelengths, and mathematical formulae. In addition, the characters used must be oriented in the same direction as the view so as to avoid having to rotate the sheet. Reference characters should be so arranged to follow the profile of the object depicted. See 1121 Off. Gaz. Pat. Office 54 (Dec. 25, 1990) and 1129 Off. Gaz. Pat. Office 22 (Aug. 13, 1991).

(q) Lead lines. This paragraph is added to integrate international standards, to incorporate brief language which appears in previous § 1.84(f), and to change and expand the definition for lead lines. Lead lines are those lines between the reference characters and the details referred to, and they must be executed in the same way as other lines in the drawing.

(r) Arrows. This paragraph is relocated from previous § 1.84(g) and revised to indicate the meaning of the use of arrows, and to show that they may be used at the end of lead lines only if their meaning is clear.

(s) Copyright or mask work notice. This paragraph is relocated from previous § 1.84(o).

(t) Numbering of sheets of drawings. This paragraph is relocated from previous § 1.84(n) and changed and broadened to allow for the placement of sheet numbers within the sight of the drawing. It is preferable that the sheets be numbered with two Arabic numerals placed on either side of an oblique line, with the first number being the sheet number and the second the total number of sheets of drawings.

(u) Numbering of views. This paragraph is relocated from previous § 1.84(i) and, for clarity, is separately identified in this new section. Use of the abbreviation "FIG." must precede all view numbers.

(v) Security markings. This paragraph is relocated from previous § 1.84(1) to provide that security markings may be placed on the drawings if they are outside the sight and preferably centered in the top margin.

(w) Corrections. This paragraph is added to provide that any corrections made on drawings submitted to the Office must be durable and permanent. The language is revised from previous 1.84(a) which prohibited the use of white pigment to cover lines.

(x) Holes. This paragraph is relocated from previous § 1.84(b) to permit two holes to be punched in the top margin of the drawings with their center lines spaced 7.0 cm. (2 3/4 inches) apart.

Section 1.88 is removed and reserved since the changes effective January 1, 1991, in § 1.85(b) make the regulation regarding the transfer of drawings unnecessary. Since the Office no longer releases drawings from patent applications, applicants are generally retaining the master copy of the drawings. Accordingly, applicants can easily file a copy of drawings in an application and therefore eliminate the need for the Office to transfer drawings. Any situations which present a hardship to applicants may be accommodated by the filing of a petition under § 1.182 requesting the transfer of the drawings.

Section 1.123 prescribes procedures for amending drawings. With the adoption of new rules for amending drawings effective January 1, 1989, the Office no longer requires the submission of formal drawings upon filing a patent application. See 1097 Off. Gaz. Pat. Office 36 (Dec. 13, 1988). Since corrections are the responsibility of the applicant, the original drawing(s) should be retained by the applicant for future correction, if necessary.

As a result of adoption of the new rules in 1989 relating to drawings, the Office will no longer release to applicants, bonded drafting companies or others, drawings from patent applications. Effective January 1, 1991, § 1.85(b) prohibits release of drawings from all patent applications. Accordingly, the reference to changes by bonded draftsmen is deleted from § 1.123.

Section 1.152 is revised to provide that photographs and ink drawings must not be combined in one design application. The reason for this requirement is to avoid inconsistencies between the photograph and the drawing, and further eliminate views that may distort the proportionate relationship between the corresponding elements on the drawing and the photograph. All design photographs are limited to the design for the article claimed and are not to include environmental structure.

Color drawings and color photographs are not permissible in design patent applications. The submission of color photographs will be accepted for filing date purposes, in design patent applications, contrary to the requirement for black ink drawings. The Applications Processing Division has been authorized to construe the color photographs as informal drawings, rather than to hold the applications incomplete as filed. By so construing color photographs when filed as informal drawings, the Office will accept the applications without requiring applicants to file a petition to obtain the original deposit date as the filing date. During the course of prosecution, the Examiner will require properly executed formal black ink drawings or black and white photographs as a substitute for the originally filed color photographs prior to allowance of the claim. Solid black surface shading is not permitted on a design drawing, except when used to represent color contrast.

Section 1.165 is revised to provide that plant patent drawings must comply with the requirements of § 1.84. The current exception that plant patent drawings do not automatically require view numbers and reference characters is maintained. Two sets of the drawings are needed. One set will be forwarded to the Department of Agriculture and the other set will be routed to the Office of Publication and Dissemination, Patent and Trademark Copy Sales, for copying purposes.

OTHER CONSIDERATIONS

The rule change is in conformity with the requirements of the Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C. 601 et seq.), Executive Orders 12291 and 12612, and the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et seq.

The Acting General Counsel of the Department of Commerce has certified to the Chief Counsel for Advocacy, Small Business Administration, that these rule changes will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities (Regulatory Flexibility Act, 5 U.S.C. 605(b)). The principal impact of these changes is to revise and reformat the drawing standards to adopt international standards, to the extent possible, and to facilitate access to sections through inclusion of pertinent subsection headings, which should be helpful to small entities.

The Office has determined that these rule changes are not a major rule under Executive Order 12291 The annual effect on the economy will be less than $100 million. There will be no major increase in costs or prices for consumers, individuals, industries, Federal, state or local government agencies, or geographic regions because most of the changes reduce procedural burdens. There will be no adverse effects on competition, employment, investment, productivity, innovation, or on the ability of United States-based enterprises to compete with foreign-based enterprises in domestic or export markets.

The Office has also determined that these rule changes have no Federalism implications affecting the relationship between the National Government and the States as outlined in Executive Order 12612.

These rule changes contain a collection of information requirements subject to the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et seq., which has previously been approved by the Office of Management and Budget under Control No. 0651-0011.

Administrative practice and procedure, Courts, Freedom of information, Inventions and patents, Reporting, and Record keeping requirement.

For the reasons set out in the preamble, and pursuant to the authority contained in 35 U.S.C. 6, Part 1 of Title 37 of the Code of Federal Regulations is amended as set forth below.

PART 1 - RULES OF PRACTICE IN PATENT CASES

The authority citation for 37 CFR Part 1 continues to read as follows:

3. Section 1.19(a)(3) is revised to read as follows:

§ 1.19 Document supply fees.

* * * * *

(a) Uncertified copies of patents:

* * * * *

(3) Copy of a utility patent or statutory invention registration containing color drawing (see § 1.84(a)(2)) $24.00

4. Section 1.71(d) is revised to read as follows:

§ 1.71 Detailed description and specification of the invention.

* * * * *

(d) A copyright or mask work notice may be placed in a design or utility patent application adjacent to copyright and mask work material contained therein. The notice may appear at any appropriate portion of the patent application disclosure. For notices in drawings, see § 1.84(s). The content of the notice must be limited to only those elements provided for by law. For example, " ©1983 John Doe" (17 U.S.C. 401) and "M John Doe" (17 U.S.C. 909) would be properly limited and, under current statutes, legally sufficient notices of copyright and mask work, respectively. Inclusion of a copyright or mask work notice will be permitted only if the authorization language set forth in paragraph (e) of this section is included at the beginning (preferably as the first paragraph) of the specification.

* * * * *

5. Section 1.84 is revised to read as follows:

§ 1.84. Standards for drawings.

(a) Drawings. There are two acceptable categories for presenting drawings in utility patent applications:

(1) Black ink. Black and white drawings are normally required. India ink, or its equivalent that secures solid black lines, must be used for drawings, or

(2) Color. On rare occasions, color drawings may be necessary as the only practical medium by which to disclose the subject matter sought to be patented in a utility patent application or the subject matter of a statutory invention registration. The Patent and Trademark Office will accept color drawings in utility patent applications and statutory invention registrations only after granting a petition filed under this paragraph explaining why the color drawings are necessary. Any such petition must include the following:
(i) The appropriate fee set forth in § 1.17(h);
(ii) Three (3) sets of color drawings; and

(iii) The specification must contain the following language as the first paragraph in that portion of the specification relating to the brief description of the drawing:

The file of this patent contains at least one drawing executed in color. Copies of this patent with color drawing(s) will be provided by the Patent and Trademark Office upon request and payment of the necessary fee."

If the language is not in the specification, a proposed amendment to insert the language must accompany the petition.

(b)Photographs.

(1) Black and white. Photographs are not ordinarily permitted in utility and design patent applications. However, the Office will accept photographs in utility and design patent applications only after granting a petition filed under this paragraph which requests that photographs be accepted. Any such petition must include the following:

(i) The appropriate fee set forth in 1.17(h); and

(ii) Three (3) sets of photographs. Photographs must either be developed on double weight photographic paper or be permanently mounted on bristol board. The photographs must be of sufficient quality so that all details in the drawing are reproducible in the printed patent.

(2) Color. Color photographs will be accepted in utility patent applications if the conditions for accepting color drawings have been satisfied. See paragraph (a)(2) of this section.

(c) Identification of drawings. Identifying indicia, if provided, should include the application number or the title of the invention, inventor's name, docket number (if any), and the name and telephone number of a person to call if the Office is unable to match the drawings to the proper application. This information should be placed on the back of each sheet of drawings a minimum distance of 1.5 cm. (5/8 inch) down from the top of the page.

(d) Graphic forms in drawings. Chemical or mathematical formulae, tables, and waveforms may be submitted as drawings, and are subject to the same requirements as drawings. Each chemical or mathematical formula must be labeled as a separate figure, using brackets when necessary, to show that information is properly integrated. Each group of waveforms must be presented as a single figure, using a common vertical axis with time extending along the horizontal axis. Each individual waveform discussed in the specification must be identified with a separate letter designation adjacent to the vertical axis.

(e) Type of paper. Drawings submitted to the Office must be made on paper which is flexible, strong, white, smooth, nonshiny, and durable. All sheets must be free from cracks, creases, and folds. Only one side of the sheet shall be used for the drawing. Each sheet must be reasonably free from erasures and must be free from alterations, overwritings, and interlineations. Photographs must either be developed on double weight photographic paper or be permanently mounted on bristol board. See paragraph (b) of this section for other requirements for photographs.

(f) Size of paper. All drawing sheets in an application must be the same size. One of the shorter sides of the sheet is regarded as its top. The size of the sheets on which drawings are made must be:

(1) 21.6 cm. by 35.6 cm. (8 1/2 by 14 inches),
(2) 21.6 cm. by 33.1 cm. (8 1/2 by 13 inches),
(3) 21.6 cm. by 27.9 cm. (8 1/2 by 11 inches), or
(4) 21.0 cm. by 29.7 cm. (DIN size A4).

(g) Margins. The sheets must not contain frames around the sight, i.e., the usable surface. The following margins are required:

(1) On 21.6 cm. by 35.6 cm. (8 1/2 by 14 inch) drawing sheets, each sheet must include a top margin of 5.1 cm. (2 inches), and bottom and side margins of .64 cm. (14 inch) from the edges, thereby leaving a sight no greater than 20.3 cm. by 29.8 cm. (8 by 11 3/4 inches).

(2) On 21.6 cm. by 33.1 cm. (8 1/2 by 13 inch) drawing sheets, each sheet must include a top margin of 2.5 cm. (1 inch) and bottom and side margins of .64 cm. (14 inch) from the edges, thereby leaving a sight no greater than 20.3 cm. by 29.8 cm. (8 by 11 3/4 inches).

(3) On 21.6 cm. by 27.9 Cm. (8 1/2 by 11 inch) drawing sheets, each sheet must include a top margin of 2.5 cm. (1 inch) and bottom and side margins of .64 cm. (1/4 inch) from the edges, thereby leaving a sight no greater than 20.3 cm. by 24.8 cm. (8 by 9 3/4 inches).

(4) On 21.0 cm. by 29.7 cm. (DIN size A4) drawing sheets. each sheet must include a top margin of at least 2.5 cm., a left side margin of 2.5 cm., a right side margin of 1.5 cm., and a bottom margin of 1.0 cm., thereby leaving a sight no greater than 17.0 cm. by 26.2 cm.

(h) Views. The drawing must contain as many views as necessary to show the invention. The views may be plan, elevation, section, or perspective views. Detail views of portions of elements, on a larger scale if necessary, may also be used. All views of the drawing must be grouped together and arranged on the sheet(s) without wasting space, preferably in an upright position, clearly separated from one another, and must not be included in the sheets containing the specifications, claims, or abstract. Views must not be connected by projection lines and must not contain center lines. Waveforms of electrical signals may be connected by dashed lines to show the relative timing of the waveforms.

(2) Partial views. When necessary, a view of a large machine or device in its entirety may be broken into partial views on a single sheet, or extended over several sheets if there is no loss in facility of understanding the view. Partial views drawn on separate sheets must always be capable of being linked edge to edge so that no partial view contains parts of another partial view. A smaller scale view should be included showing the whole formed by the partial views and indicating the positions of the parts shown. When a portion of a view is enlarged for magnification purposes, the view and the enlarged view must each be labeled as separate views.

(i) Where views on two or more sheets form, in effect, a single complete view, the views on the several sheets must be so arranged that the complete figure can be assembled without concealing any part of any of the views appearing on the various sheets.

(ii) A very long view may be divided into several parts placed one above the other on a single sheet. However, the relationship between the different parts must be clear and unambiguous.

(3) Sectional views. The plane upon which a sectional view is taken should be indicated on the view from which the section is cut by a broken line. The ends of the broken line should be designated by Arabic or Roman numerals corresponding to the view number of the sectional view, and should have arrows to indicate the direction of sight. Hatching must be used to indicate section portions of an object, and must be made by regularly spaced oblique parallel lines spaced sufficiently apart to enable the lines to be distinguished without difficulty. Hatching should not impede the clear reading of the reference characters and lead lines. If it is not possible to place reference characters outside the hatched area, the hatching may be broken off wherever reference characters are inserted. Hatching must be at a substantial angle to the surrounding axes or principal lines, preferably 45. A cross section must be set out and drawn to show all of the materials as they are shown in the view from which the cross section was taken. The parts in cross section must show proper material(s) by hatching with regularly spaced parallel oblique strokes, the space between strokes being chosen on the basis of the total area to be hatched. The various parts of a cross section of the same item should be hatched in the same manner and should accurately and graphically indicate the nature of the material(s) that is illustrated in cross section. The hatching of juxtaposed different elements must be angled in a different way. In the case of large areas, hatching may be confined to an edging drawn around the entire inside of the outline of the area to be hatched. Different types of hatching should have different conventional meanings as regards the nature of a material seen in cross section.

(4) Alternate position. A moved position may be shown by a broken line superimposed upon a suitable view if this can be done without crowding; otherwise, a separate view must be used for this purpose.

(5) Modified forms. Modified forms of construction must be shown in separate views.

(i) Arrangement of views. One view must not be placed upon another or within the outline of another. All views on the same sheet should stand in the same direction and, if possible, stand so that they can be read with the sheet held in an upright position. If views wider than the width of the sheet are necessary for the clearest illustration of the invention, the sheet may be turned on its side so that the top of the sheet, with the appropriate top margin to be used as the heading space, is on the right-hand side. Words must appear in a horizontal, left-to-right fashion when the page is either upright or turned so that the top becomes the right side, except for graphs utilizing standard scientific convention to denote the axis of abscissas (of X) and the axis of ordinates (of Y).

(j) View for Official Gazette. One of the views should be suitable for publication in the Official Gazette as the illustration of the invention.

(k) Scale.

(1) The scale to which a drawing is made must be large enough to show the mechanism without crowding when the drawing is reduced in size to two-thirds in reproduction. Views of portions of the mechanism on a larger scale should be used when necessary to show details clearly. Two or more sheets may be used if one does not give sufficient room. The number of sheets should be kept to a minimum.

(2) When approved by the examiner, the scale of the drawing may be graphically represented. Indications such as "actual size" or "scale 1/2" on the drawings, are not permitted, since these lose their meaning with reproduction in a different format.

(3) Elements of the same view must be in proportion to each other, unless a difference in proportion is indispensable for the clarity of the view. Instead of showing elements in different proportion, a supplementary view may be added giving a larger-scale illustration of the element of the initial view. The enlarged element shown in the second view should be surrounded by a finely drawn or "dot-dash" circle in the first view indicating its location without obscuring the view.

(l) Character of lines, numbers, and letters. All drawings must be made by a process which will give them satisfactory reproduction characteristics. Every line, number, and letter must be durable, clean, black (except for color drawings), sufficiently dense and dark, and uniformly thick and well-defined. The weight of all lines and letters must be heavy enough to permit adequate reproduction. This requirement applies to all lines however fine, to shading, and to lines representing cut surfaces in sectional views. Lines and strokes of different thicknesses may be used in the same drawing where different thicknesses have a different meaning.

(m) Shading. The use of shading in views is encouraged if it aids in understanding the invention and if it does not reduce legibility. Shading is used to indicate the surface or shape of spherical, cylindrical, and conical elements of an object. Flat parts may also be lightly shaded. Such shading is preferred in the case of parts shown in perspective, but not for cross sections. See paragraph (h)(3) of this section. Spaced lines for shading are preferred. These lines must be thin, as few in number as practicable, and they must contrast with the rest of the drawings. As a substitute for shading, heavy lines on the shade side of objects can be used except where they superimpose on each other or obscure reference characters. Light should come from the upper left corner at an angle of 45 Surface delineations should preferably be shown by proper shading. Solid black shading areas are not permitted, except when used to represent bar graphs or color.

(n) Symbols. Graphical drawing symbols may be used for conventional elements when appropriate. The elements for which such symbols and labeled representations are used must be adequately identified in the specification. Known devices should be illustrated by symbols which have a universally recognized conventional meaning and are generally accepted in the art. Other symbols which are not universally recognized may be used, subject to approval by the Office, if they are not likely to be confused with existing conventional symbols, and if they are readily identifiable.

(o) Legends. Suitable descriptive legends may be used, or may be required by the Examiner, where necessary for understanding of the drawing, subject to approval by the Office. They should contain as few words as possible.

(p) Numbers, letters, and reference characters.

(1) Reference characters (numerals are preferred), sheet numbers, and view numbers must be plain and legible, and must not be used in association with brackets or inverted commas, or enclosed within outlines, e.g., encircled. They must be oriented in the same direction as the view so as to avoid having to rotate the sheet. Reference characters should be arranged to follow the profile of the object depicted.

(2) The English alphabet must be used for letters, except where another alphabet is customarily used, such as the Greek alphabet to indicate angles, wavelengths, and mathematical formulas.

(3) Numbers, letters, and reference characters must measure at least .32 cm. (1/8 inch) in height. They should not be placed in the drawing so as to interfere with its comprehension. Therefore, they should not cross or mingle with the lines. They should not be placed upon hatched or shaded surfaces. When necessary, such as indicating a surface or cross section, a reference character may be underlined and a blank space may be left in the hatching or shading where the character occurs so that it appears distinct.

(4) The same part of an invention appearing in more than one view of the drawing must always be designated by the same reference character, and the same reference character must never be used to designate different parts.

(5) Reference characters not mentioned in the description shall not appear in the drawings. Reference characters mentioned in the description must appear in the drawings.

(q) Lead lines. Lead lines are those lines between the reference characters and the details referred to. Such lines may be straight or curved and should be as short as possible. They must originate in the immediate proximity of the reference character and extend to the feature indicated. Lead lines must not cross each other. Lead lines are required for each reference character except for those which indicate the surface or cross section on which they are placed. Such a reference character must be underlined to make it clear that a lead line has not been left out by mistake. Lead lines must be executed in the same way as lines in the drawing. See paragraph (1) of this section.

(r) Arrows. Arrows may be used at the ends of lines, provided that their meaning is clear, as follows:

(1) On a lead line, a freestanding arrow to indicate the entire section towards which it points;

(2) On a lead line, an arrow touching a line to indicate the surface shown by the line looking along the direction of the arrow; or

(3) To show the direction of movement.

(s) Copyright or Mask Work Notice. A copyright or mask work notice may appear in the drawing, but must be placed within the sight of the drawing immediately below the figure representing the copyright or mask work material and be limited to letters having a print size of .32 cm. to .64 cm. (1/8 to 1/4 inches) high. The content of the notice must be limited to only those elements provided for by law. For example, "© 1983 John Doe" (17 U.S.C. 401) and "M John Doe" (17 U.S.C. 909) would be properly limited and, under current statutes, legally sufficient notices of copyright and mask work, respectively. Inclusion of a copyright or mask work notice will be permitted only if the authorization language set forth in § 1.71(e) is included at the beginning (preferably as the first paragraph) of the specification.

(t) Numbering of sheets of drawings. The sheets of drawings should be numbered in consecutive Arabic numerals, starting with 1, within the sight as defined in paragraph (g) of this section. These numbers, if present, must be placed in the middle of the top of the sheet, but not in the margin. The numbers can be placed on the right-hand side if the drawing extends too close to the middle of the top edge of the usable surface. The drawing sheet numbering must be clear and larger than the numbers used as reference characters to avoid confusion. The number of each sheet should be shown by two Arabic numerals placed on either side of an oblique line, with the first being the sheet number, and the second being the total number of sheets of drawings, with no other marking.

(u) Numbering of views.

(1) The different views must be numbered in consecutive Arabic numerals, starting with 1, independent of the numbering of the sheets and, if possible, in the order in which they appear on the drawing sheet(s). Partial views intended to form one complete view, on one or several sheets, must be identified by the same number followed by a capital letter. View numbers must be preceded by the abbreviation "FIG." Where only a single view is used in an application to illustrate the claimed invention, it must not be numbered and the abbreviation "FIG." must not appear.

(2) Numbers and letters identifying the views must be simple and clear and must not be used in association with brackets, circles, or inverted commas. The view numbers must be larger than the numbers used for reference characters.

(v) Security markings. Authorized security markings may be placed on the drawings provided they are outside the sight, preferably centered in the top margin.

(w) Corrections. Any corrections on drawings submitted to the Office must be durable and permanent.

(x) Holes. The drawing sheets may be provided with two holes in the top margin. The holes should be equally spaced from the respective side edges, and their center lines should be spaced 7.0 cm. (2 3/4 inches) apart.

(See § 1.152 for design drawings, § 1.165 for plant drawings, and § 1.174 for reissue drawings.)

6. Section 1.88 is removed and reserved.

§ 1.88 (Reserved)

7. Section 1.123 is revised to read as follows:

§ 1.123 Amendments to the drawing.

No change in the drawing may be made except with permission of the Office. Permissible changes in the construction shown in any drawing may be made only by the submission of a substitute drawing by applicant. A sketch in permanent ink showing proposed changes, to become part of the record, must be filed for approval by the examiner and should be a separate paper.

8. Section 1.152 is revised to read as follows:

§ 1.152 Design drawing.

The design must be represented by a drawing that complies with the requirements of § 1.84, and must contain a sufficient number of views to constitute a complete disclosure of the appearance of the article. Appropriate surface shading must be used to show the character or contour of the surfaces represented. Solid black surface shading is not permitted except when used to represent color contrast. Broken lines may be used to show visible environmental structure, but may not be used to show hidden planes and surfaces which cannot be seen through opaque materials. Alternate positions of a design component, illustrated by full and broken lines in the same view are not permitted in a design drawing. Photographs and ink drawings must not be combined in one application. Photographs submitted in lieu of ink drawings in design patent applications must comply with § 1.84(b) and must not disclose environmental structure but must be limited to the design for the article claimed. Color drawings and color photographs are not permitted in design patent applications.

9. Section 1.165 is revised to read as follows:

§ 1.165 Plant drawings.

(a) Plant patent drawings should be artistically and competently executed and must comply with the requirements of § 1.84. View numbers and reference characters need not be employed unless required by the examiner. The drawing must disclose all the distinctive characteristics of the plant capable of visual representation.

(b) The drawing may be in color and when color is a distinguishing characteristic of the new variety, the drawing must be in color. Two copies of color drawings or color photographs must be submitted.

(47) Use of Symbol "Ø" in Patent Applications

The Greek letter Phi has long been used as a symbol in equations in all technical disciplines. It further has special uses which include the indication of an electrical phase or clocking signal as well as an angular measurement. The recognized symbols for the upper and lower case Greek Phi characters, however, do not appear on most typewriters. This apparently has led to the use of a symbol composed by first striking a zero key and then backspacing and striking the "cancel" or slash" key to result in "Ø" which is an approximation of accepted symbols for the Greek character Phi. In other instances the symbol is composed using the upper or lower case letter "0" with the "cancel" or "slash" superimposed thereon by backspacing or is simply handwritten in a variety of styles. These expedients result in confusion because of the variety of type sizes and styles available on modern typewriters.

In recent years, the growth of data processing has seen the increasing use of this symbol ("Ø") as the standard representation of zero. The "slashed" or "cancelled zero" is used to indicate zero and avoid confusion with the upper case letter "Ø" in both text and drawings.

Thus, when the symbol "Ø" in one of its many variations, as discussed above, appears in patent applications being prepared for printing, confusion as to the intended meaning of the symbol arises. Those (such as examiners, attorneys, and applicants) working in the art can usually determine the intended meaning of this symbol because of their knowledge of the subject matter involved, but editors preparing these applications for printing have no such specialized knowledge and confusion arises as to which symbol to print. The result, at the very least, is delay until the intended meaning of the symbol can be ascertained.

Since the Office does not have the resources to conduct a technical editorial review of each application before printing, and in order to eliminate the problem of printing delays associated with the usage of these symbols, any questions about the intended symbol will be resolved by the editorial staff of the Office of Publications by printing the symbol "Ø" whenever that symbol is used by the applicant. Any Certificate of Correction necessitated by the above practice will be at the patentee's expense (37 CFR 1.323) because the intended symbol was not accurately presented by the Greek upper or lower case Phi letters (I, Ø) in the patent application.

(52) U.S. Accession to Hague Convention Abolishing the Requirement of Legalization for Foreign Public Documents

On Oct. 15, 1981, the Hague "Convention Abolishing the Requirement of Legalization for Foreign Public Documents" entered into force between the United States and twenty-eight foreign countries that are parties to the Convention. The Convention applies to any document submitted to the United States Patent and Trademark Office for filing or recording, which is sworn to or acknowledged by a notary public in any one of the member countries. The Convention abolishes the certification of the authority of the notary public in a member country by a diplomatic or consular officer of the United States and substitutes certification by a special certificate, or apostille, executed by an officer of the member country. Accordingly, the Office will accept for filing or recording a document sworn to or acknowledged before a notary public in a member country if the document bears, or has appended to it, an apostille certifying the notary's authority. The requirement for a diplomatic or consular certificate, specified in 37 CFR 1.66 and note 1 of 37 CFR 3.45, will not apply to a document sworn to or acknowledged before a notary public in a member country if an apostille is used.

The member countries that are parties to the Convention are:

Austria	Italy	Spain
Bahamas	Japan	Suriname
Belgium	Lesotho	Swaziland
Botswana	Liechtenstein	Switzerland
Cyprus	Luxembourg	Tonga
Fiji	Malawi	U.K. of Great
France	Malta	Britain and
Germany	Mauritius	N. Ireland
Fed. Rep. of	Netherlands	United States
Hungary	Portugal	Yugoslavia
Israel	Seychelles

The Convention prescribes the following form for the apostille:

Model of certificate

The certificate will be in the form of a square with sides at least 9 centimetres long

(53) Department of Commerce
Patent and Trademark Office
37 CFR Part 1 [Docket No. 71008-7208]

Variety Denomination Requirements for Plant Patent Applications

Agency: Patent and Trademark Office, Commerce.
Action: Notice of proposed rulemaking.
Summary: The Patent and Trademark Office proposes to amend certain of the rules of practice applicable to the patenting of plants. Under the proposed rules of practice, an applicant for such a patent would, in addition to any requirements for obtaining a patent, also be required to record an identifying variety denomination for the plant. These proposed rules fulfill an obligation imposed by the Convention of the International Union for the Protection of New Plant Varieties (the UPOV Convention), to which the United States adheres.
Dates: Comments on the proposed rules must be submitted by Jan. 8, 1988, to assure their consideration in formulating the rules put into effect. A public hearing will be held on Jan. 15, 1988, beginning at 9:30 A.M., in the Commissioner's Conference Room, Crystal Plz. 3, the Patent and Trademark Office.
Addresses: Address comments to the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Box 4, Washington, D.C. 20231. All comments received will be publicly available in the Patent and Trademark Office, Crystal Plz. 3, Arlington, Va., Rm. 11C28.
For Further Information Contact: Mr. Stanley D. Schlosser, Office of Legislation and International Affairs, by telephone at (703) 557-3065 or by mail addressed to the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Box 4, Washington, D.C. 20231.
Supplementary Information: The UPOV Convention became applicable to the United States on Nov. 8, 1981, as a consequence of the President's exercise of authority to adhere to this international agreement. Under Articles 6 and 13 of the UPOV Convention, each plant variety for which protection is sought must be given a variety denomination and that denomination recorded ("registered" in the language of the Convention) at least by the time the patent is granted. It is left to each of the UPOV member states to determine how recordation is effected. For the United States, the issuance of a patent which includes the denomination of the variety would constitute recordation and registration for the purposes of compliance with UPOV Convention. The patent examining process would include consideration of the suitability for recordation of the proposed variety denomination.

Attention is called to two earlier Commissioner's Notices on this subject. The Notice of Oct. 20, 1981 (46 FR 51426) stated that appropriate rules for the registration of variety denominations, as required by the UPOV Convention, would be issued. The Commissioner's Notice, published in the Federal Register on Aug. 16, 1985, 50 FR 33062, proposed amendments to the Patent and Trademark Office's rules of practice to carry out this requirement. In light of public comments received, the earlier proposed rules are being withdrawn from consideration and replaced by these revised proposed rules. These would apply to plants patented under either 35 U.S.C. 101 or 161, but would not apply to any protection sought under the Plant Variety Protection Act (7 U.S.C. 2321 et seq.), administered by the United States Department of Agriculture.

These proposed rules, in accordance with the patent law requirements for providing a descriptive title for a patent application, would require the variety denomination proposed for recordation to be included in the title of the application. The denomination would be judged for recordability by the examiner assigned the application for examination, who would consult with appropriate trademark examination officials to determine if there exists a possibly conflicting trademark registration or application for registration.

The recordation of a variety denomination for purposes of compliance with UPOV Convention Article 13 is not to be understood as conveying any legal rights in that denomination: Recordation does no more than establish a prima facie case that can be asserted as evidence of the possible generic nature of the variety denomination, if genericness is not already established by its usage in the commercial market, advertising or publication.

Under the proposed rules, the Patent and Trademark Office in examining the recordability of variety denominations will, in addition to its trademark records, utilize the Office's compilation of denominations obtained from horticultural, agricultural, floral and other professionalsocieties, national breeders' rights offices, the UPOV Union's Secretariat, standard references and other available sources. Article 13 of the UPOV Convention requires that the variety denomination must enable the plant variety to be identified, that the denomination not consist solely of numbers except if this is shown to be an established practice for designating plant varieties, and that the denomination not be liable to mislead or cause confusion concerning the characteristics, value or identity of the variety or the identity of the breeder. No specific naming system is required by the Article. While a portion of the consuming public and others might prefer plant variety names conforming to the International Code of Nomenclature for Cultivated Plants or the UPOV Guidelines, common usage, code systems or other ways of identifying plants cannot be ignored.

The Patent and Trademark Office would accept for recordation a variety denomination complying with the requirements of the UPOV Convention's Articles 13(2) and 13(4). A number of variety denomination systems currently in use, such as the system described in the 1980 revision of the International Code of Nomenclature for Cultivated Plants, the UPOV Guidelines and various code systems may also meet these requirements. Sexually reproduced varieties could be named in compliance with the requirements of the Federal Seed Act. In the event the examiner does not approve a proposed variety denomination for recordation, the applicant could petition the Commissioner for approval. Thus, the examination and approval of variety denominations will be handled in the same way as other procedural and administrative requirements not relating to the merits of the invention, such as the requirement to provide an abstract of the disclosure or the requirement to provide a title. A final refusal by the Commissioner on petition would require submission of another proposed denomination for recordation.

The petition to the Commissioner will be subject to a fee and the other requirements relating to petitions. The Commissioner may in appropriate cases delegate to the Assistant Commissioner for Trademarks or other appropriate trademark officials the decision of such petitions, under 37 C.F.R. 1.181(g).

The UPOV Convention requires the applicant to identify the patented variety by the same variety denomination (or a translation thereof) in all UPOV member states. A different denomination may be recorded in a particular member state, however, in cases where the denomination registered in another member state is unsuitable for business or other reasons. An applicant may during the course of examination be required to inform the Office of any other denomination by which the variety is known.

While these rules provide for the recordation of variety denominations, they recognize at the same time that, in cases of conflict, previously established proprietary rights are paramount. Recordation is in legal effect, therefore, no more than publication of a denomination which is or may become the generic name of a plant variety.

Trademark owners, owners of other proprietary rights and patent applicants share a common interest in knowing as early as possible if a variety denomination proposed for recordation possibly conflicts with a trademark or other proprietary rights. Accordingly, each denomination proposed for recordation, along with the genus and species to which the variety belongs, shall be published in the Official Gazette as soon as reasonably possible after receipt of the application in the Office. The Commissioner has determined that publication of such information constitutes special circumstances under 35 U.S.C. 122.

The public may provide information to the Office concerning the recordability of a proposed denomination. Such information would be entered in the official file wrapper of the application and be available to the examiner. Such information shall be called to the attention of the applicant by the Office.

Also, the Official Gazette would list newly recorded denominations in United States patents in order for trademark owners to assert their rights in appropriate cases through private negotiations or judicially, as they may now do in trademark cases. Proceedings in the Office in regard to the registration of variety denominations, however, will be conducted ex parte.

Under the proposed rules, each applicant would be required to specify in an application for protection of a plant variety the date of first use of the denomination if used prior to filing of the patent application, or later to provide information about the date of first commercial use during pendency of the application. In cases of conflict between a trademark and a proposed variety denomination, the variety denomination will not be accepted for recordation unless its first commercial use clearly antedates another's established rights.

If a patentee learns of a conflict between a trademark and the recorded variety denomination after issuance of the patent, the patentee in order to resolve the conflict will be permitted to record a different denomination by means of the Certificate of Correction procedure. Also, a variety denomination found after issuance of a patent to be commercially unsuitable or ill-advised could be changed in a similar manner.

The Office now permits plants and plant varieties to be patented both specifically and broadly under patent 35 U.S.C. 101. In some cases, however, claims in an application will not be limited to a specific variety. These proposed rules would apply only to applications where a specific variety or varieties are claimed. Only these need be identified by a variety denomination, except where the number of varieties involved makes this impractical. In such a case, each claim directed to a specific variety would include its variety denomination, but these variety denominations could be omitted from the title of the patent. Variety denominations would not be required for microorganisms or microscopic plant parts.

Other Considerations: The proposed rule change is in conformity with the requirements of the Regulatory Flexibility Act (Pub. L. 96-354), Executive Order 12291 and the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et seq. This rule contains a collection of information requirement subject to the Paperwork Reduction Act. This colletion of information requirement has been cleared by OMB under control No. 0651-0011.

The General Counsel of the Department Commerce has certified to the Small Business Administration that the proposed rule changes will not have a significant adverse economic impact on a substantial number of small entities (Regulatory Flexibility Act, Pub. L. 96-354). The variety denomination requirement will not impose extra work on patent applicants (whether small or large businesses or individuals). The rules will help avoid burdensome and expensive litigation over trademark rights.

The Patent and Trademark Office has determined that this proposed rule change is not a major rule under Executive Order 12291. The annual effect on the economy will be less than $100 million. There will be no major increase in costs or prices for consumers, individual industries, federal, state, or local government agencies, or geographic regions. There will be no significant adverse effects on competition, employment, investment, productivity, innovation, or on the ability of United States-based enterprises to compete with foreign-based enterprises in domestic or export markets.

3. Section 1.72 is proposed to be amended by adding the following paragraph:

§ 1.72 Title and abstract.

►(c) In the case of an application for the patenting of a plant variety under the provisions of 35 U.S.C. 101 or 161, the title of the application must include a variety denomination for the specific new variety claimed, except as provided for in§ 1.168(b). tional Convention for the Protection of New Varieties of Plants, as revised on Oct. 23, 1978.

4. A new § 1.168 is proposed to be added, to read as follows:

►§ 1.168 Variety denomination, submission to the Office, examination.

(a) The variety denomination submitted by the patent applicant under § 1.72 will be examined for compliance with the International Convention for the Protection of New Varieties of Plants. Specifically, the denomination:

(1) must enable the plant variety to be identified;
(2) must not be likely to cause confusion, to cause mistake or to deceive concerning the characteristics, value or identity of the plant variety or the identity of the breeder;
(3) must not consist solely of numbers except if this is an established practice for designating plant varieties; and
(4) must not be likely to cause confusion or mistake or to deceive as to any prior right of a third party, and shall not affect prior rights of third parties.

(b) If a proposed variety denomination is not included as part of the title of the application, when filed, the examiner shall set a period of not less than thirty days to provide a variety denomination. If a plurality of plant varieties are claimed, which make it impractical to include each variety denomination in the title of the application, each claim directed to a specific plant variety shall instead include the denomination of the claimed plant variety. In cases where no specific plant variety is claimed, for example, a patent directed to the improvement of a plant species, the denomination requirement applicable to the patenting of a plant variety or varieties will be waived.

(c) If the examiner determines that a proposed variety denomination is not suitable for recordation, the examiner shall refuse recordation thereof and shall set forth in an Office action the reasons for such refusal. An applicant disagreeing with the reasons for such refusal may request reconsideration and withdrawal of the refusal, giving the reasons therefor. If the examiner's refusal to record a proposed variety denomination is repeated and made final, the examiner shall at the same time require the applicant to propose another variety denomination for recordation.

(d) After a final requirement by the examiner for submission of a proposed new variety denomination, the applicant, in addition to making any response due on the remainder of the action, may in lieu of proposing another variety denomination petition the Commissioner for review of the examiner's holding, upon payment of the fee set forth in § 1.17(h).

(e) The applicant is required to submit for recordation the same variety denomination (or, if not in English, a translation or transliteration thereof) as that previously registered or recorded, or proposed for registration in an earlier filed application for protection of the same variety in another member state of the International Union for the Protection of New Varieties of Plants. The applicant may submit another denomination for recordation, however, upon a showing satisfactory to the examiner as to why the denomination originally submitted or registered in another member state of the said Union is unsuitable for recordation in the United States. During pendency of an application, the examiner may require the applicant to provide information regarding all denominations for the same variety registered or proposed for registration in other member states of the said Union before the application was filed in the United States.

(f) The applicant shall indicate in the application the date of first commercial use in the United States if any, of the variety denomination proposed for recordation; or, if not commercially used prior to filing of the application, indicate during pendency of the application when the denomination has first been commercially used in this country. No variety denomination will be recorded if first commercially used after the establishment of third party proprietary rights to the denomination.

(g) A patentee in order to avoid a conflict between a recorded variety denomination and a trademark or other proprietary right, or where the recorded variety denomination is likely to be confused with another, or where business or marketing considerations dictate, may propose for recordation a substitute variety denomination for that already recorded. Such a proposal shall be in the form of a petition to the Commissioner together with the fee set forth in § 1.17(h). The proposed substitute denomination will be examined in the same manner as the denomination originally recorded, and upon recordation shall be promptly published in the Official Gazette. A Certificate of Correction indicating such substitute denomination shall be issued for the patent. If the patent has been assigned, only the assignee of record may apply for recordation of a substitute denomination.

(h) The Commissioner shall upon its receipt in the Office promptly publish in the Official Gazette each variety denomination proposed for recordation and the genus and species of the plant involved. Correspondence from the public objecting to the recordation of such denomination, if accompanied by reasons therefor, will be placed in the official file and considered by the examiner in an ex parte manner. An objection to recordation may be based on an earlier recorded or unrecorded variety denomination, a registered or common law trademark, a trade name or trade indicia, or other alleged prior right timely called to the Office's attention. The applicant shall be notified by the Office of the receipt of such correspondence. The secrecy of any pending application will be preserved in accordance with 35 U.S.C. 122◄

(54) Summary Results of 1991 Patent Action Survey

The Patent and Trademark Office conducted a survey in the March-June 1991 period to gather information from patent practitioners and other Office "customers" about the quality of Office actions. Approximately 27,000 questionnaires (survey forms) were mailed with Office actions. Each survey form included 10 specific questions and provided space to make general comments. Each survey form identified only the Examining Group to which the application was assigned so that all responses would be completely anonymous.

Approximately 4,200 survey forms were returned (16% return rate).

Results

I. A tabulation of respondents' answers to the 10 specific questions revealed the following compliance rates relative to the accompanying Office actions:

35 U.S.C. 103 Rejections:

1. 72% identify portion of references relied on.
2. 70% indicate how teachings of references are modified or combined.
3. 65% communicate the rationale why the claimed invention would have been obvious.

35 U.S.C. 112, 1st para. rejections:

4. 58% sufficiently explain "new matter" position.
5. 67% sufficiently explain "non-enabling" disclosure position.

Final Rejection Practice:

6. 56% respond to applicant's arguments.
7. 52% of Advisory Actions identify new issues and/or new matter when denying entry.

Allowance Practice:

8. 90% of reasons for allowance were clear.

Miscellaneous:

9. 45% clearly communicate reasons for finding declarations/affidavits unpersuasive.
10. 54% of Examiner's Answers address appellant's arguments.

The questions relating to "Final Rejection Practice" and to the "Miscellaneous" topic areas asked whether examiners respond to attorney arguments and how attorneys interpret the examiners' responses to their arguments. These topic areas and others where there are relatively low compliance rates have been identified as areas of Office practice needing improvement.

The responses to the 10 survey questions show that continuous improvement has been achieved in several areas. For example, the high percentage of affirmative responses in the area of explaining 35 U.S.C. 103 rejections (72%, 70%, and 65%) reflects a clear improvement over internal surveys made within the last several years, and reflects the effectiveness of recent extensive Office training programs in this area. It is also apparent there is still room for further improvement. Another positive result was that 90% of respondents, commenting on Reasons for Allowance, felt that the reasons given were clear.

II. Analysis of respondents' general comments:

Over 1800 survey forms were returned with comments (43% of total responses). While these comments were directed toward many different areas, two major categories were apparent:

Category A: 62% of the comments expressed the need for additional quality improvement of actions.

The most commonly expressed comments in this category indicate that the quality of Office actions can be improved by giving a better explanation of the rationale or reasons in support of rejections. Examples of comments received include: all elements of claims are not addressed in 35 U.S.C. 102(b) rejections; one of the references used in a 35 U.S.C. 103 rejection is not explained; features of dependent claims were not treated; claim limitations were ignored; "boilerplate" 35 U.S.C. 103 rejections were being given; and it was difficult to understand the rationale for the rejection, and, therefore, to file a proper and meaningful response.

The second most common type of comment in this category indicated that examiners misunderstand an essential feature. For example: actions reflect a misunderstanding by the examiner of the scope and content of the prior art, the presently claimed invention, or the original disclosure. Further, comments indicate that some cited references seem to have no bearing on the claimed invention because the rejection of the claims is not supported by the disclosure of the applied reference.

Category B: 20% of the comments had compliments about the quality of Office actions.

The compliments acknowledged actions which presented a thorough analysis of the claim language with respect to the prior art references; which included suggestions for amendments to the claims so as to place the application in condition for allowance; and/or which gave a "tough" examination which would result in a stronger patent.

It is significant that the most common type of comment indicated that enhanced explanations would improve the quality of Office actions, while, at the same time, the second most common type of comment indicated that the quality of Office actions is considered to be very good in this regard. This seems to indicate that the quality of many Office actions are good, but that additional emphasis is still needed in this area.

Planned Initiatives:

The answers to the 10 questions and the comments are considered vital to current Office efforts to improve the quality of patent examination. The data, where statistically reliable, has been analyzed on an examining corps and individual group basis and the following initiatives have been, or will be, taken:

1. Update our continuing legal education program for experienced examiners with extra emphasis being placed on areas where improved performance is needed, such as the need for better motivation statements in rejections. Specific courses have been developed to provide tailored training in important areas, such as treatment of algorithms in claims, evaluating evidence submitted by applicants, and responding to applicant's arguments.
2. Enhance the Patent Academy curriculum for training junior examiners to place greater emphasis on the areas of examination where improved performance is needed, such as in responding to amendments after final rejection.
3. Implement focused training in each Examining Group to address specific technological/group specific problems that have been indicated by the survey. The training has been implemented in a variety of ways including one-on-one, art unit and group level programs. Form paragraphs have been developed to help ensure that applicant's arguments are appropriately considered and responded to in Office actions.
4. Develop follow-up surveys in order to determine if the corrective actions were successful. In this regard the answers to the questions and the concerns raised by respondents in their comments will serve as baselines for improvement.

The relatively small number of responses (only 16%, 4,200 responses from 27,000 survey forms mailed) resulted in statistically insignificant data for analysis of some questions at the group level. In part, this may have been due to confusion with prior perception surveys, requiring only a single response from each practitioner involved. Unlike perception surveys, each Patent Action Survey is specific to the Office action that accompanies it, and requests a brief response for that action. Hence, a practitioner who received more than one Office action with a survey form was requested to complete a survey form for each accompanying Office action.

The Office is planning follow-up surveys in FY-1992 and 1993. These surveys will be more meaningful and reliable if respondents answer the questions in as objective a manner as possible. Thus, respondents should try to objectively evaluate the accompanying examiner's action to see if that particular action did or did not include the feature(s) addressed by the question rather than whether there is agreement or disagreement with the examiner's position. Further, since greater participation would yield more reliable statistics, patent practitioners are encouraged to respond to future surveys.

Questions about the FY-1991 Patent Action Surveys should be directed to John Terapane, Director Group 1200, or Carolyn Ballard, Patent Action Survey Coordinator, both at (703) 308-0193.

(55) Report on the Quality Reinforcement Program

The Patent and Trademark Office (PTO) has instituted a Quality Reinforcement Program to identify services offered by the PTO that are in need of improvement. As a part of this program, the Office, in cooperation with the American Intellectual Property Law Association (AIPLA), has completed an evaluation of selected practices performed by both patent examiners and representatives of patent applicants during the examination process. The results of this evaluation are detailed in Volume I of the PTO Report of the Quality Reinforcement Program. A summary of the findings of this report is presented below. This summary is presented to report on the findings and to solicit suggestions from both the public and employees of the Patent & Trademark Office on steps that might be taken to raise the level of performance of those practices found to be in need of improvement. The full report and evaluation, which is quite extensive with over 350 pages, is available at the PTO.

Address: Comments and inquiries should be addressed to: The Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Washington, D.C. 20231, to the attention of Edward Kubasiewicz, Director, Examining Group 250, Rm. CP4-9D19.

Date: Comments should be submitted by June 16, 1987.

Assistant Secretary and Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks.

Summary of Volume 1-Report on Current Level of Performance of Selected Patent Examining Corps Practices

This is a summary of Volume I of the Quality Reinforcement Program Report, which addresses the current level of performance of selected Patent Examining Corps practices. This summary presents a background of the Quality Reinforcement Program and a synopsis of conclusions reached for each selected practice.

Background of the Quality Reinforcement Program

On Feb. 25, 1986, President Reagan issued an executive order establishing a comprehensive program for the improvement of productivity throughout all of government. From this executive order the Department of Commerce evolved a Productivity Improvement Program entitled PROJECT PRIDE. The program was announced as encompassing productivity, quality excellence and client satisfaction.

The role of U.S. Patent and Trademark Office (PTO) in PROJECT PRIDE centers around quality, and is entitled the Quality Reinforcement Program.

The goal of the PTO program is to improve the quality of patent examining functions and the timeliness and quality of other public services. In particular, the program focuses on improving the quality of practices performed in three different areas of the PTO, i.e., the Patent Examining Corps, the Office of Administration and the Office of Documentation.

The quality of an issued patent and the record before the PTO in the patented file are extremely important to the patent owner and to others who may be competitors or otherwise affected by the patent. Investment decisions and the recoupment of research, development and marketing expenditures often depend upon patent protection. Potential licensees and infringers need to know where they stand in regard to an issued patent. Patent owners and others need to be able to have a high degree of confidence in the validity of a patent. Valid patents and a clear and correct file record will help to eliminate unnecessary and expensive patent litigation costs which are currently estimated to total at least $800 million per year.

The concern for productivity and productivity improvement is not a recent development at the PTO. During the past quarter of a century one of the most pressing problems for the Office has been a large and growing backlog of unexamined patent applications and the resulting long pendency time between filing an application and issuance of a patent. The average pendency of patent applications in 1964 was 37 months. However, average pendency dropped steadily in the 1970s until it culminated in an average pendency of 18 months in 1977. This pendency was shortlived due to a loss of adequate resources. However, pendency is once again falling and it is expected that an average pendency of 18 months will be achieved in 1989.

Historically, the Office has successfully responded to situations similar to the one in which it presently finds itself. Beginning in the 1960s when the backlog of new applications exceeded 200,000, a program designed to drastically increase the productivity of the Corps was initiated. Part of that program was what has since become known as "compact prosecution". An increased staff of examiners was reinstructed to take a new approach toward examining in which patentable subject matter was looked for and indicated as early in the prosecution of the case as possible, references were automatically furnished with actions, attorneys were urged to originally file claims of the broadest possible range of scope, telephonic prosecution was instituted, first actions and application disposals became the measure of examiners' performance, preprinted first action forms were designed, etc.

The question before the Office now is whether sufficient attention is being given to quality. The intent of the Quality Reinforcement Program, as it applies to the Patent Examining Corps, is to take stock of the present situation and to consider whether any corrective action needs to be taken to improve the quality of the examination process.

The Office is currently using and improving various tools to assure a quality examined patent. These tools include the quality review program, supervisory reviews of examiner work through the performance appraisal system and through the promotion and signatory authority programs, improved and expanded examiner training, development of the automated patent system to improve the quality of examiner searching, recruitment of "top-of-the-class" new examiners, and detailed and clear guidlines on examining policy and procedure.

The Quality Reinforcement Program is a new quality tool for improving the actual quality of the patents issued as well as the record behind the issuance of these patents. This new program differs from the quality review program in that this program looks at the key pieces of the patent examining process that contribute to and make up the end product or patent rather than looking only at the end product. The Quality Reinforcement Program focuses on the effectiveness and consistency with which examiners apply existing law and procedures and how they communicate their findings to applicants. The program also focuses on the attorney's contribution to this work product. Lastly, the program focuses on the timeliness of some of the services provided by the Corps' clerical support staff. Such focusing is not intended to be carried out one time only. Rather, the methodology used in this program will be applied to any key pieces, identified by PTO personnel or the bar in the future, as needing a review of the type dictated by this program. The aim in short is to build quality and timeliness from the ground up and to maintain them at a high level.

This report presents and analyzes the findings of the Quality Reinforcement Program only as the findings relate to practices performed in the Patent Examining Corps. The portion of the program reported in this volume represents a cooperative effort between the Corps and the American Intellectual Property Law Association (AIPLA) through its Ad Hoc Committee on Quality. The focus is on certain practices involved in the prosecution, examination and processing of patent applications by both the PTO and by patent applicants and their representatives.

Methodology

The methodology adopted for the program comprises the following process:

1. select target practices,
2. determine the current quality or performance level of the target practices,
3. compare the current performance of the target practices to the desired level of performance,
4. implement, where appropriate, steps to raise the current level of performance to the desired level,
5. subsequently, determine the level of performance of the target practices, and
6. compare the current level of performance to the subsequently determined level of performance to determine what, if any, change has occurred.

Target Practices

A number of practices were targeted for the program as a result of complaints and concerns, raised by the bar and PTO personnel. The targeted practices are identified as follows:

A. Explanations of Rejections

This program targeted examiner "explanations of rejections" as a practice to be reviewed based in part on a deemphasis by the Office on the degree to which examiners were required to include detailed explanations of the supporting rationale behind their rejections during the 1970s. The PTO instituted the use of an abbreviated, handwritten form (PTO-1142) for the preparation of first Office actions during the early 1970s. The form provided for a cryptic description of how the references were being combined in a § 103 rejection and provided little space for explanation of the supporting rationale behind rejections. The form was mandatory for all first actions, and was discontinued in 1982 primarily due to complaints from the patent bar and the courts that examiner explanations of rejections were not sufficient. The inclusion of "explanations of rejections" as a targeted practice for this program enables the evaluation of whether further improvement is needed in this area.

B. Final Rejection Practice

This program targeted "final rejection practice" for review based in part on the conflicting needs of PTO and patent applicants/attorneys in this area of practice. In order to reduce the time applicants must wait to obtain a patent and to increase efficiency of the examination process, the PTO uses various incentives for examiners to make their rejections final early in the prosecution.

To the contrary, patent applicants often desire to have the examiner repeatedly reconsider his or her position or to continue to amend the claims. These conflicting incentives often lead to disputes relating to the propriety and/or timeliness of final rejections and to whether amendments are entered after an action has been made final.

C. Information Disclosure Statements

This program targeted "information disclosure statements" for review based upon concerns expressed by both applicants/attorneys and by the Patent Examining Corps over the submission of these statement.

Patent examiners, in the interest of efficiency and productivity, are benefited by the disclosure to the Office of all material information relating to the patentability of the application prior to their first Office action. However, this must be balanced against the practical reality that applicants/attorneys often don't become aware of material information until later in the prosecution, and don't have readily available translations of foreign documents or copies of documents for submission to the PTO. This practice looks at the extent to which the practical needs of both the PTO and the applicant/attorney are served by the procedures relating to "information disclosure statement".

D. Interviews

This program targeted "interviews" for review to determine the extent to which personal discussions are held between examiners and attorneys and to evaluate whether the parties consider personal interviews to be a productive or helpful means for clarifying issues that may not have been clearly communicated in earlier written communications. Selection of "interviews" as a targeted practice was based in part on isolated complaints by some examiners that interviews were not always productive for them and by some attorneys that some examiners are reluctant to hold interviews.

PTO procedures require that all business with the Office be conducted in writing (37 CFR § 1.2). To comply with this rule and still accommodate request for oral discussions with examiners, it is PTO policy that the substance of all personal interviews must be reduced to writing (see § 713.04 of the MPEP). Selection of "interviews" as a targeted practice was also based on concerns that the written record include an explanation of the substance of all oral interviews. Under this practice, the program focused on determining the perceptions of examiners and attorneys about interviews.

E. Responses by Applicant

This program targeted "responses by applicant" for review to determine the extent to which practitioners representing patent applicants submit responses to examiner actions that are complete and in compliance with current rules and procedures. Specific activities under this topic, such as the extent to which explanations of why claims are considered unobvious over the art cited by the examiner and the degree of compliance with 37 CFR § 1.116 when amendments are presented after a final rejection, were selected based upon some complaints by examiners about attorney responses in these areas.

F. Completeness of the Record

This program targeted "Completeness of the Record" for review based primarily upon the importance of a complete file record to those who must review patented files and make important decisions based upon the facts and determinations therein. The necessity of insuring a complete file record has been urged by such diverse interests as federal court judges, potential licensees, potential infringers, and those attempting to avoid infringement.

This topic looks at the extent to which examiners insure a complete file record by including a statement of reasons for allowance where appropriate, fully and properly record the search of the prior art, and check foreign priority information for accuracy and completeness. This topic does not look at the extent to which examiners explain their rejection; see targeted practice A, "Explanation of Rejections." The extent to which applicants file complete responses iscovered in targeted practice E, "Responses by Applicant."

G. Compact Prosecution

This program targeted "Compact Prosecution" for review based upon its importance as a key element in current PTO efforts to reduce pendency time of applications to an average of 18 months. The premise behind compact prosecution is that pendency time will be minimized if each stage of prosecution is fully and thoroughly conducted by both examiners and applicants. The demands of such a standard have inevitably led to complaints from each side relating to the completeness of considerations and the willingness to take that "extra step". Examiners have been criticized for confining searches to only what is literally claimed, and for failing to indicate possible areas of patentability at the earliest possible stage. Applicants have been criticized for failure to claim all limitations that might be considered patentable prior to the initial search by the examiner, for amending the claims to include these limitations only after first action, and for failing to correct significant formal deficiencies prior to initial examination.

H. Appeal Practice

This program targeted "Appeal Practice" for review primarily due to the recent and substantial increase in the backlog of appealed applications awaiting decision by the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences. Primary emphasis was placed on determining the extent to which appellant's brief and the examiner's answer are formally complete so that expeditious consideration may be given by the Board.

As a result of the high priority being given by the PTO to reduce the backlog of cases at the Board, additional survey questions were included to determine the extent to which additional requirements beyond those currently in effect for the preparation of the appellant's brief and examiner's answer would be useful to examiners and the Board.

I. Allowances After Appeal Brief

This program targeted "Allowances after Appeal" for review in response to complaints that examiners often allow cases after appellant has filed a brief when the cases should have been allowed before the brief was filed.

J. Processing Times

This program targeted "Processing Times" for review based upon its importance to the PTO goal of reducing pendency of patent applications to 18 months.

DETERMINATION OF CURRENT LEVELS OF PERFORMANCE

The step of determining the current level of performance of the targeted practices was accomplished through a number of surveys.

One survey, called the Applications Survey, was an internal factual survey that involved selecting a sample of 150 applications on a random basis from all the examining groups. A survey team, comprising three Supervisory Patent Examiners (SPEs) and three reviewers from Quality Review, performed a detailed review of the applications according to a questionnaire, which was developed with the joint cooperation of the AIPLA Ad Hoc Quality Committee.

A second survey, called the AIPLA Survey, was an opinion questionnaire provided by the AIPLA to 5500 of its members. The questionnaire was developed jointly with the AIPLA Ad Hoc Quality Committee. The AIPLA questionnaire sought the perception of the attorneys of the quality of the work performed by the Corps relative to the targeted practices. Space was provided for the respondents to include comments on the questionnaire. Over 1100 attorneys responded to the questionnaire.

Another survey, called the Examiners Survey, was also an opinion questionnaire provided to all patent examiners and SPEs on a voluntary and anonymous basis. The questionnaire queried the examiners and SPEs about the practices of the practitioners before the PTO. Space was provided for the respondents to include comments on the questionnaire. Over 650 responses were received.

A fourth survey, called the Appeals Survey, was also an internal factual survey. The questionnaire was developed with the cooperation of the AIPLA Ad Hoc Quality Committee. The questionnaire sought data about the practices carried out in the appeal process in the PTO. For this survey, 60 applications were selected on a random basis from all the examining groups. The survey team performed a detailed review of the applications according to the questionnaire.

Three other surveys were used to gather data. All of these surveys were developed and conducted by the Office of Quality Review. Two surveys involved the review of 1878 allowed applications concerning information disclosure statements. Another survey involved the review of 290 applications allowed after appellant had filed an appeal brief, but before an examiner's answer was prepared.

Relative to the processing times, PALM reports were used to obtain data on the practices targeted for this activity.

COMPARISON OF CURRENT LEVELS TO DESIRED LEVELS

The step of comparing the current levels of performance to the desired or standard levels of performance was accomplished by setting out the desired or standard level for each target practice. Next, all the information provided by the surveys was analyzed for each target practice and compared to the desired or standard level for the target practice. The analysis resulted in the following general conclusions. (A detailed listing of all conclusions for each targeted practice is presented in Section VII of Volume I of the Quality Reinforcement Program Report.)

SUMMARY OF CONCLUSIONS

A. Explanations of Rejections

1. Identification of Statutory Basis for Rejection

Over 95% of the rejections under 35 USC §§ 103 and 112, second paragraph (clarity), cited the statutory basis for the rejection. With respect to rejections under 35 USC § 102, 92% of the rejections cited the statutory basis. Hence, no significant improvement is needed in specifying the statutory basis of a rejection based on 35 USC §§ 102, 103 or 112, second paragraph.

With respect to rejections under 35 USC § 112, first paragraph, 14-19% of the rejections based on a non-enabling disclosure and 42% of the rejections based on new matter failed to cite the statutory basis. Hence, improvement is needed in specifying that a rejection, based on new matter or the lack of an enabling disclosure, is under 35 USC § 112, first paragraph.

2. Explanation of Rejections Based on Prior Art

Approximately two-thirds of the rejections reviewed failed to explain why the claimed invention would have been obvious in view of the applied prior art. Over 75% of the attorneys responding to the AIPLA survey perceived rejections under 35 USC § 103 as lacking an explanation of why the claimed invention would have been obvious. Moreover, 70 comments from attorneys (the highest for any topic) were critical of the explanations of rejections under 35 USC § 103. Hence, significant improvement is needed to assure that rejections based on prior art appropriately communicate the rationale for such rejections.

3. Explanation of Rejections Under 35 USC § 112, First Paragraph, Non-Enabling Disclosure

Nineteen percent of all the non-enabling disclosure rejections reviewed failed to give reasons in support of the rejection. Hence, improvement is needed in explaining why a disclosure is non-enabling.

4. Explanation of Rejections Under 35 USC § 112, First Paragraph, New Matter

With respect to rejections based on new matter, 35% of the rejections reviewed failed to pointout the language considered to be new matter, and 40% of these rejections did not give a reason why the language was considered new matter. Hence, significant improvements are needed in pointing out the language that is considered to be new matter, and explaining why the new matter is not supported by the disclosure as originally filed.

5. Explanation of Rejections Under 35 USC § 112, Second Paragraph

Approximately 90% of the rejections reviewed pointed out the claim language considered unclear. Thus, no significant improvement is needed in pointing out what claim language is considered unclear in rejections under the second paragraph of § 112.

Twenty-three percent of the non-final rejections reviewed failed to explain why the language was considered unclear. In final actions, 8% of the rejections failed to explain why the language was considered unclear. Hence, improvement is needed in explaining why the claim language is considered unclear in rejections under the second paragraph of § 112.

6. Alternative Rejections Under 35 USC §§ 102/103

Three percent of the actions reviewed contained alternative rejections under 35 USC §§ 102, 103. Ten percent of the examiners' answers reviewed contained similar rejections. The number of alternative rejections under either § 102 or § 103 was sufficiently low so that no further action is required.

B. Final Rejection Practice

1. Timely Development of Issues in Examiner and Attorney Communications

The perception surveys indicate that examiner actions and attorney responses leading up to final rejection do not adequately develop the issues. The objective Applications Survey data indicate that 32% of examiners' non-final actions do not fully respond to all arguments raised by the applicant. Improvement is needed by both examiners and attorneys in fully developing the issues prior to final.

Final rejections were found to treat all claims, but were deficient in answering all arguments presented by the applicant and in treating affidavits and declarations submitted to overcome rejections. Improvement is needed in responding to all issues raised during the prosecution when making a final rejection.

2. Appropriateness of Final Rejection

Thirteen percent of the final actions surveyed were considered premature. However, 91% of the final rejections reviewed were considered to be reasonable. Thirty-nine percent of the attorneys responding to the AIPLA survey perceived final actions as proper only occasionally or rarely.

Though examiners appear to be doing an acceptable job in making reasonable and proper final rejections, some improvement is needed. However, attorney perception is substantially lower than the factual findings. This may be due to a desire by attorneys for a more liberal after final procedure rather than improper examiner application of the current procedure.

3. Advisory Actions

Advisory actions were found to be mailed in a timely manner.

Thirty-three percent of the amendments filed after final were improperly refused entry. Only 46% of the attorneys responding to the AIPLA survey perceived that reasons given by examiners for the non-entry of amendments after final were clear almost always or most of the time. Moreover, only 50% of these attorneys perceived their response to final rejections to have been given full consideration.

In only 39% of the instances when an amendment to existing claims was entered after final did the advisory action clearly specify the grounds of rejection applicable to the amended claims.

Hence, significant improvements are needed in assuring that amendments after final:

a. are not arbitrarily refused entry,
b. are given sufficient consideration, and
c. communicate the ground of rejection for any claim amended after the final rejection.

C. Information Disclosure Statements

1. Frequency and Timeliness of Submissions

Information disclosure statements are submitted either as statements in the specification or as separate papers in approximately 60% of the applications. Eighty-two percent of the statements are submitted prior to the first action. However, 47% are filed more than three months from the filing date. In 1978, just after 37 CFR § 1.56 was amended, only 21% of the statements were filed more than three months after the filing date. Twelve percent of applications on appeal had statements filed after the final rejection. Two percent of the statements are filed after the application has been allowed.

Only 11% of the statements filed more than three months after the filing date contained an explanation for the delay.

Hence, significant improvements are needed for assuring that information disclosure statements are filed in a timely manner, and with an explanation for the delay when filed late.

2. Submission Includes Explanation of Relevancy of Documents

The explanation of the relevance of the art is substantially below standard whether the citation is incorporated in the specification or is in a separate paper. Hence, significant improvement is needed in assuring that explanations of the relevance of documents cited in information disclosure statements are provided.

3. Copy of Documents Supplied

Copies of cited documents, regardless of type, are not provided in approximately 60% of cases when statements are incorporated into the specification. Even when eliminating those statements citing only U.S. patent documents, the Applications Survey still shows a 25% level of non-compliance for specification-incorporated statements. There is a need for improvement in supplying copies of documents cited in specification- incorporated statements.

4. Translation of Foreign Documents Provided

Either a translation or a statement that a translation is not readily available is generally not provided when the citation is incorporated in the specification. While compliance with the standard is better when the citation is in a separate paper, compliance is still poor. Improvement is needed.

5. Form PTO-1449 or Equivalent

Since the use of PTO form 1449 is not mandatory, this section merely reports the degree to which the form is voluntarily used and is thus informational only. Form PTO-1449 is used in about 70% of disclosure statement submissions when the submission is in a separate paper. The form is used in about 25% of the disclosure statements incorporated in the specification.

6. Miscellaneous

Examiners considered art submitted prior to first action in 93% of cases reviewed. Improvement is needed to insure 100% compliance.

While the survey results indicate a perception by examiners that related copending applications are not being fully disclosed, no objective survey data was recorded on this topic. Since attorneys are only required to cite related applications that are material, the survey question does not measure perceived performance against the current standard. No conclusions can be reached based upon the survey data.

D. Interviews

1. Interviews in General

The results of the AIPLA survey indicate that, of the attorneys responding to the survey,

a. 75% perceived interviews as productive,
b. 89% perceived interviews to be kept as scheduled,
c. 68% perceived examiners to be adequately prepared, and
d. 85% perceived the interview summary form to be completed adequately.

The results of the Examiners Survey indicate that, of the examiners responding to the survey,

a. 53% perceived interviews as productive,
b. 96% perceived interviews to be kept as scheduled,
c. 88% perceived attorneys to be adequately prepared, and
d. 67% perceived attorneys as making the substance of the interview of record.

The survey results indicate that attorneys perceive that examiners are willing to grant at least one interview if timely requested. No need for improvement would appear necessary. A substantial number of attorneys(approximately 30%) feel that examiners are only occasionally or rarely willing to discuss and attempt to resolve substantive issues at interviews. However,examiners often express the desire to reserve commitments until after an interview so that full consideration of all points could be made. It cannot be concluded from the survey data whether examiners could be making more substantive commitments at interviews. No need for improvement is indicated. Some improvement is needed by attorneys in ensuring that an adequate written record of the substance of all interviews is provided.

2. Telephone Restriction

As a general policy, the examiner should telephone the attorney of record and request an oral election when making a restriction requirement. In 62% of the restriction requirements reviewed, the policy was followed. However, the telephone is not required to be used when examiners know that an election will not be made by phone. The number of instances of the remaining 38% where no restriction was made for this reason was not determined. Hence, while it appears that some improvement is needed, the degree of need for improvement cannot be determined without further study.

E. Responses by Applicant

1. Responses under 37 CFR § 1.111

Approximately 90% of the responses reviewed were technically fully responsive to Office actions. However, the percentage of responses that explained why the claimed invention would have been unobvious in view of the prior art was significantly lower. Moreover, some of the comments from examiners indicate that they feel responses often argue references individually rather than address the combination of references set forth in the prior Office action. At least part of this may be due to the lack of an examiner explanation in rejections how references are used and combined.

Hence, no significant improvement is needed in assuring that responses under § 1.1 treat all objections and rejections. However, significant improvement is needed in assuring that responses include an explanation of why it would have been unobvious to combine or modify the references in the manner suggested by the examiner.

2. Responses Under 37 CFR § 1.116

Only 16% of the amendments filed after a final rejection that were reviewed presented a showing of good and sufficient reasons why they were necessary and why they were not presented earlier. Moreover, 48% of the examiners and SPEs responding to the Examiners Survey perceived that attorneys generally do not start serious prosecution or make substantial amendments until after the final rejection.

Hence, significant improvement is needed in assuring that responses under § 1.116 explain why an amendment was not presented earlier.

3. Appeal Briefs-Responses to Rejections

Ninety-four percent of the briefs reviewed contained an explanation why the examiner's modification of the references would have been unobvious. Hence, no significant improvement is needed in assuring that briefs adequately communicate why the examiner's rejection is considered improper.

4. Affidavits/Declarations Submitted to Overcome Rejections

Approximately 20% of affidavits/declarations are not filed in a timely manner. Hence, improvement is needed in assuring that affidavits/declarations are submitted in a timely manner.

Examiner perception of the sufficiency of affidavits to either establish proper "nexus" when asserting commercial success or to present evidence to substantiate an allegation of "secondary considerations" was very low, indicating a need for at least some attorney improvement.

F. Completeness of the Record

1. Reasons for Allowance

In 22% of the applications reviewed, the reason for allowance was not clear from the record. Moreover, only 50% of the attorneys responding to the AIPLA Survey perceived the reason for allowance made of record by the examiner, as clearly establishing why the claims were allowed. Hence, significant improvement is needed in assuring that the record clearly explain why the claims were allowed.

2. Recordation of Searches

Eighty-five percent of the applications surveyed had search boxes properly filled out by the examiner. Approximately 45% of the applications, wherein an automated search was made, were lacking information about the automated search. Hence, improvements are needed in assuring that the search data are recorded in a complete and accurate manner.

3. Foreign Priority Data Verified

The priority/PCT data appearing on the face of the file wrapper were not verified in 23% of the applications reviewed. Hence, a significant improvement is needed in assuring that the priority/PCT data appearing on the file jacket are verified.

G. Compact Prosecution

1. Adequacy of Applications Prior to First Action

Applications should be devoid of obvious informalities. Significant improvement is needed in foreign origin applications since 70% of the examiners surveyed perceived foreign applications as containing substantial formal deficiencies almost always or most of the time. However, only 16% of the examiners perceived U.S. origin applications as containing substantial formal deficiencies.

The disclosure should be readily understandable and the claims should clearly define the invention to enable the examiner to conduct an adequate search. Improvement is needed in foreign origin applications since 20% of the examiners surveyed perceive such applications as lacking an adequate disclosure to permit examination almost always or most of the time. However, 97% of these examiners perceive U.S. origin applications as containing an adequate disclosure.

Claims should be presented that range from the broadest to the most detailed that applicant is willing to accept. Substantial improvement is needed in this area since the Applications Survey shows that only approximately 60% of the applications surveyed contained such a range of claims.

2. Searches

The first search should cover the invention as described and claimed. Substantial improvement is needed in conducting a more thorough search at the time of the first action since 50% of the applications surveyed revealed newly applied art in subsequent actions that should have been applied in a previous action.

A search should be made in the issuing class/subclass. Improvement is needed in this area because 11% of the allowed applications reviewed did not indicate that the issuing class/subclass was searched.

3. Indication of Allowable Subject Matter

Examiners should communicate certain aspects or features of applicant's invention that if properly claimed would receive favorable consideration. Significant improvement is needed in this area since only 59% of the applications that were deemed appropriate for an indication of allowable subject matter had such an indication.

H. Appeal Practice

1. Appellant's Brief-Format

Ninety-five percent of the briefs reviewed contained a concise explanation of the invention. However, only 46% of the explanations contained a reference back to the drawings and/or specification. Hence, a significant improvement is needed in assuring that appellant's explanation of the invention refers to the drawing and/or specification. Ninety-five percent of the briefs reviewed contained a copy of the claims. Hence, no significant improvement is needed in assuring that appellants provide a copy of the claims on appeal.

In addition, formal matters that are not currently required in briefs were found to be included in the surveyed briefs to the following extent,

a. 27% of the briefs included a separate summary of the issues on appeal,
b. 53% of the briefs included a citation of the references as well as an explanation of each reference,
c. 7% of the briefs included a reference back to the drawings or specification in the copy of the claims presented in the brief; however, 58% of the examiners surveyed thought that an appeal brief would be more useful if the claims on appeal were read on the drawings or specification, and
d. 2% of the briefs pointed out an exemplary claim; however 60% of the examiners surveyed thought that an appeal brief would be more useful if appellant is required to state whether all the claims on appeal stand or fall together.

The formal requirements of the brief should be reviewed to determine if these additional requirements would improve the manner in which issues on appeal and evidence in support thereof are set forth in the brief.

2. Examiner's Answer-Format

Ninety percent of the answers surveyed identified the status of all the claims in the applications. One hundred percent of the answers cited all the references relied upon in the appeal and pointed out any deficiencies in the copy of the claims provided by appellant. Hence, no significant improvements are needed in the format of the examiners' answers, as measured against the formal requirements for examiner's answers.

In addition, formal matters that are not currently required in examiner's answers were found to be included in the surveyed answers to the following extent,

a. 15% of the answers included a summary of the issues on appeal,
b. 40% of the answers included an explanation of the invention, and
c. 28% of the answers included an explanation of the references.

The formal requirements of the examiner's answer should be reviewed to determine if these additional requirements would improve the manner in which issues on appeal and evidence in support thereof are set forth in the examiner's answer.

3. Examiner's Answer-Completeness

Seventy-two percent of the answers reviewed responded to every significant argument raised in the briefs. Hence, a significant improvement is needed in assuring that examiners' answers respond to every significant argument/issue raised by appellants.

4. Post Examiner's Answer Practice

The Appeals Survey shows that a substantial number of reply briefs are merely noted with no further comment by the examiner. The findings are inconclusive regardingthe propriety of the reply briefs or whether reply briefs are being treated properly by examiners.

I. Allowance After Appeal Brief

Thirty-nine percent of applications allowed after an appeal brief had been filed were found to have no change in appellant's position. Hence, significant improvement is needed in assuring that applications are allowed at the earliest appropriate stage of prosecution.

J. Processing Times

1. 16 Mailing of Office Actions

Substantial improvement in mailing Office actions earlier than one month from the day when the examiners are given credit for the Office action has been accomplished since the inception of the Quality Reinforcement Program.

2. Mailing of Notices of Allowance

Substantial improvement in assuring that Notices of Allowances are mailed promptly has been accomplished since the inception of the Quality Reinforcement Program.

3. Responses to Amendments After Final

Substantial improvement in mailing responses to amendments after final has been accomplished since the inception of the Quality Reinforcement Program.

Perceptions

In addition to reaching conclusions on the current level of performance of each target practice, the program determined the opinions of patent examiners and representatives of applicants on various topics involved in the examination process. A summary of their perceptions is presented below.

Examiner legal proficiency was perceived by attorneys to be in definite need of improvement.

Examiner technical competency, care in doing the job, and neatness of attire were perceived by attorneys as more positive than negative, but in need of improvement.

Clerical competency and care in doing the job were perceived by attorneys to be in definite need of improvement.

Clerical functions including neatness of attire, cooperativeness, courteousness and availability were perceived as being more positive than negative, but with substantial room for improvement.

Attorney handling of foreign origin applications was perceived by examiners to be deficient in preparation of the case for examination. Attorney practices including continued prosecution after final, interview practice, submission of information disclosure statements and explanation of reasons for disagreement with § 103 rejections were also of concern to examiners.

(56) Diligence in Filing Petitions to Revive and Petitions to Withdraw the Holding of Abandonment

Once an application becomes inadvertently abandoned, it is incumbent on applicant to act with diligence in providing the response necessary to continue prosecution. Petitions to revive or to withdraw the holding of abandonment must be filed promptly after applicant is notified or otherwise becomes aware of the abandonment. Unless and until the Commissioner accepts applicant's response as sufficient and complete to revive the application or to withdraw the holding of abandonment, the application remains abandoned and the burden continues to rest with applicant to exercise diligence.

Some practitioners have demonstrated a lack of diligence in filing or renewing a petition to revive or a petition to withdraw the holding of abandonment. This appears to have been a conscious decision on the practitioners' part based on the belief that any delay in filing or renewing a petition could be cured by filing a terminal disclaimer equivalent to the period of delay in prosecuting the application. While the Office does have a policy of requiring a terminal disclaimer in those situations where there has been a delay of more than six months in filing a grantable petition to revive an application that has become abandoned [37 CFR 1.137(c), 1.316(d) and 1.317(c)], the terminal disclaimer has never been authorized or set forth in the rules as a substitute for diligence. Indeed, such an interpretation would be contrary to the traditional concept of reasonable diligence and is contrary to the explicit requirement of 37 CFR 1.137(a), 1.155(b), 1.181(f), 1.316(b) and 1.137(b) that a petition to revive be filed promptly. See In re Application of Takao, 17 USPQ2d 1155 (Comm'r. 1990).

Changes in Procedures for Revival of Patent Applications and Reinstatement of Patents

Agency: Patent and Trademark Office, Commerce
Action: Final Rule
Summary: The Patent and Trademark Office (Office) is amending the rules of practice in patent cases to: modify the petition requirements for reviving abandoned applications; extend the provisions for revival under the unintentional standard to applications abandoned under § 1.53(d); modify the requirements for a petition to accept late payment of a maintenance fee filed more than six months after expiration of a patent; modify the requirements for a petition to accept unavoidably delayed payment of a maintenance fee; and provide for reinstatement of a patent where the delay in timely payment of a maintenance fee was unintentional. The Office is also establishing the amount for the surcharge for accepting a maintenance fee after expiration of a patent for non-timely payment of a maintenance fee where the delay in payment is shown to the satisfaction of the Commissioner to have been unintentional.
Effective Date: Sept. 20, 1993. These rules will be applicable to all papers filed with the Office on or after the effective date.
For Further Information Contact: Jeffrey V. Nase by telephone at (703) 305-9282 or by mail marked to his attention and addressed to Office of the Assistant Commissioner for Patents, Box DAC, Washington, D.C. 20231.
Supplementary Information: In a Notice of Proposed Rulemaking published in the Federal Register (57 FR 41899) on Sept. 14, 1992, and in the Patent and Trademark Office Official Gazette (1143 Off. Gaz. Pat. Office 8) on October 6, 1992, the Office proposed to amend §§ 1.17, 1.137, 1.155, 1.316, 1.317 and 1.378. In an Interim Rule published in the Federal Register (57 FR 56448 on November 30, 1992, and in the Patent and Trademark Office Official Gazette (1145 Off. Gaz. Pat. Office 339) on December 8, 1992, the Office, pursuant to Public Law 102-444 enacted October 23, 1992, established interim rules for reinstatement of a patent where the delay in timely payment of a maintenance fee was unintentional. The Office also established the amount for the surcharge for accepting a maintenance fee after expiration of a patent for non-timely payment of a maintenance fee where the delay in payment was shown to the satisfaction of the Commissioner to have been unintentional. No oral hearing was held.

DISCUSSION OF SPECIFIC SECTIONS TO BE CHANGED OR ADDED:

(1) Post issuance fees. (§ 1.20)

Section 1.20(i) is amended to add a $1,500 surcharge fee for accepting the unintentionally delayed payment of a maintenance fee.

(2) Unavoidable or unintentional abandonment of an application

Sections 1.137, 1.155, 1.316 and 1 317 each provide for petitions to the Commissioner for relief from failure to timely comply with a requirement of the Office. Section 1.137 provides for petitions to revive patent applications abandoned for failure to prosecute where the delay in prosecution was unavoidable (§ 1.137(a)) or the delay was unintentional (§ 1.137(b)). Section 1.155 provides for petitions for acceptance of late payment of issue fees in applications for design patents as though no abandonment had ever occurred where the delay in payment was unavoidable (§ 1.155(b)) or unintentional (§ 1.155(c)). Section 1.316 provides for petitions for acceptance of late payment of issue fees in applications for patent as though no abandonment had ever occurred where the delay in payment was unavoidable (§ 1.316(b)) or unintentional (§ 1.316(c)). Section 1.317 provides for acceptance of late payment of the balance of issue fees in patents as though no lapse had ever occurred where the delay in payment was unavoidable (§ 1.317(b)) or unintentional (§ 1.317(c)).

In order to obtain relief under the unavoidable standard in the above-noted sections, the regulations continue to require the filing of a terminal disclaimer if the petition is filed more than six months after the date of abandonment. See §§ 1.137(c), 1.155(d), 1.316(d) and 1.317(d). The terminal disclaimer must disclaim a period equivalent to the period of abandonment. The period of abandonment is considered to be the number of months lapsed from the date of abandonment until the date of filing of a grantable petition.

Sections 1.137(c), 1.155(d) and 1.316(d) are amended to reflect the current practice that a terminal disclaimer filed for the purpose of reviving an application also applies to a patent granted on any continuing application entitled to the benefit of the filing date of the subject application under 35 U.S.C. 120.

Applicants may petition under the provisions of § 1.183 for a waiver of the requirement that a period equivalent to the period of abandonment be disclaimed if it can be shown that an extraordinary situation exists in which justice requires waiver of this requirement.

If petitions under the above-noted sections were not grantable because of insufficient evidence or petitioner's failure to comply with certain requirements, the Office dismissed the petitions. The dismissal indicated any missing items and warned petitioners that any renewed petition seeking reconsideration must be filed promptly. While the promptness requirement was not precisely defined, § 1.181(f) requires the filing of petitions within two months from an action complained of in order to avoid possible dismissal of the petition on the grounds that it was not timely filed. The above-noted sections are being amended to specify a two-month period or such time as may be set in the dismissal as being the appropriate deadline for requesting reconsideration. In those situations where petitioners require more time to gather additional evidence or items needed for reconsideration, an extension of time of up to four months may be obtained under the provisions of § 1.136(a). The filing of a renewed petition within the period specified in the decision or within the extended period permitted under § 1.136 will satisfy the promptness requirement of petitions under the unavoidable standard.

Upon failure to timely file a renewed petition under the unavoidable standard, the Office will require a showing of unavoidable delay for the entire period of abandonment. To be entitled to relief under the unavoidable standard, petitioner must be able to show unavoidable delay from a time prior to abandonment to the filing of a grantable petition. In re Application of Takeo, 17 USPQ2d 1155 (Comm'r Pat. 1990). Upon failure to timely file a renewed petition under the unintentional standard (see §§ 1.137(d), 1.155(e), 1.316(e) and 1.317(e)), petitioner may be subject to a loss of the right to proceed under the unintentional standard if more than one year lapsed between the date of abandonment and the date the renewed petition is filed.

The unintentional provisions specified in § 1.137(b) will apply to applications abandoned under § 1.53(d). Effective Nov. 5, 1990, the Commissioner waived, under § 1.183, the exception specified in § 1.137(b) as to applicability of petitions under the unintentional standards to applications abandoned under § 1.53(d). See "Petitions to Revive Patent Applications Waiver of Provisions of 37 CFR § 1.137(b)", 1121 Off. Gaz. Pat. Office 6 (Dec. 4, 1990). Section 1.137(b) is amended to incorporate this new practice into the regulations.

The Office is amending § 1.137(b) to clearly require applicant to state that the delay was unintentional, rather than the abandonment was unintentional. The Office has withdrawn its proposal that would have amended the rules of practice to require a terminal disclaimer if a grantable petition to reinstate an abandoned application was not filed within six months from the date of abandonment. The terminal disclaimer proposal was withdrawn because of the burden that such a requirement would impose on applicants and the Office and because it is unnecessary to achieve its intended purpose. The Office had suggested the terminal disclaimer proposal to ensure that any petition to revive was promptly filed. However, the proposed terminal disclaimer requirement is unnecessary to ensure prompt filing of the petition to revive since the first sentence of § 1.137(b) states that an application may be revived if the delay was unintentional. Accordingly, the specific requirements for the unintentional petition to revive have been amended to correspond to the existing rule provision that revival is available if the delay was unintentional, not just that the abandonment was unintentional. A person seeking revival should not make a statement that the delay was unintentional unless the entire delay, including the delay from the date it was discovered that the application was abandoned up until the petition to revive was actually filed, was unintentional. For example, a statement that the delay was unintentional would not be proper when applicant becomes aware of an abandonment and then intentionally delays filing a petition to revive the application under § 1.137.

The Office adopted a policy wherein, under certain strictly limited conditions, the one-year period for requesting revival of an unintentionally abandoned application could be waived. Accordingly, the prohibition against requests for waiver found in §§ 1.137(b), 1.155(c), 1.316(c) and 1.317(c) has been deleted. See "Petitions Under 37 CFR 1.183 to Waive the One Year Time Period Requirement in 37 CFR 1.137(b), 1.155(c) and 1.316(c)" at 1059 Off. Gaz. Pat. Office 4 (Oct. 1, 1985). However, applicants are cautioned that waiver of the one-year deadline under the unintentional standard will continue to be subject to strictly limited conditions.

(3) Issue and term of design patents (§ 1.155)

Section 1.155 is amended to be consistent with the changes to § 1.137. Paragraph (b) of § 1.155 is further modified to correct a typographical error. In the reference to the fee in § 1.17(1), the letter (l) should have appeared instead of the numeral (1).

(4) Application abandoned for failure to pay issue fee (§ 1.316)

Section 1.316 is amended to be consistent with the changes to § 1.137. Paragraph (b) of § 1.316 is further modified to correct a typographical error. In the reference to the fee in § 1.17(1), the letter (l) should have appeared instead of the numeral (1).

(5) Lapsed Patents; delayed payment of balance of issue fee (§ 1.317)

Section 1.317 contains a provision regarding issue fees paid prior to October 1, 1982. Prior to that date, the Office charged an initial base issue fee and, depending on the size of the specification and drawings printed, billed applicants for a balance of issue fee due. Subsequent to Oct. 1, 1982, all applicants were required to pay the same issue fee regardless of the size of the specification and drawings. Reference to the date in § 1.317 is being deleted at this point in time since it is no longer relevant to pending applications. However, practice under this section continues to be relevant when a fee change becomes effective before payment is received.

In order to satisfy the requirement of 35 U.S.C. 151, the Office mails out a Notice of Allowance which specifies the sum of the issue fee due. When the issue fee amount is changed, the sum specified on the Notice of Allowance is at times different from that required at the time payment is actually received in the Office. If applicants submit issue fee payments in the amount specified on the Notice of Allowance after the effective date of a fee increase, then a balance of issue fee is due. The Office will accept payment of the amount specified on the Notice of Allowance and process the application into a patent. In accordance with 35 U.S.C. 151 and 37 CFR 1.317, a notice is sent to applicants requesting payment of the balance of the issue fee due (the difference between the fee due at time of receipt of payment in the Office and the fee specified on the Notice of Allowance) and setting a three-month period for payment. See In re Mills, 12 USPQ2d 1847 (Comm'r Pat. 1989). Failure to pay the balance of the issue fee within the specified three-month period. result in lapse of the patent. Therefore, the reference to Oct. 1, 1982, in § 1.317 is being replaced by language specifying the consequences of failure to pay the issue fee due at the time payment is made.

Section 1.317 is amended to be consistent with the changes in § 1.137. Paragraph (b) of § 1.317 is further modified to correct a typographical error. In the reference to the fee in § 1.17(l), the letter (l) should have appeared instead of the numeral (1).

(6) Delayed payment of a maintenance fee (§ 1.378)

Public Law 102-444 amends subsection 41(c)(1) of title 35, United States Code, to permit the Commissioner to accept late payment of any maintenance fee filed within twenty-four months after the six-month grace period, if the delay in payment is shown to the satisfaction of the Commissioner to have been unintentional. In order to implement Public Law 102-444, paragraphs (a) and (c) of § 1.378 are amended to permit the filing of a petition to accept late payment of a maintenance fee, where the delay in payment was unintentional.

In addition to the timeliness deadline set forth in the preceding paragraph, a petition filed under the unintentional standard of § 1.378(c) would have to include the required maintenance fee set forth in § 1.20 (e) through (g), the surcharge for an unintentionally expired patent as set forth in § 1.20(i)(2), and a statement that the delay in payment of the maintenance fee was unintentional.

A person seeking reinstatement of an expired patent should not make a statement that the delay in payment of the maintenance fee was unintentional unless the entire delay, including the delay from the date it was discovered that the maintenance fee was not paid timely up until the maintenance fee was actually paid, was unintentional. For example, a statement that the delay in payment of the maintenance fee was unintentional would not be proper when patentee becomes aware of an unintentional failure to timely pay the maintenance fee and then intentionally delays filing a petition for reinstatement of the patent under § 1.378.

Petitions to accept delayed payment of a maintenance fee in an expired patent, prior to enactment of Public Law 102-444, required a showing of unavoidable delay. In the case of petitions filed more than six months after expiration of a patent, former § 1.378(c) further required a showing that the failure to timely pay the maintenance fee was beyond the control of the patentee. The Office had determined that the "beyond the control" standard did not find adequate support in the relevant statute (35 U.S.C. 41(c)) or in the legislative history of Public Law 97-247. See "Acceptance of Delayed Payment of Maintenance Fees in Expired Patents", 1115 Off. Gaz. Pat. Office 18 (June 12, 1990). Therefore, former § 1.378(c) has been deleted in its entirety to be replaced by the unintentional delay provisions discussed above. Additionally, § 1.378(b) is amended to provide that the unavoidable delay provisions are available at any time following expiration of a patent for failure to pay a maintenance fee.

Furthermore, the practice of accepting late payment of maintenance fees is modified to be more analogous to the practice of reviving abandoned applications and accepting late payment of issue fees. Additionally, the public interest is best served by prompt reinstatement of a patent in which there was an unavoidable or unintentional delay in the timely payment of the maintenance fee.

The requirements for a petition to accept late payment of a maintenance fee, where the delay was unavoidable, are outlined in paragraph (b) of § 1.378. In addition to the maintenance fee and surcharge previously required, paragraph (b) is amended to require prompt filing of a petition after the patentee is notified, or otherwise becomes aware, of the expiration of the patent.

Response to Comments on the Rules

Four comments were received.
Comment 1: One comment questioned the time limits in proposed § 1.378(c)(5).
Reply: The proposed time limits will not be adopted because Public Law 102-444 sets the time limit for filing a petition to accept the delayed payment of a maintenance fee at twenty-four months after the six-month grace period provided in 35 U.S.C. 41(c).

Comment 2: One comment questioned the proposed terminal disclaimer requirement for petitions to revive an abandoned application under the unintentional standard.

Reply: The proposed terminal disclaimer requirement for petitions to revive an abandoned application under the unintentional standard will not be adopted. First, it has been determined that the proposed terminal disclaimer requirement would have created an unduly complex procedure for both the applicant and the Office. Second, the terminal disclaimer requirement is unnecessary to address a delay in filing a petition for unintentional abandonment since § 1.137(b) already indicates that the application may be revived if the delay was unintentional. If a delay in filing a petition was intentional, the petition would be denied. Third, the requirements for a petition have been amended to add the requirement for a statement that the delay in responding was unintentional so as to be consistent with the requirements of the first sentence of § 1.137(b). Finally, applicants are cautioned against intentionally delaying the filing of a petition to revive an abandoned application because it may preclude any revival from an abandoned status. Applicants have delayed filing a petition under the unintentional standard until after expiration of the one-year period because of a miscalculation of the one-year period. This miscalculation resulted in the applicant being unable to show that the delay was unavoidable. In re Application of S, 8 USPQ2d 1630 (Comm'r Pat. 1988).

Comment 3: One comment questioned whether Public Law 102-444 and therefore 37 CFR 1.378(c) were applicable to patents that had expired prior to Oct. 23, 1992, for failure to timely pay the required maintenance fee.

Reply: Section 1.378 has been established in accordance with the statutory mandate. Public Law 102-444 and 37 CFR 1.378(c) are effective as to any patent that would be covered by the literal language of the sections. Public Law 102-444 and interim rule 37 CFR 1.378(c) were effective Oct. 23, 1992. Since Public Law 102-444 provides up to a twenty-four month period after the six-month grace period provided in 35 U.S.C. 41(c) to seek reinstatement of an expired patent where the delay was unintentional, any patent that expired on or after Oct. 23, 1990, for failure to timely pay a maintenance fee is eligible for relief under 37 CFR 1.378(c). However, it should be noted that a petition to reinstate an unintentionally expired patent, the required maintenance fee, and the unintentional surcharge (37 CFR 1.20(i)(2)) must be filed within twenty-four months after the six-month grace period to be eligible for relief under the new unintentional provision.

Comment 4: One comment protested that the $1,500 surcharge established in § 1.20(i)(2) was too high.

Reply: The $1,500 surcharge established in § 1.20(i)(2) is proper. The amount of $1,500 was determined by considering: (1) the $1,170 petition fee for reinstating an unintentionally abandoned patent application, (2) the relationship imposed by statute between the $1,170 petition fee for reinstating an unintentionally abandoned patent application and the $110 petition fee for reinstating an unavoidably abandoned patent application, and (3) the $620 surcharge for reinstating an unavoidably expired patent. Additionally, the Office noted in its original request for comments on the desirability of permitting acceptance of unintentionally delayed payment of maintenance fees (see 1089 Off. Gaz. Pat. Office 55, April 26, 1988) that the surcharge to accept an unintentionally delayed payment of a maintenance fee would be substantially higher than the surcharge to accept an unavoidably delayed payment of a maintenance fee. Not only was there no comment adverse to the suggestion of a higher fee, one comment suggested that the surcharge to accept an unintentionally delayed payment of a maintenance fee be set extremely high so that the Office could be assured that the late payment was, in fact, unintentional. The Office, after taking all of the above into consideration, determined that $1,500 was an appropriate amount to charge as the surcharge to accept an unintentionally delayed payment of a maintenance fee.

OTHER CONSIDERATIONS

The rule change is in conformity with the requirements of the Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C. 601 et seq., Executive Orders 12291 and 12612, and the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et seq.

The General Counsel of the Department of Commerce has certified to the Chief Counsel for Advocacy, Small Business Administration, that these rule changes will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities (Regulatory Flexibility Act, 5 U.S.C. 605(b)). The principal impact of these changes is to incorporate Public Law 102-444 into the regulations and will give relief to many small entities that do not now have a mechanism to reinstate their expired patent.

The Office has determined that this rule change is not a major rule under Executive Order 12291. The annual effect on the economy will be less than $100 million. There will be no major increase in costs or prices for consumers; individuals; industries; Federal, state or local government agencies; or geographic regions. There will be no significant adverse effects on competition, employment, investment, productivity, innovation, or on the ability of United States-based enterprises to compete with foreign-based enterprises in domestic or export markets.

The Office has also determined that this notice has no Federalism implications affecting the relationship between the National Government and the States as outlined in Executive Order 12612.

These rule changes contain a collection of information requirements subject to the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et seq., which have previously been approved by the Office of Management and Budget under Control Nos. 0651-0016 and 0651-0031. The public reporting burden for these collections of information for abandoned applications and delayed maintenance fees is estimated to average 1.0 hour each including the time for reviewing instructions, searching existing data sources, gathering and maintaining the data needed, and completing and reviewing the collections of information. Send comments regarding these burden estimates, or any other aspect of these collections of information, including suggestions for reducing the burden, to Jeffrey V. Nase, Office of the Assistant Commissioner for Patents, Box DAC, Washington, D.C. 20231; and to the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs, Office of Management and Budget, Washington, D.C. 20503 (ATTN: Paperwork Reduction Act Project 0651-0011 and 0651-0016).

(a) The Commissioner may accept the payment of any maintenance fee due on a patent after expiration of the patent if, upon petition, the delay in payment of the maintenance fee is shown to the satisfaction of the Commissioner to have been unavoidable (paragraph (b) of this section) or unintentional (paragraph (c) of this section) and if the surcharge required by § 1.20(i) is paid as a condition of accepting payment of the maintenance fee. If the Commissioner accepts payment of the maintenance fee upon petition, the patent shall be considered as not having expired, but will be subject to the conditions set forth in 35 U.S.C. 41(c)(2).

(b) Any petition to accept an unavoidably delayed payment of a maintenance fee filed under paragraph (a) of this section must include:

(1) the required maintenance fee set forth in § 1.20(e) through (g)

(2) the surcharge set forth in § 1.20(i)(1); and

(3) a showing that the delay was unavoidable since reasonable care was taken to ensure that the maintenance fee would be paid timely and that the petition was filed promptly after the patentee was notified of, or otherwise became aware of, the expiration of the patent. The showing must enumerate the steps taken to ensure timely payment of the maintenance fee, the date and the manner in which patentee became aware of theexpiration of the patent, and the steps taken to file the petition promptly.

(c) Any petition to accept an unintentionally delayed payment of a maintenance fee filed under paragraph (a) of this section must be filed within twenty-four months after the six-month grace period provided in § 1.362(e) and must include:

(1) the required maintenance fee set forth in § 1.20 (e) through (g);

(2) the surcharge set forth in § 1.20(i)(2); and

(3) a statement that the delay in payment of the maintenance fee was unintentional.

* * * * *

(e) Reconsideration of a decision refusing to accept a maintenance fee upon petition filed pursuant to paragraph (a) of this section may be obtained by filing a petition for reconsideration within two months of, or such other time as set in, the decision refusing to accept the delayed payment of the maintenance fee. Any such petition for reconsideration must be accompanied by the petition fee set forth in § 1.17(h). After decision on the petition for reconsideration, no further reconsideration or review of the matter will be undertaken by the Commissioner. If the delayed payment of the maintenance fee is not accepted, the maintenance fee and the surcharge set forth in § 1.20(i) will be refunded following the decision on the petition for reconsideration, or after the expiration of the time for filing such a petition for reconsideration, if none is filed. Any petition fee under this section will not be refunded unless the refusal to accept and record the maintenance fee is determined to result from an error by the Patent and Trademark Office.

Changes in Procedures for Reinstatement of Patents

Agency: Patent and Trademark Office, Commerce
Action: Interim Rule
Summary: The Patent and Trademark Office (Office) is amending the rules of practice in patent cases to provide for reinstatement of a patent where the delay in timely payment of a maintenance fee was unintentional. The Office is also establishing the amount for the surcharge for accepting a maintenance fee after expiration of a patent for non-timely payment of a maintenance fee where the delay in payment is shown to the satisfaction of the Commissioner to have been unintentional.
Dates: Interim rule effective Oct. 23, 1992. These rules will be applicable to all petitions to reinstate an expired patent filed with the Office on or after the effective date. The surcharge cited in sections 1.20(i)(2) and 1.378(c)(2) of title 37 of the Code of Federal Regulations will be effective thirty days from publication of this rulemaking in the Federal Register or the Official Gazette of the Patent and Trademark Office, whichever is later. Written comments on this rulemaking must be received on or before Jan. 8, 1993 to ensure consideration. An oral hearing will not be conducted.
Addresses: Address written comments on this interim rulemaking to Office of the Assistant Commissioner for Patents, Box DAC, Washington, D.C. 20231, marked to the attention of Jeffrey V. Nase. Correspondence may be sent by FAX to the attention of Jeffrey V. Nase at (703) 305-8825.
For Further Information Contact: Jeffrey V. Nase by telephone at (703) 305-9282 or by mail marked to his attention and addressed to Office of the Assistant Commissioner for Patents, Box DAC, Washington, D.C. 20231.
Supplementary Information: In a Notice of Proposed Rulemaking published in the Federal Register (57 FR 41899) on Sept. 14, 1992, and in the Patent and Trademark Office Official Gazette (1143 Off. Gaz. Pat. Office 8) on Oct. 6, 1992, the Office proposed to amend the current regulations in the event that proposed statutory changes were enacted to allow for the reinstatement of a patent where the delay in timely payment of a maintenance fee was unintentional.

Section 41 of title 35, United States Code, establishes fees that the Commissioner shall charge for patent-related matters. A bill to amend title 35 with respect to the late payment of maintenance fees was introduced on June 4, 1992, in the House of Representatives as H.R. 5328 (hereafter, Bill). The Bill, as introduced, proposed to: (1) amend 35 U.S.C. § 41(c)(1) to permit reinstatement of a patent which expired unintentionally for failure to timely pay the maintenance fee, provided that the payment is made within eighteen months after the six-month grace period specified in 35 U.S.C. § 41(b); and (2) amend 35 U.S.C. § 41(a)(7) to require a petition fee for an unintentionally delayed payment for maintaining a patent in force. The Bill, with amendments, was enacted as Public Law No. 102-444 (hereafter, Act).

The Act amends 35 U.S.C. § 41(c)(1) to permit reinstatement of a patent which expired unintentionally for failure to timely pay the maintenance fee, provided that the payment is made within twenty-four months after the six-month grace period specified in 35 U.S.C. § 41(b).

Since the Act is effective on enactment and since it differs significantly from the Bill, as introduced, it is necessary to promulgate this interim rulemaking. This interim rulemaking implements the procedures the Office will follow to accept the unintentionally delayed payment of a maintenance fee. All aspects of this rulemaking either confer a benefit or are clearly and directly related to the benefit conferred. Therefore, this rulemaking is exempt from the Administrative Procedures Act's rulemaking requirements under the proprietary matters exception, 5 U.S.C. § 553(a)(2). Furthermore, any delay in the implementation of this interim rulemaking would be contrary to the public interest in granting relief by ensuring that patents unintentionally expired for failure to pay the required maintenance fee are promptly reinstated.

Under the Act, the Commissioner has authority to set a surcharge for accepting the unintentionally delayed payment of a maintenance fee. The Commissioner has determined that an interim surcharge of $1,500 is appropriate. If a surcharge in a lower amount is finally adopted (after review of public comments in response to this interim rulemaking), patentees will be refunded any excess payment. The $1,500 interim surcharge was determined to be the appropriate amount when compared to the existing $620 surcharge for accepting the unavoidably delayed payment of a maintenance fee. The higher interim surcharge is appropriate since a petition to accept the unintentionally delayed payment of a maintenance fee will require only a statement that the delay in payment of the maintenance fee was unintentional, not a showing of facts sufficient to establish unavoidable delay. Furthermore, the higher amount for relief based on the unintentional delay relative to those based on unavoidable delay is similar to the statutory difference in fees for petitioning to revive an abandoned application.

The $1,500 interim surcharge will not take effect until the date thirty days from publication of this interim rulemaking in the Federal Register or the Official Gazette of the Patent and Trademark Office, whichever is later. Section 1.378(c)(2) is waived until the $1,500 surcharge becomes effective. However, petitions to accept the delayed payment of a maintenance fee should not be delayed for that thirty-day period. The surcharge for the acceptance of a maintenance fee resulting from a petition filed under this waiver will be due when the petition is granted.

One comment on the proposed § 1.378 has been received.

Comment: The comment questioned the time limits proposed for § 1.378(c)(5).
Reply: The proposed time limits will not be adopted because the Act sets the time limit for filing a petition to accept the delayed payment of a maintenance fee.

Any final rule will treat both the comments made to the proposed rules and to these interim rules.

DISCUSSION OF SPECIFIC SECTIONS TO BE CHANGED OR ADDED:

(1) Post issuance fees. (§ 1.20)

Section 1.20(i) is amended to add a $1,500 surcharge fee for accepting the unintentionally delayed payment of a maintenance fee. This amendment will not become effective until the date thirty days after Publication of this interim rulemaking in the Federal Register or in the Official Gazette of the Patent and Trademark Office, whichever is later.

(2) Delayed payment of a maintenance fee (§ 1.378)

The Act amends subsection 41(c)(1) of title 35, United States Code, to permit the Commissioner to accept late payment of any maintenance fee filed within twenty-four months after the six-month grace period, if the delay in payment is shown to the satisfaction of the Commissioner to have been unintentional. In order to implement the Act, paragraphs (a) and (c) of § 1.378 are amended to permit the filing of a petition to accept late payment of a maintenance fee, where the delay in payment was unintentional.

In addition to the timeliness deadlines set forth in the preceding paragraph, a petition filed under the unintentional standard of § 1.378(c) would have to include the required maintenance fee set forth in § 1.20(e) through (g), the surcharge for an unintentionally expired patent as set forth in § 1.20(i)(2), and a statement that the delay in payment of the maintenance fee was unintentional. The requirement of § 1.378(c)(2) that the petition must include the surcharge will be waived until the date thirty days after publication of this interim rulemaking in the Federal Register or in the Official Gazette of the Patent and Trademark Office, whichever is later. The surcharge for the acceptance of a maintenance fee resulting from a petition filed under this waiver will be due when the petition is granted.

A statement that the delay in payment of the maintenance fee was unintentional would not be appropriate unless the entire delay, up until the maintenance fee was actually paid, was unintentional. For example, a statement that the delay in payment of the maintenance fee was unintentional would not be proper when patentee becomes aware of an unintentional failure to timely pay the maintenance fee and then intentionally delays filing a petition for reinstatement of the patent under § 1.378.

Petitions to accept delayed payment of a maintenance fee in an expired patent, prior to enactment of the Act, required a showing of unavoidable delay. In the case of petitions filed more than six months after expiration of a patent, current § 1.378(c) further required a showing that the failure to timely pay the maintenance fee was beyond the control of the patentee. The Office has determined that the "beyond the control" standard does not find adequate support in the relevant statute (35 U.S.C. 41(c)) or in the legislative history of Public Law 97-247. See "acceptance of Delayed Payment of Maintenance Fees in Expired Patents", 1115 Off. Gaz. Pat. Office 18 (June 12, 1990). Therefore, current § 1.378(c) is being deleted in its entirety to be replaced by the unintentional delay provisions discussed above. Additionally, § 1.378(b) is amended to provide that the unavoidable delay provisions are available at any time following expiration of a patent for failure to pay a maintenance fee.

OTHER CONSIDERATIONS

The rule changes is in conformity with the requirements of the Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C. 601 et. seq.), Executive Orders 12291 and 12612 and the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et seq.

The General Counsel of the Department of Commerce has certified to the Chief Counsel for Advocacy, Small Business Administration, that these rule changes will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities (regulatory Flexibility Act, 5 U.S.C. 605(b)). The principal impact of these changes is to incorporate the Act into the regulations and will give relief to many small entities that do not now have a mechanism to reinstate their expired patent.

The Office has determined that this rule change is not a major rule under Executive Order 12291. The annual effect on the economy will be less than $100 million. There will be no major increase in costs or prices for consumers; individuals; industries; Federal, state or local government agencies; or geographic regions. There will be no significant adverse effects on competition, employment, investment, productivity, innovation, or on the ability of United States-based enterprises to compete with foreign-based enterprises in domestic or export markets.

The Office has also determined that this notice has no Federalism implications affecting the relationship between the National Government and the States as outlined in Executive Order 12612.

These rule changes contain a collection of information requirement subject to the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et seq., which has previously been approved by the Office of Management and Budget under Control Nos. 0651-011 and 0651-0016.

(59) Withdrawing the Holding of Abandonment When Office Actions Are Not Received

The purpose of this notice is to announce a practice that will minimize costs and burdens to the practitioner and the Office when an application has become abandoned due to a failure to receive an Office action.

A petition to withdraw the holding of abandonment in accordance with Delgar Inc. v. Schuyler, 172 USPQ 513 (D.D.C. 1971) is burdensome to the practitioner since the practitioner must overcome a strong presumption that an Office action duly addressed and indicated as mailed was timely delivered to the addressee. To overcome this presumption, a practitioner is currently required to submit a persuasive showing that would permit the Office to conclude that the Office action was not received. Accordingly, evidence which is typically required includes: copies of records which would disclose the receipt of other correspondence mailed from the Patent and Trademark Office on or about the mail date of the non-received Office action, but fail to disclose receipt of the Office action mailed that date; copies of records on which the Office action would have been entered had it been received (e.g., a copy of the outside of the file jacket maintained by the practitioner); and verified statements from persons who would have handled the Office action (e.g., mail clerks, docket clerks, secretary, etc.).

In order to minimize costs and burdens to the practitioner and the Office when an application has become abandoned due to a failure to receive an Office action, the Office is modifying the showing required to make a petition to withdraw the holding of abandonment grantable. The showing required to establish the failure to receive an Office actio must consist of a statement from the practitioner stating that the Office action was not received by the practitioner and attesting to the fact that a search of the file jacket and docket records indicates that the Office action was not received. A copy of the docket record where the non-received Office action would have been entered had it been received and docketed must be attached to and referenced in practitioner's statement.

The showing outlined above may not be sufficient if there are circumstances that point to a conclusion that the Office action may have been lost after receipt rather than a conclusion that the Office action was lost in the mail, e.g., if the practitioner has a history of not receiving Office actions. Two additional procedures are available for reviving an application that has become abandoned due a failure to respond to an Office Action: (1) a petition based on unintentional abandonment or delay; and (2) a petition based on unavoidable delay. See Manual of Patent Examining Procedure § 711.03(c).

(60) Viewing of Video Tapes During Interviews

The Patent and Trademark Office has video tape equipment available in the facilities of the Patent Academy for viewing video tapes from applicants during interviews with patent examiners.

The video tape equipment may use VHS and UHS (3/4 inch tape) cassettes.

Attorneys or applicants wishing to show a video tape during an examiner interview must be able to demonstrate that the content of the video tape has a bearing on an outstanding issue in the application and its viewing will advance the prosecution of the application. Prior approval of viewing of a video tape during an interview must be granted by the SPE. Also, use of the room and equipment must be granted by the Training Manager to avoid any conflict with the Patent Academy.

Requests to use video tape viewing equipment for an interview should be made at least one week in advance to allow the Patent Academy staff sufficient time to ensure the availability and proper scheduling of both a room and equipment.

Interviews using Office video tape equipment will be held only in the Academy facilities located in One Crystal Park, Rm. 502. Attorneys or applicants should not contact the Patent Academy directly regarding availability and scheduling of video equipment. All scheduling of rooms and equipment should be done through and by the examiner conducting the interview.

(61) Extension of Time Limit

This notice is intended to clarify certain misunderstandings and indicates the treatment given to requests for an extension of time in a situation where applicant has been given a time limit to complete an otherwise incomplete but bona fide attempt to respond to the previous Office action and advance the case to final action.

According to 37 CFR 1.135(c) when the applicant has filed a response to an examiner's action but consideration of some matter or compliance with some requirement has been inadvertently omitted, an opportunity to explain and supply the omission may be given before the question of abandonment is considered. According to the M.P.E.P., Section 710.02(c), the examiner may give applicant one month or the remainder of the period for response, whichever is longer, to complete the response. Neither the regulation nor the M.P.E.P. indicate that this time can be extended.

Under the regulation, the missing matter or lack of compliance must be considered by the examiner as being "inadvertently omitted." Once an inadvertent omission is brought to the attention of the applicant, the question of inadvertence no longer exists. Therefore, any further time to complete the response would not be appropriate under 37 CFR 1.135(c). Accordingly, no extension of time will henceforth be granted in these situations.

(62) Procedures for Restarting Response Periods

The purpose of this notice is to announce revised procedures for restarting response periods set in patent related matters. Occasionally, mail from the Patent and Trademark Office (PTO) is received late at the correspondence address or the mail is delayed in leaving the PTO.

The following revised procedures are effective immediately and will be followed in processing a petition to reset a period for response due to late receipt of a PTO action or due to a postmark date which is later than the mail date printed on a PTO action. The authority to decide such petitions is delegated to the Group Director, where the PTO action involved in the petition was mailed by a patent examining group.

Petition to reset a period for response due to late receipt of a PTO action

The PTO will grant a petition to restart the previously set period for response to a PTO action to run from the date of receipt of the PTO action at the correspondence address when the following criteria are met: (1) the petition is filed within two weeks of the date of receipt of the PTO action at the correspondence address; (2) a substantial portion of the set response period had elapsed on the date of receipt (e.g., at least one month of a two or three month response period had elapsed); and (3) the petition includes (a) evidence showing the date of receipt of the PTO action at the correspondence address (e.g., a copy of the PTO action having the date of receipt of the PTO action at the correspondence address stamped thereon, a copy of the envelope (which contained the PTO action) having the date of receipt of the PTO action at the correspondence address stamped thereon, etc.), and (b) a statement (verified if made by other than a registered practitioner) setting forth the date of receipt of the PTO action at the correspondence address and explaining how the evidence being presented establishes the date of receipt of the PTO action at the correspondence address.

There is no statutory requirement that a shortened statutory period of longer than thirty days to respond to a PTO action be reset due to delay in the mail or in the PTO. However, when a substantial portion of the set response period had elapsed on the date of receipt at the correspondence address (e.g., at least one month of a two or three month response period had elapsed), the procedures set forth above for late receipt of a PTO action are available. Where a PTO action was received with less than two months remaining in a shortened statutory period of three months, the period may be restarted from the date of receipt. Where the period remaining is between two and three months, the period will be reset only in extraordinary situations—e.g., complex PTO action suggesting submission of comparative data.

Petitions to reset a period for response due to a postmark date later than the mail date printed on a PTO action

VOL 1170 ISS 1 JAN 3 1995 UMI

The PTO will grant a petiton to restart the previously set period for response to a PTO action to run from the postmark date shown on the PTO mailing envelope which contained the PTO action when the following criteria are met: (1) the petition is filed within two weeks of the date of receipt of the PTO action at the correspondence address; (2) the response period was for payment of the issue fee[1]; or the response period set was one month or thirty days[2]; and (3) the petition includes (a) evidence showing the date of receipt of the PTO action at the correspondence address (e.g., a copy of the PTO action having the date of receipt of the PTO action at the correspondence address stamped thereon, etc.), (b) a copy of the envelope which contained the PTO action showing the postmark date, and (c) a statement (verified if made by other than a registered practitioner) setting forth the date of receipt of the PTO action at the correspondence address and stating that the PTO action was received in the post-marked envelope.

The provision of 37 CFR 1.8 and 1.10 apply to the filing of the above-noted petitions with regard to the requirement that the petition be filed within two weeks of the date of receipt of the PTO action.

The showings outlined above may not be sufficient if there are circumstances that point to a conclusion that the PTO action may have been delayed after receipt rather than a conclusion that the PTO action was delayed in the mail or in the PTO.

37 CFR Parts 1 and 10
RIN: 0651-AA27

Duty of Disclosure

Agency: Patent and Trademark Office, Commerce
Action: Notice of final rulemaking.
Summary: The Patent and Trademark Office (Office) is amending the rules of practice in patent cases to (1) clarify the duty of disclosure for information required to be submitted to the Office; (2) provide flexible time limits for submitting information disclosure statements including the requirement for a fee in certain cases; (3) eliminate consideration of duty of disclosure issues by the Office except in disciplinary and interference proceedings, and under other limited circumstances; and (4) eliminate the striking of patent applications which are improperly executed. The Office further is amending the Patent and Trademark Office Code of Professional Responsibility to define as misconduct a failure to comply with the rules on duty of disclosure. The rules as adopted strike a balance between the need of the Office to obtain and consider all known relevant information pertaining to patentability before a patent is granted and the desire to avoid or minimize unnecessary complications in the enforcement of patents.
Effective Date: March 16, 1992. These rules will be applicable to all applications and reexamination proceedings pending or filed after the effective date.
For Further Information Contact: By telephone Charles E. Van Horn (703-305-9054) or J. Michael Thesz (703-305-9384) or by mail addressed to Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Washington, D.C. 20231, and marked to the attention of Charles E. Van Horn (Crystal Park 2 - Room 919).
Supplementary Information: A notice of proposed rulemaking on duty of disclosure and practitioner misconduct published in the Federal Register at 54 FR 11334 (March 17, 1989), and in the Patent and Trademark Office Official Gazette at 1101 Off. Gaz. Pat. Off. 12 (April 4, 1989), was withdrawn. On August 6, 1991, the Office published in the Federal Register a notice of proposed rulemaking relating to duty of disclosure. 56 FR 37321 The notice was also published in the Official Gazette. 1129 Off. Gaz. Pat. Off. 52 (August 27, 1991). Sixty written comments were received in response to the notice of proposed rulemaking. A public hearing was held on October 8, 1991. Eleven individuals offered oral comments at the hearing. The sixty written comments and a copy of the transcript of the hearing are available for public inspection in the Office of the Assistant Commissioner for Patents, Room 919, Crystal Park II, 2121 Crystal Drive, Arlington, VA.

Familiarity with the notice of proposed rulemaking is assumed. Changes in the text of the rules published for comment in the notice of proposed rulemaking are discussed. Comments received in writing and at the public hearing in response to the notice of proposed rulemaking are discussed.

The rules as adopted shall take effect as to all applications and reexamination proceedings either pending or filed on or after the effective date of these rules. Thus, any information disclosure statement that is filed on or after that date must comply with the provisions of §§ 1.97 and 1.98 to be entitled to consideration.

Changes in Text: The final rules contain several changes to the text of the rules as proposed for comment. Those changes are discussed below.

Section 1.17(i)(1) has been changed from the proposed text to reflect the recent increase in the amount of the fee for filing a petition from $120.00 to $130.00.

Section 1.56(a) has been clarified to indicate that the duty of an individual to disclose information is based on the knowledge of that individual that the information is material to patentability. A sentence has been added to § 1.56(a) to express the principle that the Office does not condone the granting of a patent on an application in connection with which fraud on the Office was practiced or attempted or the duty of disclosure was violated through bad faith or intentional misconduct. In addition, § 1.56(a) as proposed has been changed to indicate that if all information material to patentability of any claim issued in a patent is cited by the Office or submitted to the Office in the manner prescribed by §§ 1.97(b)-(d) and 1.98, the Office will consider as satisfied the duty to disclose to the Office all information known to be material to patentability, as contrasted to the broader duty of candor and good faith. This rule does not attempt to define the spectrum of conduct that would lack the candor and good faith in dealing with the Office which is expected of individuals who are associated with the filing or prosecution of a patent application.

In § 1.56(b), the phrase "or being made of record" has been inserted to make it clear that information is not material to patentability within the meaning of § 1.56 if it is cumulative to either information already of record in the application or contemporaneously being made of record by applicant. For example, there would be no benefit to the Office for applicant to submit to the Office 10 different documents having the same teaching simply because the information was not cumulative to the information already of record.

The term "creates" has been replaced by the term "establishes" in § 1.56(b)(1). In addition, the definition of a prima facie case of unpatentability, as set out in the preamble of the notice of proposed rulemaking, has been incorporated into the rule itself. A prima facie case of unpatentability of a claim is established when the information compels a conclusion that the claim is unpatentable
(1) under the preponderance of evidence, burden-of-proof standard,
(2) giving each term in the claim its broadest reasonable construction consistent with the specification, and
(3) before any consideration is given to evidence which may be submitted in an attempt to establish a contrary conclusion of patentability.

This prima facie standard conforms to the standard used by an examiner to determine whether a claim is prima facie unpatentable.

Section 1.56(b)(2) has been modified from the text of the proposed rule. The focus of this paragraph has been changed so that it now relates to information which either refutes, or is inconsistent with, a position that applicant takes in either

[1] 35 USC 151 permits payment of the issue fee within three months of the date that the Notice of Allowance is mailed to the applicant.

[2] 35 USC 133 does not permit a response period to be less than thirty days from the date the PTO action is given or mailed to the applicant.

(1) opposing an argument of unpatentability relied on by the Office, or
(2) asserting an argument of patentability.

The change from the proposed rule makes clear that information is material when it either refutes, or is inconsistent with, a position taken by applicant before the Office.

Section 1.97(e) has been changed from the proposed text to make it clear that a certification could contain either of two statements. One statement is that each item of information in an information disclosure statement was cited in a search report from a patent office outside the U.S. not more than three months prior to the filing date of the statement. Under this certification, it would not matter whether any individual with a duty actually knew about any of the information cited before receiving the search report. In the alternative, the certification could state that no item of information contained in the information disclosure statement was cited in a communication from a foreign patent office in a counterpart foreign application or, to the knowledge of the person signing the certification after making reasonable inquiry, was known to any individual having a duty to disclose more than three months prior to the filing of the statement.

The changes to the text of § 1.97(e) as proposed place the appropriate priority on getting relevant information to the Office promptly, with minimum burden to applicant. The text of the proposal has also been changed by adding the phrase "after making reasonable inquiry" to make it clear that the individual making the certification has a duty to make reasonable inquiry regarding the facts that are being certified. For example, if an inventor gave a publication to the practitioner prosecuting an application with the intent that it be cited to the Office, the practitioner should inquire as to when that inventor became aware of the publication before submitting a certification under § 1.97(e)(ii) to the Office.

A new paragraph (h) has been added to the text of proposed § 1.97. The purpose of new paragraph (h) is to ensure that no one could construe the mere filing of an information disclosure statement as an admission that the information cited in the statement is, or is considered to be, material to patentability as defined in § 1.56(b). It is in the best interest of the Office and the public to permit and encourage individuals to cite information to the Office without fear of making an admission against interest.

In § 1.98(a)(2)(iii), the wording has been changed to make it clear that the requirement to submit a copy of each item of information listed in an information disclosure statement does not apply to the citation of a U.S. patent application.

The requirement in proposed § 1.98(a)(3) for a concise explanation of the relevance of each item of information has been substantially changed by limiting the requirement in two significant ways. First, as adopted, the requirement is limited to information that is not in the English language. Second, the explanation required is limited to the relevance as understood by the individual designated in § 1.56(c) most knowledgeable about the content of the information at the time the information is submitted to the Office. Where the information listed is not in the English language, but was cited in a search report by a foreign patent office, the requirement for a concise explanation of relevance is satisfied by submitting an English language version of the search report.

In § 1.98(d), the proposed text has been changed by adding the phrase "cited by or" to make it clear that legible copies of information listed in an information disclosure statement need not be submitted in a continuing application provided the information was either cited by or submitted to the Office in a prior application. A distinction between information cited by the Office or supplied by applicant to the Office serves no useful purpose in this situation.

The text of proposed § 1.555 has been modified to limit the definition of information material to patentability in a reexamination proceeding to the types of information that an examiner could use in a reexamination proceeding to determine whether a claim was patentable, and to adopt other changes that parallel changes made in § 1.56. Proposed § 1.555(a) has been divided into two paragraphs. Paragraph (a), as adopted, substantially parallels the text of § 1.56(a) as adopted. It indicates that the duty to disclose information to the Office in a reexamination proceeding is a part of the duty of candor and good faith that is owed to the Office by individuals transacting business with the Office. It further states one way that an individual may discharge the duty to disclose information material to patentability in a reexamination proceeding - i.e., by filing an information disclosure statement with the items listed in § 1.98(a) as applied to individuals associated with the patent owner in a reexamination proceeding. Finally, the text of the rule has been changed to add a sentence that expresses the principle that a patent should not be granted on an application in connection with which fraud was practiced or attempted on the Office or there was any violation of the duty of disclosure through bad faith or intentional misconduct.

New paragraph (b) of § 1.555 has been adopted to define information material to patentability in a reexamination proceeding. Much like the definition in § 1.56(b), information is not material when it is cumulative to information of record or being made of record in the reexamination proceeding. Information is considered material when it satisfies either or both of the definitions in § 1.555(b). Under § 1.555(b)(1), information is material when it is a patent or printed publication that establishes, by itself or in combination with other patents or printed publications, a prima facie case of unpatentability of a claim. This definition is limited to patents or printed publications because a reexamination proceeding must be based on patents or printed publications. 35 U.S.C. 302.

The definition of a prima facie case of unpatentability of a claim pending in a reexamination proceeding has been provided in the rule. A prima facie case of unpatentability is established when the information compels a conclusion that a claim is unpatentable under the same principles that are applicable during ex parte examination of a patent application; namely
(1) under the preponderance of evidence, burden-of-proof standard,
(2) giving each term in the claim its broadest reasonable construction consistent with the specification, and
(3) before any consideration is given to evidence which may be submitted in an attempt to establish a contrary conclusion of patentability.

Finally, the definition of information material to patentability in § 1.555(b)(2) has been added to parallel the provision in § 1.56(b)(2).

After reviewing the Office policy on whether to consider duty of disclosure and other inequitable conduct issues in interference proceedings under 35 U.S.C. 135(a), including comments from the public directed to the statement in the notice of proposed rulemaking that the Office will not consider, evaluate, or decide fraud or other inequitable conduct issues during an interference proceeding, a new Office policy has been adopted. Effective October 24, 1991, fraud and inequitable conduct issues will be considered when properly raised inter partes in patent interference cases. 1132 Off. Gaz. Pat. Off. 33 (November 19, 1991). In addition, the Chairman of the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences has issued a notice that provides guidance on how an issue of fraud or other inequitable conduct can be raised in an interference proceeding. 1133 Off. Gaz. Pat. Off. 21 (December 10, 1991).

Response to and Analysis of Comments: Sixty (60 written comments were received in response to the notice of proposed rulemaking. These comments, along with those made at the public hearing, have been analyzed. Some suggestions made in the comments have been adopted and others have been rejected. Responses to the comments follow.

Comment 1. Nine comments indicated that the Office should not amend § 1.56 since it is presently in conformance to the materiality standard being applied by the Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit. One comment questioned what practical value of the proposed rule would justify the burden of the change.

Reply: The amendment to § 1.56 was proposed to address criticism concerning a perceived lack of certainty in the materiality standard. The rule as promulgated will provide greater clarity and hopefully minimize the burden of litigation on the question of inequitable conduct before the Office, while providing the Office with the information necessary for effective and efficient examination of patent applications.

Comment 2. One comment stated that the present rules should be maintained and strengthened since the public interest is hurt more by an unjustly issued patent than by an unjustly denied patent. Another comment disagreed and argued that an unjustly denied patent can do great harm to society.

Reply: The Office strives to issue valid patents. The Office has both an obligation not to unjustly issue patents and an obligation not to unjustly deny patents. Innovation and technological advancement are best served when an inventor is issued a patent with the scope of protection that is deserved. The rules as adopted serve to remind individuals associated with the preparation and prosecution of patent applications of their duty of candor and good faith in their dealings with the Office, and will aid the Office in receiving, in a timely manner, the information it needs to carry out effective and efficient examination of patent applications.

Comment 3. Two comments stated that the rule should not permit applicants to draft claims and a specification to avoid a prima facie case of obviousness over a reference and then to be able to withhold the reference from the examiner.

Reply: The comments reflect a correct reading of the rule in that information is not material unless it comes within the definition of § 1.56(b)(1) or (2). If information is not material, there is no duty to disclose the information to the Office. The Office believes that most applicants will wish to submit the information, however, even though they may not be required to do so, to strengthen the patent and avoid the risks of an incorrect judgment on their part on materiality or that it may be held that there was an intent to deceive the Office.

Comment 4. One comment stated that promulgation of the proposed rule would result in a significant decrease in the quantity of art cited to the Office because there will be no duty to cite art relevant to a pending claim.

Reply: The Office does not anticipate any significant change in the quantity of information cited to the Office after promulgation of amended § 1.56. Presumably, applicants will continue to submit information for consideration by the Office in applications rather than making and relying on their own determinations of materiality. An incentive remains to submit the information to the Office because it will result in a strengthened patent and will avoid later questions of materiality and intent to deceive. In addition, the new rules will actually facilitate the filing of information since the burden of submitting information to the Office has been reduced by eliminating, in most cases, the requirement for a concise statement of the relevance of each item of information listed in an information disclosure statement.

Comment 5. Several comments stated that an objective "but for" standard would be preferable to the proposed rule. The objective "but for" standard would presumably consider information as a court does in an infringement proceeding with a clear and convincing, burden-of-proof standard, giving the terms in each claim a narrow construction where necessary to uphold validity.

Reply: The Office believes that amended § 1.56 will provide a reasonable balance between the needs of applicants and of the Office. The suggested "but for" standard would not cause the Office to obtain the information it needs to evaluate patentability so that its decisions may be presumed correct by the courts. If the Office does not have needed information, meaningful examination of patent applications will take place for the first time in an infringement case before a district court. Courts will become increasingly less confident of the Office's product if they get the impression that practitioners and inventors can routinely withhold information from the Office, or that practitioners and inventors can make up their own minds about what is patentable. The Office should decide, in the first instance, what is patentable and any decision should be made with the best information available, including that known by the applicant. The Office notes that the House of Delegates of the American Bar Association twice, once in 1990 and again in 1991, refused to adopt a resolution favoring adoption of the "but for" standard.

Comment 6. One comment argued that proposed § 1.56 does not relate to "the conduct of proceedings in the Patent and Trademark Office" (35 U.S.C. 6(a)) since the Office does not intend to reject applications as indicated by the cancellation of paragraphs (c) through (i) of current § 1.56.

Reply: The amendment to § 1.56 comes within the authority of the Commissioner for establishing regulations. Norton v. Curtiss, 433 F.2d 779, 167 USPQ 532 (CCPA 1970). The Office has reserved its inherent authority to reject an application under appropriate circumstances where fraud or other inequitable conduct has occurred. Also, the Office will consider fraud and inequitable conduct when properly raised in interference proceedings under 35 U.S.C. 135(a). The Office will also consider fraud and inequitable conduct in connection with attorney conduct under § 10.23(c).

Comment 7. One comment stated that § 1.56 should require only anticipatory art to be submitted during examination of an application, with a procedure such as reexamination being used after discovery in any litigation on the patent has revealed all available art.

Reply: An application is examined under all appropriate sections of Title 35, United States Code, and a presumption of validity attaches to a patent with regard to all aspects of patentability, including anticipation. 35 U.S.C. 282. Therefore, § 1.56 should address more than just the submission of anticipatory information, including information relevant to patentability under 35 U.S.C. 103 and 35 U.S.C. 112.

Comment 8. One comment suggested that proposed § 1.56 has some dangerous implications since courts are going to find violations of the duty of disclosure if §§ 1.97 and 1.98 are not complied with completely.

Reply: Section 1.56 provides that the duty of disclosure can be met by submitting information to the Office in the manner prescribed by §§ 1.97 and 1.98. Sections 1.97 and 1.98 are being amended so that information will be submitted to the Office in the manner and at the time which will facilitate consideration by the examiner. Applicants are provided certainty as to when information will be considered, and applicants will be informed when information is not considered. The Office does not believe that courts should, or will, find violations of the duty of disclosure because of unintentional noncompliance with §§ 1.97 and 1.98. If the non-compliance is intentional, however, the applicant will have assumed the risk that the failure to submit the information in a manner that will result in its being considered by the examiner may be held to be a violation.

Comment 9. Two comments stated that the Office should not delete the offense of attempted fraud from the § 1.56. The comments stated that elimination of the reference to "gross negligence" in current § 1.56 would be sufficient to protect the practitioner who delays submission of information with no intent to deceive the Office. One of the comments stated that the disciplinary rules alone are not sufficient to deter attempted fraud or inequitable conduct.

Reply: The language of §§ 1.56(a) and 1.555(a) has been modified to retain the provisions of prior § 1.56(d) to indicate that the Office does not condone fraud, attempted fraud, or violation of the duty of disclosure through bad faith or intentional misconduct.

Comment 10. One comment stated that the appropriate standards for the duty of candor are analogous to fiduciary law which requires the fiduciary to disclose not only known facts, but also facts which it should have known, i.e., a negligence standard. The comment argued that it was undesirable to measure duty of candor or fraud by a reduced measure of "intent" instead of an objective negligence standard since the Office is not bound by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit decision in Kingsdown Medical Consultants, Ltd. v. Hollister, Inc., 863 F.2d 867, 9 USPQ2d 1384 (Fed. Cir. 1988) (en banc), cert. denied, 490 U.S. 1067 (1989), and since the proposed standard is no more objective than alternative standards but is simply narrower and more certain. Another comment suggested that the Office should indicate that there is no intention to change the Kingsdown ruling.

Reply: Section 1.56 has been amended to present a clearer and more objective definition of what information the Office considers material to patentability. The rules do not define fraud or inequitable conduct which have elements both of materiality and of intent. The Office does not advocate any change to the Kingsdown ruling.

Comment 11. Two comments stated that the proposed modification of § 1.56 would make submission of information to the Office an implied admission of the prima facie unpatentability of a claim. Several comments suggested that a sentence should be added to proposed § 1.56 to specify that submission of information to the Office under this section shall not be deemed to be an admission or representation that the information is material to patentability.

Reply: The suggestions in the comments have been adopted by modifying § 1.97 which deals with submission of information to the Office. Paragraph (h) of § 1.97 now provides that the filing of an information disclosure statement shall not be considered to be an admission that the information cited in the statement is, or is to be considered to be, material to patentability as defined in § 1.56.

Comment 12. One comment stated that the proposed § 1.56 definition would be difficult to apply in litigation in which a different burden-of-proof standard is applied.

Reply: The definition of information material to patentability includes standards which are familiar to the Federal courts and which are capable of being handled like other issues.

Comment 13. One comment suggested that the last sentence of proposed § 1.56(a), in which the Office encourages applicants to carefully examine prior art cited in foreign search reports and the closest known information, be removed from the rule and be placed in the preamble discussion so as to avoid the interpretation that the sentence creates a duty for applicants.

Reply: The suggestion is not adopted. The sentence does not create any new duty for applicants, but is placed in the text of the rule as helpful guidance to individuals who file and prosecute patent applications.

Comment 14. Three comments stated that the language of proposed § 1.56(a) required revision to remove all statements or suggestions which might allow a court to consider a pending (i.e., unissued) claim for the purpose of determining whether the duty of disclosure requirement was met in view of the fact that the proposed rule was intended to indicate that there is no duty to disclose information which is material to a pending claim unless that claim ultimately issues in a patent. One comment argued that a court might interpret "the duty of candor and good faith" to be broader than the particular duty of disclosure specified in other portions of the proposed rule.

Reply: The language of §§ 1.56 and 1.555 has been modified to emphasize that there is a duty of candor and good faith which is broader than the duty to disclose material information. Section 1.56 further states that "no patent will be granted on an application in connection with which fraud on the Office was practiced or attempted or the duty of disclosure was violated through bad faith or intentional misconduct."

Comment 15. One comment suggested that proposed § 1.56(a) be modified to clarify that both information and its materiality must be known before there is a duty to disclose the information.

Reply: The Office considers the language of § 1.56(a) to be sufficiently clear in referring to a "duty to disclose to the Office all information known to that individual to be material to patentability as defined in this section." If information is known to be material, it inherently must be known. Likewise, if information is not known to an individual, there is no duty to disclose the information whether it is material or not.

Comment 16. One comment stated that it should be made clear that "known" is limited to contemporaneous knowledge since a practitioner may have known something ten years ago but may not remember it presently.

Reply: Section 1.56 states that each individual associated with the filing and prosecution of a patent application has a duty to disclose all information known to that individual to be material to patentability as defined in the section. Thus, the duty applies to contemporaneously or presently known information. The fact that information was known years ago does not mean that it was recognized that the information is material to the present application.

Comment 17. One comment suggested that proposed § 1.56(a) be modified to state that the duty of disclosure ends when an application becomes abandoned or allowed.

Reply: Paragraph (a) of § 1.56 states that the duty to disclose information exists until the application becomes abandoned. The duty to disclose information, however, does not end when an application becomes allowed but extends until a patent is granted on that application. The rules provide for information being considered after a notice of allowance is mailed and before the issue fee is paid (§ 1.97(d)) and for an application to be withdrawn from issue after the issue fee has been paid. An application may be withdrawn from issue because one or more claims are unpatentable (§ 1.313(b)(3)) or an application may be withdrawn from issue and abandoned so that information may be considered in a continuing application before a patent issues (§ 1.313(b)(5)).

Comment 18. Three comments stated that the first two sentences of proposed § 1.56(a) should be deleted since rules should simply instruct practitioners what to do without discussion of why they should do it or the philosophy involved.

Reply: The suggestion has not been adopted since the sentences aid in the understanding of the rule and will provide those involved in enforcing patents with an indication of the policy on which the rule is based.

Comment 19. One comment stated that §§ 1.56(a)(2) and (c) should be modified to refer to "individuals substantively associated with" the filing or prosecution of the patent application.

Reply: The suggestion is not adopted since the proposed rule language is clear and the suggested modification would create a redundancy with the language of § 1.56(c)(3). The individuals designated in §§ 1.56(c)(1) and (2) as being associated with the filing or prosecution of a patent application within the meaning of the section are inherently substantively involved in the preparation or prosecution of the application.

Comment 20. One comment stated that proposed § 1.56(b) should be modified to clarify that information is not material if it is cumulative to information already of record in an application or to information concurrently being made of record.

Reply: The suggestion has been adopted by adding a reference to information being made of record with regard to cumulative information in §§ 1.56(b) and 1.555(b).

Comment 21. One comment stated that the preamble discussion (of § 1.56(b)) should indicate that test results in situations such as tests involving biological systems may properly be submitted as averages rather than as individual test runs.

Reply: Whether test results can be submitted as averages rather than as individual test runs depends on whether doing so would provide to the Office the information needed to make a proper determination on patentability. If the actual results are provided, the examiner can make an independent determination on whether some rejection is appropriate. In some cases providing averages might be misleading, but in other cases providing averages might be appropriate.

Comment 22. One comment stated that the definition of materiality in proposed § 1.56(b) imposes substantial new burdens on applicants who would be required to disclose failed experiments, papers published less than one year prior to filing and experimental public uses even if they clearly are refutable and will not affect patentability. One comment stated that the proposed rule would require applicants to incur added expense for affidavits and comparison tests. Five comments stated that the Office should not require applicants to present results from clearly invalid tests since this would be contrary to usual scientific practice. One comment argued that information should not be required to be submitted if there was no doubt that it would not preclude patentability, e.g., where common ownership existed so that the exception of 35 U.S.C. 103, second paragraph, would apply.

Reply: The definition of materiality in § 1.56 does not impose substantial new burdens on applicants, but is intended to provide the Office with the information it needs to make a proper and independent determination on patentability. It is the patent examiner who should make the determination after considering all the facts involved in the particular case. The comments reflect that the Office objective of clarifying what information the Office considers to be material has been accomplished by the amendment of the rules.

Comment 23. One comment suggested that § 1.56 should confine the duty of disclosure to references known to applicant or the practitioner representing applicant and not found in prior art materials in the Office.

Reply: This suggestion is not adopted since information may be in the Office but not in the application file. It is not reasonable to assume that an examiner knows of a particular item of information or appreciates its relevance to a particular invention simply because it exists somewhere in the Office.

Comment 24. One comment stated that the language "or in combination with other information" should be removed from proposed § 1.56(b)(1) because it was unworkable to require an applicant to combine references against its own claims, especially since, according to the commentator, examiners and the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences frequently misapply the law. Another comment stated that the language creates an open field for litigators to claim that an inordinate number of references could be combined.

Reply: The rule does not require an applicant to combine references against its own claims. The applicant can submit information to the Office for the examiner's consideration whether the information is considered material or not. The fact that the teachings of a large number of references must be combined for a prima facie case of obviousness does not by itself weigh against a holding of obviousness. See In re Gorman, 933 F.2d 982, 18 USPQ2d 1885 (Fed. Cir. 1991).

Comment 25. Four comments stated that the definition of "prima facie case of unpatentability" § 1.56(b)(1)) should be included in the rule itself. One comment said that the definition should not be included in the rule.

Reply: The definition has been included in the rule for clarity.

Comment 26. One comment stated that the proposed § 1.56(b)(1) placed a burden on the practitioner to analyze references that is inappropriate and contradictory to a practitioner's responsibility to his client.

Reply: The rule itself does not place a burden on the practitioner to analyze references. Information can be submitted to the Office in accordance with §§ 1.97 and 1.98, and the examiner will consider the references.

Comment 27. One comment questioned whether an applicant would be charged with withholding material information if the "other information" (§ 1.56(b)(1)) necessary to cause an undisclosed reference to become material is unknown to the applicant. Another comment suggested that the language should be changed to read "other known information" to show that the information must be known to applicant to give rise to a duty of disclosure.

Reply: Paragraph (b) of § 1.56 defines information material to patentability. While information may be material under the definition, there is no duty on an individual to disclose the information if the information is unknown to the individual (§ 1.56(a)).

Comment 28. One comment suggested that defining materiality in § 1.56(b) in terms of prima facie unpatentability would permit a conspiracy of silence in which (1) the applicant knows of information but is incapable of making the legal analysis to determine whether the information is material and (2) the patent practitioner, who is equipped to determine whether information is material, does not know of the information and does not ask. Thus, it is argued there would be no violation of the duty of disclosure which requires knowledge of both information and its materiality.

Reply: The Office has set forth what information should be submitted so that the Office can make a proper determination on patentability. The term "conspiracy" has the connotation of unlawfulness which would not be consistent with the duty of candor and good faith required in dealings with the Office.

Comment 29. One comment suggested that proposed § 1.56(b)(1) should be revised to read "in combination with other information already of record in the application" to avoid the possibility that undisclosed material could be considered material in subsequent litigation when combined with information not known at the time of the prosecution to any person substantively involved in the preparation or prosecution of the application.

Reply: Paragraph (a) of § 1.56 makes it clear that the Office recognizes that the duty to disclose material information is limited to such information which is known by an individual substantively involved in the preparation or prosecution of the application. Thus, while information may be material under the definition of § 1.56(b)(1), there can be no duty to disclose the information if it is material only in combination with unknown information.

Comment 30. One comment stated that proposed § 1.56(b) should be modified so that paragraph (b)(1) refers to information that renders a claim unpatentable ("but for"), paragraph (b)(2) remains as proposed, and a paragraph (b)(3) is added to include the definition of materiality as "the closest information over which any pending claim patentably defines." This comment suggested that this modified definition would have the advantage of not requiring the applicant to submit references which applicant knows are immaterial and to then engage in "straw man" arguments based on such references.

Reply: The suggested modification to § 1.56 has not been adopted. The suggested language would seemingly require information to be filed in each application, whether the information is relevant or not, since the "closest information" would be required. Section 1.56 does not require information which is not relevant to be submitted, but only information which meets the definition of material as set out in the rule.

Comment 31. One comment stated that if proposed § 1.56(b)(1) is promulgated, there would be no need for proposed § 1.56(b)(2) with regard to information which would make a prima facie case of unpatentability and other information required by paragraph (b)(2) might be obscure. Another comment argued that paragraph (b)(2) was unnecessary, confusing and ambiguous and suggested changes in the language to make the requirement clear and less ambiguous.

Reply: The suggestion as to the language change to § 1.56(b)(2) has been adopted. The final rule language avoids the perceived problem of requiring an applicant to submit information supporting a position taken by the examiner. It is not appropriate, however, to eliminate paragraph (b)(2) because it is an essential part of the definition of information material to patentability and will help to ensure that all material facts are brought to the attention of the examiner during the examination process.

Comment 32. One comment questioned the language of proposed § 1.56(b)(2) as to how an applicant could consider a prior art reference as supporting a position of unpatentability taken by the Office while at the same time disputing that interpretation.

Reply: The language of § 1.56(b)(2) has been modified to clarify that information is material to patentability if it refutes, or is inconsistent with, a position the applicant takes in (1) opposing an argument of unpatentability relied on by the Office, or (2) asserting an argument of patentability.

Comment 33. One comment stated that § 1.56(b)(2) was flawed in requiring a duty to conduct a file search to make sure that no information exists which even arguably contradicts a position taken or to be taken in response to the examiner, or which supports the examiner's position which may be improper.

Reply: Section 1.56(b)(2) does not require a search of files. Under § 1.56(a), the duty of disclosure is confined to that information which is known to an individual to be material as defined in paragraph (b).

Comment 34. One comment stated that proposed § 1.56(c) should be modified so that the duty of any individual designated as having a duty of disclosure would terminate when such individual ceases to be substantively involved in the preparation or prosecution of the application. The comment used, as an example, an inventor who would not be aware of art cited by the examiner which would cause information known to the inventor to fall within the definition of materiality for the first time.

Reply: The suggestion in the comment is not adopted. The duty to disclose information material to patentability rests on the individuals designated in § 1.56(c) until the application issues as a patent or becomes abandoned. Paragraph (a) of § 1.56 makes it clear, however, that each individual has a duty to disclose only information which is known to that individual to be material.

Comment 35. One comment stated that proposed § 1.56(c)(3) should not include the assignee, or anyone to whom there is an obligation to assign the application, in the class of those who have a duty to disclose material information since there might be a "witch hunt" during litigation to find one employee with knowledge of, or possession of, information that should have been disclosed.

Reply: No modification to § 1.56(c)(3) is needed since § 1.56 sets forth that only individuals who are associated with the filing and prosecution of a patent application have a duty of candor and good faith, including a duty to disclose to the Office all information known to be material to patentability.

Comment 36. One comment stated that proposed § 1.56(d) should be revised to expressly allow an inventor to satisfy the duty by disclosing information to the practitioner who prepares or prosecutes the application so that redundant information disclosure statements will not be required from both the inventor and the attorney or agent.

Reply: The suggestion in the comment is not adopted since the duty as described in § 1.56 will be met as long as the information in question was cited by the Office or submitted to the Office in the manner prescribed by §§ 1.97(b)-(d) and 1.98 before issuance of the patent. Statements from both an inventor and the practitioner are not required to be submitted.

Comment 37. One comment stated that proposed §§ 1.52(c) and 1.67(c) should be modified to either (1) expressly permit alterations to be made in an application subsequent to the signing of the oath or declaration if a supplemental oath or declaration is later submitted, or (2) more properly, prohibit such alterations since if alterations are desirable, they can be made and the application can be filed with an unsigned oath or declaration. Another comment stated that willfully filling out false oaths should never be condoned.

Reply: The Office does not condone willfully filling out false oaths. Further, § 10.23(c))(11) indicates that the Office considers it misconduct for a practitioner to knowingly file or cause to be filed an application containing a material alteration made after the signing of an accompanying oath or declaration without identifying the alteration. The Office will not consider striking an application in which an alteration was made, but a supplemental oath or declaration is required to be filed in an application containing alterations made after the signing of the oath or declaration.

Comment 38. One comment stated that the implementation of proposed §§ 1.63(b)(3) and 1.175(a)(7) allows for a two-month delay in the deadline for requiring declarations complying therewith.

Reply: The averments in oath or declaration forms presently in use that comply with the previous § 1.63 or § 1.175 will also comply with the requirements of the new rules. Therefore, the Office will continue to accept the old oath or declaration forms as complying with the new rules.

Comment 39. Five comments questioned the need for the proposed rules since statistics show that information disclosure statements are submitted early in prosecution and questioned what new service is being provided for the proposed fee in § 1.97.

Reply: The Office desires to continue to encourage information to be submitted promptly so that it can be considered by the examiner when the first Office action is prepared. Some people have expressed a desire to have the option of waiting to submit information until after the first Office action, without concern that they will be subject to a charge of inequitable conduct. Section 1.97(c), as amended, will provide this option to applicants in that information will be considered later than three months after the filing date of the application (§ 1.97(a) prior to amendment) without a showing of promptness (prior § 1.99). The fee will compensate the Office for the added expense caused by the late submission of the information and will serve as a disincentive to the intentional withholding of information even for a short period of time.

Comment 40. Two comments suggested that proposed § 1.97(a) be modified so that the mechanism of proposed § 1.98 would not be the only acceptable technique for submitting information.

Reply: The Office has set forth the minimum requirements for information to be considered in §§ 1.97 and 1.98. These rules will provide certainty for the public of exactly what the requirements are, when the Office will consider information and when the Office will not consider information. Thus, applicants are provided with means for complying with the duty of disclosure by following the rules. If information is submitted in a manner so that it is not considered by the Office, applicant will assume the risk that a court might find a violation of the duty of candor and good faith which includes the duty to disclose material information.

Comment 41. Four comments suggested that information which is recognized by applicant as being material after the period set in proposed § 1.97(b) as the result of prior art cited by the examiner should be permitted to be submitted to the Office without the fee set forth in 1.17(p), the certification or the petition fee required by § 1.97.

Reply: The suggestion in the comments is not adopted since it would require a certification, e.g., why the information was just recognized as being material, and would unduly complicate the rules and the procedures for considering information submitted by applicant. Applicants can avoid or, at least, minimize the problem by submitting information which is known to be relevant to the application even though it is not yet recognized as being required to be submitted because it is material to patentability. The fees charged are to compensate the Office for the additional work that will be necessary when information is submitted during an advanced stage of the examination process.

Comment 42. Two comments suggested that the period for submitting information set in proposed § 1.97(b) be changed to be two months from the issuance of the Official Filing Receipt to avoid information disclosure statements being misrouted in the Office.

Reply: The suggestion in the comment is not adopted. The date that the Filing Receipt is mailed is not maintained in the application file so there would be administrative difficulty in determining when a fee or certification is required to be filed under the new rule. An application can be filed with a self-addressed return postcard so that applicant can obtain the serial number assigned to the application very soon after filing. Further, information may be filed under § 1.97(b) before the mailing of a first Office action on the merits even if this occurs later than three months after the application filing date.

Comment 43. One comment questions whether § 1.97(b) or § 1.97(d) applies in the event of issuance of a final rejection within three months of the filing of an application. The comment indicated that paragraph (b) should apply in this situation.

Reply: Paragraph (b) would apply in this situation since the paragraph specifies that information may be filed within three months of the filing date of the application or before the mailing date of a first Office action on the merits, whichever event occurs last. Thus, information would be considered pursuant to § 1.97(b) if it was filed within three months of the filing date of the application even if a final rejection was mailed prior to three months from the filing date.

Comment 44. One comment stated that proposed § 1.97(b)(1) should be clarified to indicate that "the filing of a national application" includes "a continuing application which replaces the original application."

Reply: The suggested modification has not been adopted since it is not necessary for clarity. The term "national application" includes continuing applications in this and the other patent rules. It is not desirable to add the suggested language to all occurrences of the term "application" in the rules or to raise the implication that continuing applications are not included in the term in other rules by adding the suggested language to this rule.

Comment 45. One comment stated that proposed § 1.97 should be changed to state that if a responsible party becomes aware of material information less than three months before issuance of an Office action, that information will be considered timely filed if it is submitted together with the response to the action. The comment also stated that the Office could go farther and implement a rule which specifies that such information will be considered timely submitted if it reaches the examiner before the response to the Office action is taken up for consideration. Three other comments stated that the Office should accept information disclosure statements with responses to Office actions, with one comment arguing that there is no benefit in submitting two papers where one would suffice.

Reply: The suggestions in the comments are not adopted. The rule as proposed and promulgated has the advantage of being relatively easy to comply with and administer. Information should be submitted promptly so that the examiner will have the option of reviewing the information and withdrawing or revising the Office action. Requiring information to be submitted promptly contributes to the efficiency of the examination process.

Comment 46. One comment stated that there should be no fee in § 1.97 associated with the filing of an information disclosure statement since this might impact negatively on the submission of material information; rather, it would be sufficient to permit material information submitted subsequent to a non-final action to support a final rejection in the next action, in the absence of the certification proposed in the rules. Another comment, however, stated that the proposed fee requirement would not be a disincentive to submission of prior art, but would force examiners to consider certain art which under current practice often is not made of record, but instead, requires the filing of a continuation application.

Reply: The fee required in the rule will serve both to cover additional expense caused the Office by the late submission of information and will also serve as a disincentive to failing to cooperate in submitting information early in the prosecution of an application rather than as a disincentive to submitting information at all.

Comment 47. One comment questioned whether information in an information disclosure statement submitted during the period set forth by proposed § 1.97(c) could be used by an examiner to make the next action final if the statement was submitted with a certification under § 1.97(e).

Reply: Information submitted with a certification during the period set forth in § 1.97(c) will not be used to make the next Office action final on unamended claims since in this situation it is clear that applicant has submitted the information to the Office promptly after it has become known and the information is being submitted prior to a final determination on patentability by the Office.

Comment 48. One comment stated that it was unfair for the Office to require a fee for considering information pursuant to proposed § 1.97(c) and then also be able to use the information in making the Office action final.

Reply: The policy is not considered to be unfair. If information is submitted during the period set forth in § 1.97(c) without the certification, the fee will compensate the Office for extra work that may be caused by the failure to submit information promptly. If the cost for this extra work were not placed upon the applicant in this situation, the cost would have to be borne by all applicants through payment of higher fees. The possibility that the next Office action may be made final will further encourage prompt disclosure of information to the Office.

Comment 49. One comment suggested that information should be considered (§ 1.97(c)) after final rejection, since this is different from after allowance when the Office would have to go back and reconsider its work. Two comments stated that proposed § 1.97(c)(1) should not penalize applicants who receive a foreign search report after a final rejection is made in the application and that the certification under § 1.97(e) should be available until an advisory action after final rejection or a notice of allowability occurs in the application. Another comment stated that final action may not even be on the merits but merely administrative.

Reply: The suggestions in the comments are not adopted. Both a notice of allowance and a final rejection represent a final Office decision on patentability. Information considered after either of these actions may require the Office to alter its position. After either of these actions, information will be considered only if it is submitted promptly in accordance with § 1.97(d) or is submitted in a refiled application. It should be noted that information cited in a foreign search report, if cited to the Office within three months of the date on the search report, will be considered by the Office if filed before payment of the issue fee.

Comment 50. One comment stated that proposed § 1.97(d) would result in unequal treatment of U.S. inventors who file first in the Office as compared to foreign inventors who file first in a foreign country since the latter will have the results of the search made by the foreign examining country earlier in the pendency of the U.S. application. Six comments suggested that a U.S. inventor should have the ability to make the certification of § 1.97(e) and to have the Office consider the information, regardless of the stage of prosecution at which information from a foreign office is submitted.

Reply: It should be noted that the certification of § 1.97(e) can be made and information considered by the Office until the issue fee is paid on the application. After the issue fee has been paid on an application, it is impractical for the Office to attempt to consider newly submitted information. The application may be withdrawn from issue at this point, however, pursuant to § 1.313(b)(5) so that the information can be considered in a continuing application, or pursuant to § 1.313(b)(3) if applicant states that one or more claims are unpatentable over the information that is cited. It is further noted that it is applicants, not the Office, who make decisions on when and in which countries to file an application. U.S. inventors who may desire to seek patent protection in foreign countries have the ability to utilize the provisions of the Patent Cooperation Treaty and to delay the requirement to enter the national stage until after a search report on the invention is made.

Comment 51. One comment questioned whether a certification under § 1.97(e) could properly be made in situations where information known by the applicant but not considered material is cited by a foreign patent office more than three months later than the first knowledge by applicant.

Reply: The language of § 1.97(e) has been modified to permit a certification to be made in the situation described in the comment. If an item of information is submitted within three months of being cited in a communication from a foreign patent office in a counterpart foreign patent application, the certification can be properly made regardless of any individual's previous knowledge of the information.

Comment 52. One comment stated that the three-month time period for submitting information from foreign patent offices under proposed § 1.97(e) might be too short because not all foreign offices provide copies of references and that the Office should provide for a petition in unusual circumstances. Five comments stated that a three-month time limit for filing foreign search reports is not reasonable but rather that six months would be more reasonable.

Reply: The Office has chosen the three month time period as appropriate in view of all the factors involved in obtaining information and in the examination process. It should be noted that Office actions typically set a three-month shortened statutory period for response. A response to an Office action generally requires more time for preparation than is involved in the submitting of a foreign search report and copies of the documents cited.

Comment 53. Five comments suggested that § 1.97(e) should permit a certification to be made if an individual knew of information for more than three months before it was filed but did not recognize its materiality or relevance to the application.

Reply: The suggestion in the comments is not adopted. The Office desires to encourage prompt evaluation of information as to materiality by applicants and the Office so as to contribute to the efficiency and effectiveness of the examination process. It should be noted that an applicant is not required to delay the submission of information while evaluating materiality, but can submit the information pursuant to §§ 1.97 and 1.98.

Comment 54. One comment stated that proposed § 1.97(e) should be clarified to specify that the certificates can be made regardless of the source of the information being submitted, so long as it is disclosed within three months of receipt. One comment stated that the three-month period of proposed § 1.97(e) should be measured from the receipt date of a communication from a foreign patent office.

Reply: A certification under § 1.97(e) can be made if each item of information was cited in a communication from a foreign patent office in a counterpart foreign application not more than three months prior to filing the statement. A certification can also be made if no item of information was cited in a communication from a foreign patent office in a counterpart foreign application or was known to any individual designated in § 1.56(c) more than three months prior to filing the information disclosure statement. The Office wishes to encourage prompt evaluation of the relevance of information and to have a date certain for determining if a certification can properly be made. Although it is recognized that an individual actually becomes aware of the information in the communication from a foreign patent office sometime after it was mailed, the mailing date of such a communication, if it occurs prior to a first awareness of the same information, would determine the date for filing of an information disclosure statement without a fee. The Office is willing to absorb any additional cost in considering such information relevant to patentability after the time set in proposed paragraph (b) only when it is clear that an applicant is diligent in providing the information to the Office.

Comment 55. One comment stated that the cost of making a certification under § 1.97(e) would be more than the $200.00 fee proposed where no certification is made due to difficulties in obtaining information from foreign clients. The comment suggested that the rule provide for (1) the opportunity to provide documentation (as opposed to certification) illustrating when the information was received, and (2) the opportunity to submit information with increasing fees depending on when in the periods of § 1.97(c) and (d) the information is submitted.

Reply: The suggestions in the comment are not adopted since they would add undue complexity to the rules and procedures. Further, the suggested provision of documentation, which presumably would be reviewed by someone in the Office, would probably add considerably to the overall expense of filing an information disclosure statement. No other comments indicated a desire for increasing fees depending on when the information is submitted.

Comment 56. Two comments stated that proposed § 1.97(e) is ambiguous in using the language "to the knowledge of the person signing the certification" in that it could refer to "information and belief," "actual knowledge of the facts" or "no knowledge to the contrary." One comment stated that certifications should be able to be made on information and belief by a U.S. attorney or agent submitting a material reference received from a foreign patent attorney or agent, rather than requiring a certification from the foreign individual. Another comment suggested that the period should be calculated from when the applicant either knew or could have known of the reference because the U.S. attorney should not be penalized for delays from their foreign patent associates.

Reply: The certification under § 1.97(e) should be made by a person who has knowledge of the facts being certified. The certification can be made by a practitioner who represents a foreign client and who relies on statements made by the foreign client as to the date the information first became known. A practitioner who receives information from a client without being informed whether the information was known for more than three months, however, cannot make the certification without making reasonable inquiry.

Comment 57. One comment stated that the language of proposed § 1.97(e) would preclude the use of the certification in an application by corporations whose practitioners have over the years reviewed thousands of patents and technical publications, even though they are unaware of the relevance of any one thereof to the application.

Reply: The language of § 1.97(e) is not intended to preclude use of the certification by representatives of corporations. The certification can be based on present, good faith knowledge about when information became known without a search of files being made. The Office, however, does desire to have information considered promptly by applicants as to materiality and to have information submitted to the Office early in the prosecution of an application.

Comment 58. One comment suggested that proposed § 1.97(e) should permit certification only as to information submitted within four months of receipt from a foreign patent office, with all other late-submitted information requiring a fee so as to not open a legal quagmire implicit in the proposed certification requirement.

Reply: The suggestion in the comment is not adopted. The certification set forth in § 1.97(e) is preferable since it provides the avoidance of the payment of a fee by a person who is submitting information promptly to the Office. An applicant has the option under the circumstances described in § 1.97(c), however, to not make the certification and to pay the fee instead if so desired.

Comment 59. One comment suggested that proposed § 1.97(f) be modified to specify that not less than one month will be given if a bona fide attempt is made to comply with § 1.98 but part of the required content is omitted. Another comment suggested that § 1.97(f) should state that the Office will give (rather than may give) additional time for compliance with § 1.98.

Reply: The suggestions in the comments are not adopted. The language of § 1.97(f) parallels present § 1.135(c) since the practice and considerations are similar for both rules. The Office intends to provide one month to comply with § 1.98 where a bona fide attempt has been made to do so.

Comment 60. One comment stated that proposed § 1.97(f) should specify that the Office shall inform the applicant if a reference will not be considered due to noncompliance with § 1.98 so as to avoid any argument in litigation that a certain reference was not considered due to clerical noncompliance.

Reply: The Office plans to notify applicants in accordance with §§ 1.97(f) and (i) if submitted information will not be considered. The examiner will also indicate in the application record what information has been considered. Further details will appear in the Manual of Patent Examining Procedure in due course.

Comment 61. One comment suggested that proposed § 1.97(g) should be modified to state that the filing of an information disclosure statement shall not be construed as a representation that no other material information exists such as is set forth in current § 1.97(b).

Reply: The suggestion in the comment has not been adopted since referring to "no other material information" would imply that the information being submitted was admitted to be material. There is no requirement that information being submitted be material to the application.

Comment 62. One comment suggested that proposed § 1.97(h) be modified to state that information not considered by the Office will be deemed in all respects to have not been submitted by the applicant since this would make a noncompliant submission clearly not a fulfillment of the duty of candor.

Reply: The suggestion in the comment is not adopted. The Office has no need or desire to rule on lack of fulfillment of the duty of candor in such a situation. The rules are drafted such that § 1.56 sets forth what information is material to patentability and §§ 1.97 and 1.98 set forth procedures to assure consideration of information by the Office.

Comment 63. One comment stated the Office has a duty to consider information even if this involves withdrawing an application from issue or publishing a cancellation notice and that proposed § 1.97(h) should be changed to so state. Another comment stated that it would be an abdication of the duty that the Office owes to the public for information in the file to be ignored since issuance of an invalid patent can be used to discourage others in the field. The comment suggested that the Office should leave in doubt whether the information will be considered or not.

Reply: It is necessary for the Office to balance its need and desire to consider all information relevant to an application with its need for an efficient operation and its capability to consider information at various stages in the prosecution of an application. The Office is setting forth when information will and will not be considered to provide certainty for the public.

Comment 64. One comment requested information on how a United States patent application or other information (§ 1.98(a)(1)(iii)) should be listed on a PTO 1449 form.

Reply: The PTO 1449 has been drafted so as to provide spaces for listing documents which are available to the public and which will be printed on the patent at issuance. Other information should be listed separately from the PTO 1449 form.

Comment 65. One comment stated that § 1.98(a)(2)(i) should not require the submission by applicants of United States patents listed in an information disclosure statement since the Office is better equipped to provide examiners with copies of those documents than inventors and their attorneys. Alternatively, the comment suggested that the Office should establish a procedure whereby an order for the Office to provide the copies of the patents at the usual fee can accompany the information disclosure statement.

Reply: At the present time, when the Automated Patent System has not been fully implemented, the overall cost of the Office obtaining copies of patents and associating them with application files would be greater than for applicants to provide copies with information disclosure statements. Presumably, the applicant would be using a copy of the patent in preparing the statement and could easily make a copy for submission to the Office.

Comment 66. One comment suggested that § 1.98(a)(2)(iii), as proposed, be clarified by substituting "except that no copy of a U.S. patent application need be included" for the proposed phrase "except a U.S. patent application."

Reply: The suggested clarification to the language of the rule has been adopted.

Comment 67. A number of comments objected to the requirement in § 1.98(a)(3) for a concise explanation of the relevance of all items of information being submitted.

Reply: In response to the comments, § 1.98(a)(3) has been modified to require a concise explanation only of patents, publications or other information listed in an information disclosure statement that are not in the English language. Applicants may, if they wish, provide concise explanations of why English-language information is being submitted and how it is understood to be relevant. Concise explanations are helpful to the Office, particularly where documents are lengthy and complex and applicant is aware of a section that is highly relevant to patentability.

Comment 68. Five comments stated that the proposed rules should be modified to state that if information is being submitted from a foreign search report, the requirement for a concise explanation in proposed § 1.98(a)(3) may be satisfied by submitting an English-language version of the search report.

Reply: The language of § 1.98(a)(3) has been modified so that no concise explanation is required for information submitted in the English language. The concise explanation requirement for non-English language information may be met by the submission of an English language version of the search report indicating the degree of relevance found by the foreign office. It is not necessary that this detail be included in the rule.

Comment 69. Five comments questioned whether the requirement in proposed § 1.98(a)(3) would be satisfied by a statement that the references were cited in the prosecution of a parent application.

Reply: The requirement in § 1.98(a)(3) for a concise explanation of non-English language information would not be satisfied by a statement that a reference was cited in the prosecution of a parent application. The concise explanation must explain the relevance as presently understood by the person designated in § 1.56(c) most knowledgeable about the content of the information.

Comment 70. One comment suggested that proposed § 1.98(a)(3) should be modified to require a concise explanation of "what is believed to be" the relevance of information listed to avoid the accusation of violation of duty of disclosure merely because more relevant portions of the information are later found. Another comment suggested that the concise explanation should state what is "reasonably understood by the person submitting the statement." Another comment stated that the applicant should be required to explain (1) only what is understood or believed about the item of information at the time the disclosure is made, or (2) why the item is listed.

Reply: The suggestions in the comments have been substantially adopted in modifying the language of § 1.98(a)(3).

Comment 71. One comment stated that proposed § 1.98(b) should not require the date (unless material) and place of publication of journal articles since such information is not given on search reports from foreign patent offices or on journals published by the American Chemical Society, which just give the year. Another comment indicated that sometimes it is not clear where the place of publication is.

Reply: The suggestions in the comments are not adopted. The date of publication is necessary for the Office to be able to determine if the information may be used in a rejection of the claims in an application. The place of publication refers to the name of the journal, magazine or other publication in which the article was published, which should be available in the vast majority of cases.

Comment 72. One comment suggested that § 1.98(c) should not require a translation of a non-English language document to be filed if a translation is within the possession, custody or control of an individual designated in § 1.56(c) because such person may not recall that there is a translation somewhere in the records of the individual, perhaps having been made for another application years earlier.

Reply: The requirement of the rule for a translation to be submitted under limited conditions is not a change in practice. See prior §§ 1.56(j) and 1.97(b). Since the requirement has caused little, if any, problem in the past, the suggestion of the comment is not adopted.

Comment 73. One comment suggested that § 1.98(c) should be revised to make it clear that a reference that is essentially cumulative to another reference need not be listed in an information disclosure statement.

Reply: The concept that cumulative information is not material is set forth in § 1.56(b). Section 1.98 does not deal with what information must be submitted, but provides an exception for cumulative information to the requirement for a copy to be submitted of each item of information listed in an information disclosure statement.

Comment 74. One comment stated that a sentence in the preamble discussion of proposed § 1.98(c) was burdensome because it would require submission of incomplete or inexact translations which may have been made of an item of information. The sentence in question reads:

> "But if the individual has the ability to translate the non-English language into English and has done so for the purposes of reviewing the information relative to the claimed invention, the translation would be considered 'readily available.'"

Another comment stated that proposed § 1.98(c) should be modified to require a translation if the non-English language document is to be considered by the examiner since the attorney would want to prepare an accurate translation of particularly relevant references. One comment suggested that § 1.98(c), or the preamble discussion, should make it clear that an English-language translation of a foreign language material reference need not be submitted where an individual merely reads in the reference in its original language and translates it mentally but does not prepare a written translation. Five other comments requested clarification on this point.

Reply: The Office does not intend to require translations unless they have been reduced to writing and are actually translations of what is contained in the non-English language information. Applicants should note, however, that most examiners do not have the ability to understand information which is not in English and that the Office will not routinely translate information submitted in a non-English language. The examiner will consider the information insofar as it is understood on its face, e.g., drawings, chemical formulas, English-language abstracts, but will not have the information translated unless it appears to be necessary to do so. Applicants are required to aid the examiner by complying with the requirements for a concise explanation in § 1.98(a)(3) for information submitted in a non-English language.

Comment 75. One comment stated that § 1.98(d) should be clarified to state that a copy of an item of information listed in an information disclosure statement need not be submitted if the reference was cited by the Office or previously submitted to the Office in connection with a prior application.

Reply: The suggestion in the comment is adopted. The language of § 1.98(d) has been modified to state that a copy of an item of information is not required if it was previously cited by the Office or previously submitted to the Office in a prior application being relied on for an earlier filing date under 35 U.S.C. 120.

*Comment 76.*One comment suggested that proposed § 1.98(d) should be revise d to not require the submission of a copy of the information listed in an information disclosure statement if a copy of the information has previously been submitted to the Office in a prior application, whether or not the earlier application is being relied upon for an earlier filing date under 35 U.S.C. 120.

Reply: The suggestion in the comment is not adopted. The exception to the requirement for a copy of each item of information to be submitted has been made with regard to prior applications which will normally be available to, and considered by, the examiner. It would not be efficient for the examiner to be required to seek out unrelated application files to obtain a copy of an item of information when a copy could easily be submitted by applicant.

Comment 77. One comment questioned what would be considered "timely" under § 1.291 so that information would be considered by the examiner without payment of a fee, in contrast to proposed § 1.97 which may require a fee.

Reply: Section 1.291 has not been amended to redefine timeliness. The comment seems to imply that the fee requirements of § 1.97 can be avoided through the use of a protest submitting information, but such a course of action might raise questions regarding compliance with the duty of candor and good faith required in dealings with the Office.

Comment 78. One comment stated that the Office should not drop the acknowledgment of a protest having been filed under § 1.291 in a reissue application because the acknowledgment served as an indication that the protest had been received in the examining group from the mail room.

Reply: The suggestion in the comment is not adopted. Any perceived benefit from retaining the acknowledgment is outweighed by the administrative burden it causes. There is no good reason to treat the filing of protests in reissue applications differently from the filing of protests in original applications or from the filing of other papers in the Office.

Comment 79. One comment questioned whether an application could be withdrawn from issue pursuant to proposed § 1.313(b)(5) without admitting unpatentability.

Reply: There is no requirement that unpatentability must be admitted before an application can be withdrawn from issue pursuant to § 1.313(b)(5). The rule provides for applications to be withdrawn from issue and abandoned for consideration of information in a continuing application. This differs from a petition under § 1.313(b)(3) based on unpatentability of one or more claims.

Comment 80. One comment questioned whether, if an application is withdrawn from issue pursuant to proposed § 1.313(b)(5), an information disclosure statement can be submitted in the continuing application under § 1.97(b) without a certification.

Reply: A continuing application is treated like any other application with regard to the times set forth in § 1.97(b). Thus, for example, an information disclosure statement could be filed without a fee or certification in a continuing application within three months of the filing date of the continuing application.

Comment 81. One comment questioned whether an application withdrawn from issue pursuant to § 1.313(b)(5) could have new art and amendments considered in that application rather than in a continuing application. The comment also questioned the handling of applications withdrawn from issue pursuant to § 1.313(b)(3).

Reply: The language of § 1.313(b)(5) makes it clear that an application withdrawn from issue thereunder is to be abandoned without further prosecution. This differs from an application withdrawn from issue pursuant to § 1.313(b)(3) because applicant had admitted the unpatentability of one or more claims.

Comment 82. One comment questioned whether the continuing application mentioned in proposed § 1.313(b)(5) could be a file wrapper continuing application under § 1.62 and how applicants can accomplish the withdrawal from issue under proposed § 1.313(b) late in the prosecution of an application.

Reply: The continuing application mentioned in § 1.313(b)(5) can be a file wrapper continuing application under § 1.62. Even though § 1.62 requires a file wrapper continuing application to be filed before the payment of the issue fee, the Office will consider the filing of a petition to withdraw from issue under § 1.313(b)(5) as sufficient grounds to waive that requirement of § 1.62. Late in the prosecution of an application, the Office has difficulty in matching papers with the application file. Papers requesting that an application be withdrawn from issue after the issue fee is paid should be directed, or preferably hand-carried, to the Office of Petitions in the Office of the Assistant Commissioner for Patents.

Comment 83. Seven comments suggested that § 1.555(a) should not be amended to require the submission of "all information material to patentability" since a reexamination proceeding is limited to consideration of patents and printed publications.

Reply: The suggestion in the comments has been adopted. A paragraph (b), which defines what information is material to patentability in a reexamination proceeding, has been added to the rule.

Comment 84. One comment suggested that proposed § 1.555(a) should be modified to make clear that there is no duty of disclosure on employees of a corporate patent owner if the employees are not substantively involved in the preparation of the reexamination request or the reexamination proceeding.

Reply: The suggestion in the comment to modify the language in § 1.555(a) has not been adopted. The rule refers to individuals who are substantively involved on behalf of the patent owner in a reexamination proceeding.

Comment 85. Two comments stated that the Office should consider fraud or other inequitable conduct issues in interference proceedings.

Reply: The suggestion in the comments has been adopted. The Office will consider inequitable conduct issues in interference proceedings as announced on November 19, 1991, in the Official Gazette of the Patent and Trademark Office at 1132 Off. Gaz. Pat. Off. 33.

Comment 86. One comment requested more examples with regard to proposed § 10.23(c)(10) of what alteration or combination of alterations in a declaration would be considered material.

Reply: It is not the function of the rules or the rulemaking process to provide a detailed listing of what alterations may be considered to be improper. This consideration will necessarily be made in view of the totality of the circumstances involved. Practitioners would be well advised to avoid filing applications which contain alterations which have not been initialed and dated.

Comment 87. Two comments stated that § 10.23(c)(10) should be amended to prohibit knowingly attempting to mislead the Office in the drafting or prosecution of a patent application. One comment stated that attempted fraud or inequitable conduct would not be prohibited by proposed 10.23(c)(10) because such conduct would not be a violation of proposed §§ 1.56 or 1.555.

Reply: No amendment is necessary to the language of § 10.23(c)(10). It should be noted that the duty of candor and good faith in dealing with the Office is included in §§ 1.56 and 1.555. This duty includes a prohibition against knowingly attempting to mislead the Office.

Comment 88. Five comments stated that it would be unfair to impose the new disclosure requirements and fees on applications that are pending before the Office on the effective date of the new rule. Another comment stated that the rules should be immediately effective for all pending applications with some grace period for making the initial disclosure without penalty and without fee.

Reply: The Office will apply the new rules to all applications pending on, or filed on or after, the effective date of the rules. While this implementation may cause some burden on some applicants, other applicants will obtain benefits not otherwise available. This decision will also ease the administrative burden on the Office in implementing the new rules.

Other Considerations

The rule change is in conformity with the requirements of the Regulatory Flexibility Act, 5 U.S.C. 601 et seq., Executive Orders 12291 and 12612, and the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et seq.

The General Counsel of the Department of Commerce has certified to the Small Business Administration that the rule change will not have a significant adverse economic impact on a substantial number of small entities (Regulatory Flexibility Act, 5 U.S.C. 605(b)) because the rules as adopted do not require individuals to submit information that they are not already aware of and are not already under an obligation to provide to the Office. The rules further promote the efficiency of the examination process by encouraging a timely submission of an information disclosure statement and by substantially eliminating rejections based on inequitable conduct, thereby reducing the costs to all patent applicants.

The Patent and Trademark Office has determined that this rule change is not a major rule under Executive Order 12291. The annual effect on the economy will be less than $100 million. There will be no major increase in costs or prices for consumers, individual industries, Federal, state or geographic regions. There will be no significant adverse effects on competition, employment, investment, productivity or innovation, or on the ability of the United States-based enterprises to compete with foreign-based enterprises in domestic or export markets.

The Patent and Trademark Office has also determined that this rule change has no Federalism implications affecting the relationship between the National Government and the States as outlined in Executive Order 12612.

This rule contains a collection of information requirement subject to the Paperwork Reduction Act, which has previously been approved by the Office of Management and Budget under Control No. 0651-0011. Each information disclosure statement is estimated to take approximately 30 minutes, including time for reviewing instructions, gathering and maintaining data needed, and completing and reviewing the collection of information. The time estimate has been reduced from that stated in the proposal since the requirement for a concise explanation of the relevance of each item of information cited in an information disclosure statement has been limited to information submitted in a language other than English. Send comments regarding this burden estimate Patent and Trademark Office, Office of Management and Organization, and to the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs, Office of Management and Budget, Washington, D.C. 20503. 6. Section 1.56 is revised to read as follows:

§ 1.56 Duty to disclose information material to patentability.

(a) A patent by its very nature is affected with a public interest. The public interest is best served, and the most effective patent examination occurs when, at the time an application is being examined, the Office is aware of and evaluates the teachings of all information material to patentability. Each individual associated with the filing and prosecution of a patent application has a duty of candor and good faith in dealing with the Office, which includes a duty to disclose to the Office all information known to that individual to be material to patentability as defined in this section. The duty to disclose information exists with respect to each pending claim until the claim is cancelled or withdrawn from consideration, or the application becomes abandoned. Information material to the patentability of a claim that is cancelled or withdrawn from consideration need not be submitted if the information is not material to the patentability of any claim remaining under consideration in the application. There is no duty to submit information which is not material to the patentability of any existing claim. The duty to disclose all information known to be material to patentability is deemed to be satisfied if all information known to be material to patentability of any claim issued in a patent was cited by the Office or submitted to the Office in the manner prescribed by §§ 1.97(b)-(d) and 1.98. However, no patent will be granted on an application in connection with which fraud on the Office was practiced or attempted or the duty of disclosure was violated through bad faith or intentional misconduct. The Office encourages applicants to carefully examine: (1) prior art cited in search reports of a foreign patent office in a counterpart application, and (2) the closest information over which individuals associated with the filing or prosecution of a patent application believe any pending claim patentably defines, to make sure that any material information contained therein is disclosed to the Office.

(b) Under this section, information is material to patentability when it is not cumulative to information already of record or being made of record in the application, and

(1) it establishes, by itself or in combination with other information, a prima facie case of unpatentability of a claim; or

(2) it refutes, or is inconsistent with, a position the applicant takes in:

(i) opposing an argument of unpatentability relied on by the Office, or

(ii) asserting an argument of patentability.

A prima facie case of unpatentability is established when the information compels a conclusion that a claim is unpatentable under the preponderance of evidence, burden-of-proof standard, giving each term in the claim its broadest reasonable construction consistent with the specification, and before any consideration is given to evidence which may be submitted in an attempt to establish a contrary conclusion of patentability.

(c) Individuals associated with the filing or prosecution of a patent application within the meaning of this section are:

(1) each inventor named in the application;

(2) each attorney or agent who prepares or prosecutes the application; and

(3) every other person who is substantively involved in the preparation or prosecution of the application and who is associated with the inventor, with the assignee or with anyone to whom there is an obligation to assign the application.

(d) Individuals other than the attorney, agent or inventor may comply with this section by disclosing information to the attorney, agent, or inventor.

7. Section 1.63, paragraphs (b)(3) and (d) are revised to read as follows:

§ 1.63 Oath or declaration.

* * * * *

(b) * * *

(3) Acknowledges the duty to disclose to the Office all information known to the person to be material to patentability as defined in § 1.56.

(d) In any continuation-in-part application filed under the conditions specified in 35 U.S.C. 120 which discloses and claims subject matter in addition to that disclosed in the prior copending application, the oath or declaration must also state that the person making the oath or declaration acknowledges the duty to disclose to the Office all information known to the person to be material to patentability as defined in § 1.56, which became available between the filing date of the prior application and the national or PCT international filing date of the continuation-in-part application.

8. Section 1.67 is amended by adding a new paragraph (c) to read as follows:

§ 1.67 Supplemental oath or declaration.

* * * * *

(c) A supplemental oath or declaration meeting the requirements of § 1.63 must also be filed if the application was altered after the oath or declaration was signed or if the oath or declaration was signed:

(1) in blank;

(2) without review thereof by the person making the oath or declaration; or

(3) without review of the specification, including the claims, as required by § 1.63(b)(1).

9. Section 1.97 is revised to read as follows:

§ 1.97 Filing of information disclosure statement.

(a) In order to have information considered by the Office during the pendency of a patent application, an information disclosure statement in compliance with § 1.98 should be filed in accordance with this section.

(b) An information disclosure statement shall be considered by the Office if filed:

(1) within three months of the filing date of a national application;

(2) within three months of the date of entry of the national stage as set forth in § 1.491 in an international application; or

(3) before the mailing date of a first Office action on the merits, whichever event occurs last.

(c) An information disclosure statement shall be considered by the Office if filed after the period specified in paragraph (b) of this section, but before the mailing date of either

(1) a final action under § 1.113 or

(2) a notice of allowance under § 1.311,

whichever occurs first, provided the statement is accompanied by either a certification as specified in paragraph (e) of this section or the fee set forth in § 1.17(p).

(d) An information disclosure statement shall be considered by the Office if filed after the mailing date of either

(1) a final action under § 1.113 or

(2) a notice of allowance under § 1.311, whichever occurs first, but before payment of the issue fee, provided the statement is accompanied by:

(i) a certification as specified in paragraph (e) of this section,

(ii) a petition requesting consideration of the information disclosure statement, and

(iii) the petition fee set forth in § 1.17(i)(1).

(e) A certification under this section must state either

(1) that each item of information contained in the information disclosure statement was cited in a communication from a foreign patent office in a counterpart foreign application not more than three months prior to the filing of the statement, or

(2) that no item of information contained in the information disclosure statement was cited in a communication from a foreign patent office in a counterpart foreign application or, to the knowledge of the person signing the certification after making reasonable inquiry, was known to any individual designated in § 1.56(c) more than three months prior to the filing of the statement.

(f) No extensions of time for filing an information disclosure statement are permitted under § 1.136. If a bona fide attempt is made to comply with § 1.98, but part of the required content is inadvertently omitted, additional time may be given to enable full compliance.

(g) An information disclosure statement filed in accordance with this section shall not be construed as a representation that a search has been made.

(h) The filing of an information disclosure statement shall not be construed to be an admission that the information cited in the statement is, or is considered to be, material to patentability as defined in § 1.56(b).

(i) Information disclosure statements, filed before the grant of a patent, which do not comply with this section and § 1.98 will be placed in the file, but will not be considered by the Office.

10. Section 1.98 is revised to read as follows:

§ 1.98 Content of information disclosure statement.

(a) Any information disclosure statement filed under § 1.97 shall include:

(1) A list of all patents, publications, or other information submitted for consideration by the Office;

(2) A legible copy of:

(i) Each U.S. and foreign patent;

(ii) Each publication or that portion which caused it to be listed; and

(iii) All other information or that portion which caused it to be listed, except that no copy of a U.S. patent application need be included; and

(3) A concise explanation of the relevance, as it is presently understood by the individual designated in § 1.56(c) most knowledgeable about the content of the information, of each patent, publication, or other information listed that is not in the English language. The concise explanation may be either separate from the specification or incorporated therein.

(b) Each U.S. patent listed in an information disclosure statement shall be identified by patentee, patent number and issue date. Each foreign patent or published foreign patent application shall be identified by the country or patent office which issued the patent or published the application, an appropriate document number, and the publication date indicated on the patent or published application. Each publication shall be identified by author (if any), title, relevant pages of the publication, date and place of publication.

(c) When the disclosures of two or more patents or publications listed in an information disclosure statement are substantively cumulative, a copy of one of the patents or publications may be submitted without copies of the other patents or publications provided that a statement is made that these other patents or publications are cumulative. If a written English-language translation of a non-English language document, or portion thereof, is within the possession, custody or control of, or is readily available to any individual designated in § 1.56(c), a copy of the translation shall accompany the statement.

(d) A copy of any patent, publication or other information listed in an information disclosure statement is not required to be provided if it was previously cited by or submitted to the Office in a prior application, provided that the prior application is properly identified in the statement and relied upon for an earlier filing date under 35 U.S.C. 120.

11. Section 1.99 is removed and reserved.

12. Section 1.175, paragraph (a)(7), is revised to read as follows:

§ 1.175 Reissue oath or declaration.

(a) * * *

(7) Acknowledging the duty to disclose to the Office all information known to applicants to be material to patentability as defined in § 1.56.

* * * * *

13. Section 1.193(c) is removed and reserved.

§ 1.193 Examiner's Answer.

VOL 1170 ISS 1 JA 3 1995 UMI

14. Section 1.291, paragraphs (a) and (c), are revised to read as follows:

§ 1.291 Protests by the public against pending applications.

(a) Protests by a member of the public against pending applications will be referred to the examiner having charge of the subject matter involved. A protest specifically identifying the application to which the protest is directed will be entered in the application file if:

(1) the protest is timely submitted; and

(2) the protest is either served upon the applicant in accordance with § 1.248, or filed with the Office in duplicate in the event service is not possible.

Protests raising fraud or other inequitable conduct issues will be entered in the application file, generally without comment on those issues. Protests which do not adequately identify a pending patent application will be disposed of and will not be considered by the Office.

* * * * *

(c) A member of the public filing a protest in an application under paragraph (a) of this section will not receive any communications from the Office relating to the protest, other than the return of a self-addressed postcard which the member of the public may include with the protest in order to receive an acknowledgment by the Office that the protest has been received. The Office may communicate with the applicant regarding any protest and may require the applicant to respond to specific questions raised by the protest. In the absence of a request by the Office, an applicant has no duty to, and need not, respond to a protest. The limited involvement of the member of the public filing a protest pursuant to paragraph (a) of this section ends with the filing of the protest, and no further submission on behalf of the protestor will be considered unless such submission raises new issues which could not have been earlier presented.

15. Section 1.313, paragraph (b), is revised to read as follows:

§ 1.313 Withdrawal from issue.

* * * * *

(b) When the issue fee has been paid, the application will not be withdrawn from issue for any reason except:

(1) a mistake on the part of the Office;

(2) a violation of § 1.56 or illegality in the application;

(3) unpatentability of one or more claims;

(4) for interference; or

(5) for abandonment to permit consideration of an information disclosure statement under § 1.97 in a continuing application.

16. Section 1.555 is revised to read as follows:

§ 1.555 Information material to patentability in reexamination proceedings.

(a) A patent by its very nature is affected with a public interest. The public interest is best served, and the most effective reexamination occurs when, at the time a reexamination proceeding is being conducted, the Office is aware of and evaluates the teachings of all information material to patentability in a reexamination proceeding. Each individual associated with the patent owner in a reexamination proceeding has a duty of candor and good faith in dealing with the Office, which includes a duty to disclose to the Office all information known to that individual to be material to patentability in a reexamination proceeding. The individuals who have a duty to disclose to the Office all information known to them to be material to patentability in a reexamination proceeding are the patent owner, each attorney or agent who represents the patent owner, and every other individual who is substantively involved on behalf of the patent owner in a reexamination proceeding. The duty to disclose the information exists with respect to each claim pending in the reexamination proceeding until the claim is cancelled. Information material to the patentability of a cancelled claim need no be submitted if the information is not material to patentability of any claim remaining under consideration in the reexamination proceeding. The duty to disclose all information known to be material to patentability in a reexamination proceeding is deemed to be satisfied if all information known to be material to patentability of any claim in the patent after issuance of the reexamination certificate was cited by the Office or submitted to the Office in an information disclosure statement. However, the duties of candor, good faith, and disclosure have not been complied with if any fraud on the Office was practiced or attempted or the duty of disclosure was violated through bad faith or intentional misconduct by, or on behalf of, the patent owner in the reexamination proceeding. Any information disclosure statement must be filed with the items listed in § 1.98 as applied to individuals associated with the patent owner in a reexamination proceeding, and should be filed within two months of the date of the order for reexamination, or as soon thereafter as possible.

(b) Under this section, information is material to patentability in a reexamination proceeding when it is not cumulative to information of record or being made of record in the reexamination proceeding, and

(1) it is a patent or printed publication that establishes, by itself or in combination with other patents or printed publications, a prima facie case of unpatentability of a claim; or

(2) it refutes, or is inconsistent with, a position the patent owner takes in:

(i) opposing an argument of unpatentability relied on by the Office, or

(ii) asserting an argument of patentability.

A prima facie case of unpatentability of a claim pending in a reexamination proceeding is established when the information compels a conclusion that a claim is unpatentable under the preponderance of evidence, burden-of-proof standard, giving each term in the claim its broadest reasonable construction consistent with the specification, and before any consideration is given to evidence which may be submitted in an attempt to establish a contrary conclusion of patentability.

(c) The responsibility for compliance with this section rests upon the individuals designated in paragraph (a) of this section and no evaluation will be made by the Office in the reexamination proceeding as to compliance with this section. If questions of compliance with this section are discovered during a reexamination proceeding, they will be noted as unresolved questions in accordance with § 1.552(c).

(65) Implementation of Rules on Information Disclosure Statements

New rules on the duty of disclosure and information disclosure statements, effective March 16, 1992, were published in the Federal Register at 57 FR 2021 (Jan. 17, 1992) and in the Official Gazette at 1135 Off. Gaz. Pat. Office 13 (Feb. 4, 1992).

The procedures for handling information disclosure statements (37 CFR 1.97 and 1.98) will be set forth in Section 609 of the Manual of Patent Examining Procedure (MPEP). A copy of the instructions being given to examiners for handling information disclosure statements under the new rules is being published for the benefit of the public. Also being published is a sample declaration form which incorporates language conforming to the amendment to 37 CFR 1.63 contained in the new rules. Declaration forms acceptable under the rules in effect prior to the change effective March 16, 1992, will continue to be acceptable under the new rules.

The Office is considering changing its policy regarding the printing on patents of citations of information considered in patent applications. The proposed change will not affect consideration by the examiner of information submitted to the Office in compliance with 37 CFR 1.97(b)-(d) and 1.98. The proposed change affects only the information printed on the patent. Presently, as set forth in the last paragraph of the instructions which follow, information properly submitted by applicant and considered by the examiner will be printed on the patent along with the references cited by the examiner in Office actions. It has been suggested that it would be more helpful to the Office and to the public in using a patent for future search purposes if only the references cited and/or relied upon by the examiner in Office actions were listed on the printed patent. Alternatively, it has been suggested that the references listed on a patent be differentiated as to whether they were cited and/or relied on by the examiner or cited by applicant but not relied on by the examiner. The Office has a preference for the option that lists only the information cited and/or relied on by the examiner because it reduces printing costs (some citations by applicants now add several additional pages to the patent grant) and minimizes processing problems associated with correcting incomplete or inaccurate citations before the patent is printed. Public comment on these proposals is welcomed and should be directed to J. Michael Thesz (703-305-9384) or by mail directed to Mr. Thesz in the Office of the Assistant Commissioner for Patents. Comments should be received before May 29, 1992.

Applicants and other individuals substantively involved with the preparation and/or prosecution of a patent application have a duty to submit to the Office information which is material to patentability as defined in 37 CFR 1.56. These individuals also may want the Office to consider information for a variety of other reasons, e.g., without first determining whether the information meets any particular standard of materiality, or because another patent office considered the information to be relevant in a counterpart or related patent application filed in another country, or to make sure that the examiner has an opportunity to consider the same information that was considered by the individuals that were substantively involved with the preparation or prosecution of a patent application.

An information disclosure statement filed in accordance with the provisions of 37 CFR 1.97 and 1.98 provides the procedure available to an applicant to submit information to the Office so that information will be considered by the examiner assigned to the application. The requirements for the content of a statement have been simplified in the new rules effective March 16, 1992, to encourage individuals associated in a substantive way with the filing and prosecution of a patent application to submit information to the Office so the examiner can determine its relevance to the claimed invention. The procedure for submitting an information disclosure statement under the new rules are designed to encourage individuals to submit information to the Office promptly.

In order to have information considered by the Office during the pendency of a patent application, an information disclosure statement in compliance with 37 CFR 1.98 as to content must be filed in accordance with the procedural requirements of 37 CFR 1.97. The requirements as to content are discussed in A below. The requirements based on the time of filing the statement are discussed in B below. Examiner handling of information disclosure statement is discussed in C below.

The Office has set forth the minimum requirements for information to be considered in 37 CFR 1.97 and 1.98. Once the minimum requirements are met, the examiner has an obligation to consider the information. These rules provide certainty for the public by defining what the requirements are, when the Office will consider information and when the Office will not consider information.

The filing of an information disclosure statement shall not be construed as a representation that a search has been made. 37 CFR 1.97(g). There is no requirement that an application for a patent make a patentability search. Further, the filing of an information disclosure statement shall not be construed to be an admission that the information cited in the statement is, or is considered to be, material to patentability as defined in 37 CFR 1.56(b). 37 CFR 1.97(h). See MPEP 706.02(b) regarding admissions by applicant.

Multiple information disclosure statements may be filed in a single application, and they will be considered, provided each is in compliance with the appropriate requirements. Use of form PTO-1449, "Information Disclosure Citation," is encouraged as a means providing the required list of information. See C(2) below.

Information which is cited or submitted to the Office in the parent application of a file wrapper continuing application under 37 CFR 1.62 will be part of the file before the examiner and need not be resubmitted in the continuing application. Likewise, the examiner will consider information cited or submitted to the Office in a parent application when examining a continuing application and thus this information need not be resubmitted unless applicant desires the information to be printed on the patent.

A. Content

An information disclosure statement must comply with the provisions of 37 CFR 1.98 as to content in order to be considered by the Office. Each information disclosure statement must comply with the applicable provisions of A(1), A(2) and A(3) below.

A(1) Each information disclosure statement must include a list of all patents, publications, or other information submitted for consideration by the Office.

Paragraph (b) of 37 CFR 1.98 requires that each U.S. patent listed in an information disclosure statement be identified by patentee, patent number and issue date. Each foreign patent or published foreign patent application must be identified by the country or patent office which issued the patent or published the application, an appropriate document number, and the publication date indicated on the patent or published application. Each publication must be identified by author (if any), title, relevant pages of the publication, date (at least month and year) and place of publication. The place of publication refers to the name of the journal, magazine or other publication in which the information being submitted was published.

The list may not be incorporated into the specification but must be submitted in a separate paper. A separate list is required so that it is easy to confirm that applicant intends to submit an information disclosure statement, and because it provides a readily available checklist for the examiner to indicate which identified documents have been considered. A copy of a separate list will also provide a simple means of communication to applicant to indicate the listed documents that have been considered and those listed documents that have not been considered. Use of form PTO-1449, "Information Disclosure Citation," is encouraged. See C(2) below.

A(2) In addition to the list, each information disclosure statement must also include a legible copy of:

(i) Each U.S. and foreign patent;
(ii) Each publication or that portion which caused it to be listed; and
(iii) All other information or that portion which caused it to be listed, except that no copy of a U.S. patent application need be included.

There are exceptions to this general rule that a copy must be provided. First, paragraph (d) of 37 CFR 1.98 states that a copy of any patent, publication or other information listed in an information disclosure statement is not required to be provided if it was previously cited by or submitted to the Office in a prior application, provided that the prior application is properly identified in the statement and relied upon for an earlier filing date under 35 U.S.C. 120. The examiner will consider information cited or submitted to the Office in a prior application relied on under 35 U.S.C. 120. This exception to the requirement for copies of information does not apply to information which was cited in an international application under the Patent Cooperation Treaty.

Second, paragraph (c) of 37 CFR 1.98 states that when the disclosures of two or more patents or publications listed in an information disclosure statement are substantively cumulative, a copy of the one of the patents or publications may be submitted without copies of the other patents or publications provided that a statement is made that these other patents or publications are cumulative. The examiner will then consider only the patent or publication of which a copy is submitted and will so indicate on the list or form PTO-1449 submitted, e.g., by crossing-out the listing of the cumulative information.

Paragraph (c) of 37 CFR 1.98 further states that if a written English language translation of a non-English language document, or portion thereof, is within the possession, custody or control of, or is readily available to any individual designated in 37 CFR 1.56(c), a copy of the translation shall accompany the statement. Translations are not required to be filed unless they have been reduced to writing and are actually translations of what is contained in the non-English language information. If no translation is submitted, the examiner will consider the information in view of the concise explanation and insofar as it is understood on its face, e.g., drawings, chemical formulas, English language abstracts, in the same manner that non-English language information in Office search files is considered by examiners in conducting searches.

A(3) Each information disclosure statement must further include a concise explanation of the relevance, as it is presently understood by the individual designated in 37 CFR 1.56(c) most knowledgeable about the content of the information, of each patent, publication, or other information listed that is not in the English language. The concise explanation may be either separate from the specification or incorporated therein.

The requirement for a concise explanation of relevance is limited to information that is not in the English language. The explanation required is limited to the relevance as understood by the individual designated in 37 CFR 1.56(c) most knowledgeable about the content of the information at the time the information is submitted to the Office. If a translation of the information into English is submitted with the foreign language information, no concise explanation is required. There is no requirement for the translation to be verified. Where the information listed is not in the English language, but was cited in a search report by a foreign patent office in a counterpart foreign application, the requirement for a concise explanation of relevance can be satisfied by submitting an English language version of the search report which indicates the degree of relevance found by the foreign office. The requirement for a concise explanation of non-English language information would not be satisfied by a statement that a reference was cited in the prosecution of a parent, related, or copending United States application.

The concise explanation may indicate that a particular figure or paragraph of the patent or publication is relevant to the claimed invention. It might be a simple statement pointing to similarities between the item of information and the claimed invention. It is permissible but not necessary to discuss differences between the cited information and the claims.

Applicants may, if they wish, provide a concise explanation of why English-language information is being submitted and how it is understood to be relevant. Concise explanations are helpful to the Office, particularly where documents are lengthy and complex and applicant is aware of a section that is highly relevant to patentablilty or where a large number of documents are submitted and applicant is aware that one or more are highly relevant to patentability.

B. Time for Filing

The procedure and requirements for submitting an information disclosure statement are linked to four stages in the processing of a patent application: (1) within three months of filing, or before first Office action, whichever is later; (2) after the period in (1), but before final Office action or a Notice of Allowance, whichever is earlier; (3) after the period in (2) but on or before the issue fee is paid; and (4) after the period in (3) and up to the time the patent application can be effectively withdrawn from issue. The procedures and requirements apply to applications filed under 35 U.S.C. 111 (utility), 161 (plants), 171 (designs), and 251 (reissue), as well as international applications entering the national stage under 35 U.S.C. 371.

The requirements based on the time when the information disclosure statement is filed are summarized as follows:

Time when IDS is filed	37 CFR 1.97 Requirements
(1) Within 3 months of filing or before first Office action on the merits, whichever is later.	None (always considered).
(2) After (1) but before final action or notice of allowance.	Certification or 1.17(p) fee.
(3) After final action or notice of allowance and before payment of issue fee.	Certification, petition, and petition fee.

B(1) Statement filed BEFORE first action on the merits or within three (3) months of actual filing date (37 CFR 1.97(b)).

An information disclosure statement will be considered by the examiner if filed:

(i) within three months of the filing date of a national application;

(ii) within three months of the date of entry of the national stage as set forth in 37 CFR 1.491 in an international application; or

(iii) before the mailing date of a first Office action on the merits, whichever event occurs last. A statement filed within this period requires neither a fee nor a certification of prompt filing.

The term "national application" includes continuing applications (continuations, divisions, continuations-in-part) so three-months will be measured from the actual filing date of an application as apposed to the effective date of a continuing application.

All information disclosure statements that comply with the content requirements of 37 CFR 1.98 and are filed within three months of the filing date will be considered by the examiner, regardless of whatever else has occurred in the examination process up to that point in time. Thus, in the rare instance that a final Office action or a notice of allowance is prepared and mailed prior to a date which is three months from the filing date, any information contained in a complete information disclosure statement filed within that three-month window will be considered by the examiner.

Likewise, an information disclosure statement will be considered if it is filed later than three months after the filing date but before the mailing date of a first Office action on the merits. An action on the merits means an action which treats the patentability of the claims in an application, as opposed to only formal or procedural requirements. An action on the merits would, for example, contain a rejection or indication of allowability of a claim or claims rather than just a restriction requirement (37 CFR 1.142) or just a requirement for additional fees to have a claim considered (37 CFR 1.16(d)). Thus, if an application was filed on Jan. 1 and the first Office action on the merits was not mailed until six months later on July 1, the examiner would be required to consider any proper information disclosure statement filed prior to July 1.

An information disclosure statement will be considered to have been filed on the day it was received in the Office, or on an earlier date of mailing if accompanied by a properly executed certificate of mailing under 37 CFR 1.8, or Express Mail certificate under 37 CFR 1.10. An Office action is mailed on the date indicated in the Office action.

B(2) Statement filed after B(1), but BEFORE mailing of final action or Notice of Allowance (37 CFR 1.97(c)).

An information disclosure statement will be considered by the examiner if filed after the period specified in B(1) above, but before the mailing date of either a final action under 37 CFR 1.113 or a notice of allowance under 37 CFR 1.311,

whichever occurs first, provided: (1) the statement is accompanied by either a certification as specified in 37 CFR 1.97(e) or (2) the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(p). If a final action or notice of allowance is mailed in an application and later withdrawn, the application will be considered as not having had a final action or notice of allowance mailed for purposes of considering an information disclosure statement.

(i) If information submitted during the period set forth in 37 CFR 1.97(c) with a certification is used in a new ground of rejection on unamended claims, the next Office action will not be made final since in this situation it is clear that applicant has submitted the information to the Office promptly after it has become known and the information is being submitted prior to a final determination on patentability by the Office. However, the information submitted with a certification can be used in a new ground of rejection and the next Office action made final. If the new ground of rejection was necessitated by amendment of the application by applicant. Where the information is submitted during this period with a fee, the examiner may use the information submitted, e.g., printed publication or evidence of public use, and make the pext Office action final whether or not the claims have been amended, provided that no other new ground of rejection which was not necessitated by amendment to the claims is introduced by the examiner. See MPEP 706.07(a). If a new ground of rejection is introduced that is neither necessitated by an amendment to the claims nor based on the information submitted with the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(p), the Office action shall not be made final.

(ii) A certification under 37 CFR 1.97(e) must state either

(a) that each item of information contained in the information disclosure statement was cited in a communication from a foreign patent office in a counterpart foreign application not more than three months prior to the filing of the statement, or

(b) that no item of information contained in the information disclosure statement was cited in a communication from a foreign patent office in a counterpart foreign application or, to the knowledge of the person signing the certification after making reasonable inquiry, was known to any individual designated in 37 CFR 1.56(c), more than three months prior to the filing of the statement.

A certification can contain either of two statements. One statement is that each item of information in an information disclosure statement was cited in a communication, such as a search report, from a patent office outside the U.S. in a counterpart foreign application not more than three months prior to the filing date of the statement. Under this certification, it does not matter whether any individual with a duty of disclosure actually knew about any of the information cited before receiving the search report. The date on the communication by the foreign patent office begins the three-month period in the same manner as the mailing of an Office action starts a three-month shortened statutory period for response. The date starting the three-month period is not the date the communication was received by a foreign associate or the date it was received by a U.S. registered practitioner. Likewise, the statement will be considered to have been filed on the date the statement was received in the Office, or on an earlier date of mailing if accompanied by a properly executed certificate of mailing under 37 CFR 1.8, or Express Mail certificate under 37 CFR 1.10.

The term counterpart foreign patent application means that a claim for priority has been made in either the U.S. application or a foreign application based on the other, or that the disclosures of the U.S. and foreign patent applications are substantively identical (e.g., an application filed in the European Patent Office claiming the same U.K. priority as claimed in the U.S. application).

In the alternative, a certification can be made if no item of information contained in the information disclosure statement was cited in a communication from a foreign patent office in a counterpart foreign application and, to the knowledge of the person signing the certification after making reasonable inquiry, neither was it known to any individual having a duty to disclose more than three months prior to the filing of the statement.

The phrase "after making reasonable inquiry" makes it clear that the individual making the certification has a duty to make reasonable inquiry regarding the facts that are being certified. The certification can be made by a registered practitioner who represents a foreign client and who relies on statements made by the foreign client as to the date the information first became known. A registered practitioner who receives information from a client without being informed whether the information was known for more than three months, however, cannot make the certification without making reasonable inquiry. For example, if an inventor gave a publication to the attorney prosecuting an application with the intent that it be cited to the Office, the attorney should inquire as to when that inventor became aware of the publication and should not submit a certification under 37 CFR 1.97(e)(2) to the Office until a satisfactory response is received. The certification can be based on present, good faith knowledge about when information became known without a search of files being made.

Certification need not be in the form of an oath or a declaration under 37 CFR 1.68. Certification by a registered practitioner or any other individual that the statement was filed within the three-month period of either first citation by a foreign patent office or first discovery of the information will be accepted as dispositive of compliance with this provision in the absence of evidence to the contrary. For example, a certification could read as follows:

"I hereby certify that each item of information contained in this information disclosure statement was cited in a communication from a foreign patent office in a counterpart foreign application not more than three months prior to the filing of this statement.", or

"I hereby certify that no item of information in the Information Disclosure Statement filed herewith was cited in a communication from a foreign patent office in a counterpart foreign application or, to my knowledge after making reasonable inquiry, was known to any individual designated in 37 CFR 1.56(c) more than three months prior to the filing of this Information Disclosure Statement."

An information disclosure statement may include two list and two certifications, similar to the above examples, in situations where some of the information listed was cited in a communication from a foreign patent office not more than three months prior to filing the statement and some was not, but was not known more than three months prior to filing the statement.

A copy of the foreign search report need not be submitted with the certification, but an individual may wish to submit an English-language version of the search report to satisfy the requirement for a concise explanation where non-English language information is cited. The time at which information "was known to any individual designated in 37 CFR 1.56(c)" is the time when the information was discovered in association with the application even if awareness of the materiality came later. The Office wishes to encourage prompt evaluation of the relevance of information and to have a date certain for determining if a certification can properly be made. A statement on information and belief would not be sufficient. Examiners should not remind or otherwise make any comment about an individual's duty of candor and good faith, but questions about the adequacy of any certification received in writing by the Office should be directed to the Office of the Assistant Commissioner for Patents.

B(3) Statement filed after B(2), but Prior to Payment of Issue Fee (37 CFR 1.97(d)).

An information disclosure statement will be considered by the examiner if filed after the mailing date of either a final action under 37 CFR 1.113 or a notice of allowance under 37 CFR 1.311, whichever occurs first, but before or simultaneous with payment of the issue fee, provided the statement is accompanied by:

(i) a certification as specified in 37 CFR 1.97(e) (see the discussion in B(2)(ii) above),

(ii) a petition requesting consideration of the information disclosure statement, and

(iii) the petition fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(i)(1).

These requirements are appropriate in view of the late stage of prosecution when the information is being submitted, i.e., after the examiner has reached a final determination on the patentability of the claims presented for examination. The petition should be directed to the Group Director of the examining group handling the application. The petition need do nothing more than request consideration of the information being submitted. Payment of the petition fee (37 CFR 1.17(i)(1)) and submission of the appropriate certification (37 CFR 1.97(e)) are the essential elements for having information considered at this advanced stage of prosecution.

The requirements of 37 CFR 1.97 provide for consideration by the Office of information which is submitted within a reasonable time, i.e., within 3 months after an individual designated in 37 CFR 1.56(c) becomes aware of the information or within 3 months of the information being cited in a communication from a foreign patent office in a counterpart foreign application. This undertaking by the Office to consider information would be available throughout the pendency of the application until the point where the patent issue fee was paid. If an applicant chose not to comply, or could not comply, with the requirements of 37 CFR 1.97(d), a continuing application could be filed to have the information considered by the examiner. The parent application could be permitted to become abandoned by not paying the issue fee required in the Notice of Allowance, for example, or by the filing of a file wrapper continuing application under 37 CFR 1.62. It would not be proper to make final a first Office action in the continuing application if the information submitted is used in a new ground of rejection.

B(4) Statement filed after Payment of Issue Fee.

After the issue fee has been paid on an application, it is impractical for the Office to attempt to consider newly submitted information. Information disclosure statements filed after payment of the issue fee in an application will not be considered but will merely be placed in the application file. See C below. The application may be withdrawn from issue at this point, however, pursuant to 37 CFR 1.313(b)(5) so that the information can be considered in a continuing application. In this situation, a file wrapper continuing application under 37 CFR 1.62 could be filed even though the issue fee had already been paid. The Office will consider the filing of a petition under 37 CFR 1.313(b)(5) as sufficient grounds to waive the requirement that an application under 37 CFR 1.62 be filed before payment of the issue fee. Alternatively, for example, a petition pursuant to 37 CFR 1.313(b)(3) could be filed if applicant states that one or more claims are unpatentable. This statement that one or more claims are unpatentable over the information must be unequivocable. A statement that a serious question as to patentability of a claim has been raised, for example, would not be acceptable to withdraw an application from issue under 37 CFR 1.313(b)(3).

If an application has been withdrawn from issue under one of the provisions of 37 CFR 1.313(b)(1)-(4), it will be treated as though no notice of allowance had been mailed and the issue fee had not yet been paid with regard to the time for filing information disclosure statements. Petitions under 37 CFR 1.313(b) should be directed to the Office of Petitions in the Office of the Assistant Commissioner for Patents.

B(5) Extensions of Time (37 CFR 1.97(f))

No extensions of time for filing an information disclosure statement are permitted under 37 CFR 1.136(a) or (b). If a bona fide attempt is made to comply with the content requirements of 37 CFR 1.98, but part of the required content is inadvertently omitted, additional time may be given to enable full compliance.

C. Examiner Handling of Information Disclosure Statements

Information disclosure statements will be reviewed for compliance with the requirements of 37 CFR 1.97 and 1.98 as discussed in A and B above. Applicant will be notified of compliance and non-compliance with the rules as discussed below.

C(1) Non-complying statements

Pursuant to 37 CFR 1.97(i), submitted information, filed before the grant of a patent, which does not comply with 37 CFR 1.97 and 1.98 will be placed in the file, but will not be considered by the Office. Information submitted after the grant of a patent must comply with 37 CFR 1.501.

(i) If an information disclosure statement does not comply with the requirement based on the time of filing the statement as discussed in B above, including the requirements for fees and/or certification, the statement will be placed in the application file, but none of the information will be considered by the examiner. The examiner may use form paragraph 6.49 which is reproduced below to inform applicant that the information has not been considered. Applicant may then file a new information disclosure statement or correct the deficiency in the previously filed statement but the date of that the statement or correction is filed will be the date of the statement for purposes of determining whether the requirements based on the time of filing the statement (37 CFR 1.97) have been complied with.

The examiner should write "not considered" on an information disclosure statement where none of the information listed complies with the requirements, e.g., no copies of listed items submitted. The paper containing the disclosure statement or list will be placed in the record in the application file. The examiner will inform applicant that the information has not been considered and the reasons why by using form paragraph 6.49. If the improper citation appears as part of another paper, e.g., an amendment, which may be properly entered and considered, the portion of the paper which is proper for consideration will be considered.

6.49 Information Disclosure Statement Not Considered

The information disclosure statement filed[1] fails to comply with the provisions of MPEP 609 because[2]. It has been placed in the application file, but the information referred to therein has not been considered as to the merits.

Examiner Note:
See MPEP 609 for situations where use of this paragraph would be appropriate.

(ii) If an information disclosure statement complies with the requirements based on the time of filing the statement as discussed in B above, including the requirements for fees and/or certification, but part of the content requirements as discussed in A above has been inadvertently omitted, the examiner may set a one-month time period to correct the omission. Form paragraph 6.51 may be used for this purpose.

6.51 Time Limit for Completing Information Disclosure Statement

The Information Disclosure Statement filed on[1] does not comply with the requirements of 37 CFR 1.98 because[2]. Since the submission appears to be bona fide, but through an apparent oversight or inadvertence failed to comply with the necessary requirements, applicant is required to complete the statement within a time limit of one month from the date of this letter. NO EXTENSION OF THIS TIME LIMIT MAY BE GRANTED UNDER EITHER 37 CFR 1.136(a) OR (b). Failure to comply with this notice will result in the Information Disclosure Statement being placed in the application file with the non-complying information not being considered.

Examiner Note:
This practice does not apply where there has been a deliberate omission of some necessary part of an information disclosure statement or where the requirements based on the time of filing the statement as set forth in 37 CFR 1.97 have not been complied with.

If a statement fails to comply with requirements as discussed in this section for an item of information, that item of information in the statement will not be considered and a line should be drawn through the citation to show that it has not been considered. However, other items of information that do comply with all the requirements will be considered by the examiner.

If information is listed in the specification rather than in a separate paper, or if the other content requirements as discussed in A above are not complied with, the examiner will notify applicant in the next Office action that the information has not been considered. It should be noted, however, that no copy of a U.S. patent application is required to be submitted. See A(2)(iii) above. Where a U.S. patent application is properly cited, the examiner should obtain access to that file within the Office.

C(2) Complying Statements

The information contained in information disclosure statements which comply with both the content requirements as discussed in A above and the requirements based on the time of filing the statement as discussed in B above will be considered by the examiner.

Applicants, patent owners, reexamination requesters, protesters and others are encouraged to use form PTO-1449, "Information Disclosure Citation," when preparing an information disclosure statement. A copy of this form is reproduced in this section to indicate how the form should be completed. This form will enable persons to comply with the requirements to list each item of information being submitted and to provide the Office with a uniform listing of citations and with a ready way to indicate that information has been considered.

Examiners must consider all citations submitted in conformance with the rules and this section and place their initials adjacent the citations on a list or in the boxes provided on a form PTO-1449. If the citations are submitted on a list other than on a form PTO-1449, the examiner may write "all considered" and his or her initials to indicate that all citations have been considered. If any of the citations are considered, a copy of the submitted list or form, as reviewed by the examiner, will be returned to the applicant with the next communication. The original copy of the form will be entered into the application file. The copy returned to applicant will serve both as acknowledgement of receipt of the information disclosure statement and as an indication that the references were considered by the examiner. Forms PTO-326 and PTOL-37 include a box to indicate the attachment of form PTO- 449.

Information which complies with requirements as discussed in this section but which is in a non-English language will be considered in view of the concise explanation submitted (A(3) above) and insofar as it is understood on its face, e.g., drawings, chemical formulas, in the same manner that non-English language information in Office search files is considered by examiners in conducting searches. The examiner need not have the information translated unless it appears to be necessary to do so. The examiner will indicate that the non-English language information has been considered in the same manner as consideration is indicated for information submitted in English. The examiner should not require that a translation be filed by applicant. The examiner should not make any comment such as that the non-English language information has only been considered to the extent understood, since this fact is inherent.

Since information is required to be listed in a separate paper rather than in the specification, there is no need to mark "All checked" or "Checked" in the margin of a specification containing citations.

If a statement fails to comply with the requirements as discussed in this section for an item of information, a line should be drawn through the citation to show that it has not been considered. The other items of information listed that do comply with the rules and this section will be considered by the examiner and will be appropriately initialed.

D. Information Printed on Patent

A citation listed on form PTO-1449 and considered by the examiner in accordance with this section will be printed on the patent. A citation listed in a separate paper, equivalent to but not on form PTO-1449, and considered by the examiner in accordance with this section will be printed on the patent if the list is on a separate sheet which is clearly identified as an information disclosure statement and the list lends itself to easy capture of the necessary information by the Office printing contractor, i.e., each item of information is listed on a single line, the lines are at least double-spaced from each other, the information is uniform in format for each listed item, the list includes a column for the examiner's initials to indicate that the information was considered. If a citation is not printed on the patent but has been considered by the examiner in accordance with this section, the patented file will reflect that fact as noted in C(2) above.

(67) Using Certificate of Correction to Perfect Claim for Priority Under 35 USC 119

Under 35 USC 119, an applicant may assert a right of priority and claim the benefit of an earlier filing date in a foreign country. In this regard, 35 USC 119 states:

> No application for patent shall be entitled to this right or priority unless a claim therefor and a certified copy of the original foreign application, specification and drawings upon which it is based are filed in the Patent and Trademark Office before the patent is granted. . . .

The failure to perfect a claim to foreign priority benefits prior to issuance of the patent may be cured by filing a reissue application; Brenner v. State of Israel,158 USPQ 584 (CA DC 1968).

However, under certain conditions, this failure may also be cured by filing a Certificate of Correction request under 35 USC 255 and 37 CFR 1.323. For example, in the case of In re Van Esdonk, 187 USPQ 671 (Comr. 1975), the Commissioner granted a request to issue a Certificate of Correction in order to perfect a claim to foreign priority benefits. In that case, a claim to foreign priority benefits had not been filed in the application prior to issuance of the patent. However, the application was a continuation of an earlier application in which the requirements of 35 USC 119 had been satisfied. Accordingly, the Commissioner held that the "applicants' perfection of a priority claim under 35 USC 119 in the parent application will satisfy the statute with respect to their continuation application."

Although In re Van Esdonk involved the patent of a continuation application filed under 37 CFR 1.60, it is proper to apply the holding of that case in similar factual circumstances to any patented application having benefits under 35 USC 120. This is primarily because a claim to foreign priority benefits in a continuing application, where the claim has been perfected in the parent application, constitutes in essence a mere affirmation of the applicant's previously expressed desire to receive benefits under 35 USC 119 for subject matter common to the foreign, parent, and continuing applications.

In summary, a Certificate of Correction under 35 USC 255 and 37 CFR 1.323 may be requested and issued in order to perfect a claim to foreign priority benefits in a patented continuing application if the requirements of 35 USC 119 had been satisfied in the parent application prior to issuance of the patent and the requirements of 37 CFR 1.55(a) are met.

However, a claim to foreign priority benefits cannot be perfected via a Certificate of Correction if the requirements of 35 USC 119 had not been satisfied in the patented application, or its parent, prior to issuance and the requirements 37 CFR 155(a) are not met. In this latter circumstance, the claim to foreign priority benefits can be perfected only by way of a reissue application in accordance with the rationale set forth in Brenner v. State of Israel, supra.

(68) DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE
Patent and Trademark Office
37 CFR Part I
[Docket No. 70635-9174]
RIN: 0651-AA13
Deposit of Biological Materials for Patent Purposes

Agency: Patent and Trademark Office, Commerce
Action: Final Rule
Summary: The Patent and Trademark Office (Office) is amending its rules of practice in patent cases to define procedures to govern the deposit of biological materials for patent purposes. Where an invention is or relies on a biological material which cannot be described in writing alone, and access to the biological material is necessary to satisfy the statutory requirements for patentability under 35 U.S.C. 112, these rules prescribe the procedures and conditions for making a deposit that will satisfy these requirements. These rules also prescribe examining procedures that will be used to address deposit issues, and the procedures pertaining to access to a deposit once a patent is granted.
Effective Date: January 1, 1990.
For Further Information Contact: Charles E. Van Horn or Harris A. Pitlick by telephone at [703] 557-4035 or by mail marked to his attention and addressed to Box 8, Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Washington, D.C. 20231.
Supplementary Information:

Every patent must contain a written description of the invention sufficient to enable a person skilled in the art to which the invention pertains to make and use the invention. Where the invention involves a biological material and words alone cannot sufficiently describe how to make and use the invention in a reproducible or repeatable manner, access to the biological material is necessary for the satisfaction of the statutory requirements for patentability under 35 U.S.C. 112. The rules set forth examining procedures and conditions of deposit which must be satisfied in the event a deposit is required to provide the necessary access. The rules do not address the substantive issue of whether a deposit is required under any particular set of facts.

These rules will be effective for all applications filed on or after January 1, 1990, and for all reexamination proceedings in which the request for reexamination was filed on or after January 1, 1990, except that deposits made prior to the effective date which are acceptable under current practice will be acceptable in such applications and proceedings. Since most of the provisions reflect existing policy and practice, little change to existing practice or burden on applicants for patent and patent owners relying on the deposit of biological material is anticipated. Applicants and patent owners are encouraged to comply with these rules prior to the effective date.

The final rules on the deposit of biological materials for patent purposes have evolved over several years of actual experience -in administering the guidelines set forth in Section 608.01(p) of the Manual of Patent Examining Procedure, including several administrative and judicial decisions, and interaction with interested public, bar and industry groups. A draft policy statement on the deposit of biological materials was circulated among interested bar and industry groups and published in the BNA-Patent, Trademark and Copyright Journal on May 22, 1986. An advance notice of proposed rulemaking setting forth rules being considered for deposits of biological material was published in the Federal Register, 52 FR 34080 (September 9, 1987), and in the Official Gazette, 1082 O.G. 47 (September 29, 1987). Finally, a notice of proposed rulemaking relating to the deposit of biological materials for patent purposes was published in the Federal Registar 53 FR 39420 (October 6, 1988), and in the Official Gazette, 1095 O.G. 47 (October 25, 1988).

In this notice of final rulemaking, a description of the changes in the text of the proposed rules is provided along with an explanation of the reasons supporting the changes. In addition, comments received in response to the notice of proposed rulemaking are analyzed. Finally, an explanation of the content of the final rules is provided, together with a compilation of relevant comments and responses that have been made during the rulemaking process. This explanation and compilation of previous comments and responses will serve as a set of guidelines that will be reproduced in the Manual of Patent Examining Procedure in due course.

Changes in Text of Proposed Rules

Several changes have been made in the text of the final rules from the text of the proposed rules which were published for comment in the notice of proposed rulemaking. Those changes are discussed below.

Section 1.200 as proposed has been renumbered as § 1.801 as adopted and the term "patent purposes" as proposed has been replaced with the term "purposes of patents for inventions under 35 U.S.C. 101" as adopted to clarify that the regulations pertaining to the deposit of biological material do not apply for purposes other than patents for inventions. Thus, these regulations are not applicable to applications for plant patents under 35 U.S.C. 161-164.

Section 1.201 as proposed has been renumbered as § 1.802 as adopted and the term "or Opportunity" in the heading thereof has been inserted after "Need" to reflect the permissive nature of a deposit when not necessary to satisfy 35 U.S.C. 112.

Paragraph (a) thereof as proposed provided that where a claimed invention is or relies on a biological material, the disclosure may include a deposit of the biological material deposited in a depository and under conditions complying with these regulations, provided a precondition was satisfied. The precondition was that the biological material not be known and readily available to the public and not be describable in writing alone. Paragraph (a) as adopted eliminates this precondition, does not require that the biological material be, or be used for, a claimed invention, does not require that the deposit be made in a depository and under conditions complying with these regulations, and more accurately states that the disclosure may include reference to a deposit, since the deposit is not physically part of the disclosure. Paragraph (a) as adopted merely provides that where an invention is, or relies on, a biological material, the disclosure may include reference to a deposit of such biological material.

Paragraph (b) of § 1.802 prescribes that biological material need not be deposited unless access to the material is necessary to satisfy 35 U.S.C. 112. If a deposit is necessary, it shall be acceptable if made in accordance with these regulations. Proposed paragraph (b) made no reference to 35 U.S.C. 112. Situations where a biological material is known and readily available to the public or can be made or isolated without undue experimentation are now listed as some, but not an exhaustive set, of the circumstances where deposit need not be made. The term "from known and readily available material" has been dropped from the end of the term "can be made or isolated without undue experimentation" as redundant. Paragraph (b) as adopted also prescribes that once deposited in a depository complying with these regulations, a biological material will be considered to be readily available even though some requirement of law or regulation permits access only under conditions imposed for safety, public health or similar reasons. Proposed paragraph (b) did not include the condition of deposit in a depository complying with these regulations.

Proposed paragraph (c) thereof was limited to reference to a specific organism or other biological material in a specification disclosure as not creating a presumption that the material was necessary to satisfy 35 U.S.C. 112 or that a deposit thereof is required. Paragraph (c) as adopted eliminates the term "specific organism or other" as redundant and also includes the act of deposit by an applicant or patent owner as not creating a presumption that the deposit is or was required.

Section 1.202 as proposed has been renumbered as § 1.803 as adopted.

Paragraph (a) thereof as proposed prescribed that a deposit shall be made in any International Depositary Authority (IDA) or any other depository recognized as suitable by the Office. Paragraph (a) as adopted now specifies that such deposits shall be recognized for the purpose of these regulations so as not to preclude deposits made for other reasons such as a gratuitous disclosure. Paragraph (a)(2) as adopted eliminates the requirement in the proposed rule that impartial consultants be from the biotechnology industry or governmental agencies. Paragraph (a)(2) as adopted also contains new sub-subparagraph (vii) as a requirement which a suitable depository must meet, viz.,that it promptly notify depositors of its inability to furnish samples, and the reasons why. This requirement appeared, in essence, in proposed § 1.204(a).

Proposed paragraph (b) thereof has not been adopted. Replacement of deposits is governed solely by § 1.805, infra.

Proposed paragraph (c) thereof has been adopted as paragraph (b). In subparagraph (2) thereof, "(b)" has been changed to "(a)(2)" to correct an inadvertent error in the proposed rule.

Proposed paragraph (d) thereof has been adopted as paragraph (c) except that the reference to paragraph (a) has been changed to paragraph (a)(2) to more clearly delineate which category of depository is intended to be covered by this paragraph of § 1.803 and all references to other paragraphs whose designations have been changed by adoption of these rules have been changed accordingly.

Proposed paragraph (e) thereof has been adopted as paragraph (d).

Section 1.203 as proposed has been renumbered as § 1.804 as adopted.

Paragraph (a) thereof prescribed that an original deposit of a biological material may be made before filing an application for patent or, pursuant to a requirement that will be made by the examiner no later than the date the Notice of Allowance and Issue Fee Due is mailed, during pendency of the application for patent. Paragraph (a) as adopted adds a precondition to making an original deposit that the biological material be specifically identified in the application as filed. Since proposed paragraph (a) did not address original deposits made during the pendency of an application that were not made pursuant to a requirement of an examiner, the rule as adopted states that original deposits may be made during pendency of an application for patent, subject to 1.809, infra, which prescribes, inter alia, when during the pendency of an application for patent a deposit shall be made when made pursuant to a requirement by the examiner.

Paragraph (b) thereof as proposed required a statement that, for an original deposit made after the effective filing date of an application for patent, the biological material deposited was the same biological material described in the application as filed. Paragraph (b) as adopted substitutes the word "a" for the word "the" since more than one biological material may be referred to in the application as filed, drops the word "same" and requires the statement that the biological material deposited is a biological material specifically identified in the application as filed.

Section 1.204 as proposed has been renumbered as § 1.805 as adopted and a reference to supplemental deposits has been added to the heading thereof. Paragraphs (a) and (b) of the section as proposed have been substantially rewritten as paragraphs (a), (b) and (c). New elements have been added and some eliminated, although some elements of the proposed rule on replacement deposits have been adopted, either with similar language or different language.

Elements of the proposed rule on replacement deposits which have not been adopted include a requirement that replacement deposits be made or be made within a specific time limit. Ramifications in Office proceedings from not making a replacement deposit, or in the case of a patent, not diligently making a replacement deposit, are stated.

A requirement in the proposed section that depositories promptly notify depositors of an inability to furnish samples has been adopted as 1.803(a)(2)(vii), supra.

Paragraph (a) of § 1.805 requires a depositor, after receiving notice during the pendency of an application for patent, application for reissue patent or reexamination proceeding, that the depository possessing a deposit either cannot furnish samples thereof or can furnish samples thereof but the deposit has become contaminated or has lost its capability to function as dscribed in the specification, to notify the Office in writing, in each application for patent or patent affected. In such a case, or where the Office otherwise learns, during the pendency of an application for patent, application for reissue patent or reexamination proceeding, that the depository possessing a deposit either cannot furnish samples thereof or can furnish samples thereof but the deposit has become contaminated or has lost its capability to function as described in the specification, the need for making a replacement or supplemental deposit will be governed by the same considerations governing the need for making an original deposit under the provisions set forth in § 1.802(b). A replacement or supplemental deposit made during the pendency of an application for patent shall not be accepted unless it meets the requirements for making: an original deposit under these regulations, including the requirement set forth under § 1.804(b). A replacement or supplemental deposit made in connection with a patent, whether or not made during the pendency of an application for reissue patent or a reexamination proceeding or both, shall not be recognized by the Office unless a certificate of correction under § 1.323 is requested by the patent owner which meets the terms of paragraphs (b) and (c) of this section. The proposed rules did not provide for certificates of correction relating to replacement or supplemental deposits.

Paragraph (b) of § 1.805 prescribes that a request for certificate of correction under this section shall not be granted unless the certificate identifies the accession number for the replacement or supplemental deposit; the date of the deposit; and the name and address of the depository.

Paragraph (c) of § 1.805 prescribes that a certificate of correction under this section shall not be granted unless the request therefor is made promptly after the replacement or supplemental deposit has been made and includes a verified statement of the reason for making the replacement or supplemental deposit; a verified statement from a person in a position to corroborate the fact, and shall state, that the replacement or supplemental deposit is of a biological material which is identical to that originally deposited; a verified showing that the patent owner acted diligently - in the case of a replacement deposit, in making the deposit after receiving notice that samples could no longer be furnished from an earlier deposit, or in the case of a supplemental deposit, in making the deposit after receiving notice that the earlier deposit had become contaminated or had lost its capability to function as described in the specification; a verified statement that the term of the replacement or supplemental deposit expires no earlier than the term of the deposit being replaced or supplemented; and otherwise establishes compliance with these regulations, except that if the person making one or more of the required statements or showing is an attorney or agent registered to practice before the Office, that statement or showing need not be verified.

Paragraph (d) of § 1.805 prescribes that a depositor's failure to replace a deposit, or in the case of a patent, to diligently replace a deposit and promptly thereafter request a certificate of correction which meets the terms of paragraphs (b) and (c) of this section, after being notified that the depository possessing the deposit cannot furnish samples thereof, shall cause the application or patent involved to be treated in any Office proceeding as if no deposit were made.

Paragraph (e) as adopted is identical to proposed paragraph (d) except that the word "the" before "patent" has been replaced with "a" because the term "the patent" had no antecedent basis, and the term "according to these regulations" has been inserted after the word "replaced" to make it clear that the rebuttable presumption according to this paragraph applies only where the replacement deposit has been made according to these regulations.

Paragraph (f) as adopted is substantially similar to proposed paragraph (e) with respect to an applicant's ability to make a replacement for any reason during the pendency of an application for patent. Paragraph (f) extends such applicant's ability to supplemental deposits as well. The first two sentences of proposed paragraph (e) prescribing when a replacement deposit shall be made while an application is still pending and that an applicant notify the Office when a replacement deposit is necessary have been adopted in § 1.805(a), supra.

Paragraph (g) as adopted is identical to proposed paragraph (f) except that supplemental deposits are also included and the reference to another section therein has been changed to reflect its renumbering.

Paragraph (h) as adopted is substantially similar to proposed paragraph (g) except for two changes. One is that the word "the" before "biological material" has been changed to "a" because the term "the biological material" had no antecedent basis. The other change is replacement of the term "viable deposit is in the depository" with the term "depository can furnish samples thereof". The term "in the depository" was not clear. The word "viable" before "deposit" would have excluded biological materials not capable of reproduction either directly or indirectly. For biological materials which are so capable of reproduction, samples of viable deposits thereof which become non-viable cannot be furnished by the depository.

Paragraph (i) as adopted modifies paragraph (h) as proposed. Whereas the proposed rule proscribed a patentee from replacing a viable deposit where the depository can furnish samples, the rule as adopted states that the Office will not recognize in any Office proceeding a replacement deposit of a biological material made by a patent owner where the depository could furnish samples of the deposit being replaced.

Section 1.205 as proposed has been renumbered as § 1.806 as adopted. The proposed rule had set the term of deposit as, inter alia, at least thirty years after the date of a viable deposit. The rule as adopted sets the thirty-year term to begin after a deposit, before or during pendency of an application for patent, is made. The term of a deposit made by a patent owner is not prescribed. However, § 1.805(a), supra, prescribes that a replacement or supplemental deposit made in connection with a patent will not be recognized in any Office proceeding unless a certificate of correction under § 1.323 is requested by the patent owner which meets the terms of paragraphs (b) and (c) of § 1.805, one of which terms is a verified statement by the patent owner that the term of the new deposit expires no earlier than the term of the deposit being replaced or supplemented. An additional change in the rule as adopted is the replacement of the term "deposited biological material" with the word "deposit" since the former term had no antecedent basis.

Section 1.206 as proposed has been renumbered as § 1.807 as adopted. The rule as adopted is identical to the rule as proposed except for the reference to a rule which has been renumbered.

Section 1.207 as proposed has been renumbered as § 1.808 as adopted.

In paragraph (a) thereof, first word, "The" as proposed has been replaced with "A" because "The" had no antecedent basis.

In view of the non-adoption of proposed § 1.207(c), infra, paragraph (a)(2) as adopted refers to only paragraph (b), not paragraphs (b) and (c).

Paragraph (b)(1) as proposed permitted a depositor to require, inter alia, that a depository furnish samples only if a request for a sample is in writing and signed.

Paragraph (b) as adopted permits a depositor to require a request to be in writing or other tangible form. The signing requirement, however, has not been adopted.

Paragraph (b)(3) as proposed permitted a depositor to require, inter alia, that a depository furnish the depositor with a copy of the request. This requirement has not been adopted.

Paragraph (c) as proposed has not been adopted.

Paragraph (d) as proposed, with one change, has been adopted as paragraph (c). The change is the insertion of the term "made to the Office" after the term "Upon request" to make it clear that certification imposes no burden on a depository.

Section 1.208 as proposed has been renumbered as § 1.809 as adopted.

The term "required" when referring to "deposit" in proposed paragraphs (a), (b) and (c) thereof has been changed to "needed" as adopted for purposes of consistency with § 1.802. The term "in case one has not been made, or" as proposed in paragraph (a) has been replaced with "and if needed," as adopted for purposes of clarification. The statement as proposed that a deposit accepted in any acceptable depository under § 1.202(a) shall be accepted for patent purposes if made under conditions complying with § 1.207(a) has not been adopted. The statement is redundant in view of the provision in § 1.802(b) as adopted that a deposit necessary for the satisfaction of 35 U.S.C. 112 shall be acceptable if made in accordance with these regulations. Since the question of deposits may come up in reissue applications and reexamination proceedings as well as in applications for patents, paragraph (a) as adopted covers examination of all such applications and proceedings. Paragraph (a) as adopted also refers to supplemental deposits since issues of the need for a deposit may arise where a deposit has lost its capability to function as described in the specification. Paragraph (a) as proposed prescribed that affected claims would be rejected in an Office action. Paragraph (a) as adopted drops "in an Office action" and instead prescribes that the claims would be rejected "where appropriate."

Paragraph (b)(1) as proposed was limited to applicants. Paragraph (b)(1) as adopted covers applicants for patents and patent owners involved in specified Office proceedings. The provision for applicants for patents in paragraph (b)(1) as adopted is identical to the provision for applicants in paragraph (b)(1) as proposed except for the additional adoption of a reference to supplemental deposits. Paragraph (b)(1) as adopted additionally provides for patent owners responding to a rejection under paragraph (a) of this section by requesting a certificate of correction of the patent which meets the terms of paragraphs (b) and (c) of § 1.805.

Paragraph (b)(2) as proposed has not been adopted. Subparagraph (3) has therefore been renumbered as (2) and the reference therein to paragraph (b)(2) has been eliminated. Two additions have been made. One, since the question of deposit may come up in connection with a reissue application or reexamination proceeding, the term "or patent" has been inserted after "application" in the first sentence. Two, since paragraph (a) provides for a rejection under 35 U.S.C. 112 when a deposit actually made cannot be accepted, it is considered an appropriate response that a deposit actually made should be accepted. Thus, the term "and/or why a deposit actually made should be accepted" has been inserted at the end of the first sentence of paragraph (b)(2) as adopted.

Paragraph (c) as proposed has been adopted except that the term "for patent" has been inserted after "application" in the first sentence to make it clear that this paragraph does not apply to other applications, such as applications for reissues. Additionally, the word "the" before the proposed term "required deposit" has been changed to "a" because the term "the required deposit" had no antecedent basis. Finally, the term "37 CFR" preceding "1.136" in the proposed rule has been replaced with "§" as adopted to be consistent with standard nomenclature.

Paragraph (d)(3) as proposed required a taxonomic description of the deposit. Paragraph (d)(3) as adopted requires a description of the deposited biological material sufficient to specifically identify it and to permit examination. Paragraphs (d)(1), (d)(2), (d)(3) and (d)(4) have otherwise been adopted exce'pt for the addition of prefatory articles "The" or "A".

Response to and Analysis of Comments

Written comments from sixteen (16) sources were received in response to the notice of proposed rulemaking. Some suggestions made in comments have been adopted as presented or in modified form and others have not been adopted. A detailed analysis of the comments follows.

Comment: The proposed rule numbers, except § 1.200, are the same as those of the old interference rules, and it appears to be Office practice to normally avoid using rule numbers which end in "00," especially for a rule, viz., 1.200, which is the first of a group of rules. The rules, if adopted, should have different numbers.

Response: The suggestion has been adopted. Proposed §§ 1.200 through 1.208 have been renumbered as §§ 1.801 through 1.809 as adopted, respectively.

Comment: Two comments ask whether the rules will apply retroactively. One comment suggests that they should and further, that the benefits provided for depositors in proposed §§ 1.207(b) and (c) take effect immediately so that those patent applicants who would benefit from them will be encouraged not to delay in filing or obtaining a patent until a final rule takes effect.

Response: To the extent the rules codify existing Office practice, they are already effective. Otherwise, the rules will be effective in applications for patent or for reissue of patent filed on or after January 1, 1990, and in reexamination proceedings in which the request for reexamination was filed on or after January 1, 1990, except that deposits made prior to the effective date which are acceptable under current practice will be acceptable in such applications and proceedings. Applicants and patent owners are encouraged to comply now with those requirements of the rules not required by existing Office practice.

Comment: A sentence should be added at the end of proposed § 1.200 to clarify that the rule does not preclude the possibility of depositing other biological materials for patent purposes, such as plants per se, even though not within the scope of the term "biological material" as defined by the rule. Adding such a sentence would be consistent with previous concerns expressed to the Office over the possible requirement for deposits with respect to plant patents. With the added sentence, the rule would not address any kind of requirement for deposit in plant patents.

Response: In a response to a comment in the notice of proposed rulemaking, it was stated that the Office did not intend to propose rules on deposits under the Plant Patent Act (35 U.S.C. 161-164) at this time, nor will the Office take the position that a deposit is required under the present provisions of 35 U.S.C. 162. The text of the rule adopted in § 1.801 is the same as proposed in § 1.200 except that the rule now explicitly states that the regulations are for purposes of patents for inventions under 35 U.S.C. 101. Thus, these regulations do not and are not intended to address the question of deposits in plant patent applications.

Comment: One comment suggests that the language in § 1.200 should be expanded to make it clear that other biological materials, such as plants per se, are not precluded from being deposited. Another comment assumes that the Office intends to limit the scope of "biological material" as defined by this rule. The rules and commentary should indicate that the scope and effect of the rules are limited to biological materials as defined in the rules. This rule is acceptable provided it simply defines what constitutes biological material.

Response: None of the suggestions have been adopted. In a response to a comment in the notice of proposed rulemaking, it was stated that biological material is defined in the proposed rule in terms of a non-exhaustive list of what it includes and that no materials were explicitly excluded. The response also stated that the Office does not contemplate that there would be many situations where a material that is not capable of self-replication either directly or indirectly would be acceptable as a deposit under these regulations but that an applicant was not precluded in any given case from attempting to show why such a material should be acceptable. Plants per se are an example of such materials.

Comment: The proposed rules do not, but should, address a problem associated with marine sponges and other marine macroorganisms. These materials and their natural location can be adequately described so that one skilled in the art could obtain them using the necessary equipment. But their taxonomy is in a developmental stage and scientific names are subject to revision. Deposit and maintenance of these materials in viable form is not practical. They can and have been deposited in non-viable form, preserved or fixated in a suitable non-destructive medium, where their shelf life is expected to be at least 30 years.

Response: See the response to the previous comment. As stated in a response to a comment in the advance notice of proposed rulemaking, the PTO Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences held that a description of the precise geographic location of marine tunicates used in a claimed invention was adequate to satisfy the enablement requirement of 35 U.S.C. 112. Ex Parte Rinehart, 10 USPQ2d 1719 (PTO Bd. Pat. App. & Int. 1985). It was also stated in that response that the term "readily" as used in the term "known and readily available" appearing in the proposed rules is considered appropriate to define that degree of availability which would be reasonable under the circumstances. Since the comment states that the subject materials and their natural location can be adequately described so that one skilled in the art could obtain them using the necessary equipment, the disclosure would appear to be sufficient to meet the enablement requirements of 35 U.S.C. 112 without a deposit so long as their degree of availability is reasonable under the circumstances.

Comment: In a response to a comment in the notice of proposed rulemaking which was in response to a solicitation for comments in the advance notice of proposed rulemaking on the setting of an appropriate minimum number of seeds to ensure availability of the seed through the enforceable life of the patent, it was stated that the Office does not intend to propose rules quantifying a minimum number of seeds but that the Office will consider 2500 to be a minimum number in the normal case and will provide an applicant an opportunity to provide justification why a lesser number would be suitable under the circumstances of a particular case. One comment suggests that 2500 may present problems where the normal yield of a plant is only a few seeds. A more reasonable minimum is 1250. Another comment suggests that there be no minimum number but an obligation on the part of the depositor to replace a seed each time one is requested.

Response: Since the Office has stated that an applicant will be provided an opportunity to show why a lesser amount than 2500 seeds would be appropriate in a particular case, the policy of requiring minimum number of 2500 is adhered to. An obligation on the part of the depositor to replace a seed each time one is requested is simply impractical.

Comment: The title of proposed § 1.201 should be changed from "Need to make a deposit" to "Opportunity to make a deposit" since the provision states that "the disclosure may include a deposit of a biological material . . . ."

Response: The suggestion has been adopted in part. Since § 1.802 applies to situations both when a deposit may be made (optional) and when a deposit is necessary, the heading of the rule states both need and opportunity in the alternative.

Comment: Proposed § 1.201(a) should state that the disclosure may include reference to a deposit, rather than that the disclosure may include a deposit.

Response: The suggestion has been adopted in § 1.802(a).

Comment: Proposed § 1.201(a) does not clearly permit deposits where conditions enumeraied therein do not apply. The proposed rule should be revised by eliminating the requirement that the biological material not be known and readily available to the public before a deposit may be made. The proposed revision would make clear that an applicant has a universal and unconditional right to make a deposit of a biological material whenever the biological material cannot be described in writing alone, regardless of whether the material is known and readily available. The rule as proposed is not consistent with the permissive use of deposits where they might not be mandated. The proposed revision would dispel any suggestion or implication that the legal standard under which deposits are mandated is that the biological material be neither known nor readily available. Obviously, such materials even if unknown and not readily available might be enabled solely through a written description, rendering deposit unnecessary.

Response: The suggestion has been adopted in § 1.802(a). In addition, the rule as adopted permits deposits even where the biological material can be described in writing alone and even where the claimed invention is not, or does not rely on, the biological material. Section 1.802(a) as adopted permits reference in the disclosure to a deposit of a biological material, the only precondition being that an invention is or relies on that material. The requirement in the proposed rule that the biological material not be known and readily available to the public and not be describable in writing alone, and that the material be, or be used for, the claimed invention, has notbeen adopted.

Comment: Two comments suggest that § 1.201(a) refer to 35 U.S.C. 112. One comment suggests that § 1.201(a) should make some reference to 35 U.S.C. 112 for completeness. Another comment suggests that proposed § 1.201(a) contains no standard and should thus make reference to 35 U.S.C. 112, for example, by inserting words to the effect that the biological material cannot be described in writing alone to satisfy the requirements of 35 U.S.C. 112.

Response: The suggestions have not been adopted. But see the response to the next comment.

Comment: Proposed § 1.201(b) should be revised by stating that biological material need not be deposited unless necessary for the satisfaction of the statutory requirements of 35 U.S.C. 112. Thus, the rule would state that the ultimate reason for a requirement for a deposit would be to satisfy 35 U.S.C. 112. Further, the rule should state one circumstance, among others, where a biological material need not be deposited, viz., where it is known and readily available to the public or can be made or isolated without undue experimentation. The last sentence of proposed § 1.201(b) should state a precondition that a deposit of the biological material be made in a depository complying with these regulations.

Response: The suggestions have been adopted in § 1.802(b).

Comment: Proposed § 1.201(c) should be revised by stating that the actual deposit of a biological material referred to in a specification disclosure also does not create a presumption that the material is necessary to satisfy 35 U.S.C. 112 or that the deposit is or was required. The proposed revision would recognize that the act of deposit does not and should not constitute an admission by the applicant that the deposit was made because it was necessary to satisfy 35 U.S.C. 112. For example, deposit may be necessary in the United States prior to the time a patent application is filed in order for an applicant to be entitled to assert a priority right under patent laws of a foreign country based on a United States application which makes reference to such deposit. Additionally, applicants ought to be encouraged to make deposits in questionable cases without such act being construed as an admission of any sort.

Response: The suggestion has been adopted in § 1.802(c).

Comment: The term "or other biological material" in proposed § 1.201(c) should be changed to "or any other biologial material" to make sure that all biological materials that would normally be considered for deposits are included.

Response: The comment is not understood. Nevertheless, it is moot. The term "specific organism or other biological material" in proposed § 1.201(c) has been changed to "biological material" in § 1.802(c) as adopted.

Comment: Two comments suggest that proposed § 1.202(a)(2) unnecessarily limits who may be consulted in determining the suitability of a depository to be recognized by the Office to those in the biotechnology industry or Government agencies. Views from academia may be wanted. One of the comments suggests, therefore, that the term "from the biotechnology industry or governmental agencies" be deleted from § 1.202(a)(2).

Response: The suggestions have been adopted in § 1.803(a)(2).

Comment: Proposed § 1.202(a) should be revised to state that a deposit shall be recognized for the purposes of these regulations if made in a depository according to subparagraph (1) or (2) thereof. The proposed revision would allow for deposits other than in Office-recognized depositories, but give deposits in Office-recognized depositories the "safe harbor" advantages of these regulations.

Response: The suggestion has been adopted in § 1.803(a). Simply put, the rules do not prohibit deposits made under any conceivable conditions. The Office will treat a deposit not made according to these regulations, however, as if no deposit had been made.

Comment: The provision set forth in proposed § 1.202(c)(3), i.e., that a depository seeking status under paragraph (a)(2) indicate that it intends to be available, for the purposes of deposit, to any depositor under these same conditions, should also be listed in § 1.202(a)(2), which enumerates the qualifications for a depository seeking recognition as suitable by the Office.

Response: The suggestion is not being adopted. The requirement in proposed § 1.202(a)(2)(v), and § 1.803(a)(2)(v) as adopted, that the depository be impartial and objective, is inclusive of a requirement that it be available, for purposes of deposit, to any depositor under these same conditions.

Comment: One comment suggests that the proposed rules do not adequately define the term "depositor". It could be the inventor, the assignee, one to whom the inventor has an obligation to assign, or the individual who signs the deposit form. In the case of joint inventors with different institutional ties, who is the depositor? Assuming that where the inventor is a university professor, the depositor is the university, deposit in that university's depository would be precluded by proposed § 1.202(a)(2)(ii) and possibly 1.202(a)(2)(v). An exception should be made for non-profit organizations. They should be allowed to "self-deposit" since it is highly improbable that they would refuse to provide samples to third parties. The availability of a strain from a university was found to satisfy 35 U.S.C. 112 in Merck and Co., Inc. v. Chase Chemical Co., 273 F.Supp. 68, 77, 92, 155 USPQ 139, 146, 159 (D.N.J. 1967). Another comment suggests that it is not clear, where the depositor is a separate, independent division of a particular entity and the depository is another separate, independent division of the same entity, whether this arrangement meets the terms of proposed § 1.202(a)(2)(ii).

Response: None of the suggestions have been adopted. In § 1.803(a)(2)(ii) as adopted, a depository recognized to be suitable by the Office and not otherwise an IDA must exist independent of the control of the depositor. In a response to a comment in the notice of proposed rulemaking, it was stated that the term "depositor" is intended to include the party on whose behalf the deposit is made. It was further stated in that response that the rationale of the Office in requiring that a depository, if not an IDA, be independent of the depositor was adequately discussed in the advance notice of proposed rulemaking. The advance notice stated:

The concept of an independent depository or an IDA as an acceptable depository is based on the need and desire to ensure the safe and reliable storage of a deposited biological material under circumstances that are free of the opportunity for intentional or negligent handling of the deposited material. The use of an independent depository or an internationally recognized depository will tend to preserve the integrity of the deposit process against those that may accidentally alter the deposited material, may wish to tamper with the deposited material or may wish to resume control of its availability when the patent is no longer enforceable, and to preserve the interest of the public in the free access to the biological material for any purpose once the term of the patent expires. Further, while the PTO is constrained to approve independent depositories other than an IDA, the PTO has neither the resources nor capability to assess the individual capability of any party that wishes to act as its own depository. The rules under consideration are intended to minimize depositories that will be found acceptable.

The above discussion applies to non-profit organizations as well as for-profit organizations. Moreover, it is clear from the discussion above that the scope of the term "depositor" is limited only by the requirement that the depositor have no control over the depository. Such a relationship is not necessarily inconsistent with one where there is some legal relationship between depositor and depository. The Merck case cited above does not stand for the proposition that a university is necessarily an acceptable depository because it makes available samples of a biological material. In Merck, the availability of the biological material from the university was evidence that the biological material was known and readily available. While a deposit by an applicant in a depository under the applicant's control will not be recognized by the Office as a deposit under these regulations, an applicant is not precluded from showing that the deposited material, by virtue of conditions of public knowledge of unrestricted availability of samples of the deposit, is known and readily available to the public. However, depositors should be aware that relying on such a showing rather than making a deposit according to these regulations involves a risk that the biological material might in the future not be readily available. The university relied on in the Merck case, for example, eventually ceased its practice of making biological materials readily available.

Comment: Proposed § 1.202(b) is intended to apply in the event that a depository ceases to enjoy the status of a recognized depository. The manner of making a substitute deposit in such a situation would not seem to be fully explained by a reference to proposed § 1.204. For example, if a depository were to cease operation, it might not be able to, in the words of proposed 1.204(a), "promptly after having noted its inability to furnish samples, notify the depositor of such inability". Second, the rule as proposed is difficult to follow. For example, it indicates that a substitute deposit "must be viable if the biological material is of a kind capable of self-replication". The implication that certain deposits might be non-viable is at best confusing in the absence of a definition for viability.

Response: Proposed § 1.202(b) has not been adopted. Section 1.805, the rule as adopted on replacement deposits, puts the burden exclusively on the applicant or patent owner, whatever the case may be, to both make a replacement deposit and make the necessary showing that such a deposit complies with these regulations. Viability is dealt with exclusively by § 1.807 as adopted.

Comment: Three comments suggest that it be a requirement of the rules that the biological material have been in existence at the time of filing the patent application. One comment suggests that a sentence be added to proposed 1.208(a) to require that the application as filed state that the biological material is in existence. The other comments suggest that proposed § 1.203 require an averment that the deposited biological material was in existence at the time the application was filed.

Response: None of the suggestions have been adopted. Patent law does not require an actual reduction to practice as a condition precedent to filing a patent application. While few, if any, situations can be imagined where the description requirement of 35 U.S.C. 112 can be satisfied where the biological material was not in existence at the time of filing, the rules do not preclude such a situation. But see the response to the next comment.

Comment: Proposed § 1.203(a) should require that a biological material may be deposited only if an adequate antecedent basis exists in the specification as filed, i.e., the biological material to be deposited must be specifically identified therein.

Response: The suggestion has been adopted in § 1.804(a). It must be clear from the application as filed that the invention claimed and described in the specification "was fully capable of being reduced to practice (i.e., no technological problems, the resolution of which would require more than ordinary skill and reasonable time, remained in order to obtain an operative, useful process)." Feldman v. Aunstrup 517 F.2d 1351, 1355, 186 USpQ 108, 113 (CCPA 1975), cert. denied, 424 U.S. 912 (1976). Accord, In re Lundak, 773 F.2d 1216, 1221, 227 USPQ 90, 94 (Fed. Cir. 1985).

Comment: Two comments suggest that proposed § 1.203(a) be revised so that it addresses the permissible situation where a deposit is made during the pendency of an application for patent not pursuant to a requirement made by an examiner.

Response: The suggestion has been substantially adopted in § 1.804(a). An original deposit may be made, subject to § 1.809, during pendency of the application for patent. Where § 1.809 does not apply, i.e., where a deposit is ultimately not required, a deposit may be made at any time during pendency.

Comment: The Office should discuss in the commentary accompanying the notice of proposed § 1.203(b) as a final rule the meaning and intent behind the requirement that the deposited biological material be the "same" as the material described in the specification. For example, does the Office contemplate that the statement constitute a representation that the deposited material is in essentially the same form as was in existence at the time of the filing of the patent specification, and, accordingly as specifically described therein?

Response: Proposed § 1.203(b) has been adopted as § 1.804(b) but with the word "same" deleted and the term "described" replaced with "specifically identified." Under § 1.804(b), the biological material deposited must be a biological material specifically identified in the application as filed.

Comment: One comment asks whether a patent which is defective because of the lack of a deposit can be rectified by making the deposit in connection with a reissue application. Another comment points out that the issue of post-grant original deposits is not addressed by these regulations and the Office is urged to comment to this effect in the final promulgation of the rules.

Response: It is assumed from the comment that a deposit was necessary at the time the patent issued. A patent defective because of lack of a necessary deposit is necessarily fatally defective for failure to comply with the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112. Reissue is not available in such cases. See In re Hay, 534 F.2d 917, 189 USPQ 790 (CCPA), cert. denied, 429 U.S. 977 (1976). Whether reissue is available where a biological material necessary for compliance with 35 U.S.C. 112 was known and readily available at the time of issuance of the patent and subsequently ceased to be readily available is not addressed by this response. Nor do the rules address the question of post-issue original deposits, whether necessary or not to comply with the patent statutes.

Comment: Many comments were received regarding proposed § 1.204 and the subject of replacement deposits. One comment suggests that the time limits in proposed § 1.204(a) for making replacement deposits, specifically as they apply post-grant, are totally arbitrary. For example, a replacement deposit made four months after notice from the depository, without a suitable petition for extension of time, could not be relied on. A number of comments suggest that in proposed § 1.204(a), it is not clear who is required to petition whom in order to obtain an extension of time" in which to make a replacement deposit. A depository is not equipped to deal with the legalities of such matters. If the petition is filed with the Office, there will be administrative burdens. Another comment suggests that instead of specified time limits and petitions for extensions of time, the rule should state that where a patentee makes a replacement deposit, the patentee shall promptly request a certificate of correction identifying the particulars of the replacement deposit and that no certificate of correction shall be granted unless the request includes, inter alia, a verified showing that the patentee acted diligently in making the replacement deposit. A certificate of correction in providing the particulars of the new deposit (depository and accession number) would provide the simplest and most straightforward vehicle under which the patentee could assure continuing public notice (and accordingly public access) to particular biological materials described in the specification. Corrections to the issued patent would be made subject to all conditions of these deposit regulations and an additional specific requirement that the replacement deposit be made diligently after the notification is received that samples cannot be furnished from the deposit. This generalized requirement of diligence is preferable to the more rigid and cumbersome procedures set forth in the rules as proposed.

Response: The provisions of a three-month time limit for making a replacement deposit and petitioning for extensions of time t extend the limit in proposed § 1.204(a) applied by their terms only to patentees or patent owners. These provisions have not been adopted. Except in reexamination and reissue applications, it is beyond the rulemaking authority of the Office to regulate issued patents. Thus, instead of requiring patent owners to make replacement, or supplemental, deposits and to make them within a specified time, or to require them to request certificates of correction, paragraphs (a), (b) and (c) of § 1.805 as adopted specify that a replacement or supplemental deposit made in connection with a patent, whether or not made during the pendency of an application for reissue patent or a reexamination proceeding or both, shall not be recognized in any Office proceeding unless the patent owner requests a certificate of correction under § 1.323 provided certain specified conditions are met, including that the patent owner acted diligently in making the replacement or supplemental deposit and promptly thereafter requested the certificate of correction.

Comment: The rules should indicate that replacement deposits made during the pendency of an application will be treated in exactly the same way as any other deposit made after the filing date.

Response: The suggestion has been essentially adopted in § 1.805(a) which states, inter alia, that a replacement or supplemental deposit made in connection with an application for patent shall be accepted if it meets the requirements for making an original deposit under these regulations, including the requirement set forth under § 1.804(b).

Comment: The rules should address a situation where the deposit is of a non-viable biological material, such as a marine sponge or other marine macroorganism. Filling requests for samples can ultimately consume the entire deposit. Two other comments suggest that a depositor be permitted to charge the requesting party a fee sufficient to cover the cost of replacing the deposit. A competitor could "drain off" the store of deposit and thereby require replacement at significant economic hardship to the depositor.

Response: Where the biological material deposited is capable of self-replication either directly or indirectly, exhaustion of the deposit would appear to be highly unlikely. Regardless of the type of biological material deposited, however, the depositor must assure that samples thereof be available beyond the enforceable life of any patent relying on the material.

Comment: Nothing in the regulations which define the suitability of a depository requires that the depository itself must provide notice to depositors in the event of an inability to furnish samples yet proposed 1.204(a) does.

Response: The suggestion has been adopted in § 1.803(a)(2)(vii).

Comment: A number of comments suggest that the legal ramifications of an additional deposit made pursuant to proposed § 1.204(h), i.e., made where an earlier deposit has become contaminated or has lost its capability to function as described in the specification, are not clear. Some of the same comments go on to suggest that the deposit provided for in § 1.204(h) be termed a "supplemental" deposit rather than an "additional" deposit to emphasize the relationship between it and the earlier deposit, that such a deposit have the same legal effect as the earlier deposit provided the patent holder provides a verified statement that it is identical to the earlier deposit, and that it have the same accession number as the earlier deposit, perhaps with a suffix modification. One comment suggests that the rules require that a deposit under paragraph (h) be assigned the same accession number but with an appropriate suffix. A depository commentator asks that where a deposit under paragraph (h) is made, which deposit — the earlier or the later one — should be made available to the public. Currently, this depository advises a requesting party that there are two deposits.

Response: The suggestion of replacing the term "additional" with the term "supplemental" has been adopted but in a somewhat different setting. Whereas proposed § 1.204(h) stated that nothing in the regulations was intended to prohibit a patentee from making an additional deposit, paragraphs (a), (b), (c), (f) and (g) of § 1.805 as adopted provide for patent owners as well as patent applicants making supplemental deposits of a biological material earlier deposited from which a depository can still furnish samples. These paragraphs provide for supplemental deposits similar to the provisions in these paragraphs for replacement deposits, including the requirement of showing diligence in making the deposit in connection with a patent, except that instead of making the deposit after receiving notice that samples could no longer be furnished from an earlier deposit, as in the case of a replacement deposit, the deposit is made after receiving notice that the earlier deposit had become contaminated or had lost its capability to function as described in the specification. While the rules specify that the Office in any Office proceeding will recognize supplemental deposits if made under certain conditions, it is not known what legal effect a court will give to such recognition. As far as what accession number a depository should give to a supplemental deposit, this is a matter within the discretion of the depository. As to which deposit, either an earlier deposit or a supplemental deposit, should be made available to the public, this would depend on the accession number requested. A supplemental deposit made according to these regulations would be freely available to the public to the same extent as an original deposit made according to these regulations. Obviously, nothing in these regulations prohibits a depository from advising a requesting party that there is more than one deposit of a particular biological material.

Comment: To the extent proposed § 1.204 regulates the effects on patents, in other than certain statutorily defined situations such as reexamination and reissue, for failure to make replacement deposits according to the rule, it exceeds the rulemaking authority of the Office. An example is proposed 1.204(c).

Response: Section 1.805 as adopted, to the extent it addresses replacement deposits made by patent owners, contains no affirmative provisions requiring or prohibiting replacement deposits. Rather, it prescribes what an applicant or patent owner may do vis-a-vis the Office if a replacement deposit is made and what the ramifications are in any Office proceeding if a replacement deposit is not made or improperly made. Proposed § 1.204(c) was, and § 1.805(d) as adopted is, limited to Office proceedings. The provision that a patentee may not replace a viable deposit where the depository can furnish samples in proposed 1.204(h) has been replaced in § 1.805(i) as adopted with the provision that the Office will not recognize in any Office proceeding a replacement deposit made by a patent owner where the depository could furnish samples of the deposit being replaced.

Comment: One comment suggests that the term of deposit in proposed § 1.205 is excessive. The term should be through the expiration of the patent plus 10 years. Another comment suggests that § 1.205 be adopted except that the last sentence should be deleted and the term "viable" before "deposit" be dropped. The term "viable" should be deleted as viability is dealt with elsewhere, e.g., proposed § 1.206. The last sentence should be deleted because, while the Office may set what it considers adequate terms of deposit on or before patent grant, it has no statutory authority or mechanism for supervising the term of the agreement of the deposit. The last sentence is also highly indefinite in failing to indicate how far beyond the enforceable life of a patent the deposit must be maintained.

Response: The suggestions have been adopted in part. Proposed § 1.205, including the last sentence, has been adopted as § 1.806 except that the thirty-year term applies to any deposit made before or during pendency of an application for patent. No requirement of viability is stated in the rule. The Office agrees that once a patent issues, it has no authority or mechanism for supervising the term of the agreement of the deposit. But the Office does have the authority to set the term of deposit while an application is still pending. That is all § 1.806 does. In almost all cases, the term of deposit as set forth in the first sentence of § 1.806 will extend beyond the enforceable life of the patent for which a deposit was made. The last sentence of § 1.806 is intended to cover those rare circumstances where extended prosecution in the Office results in expiration of the term of deposit as set forth in the first sentence while the patent is still enforceable. At this time, there appears to be no need to specify any finite time period beyond the enforceable life of a patent. If experience demonstrates that the public interest is not being served by the present provisions, an appropriate amendment will be proposed.

Comment: A depository commentator suggests that the requirement in proposed § 1.207(b)(1) that a request for a sample of the deposited material be signed poses an administrative burden on depositories which accept telephone, telex and electronic mail requests for samples. Requiring that a request be signed can and will delay the receipt of samples by many days. The signing requirement should not be adopted.

Response: The suggestion has been adopted in § 1.808(b)(1).

Comment: A depository commentator suggests that the requirement in proposed § 1.207(b)(3) that a copy of the request be provided to the depositor poses a problem since most requests also include a request for samples of many other deposited biological materials. For such a request, it would be necessary to send a copy to each depositor, blanking out the other deposits not made by that depositor. It should be sufficient that the depositor is notified to whom and the date a sample was provided. The cost will be much greater if a copy has to be supplied.

Response: The suggestion has been adopted in § 1.808(b)(3).

Comment: A depository commentator suggests that in proposed § 1.207(b), it is not clear, after the term of the patent, whether the deposit is again restricted as it was before the patent was granted, i.e., not furnished unless the requesting party has the proper authorization from the depositor or the Commissioner, or whether the deposit is no longer subject to subparagraphs (1), (2) and (3) thereof and can be furnished without any specific identification or notification. It is suggested that either a statement be added as to what happens after the term of the patent or the term "during the term of the patent" be deleted.

Response: The suggestions have not been adopted. Section 1.808(a)(2) requires that subject to paragraph (b) thereof, all restrictions imposed by the depositor on the availability to the public of the deposited material will be irrevocably removed upon the granting of the patent. Paragraph (b), by its terms, is limited to the term of the patent. A contract between a depositor and a depository according to paragraph (b) but which extends beyond the term of the patent would violate paragraph (a)(2). It should be self-evident that for deposits in compliance with these regulations, samples of the deposit may be furnished without any specific identification or notification for requests made after the term of the patent.

Comment: While many comments suggest adoption of a rule restricting the transfer of a sample of a deposited material to a third party without the depositor's permission, such as proposed § 1.207(c), as well as the adoption of a rule requiring other restrictions on access to deposited material, two comments suggest that such rules not be adopted. The rationale is that if a deposit is basically a replacement for that which could not be adequately written in the patent specification itself, no specific statutory authority exists for restricting access to the deposited material any more than the patent law would countenance restrictions on access to the written description itself. If abuses exist by virtue of the absence of limitations on access to deposited materials, then the remedy for patent infringement is as applicable to deposited material as it is to infringers acting from knowledge of the written description itself. Accordingly, unrestricted access to deposits should be allowed. One of the comments suggests further that if there are to be some restrictions to access, proposed § 1.207(c) is otherwise problematic and ineffective. For example, the limitation on access applies to "derived" materials which could include wholly noninfringing derivatives which might themselves constitute a patentable invention of a third party requester. The proposed rule would deny the third party requester the right to what ought to be an unrestricted right to sell or otherwise dispose of this derivative material to third parties. Moreover, the proposed rule is remediless since the Office neither has continuing jurisdicton over the patentee nor a third party requester. Two depository commentators expressed reservations about proposed 1.207(c). One suggests that the first sentence therein is in direct contradiction to the long-standing policies of both NRRL and ATCC. Most depositories no longer require this type of guarantee from requesting parties as they find it almost impossible to enforce. The other suggests that the administrative burden to the depository in handling agreements made pursuant to the proposed rule will be great and the cost will be borne by the depositor. At $10 an agreement and 300 requests a year for a particular deposit, the cost to the depositor would be $3,000 a year. If § 1.207(c) is adopted, there should be some mention that if a depository charges a fee for this service, the fee must be paid or the depository will not be obligated to provide the service. In the European Patent Office (EPO), which has a similar provision, the EPO, not the depository, obtains the agreement and advises the depository to make the sample available. The comment asks if the Office is prepared to do this. Additional comments ask what rules govern a new deposit for patent purposes of the same or derived biological material by a requesting party if the substance of proposed § 1.207(c) is adopted. Some comments were in response to a solicitation in the notice of proposed rulemaking for alternative approaches and suggessted appropriate definition of "essential characteristics" with respect to derived material in proposed § 1.207(c).

Response: The Office has decided not to adopt a rule permitting a depositor to require that a sample of a deposited biological material shall be furnished only if the requesting party has agreed not to make the material or a derivative thereof available to a third party without the depositor's permission. Thus, proposed § 1.207(c) has not been adopted. The Office agrees with many of the comments about shortcomings in the proposed rule. Fundamentally, however, the proposed rule has not been adopted in view of the rationale stated in the comment that no greater restriction on access to a deposit should be permitted than is permitted on access to the written description itself, even considering that the practical value of access to a deposit may be substantially greater than access to the written description and that infringement may be more difficult to police. While it might be argued that the adoption of proposed § 1.207(b) with revisions as § 1.808(b) is inconsistent with this rationale, the Office believes that permitting the depositor to require a requesting party, in essence, to identify itself is not unreasonable under the circumstances and is consistent with international practice as embodied in the Budapest Treaty.

Comment: Many comments which suggest the adoption of the substance of proposed § 1.207(c) also suggest the adoption of rules incorporating the recommendations made in the April 8, 1987 World Intellectual Property Organization (WIPO) report on the Industrial Property Protection of Biotechnological Inventions (1) to use the biological material only for experimental purposes concerning the invention, and (2) not to export the biological material except to a country for which a relevant patent has been granted. The reasons generally given were that it is necessary to protect the patentee and enhance the patentee's ability to enforce a patent relying on a deposited material. One comment suggests that incorporating the recommendation on experimental use would clarify what is permitted by law. In the Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, 53 Fed. Reg. at 39423 24, the Office described the difficulties in drafting a regulation incorporating these recommendations and requested specific suggestions as to how to draft a regulation which both accomplishes the intended purpose and is not inconsistent with law. No specific suggestions were received, although one comment suggests that where a deposited material is covered by an unexpired U.S. patent, a rule be adopted permitting the depositor to require the requesting party to agree to comply with the provisions of 35 U.S.C. 271. Another comment suggests that legislation is necessary to deal with the problems addressed by the WIPO recommendations. A restriction against exports could be considered to be violative of 35 U.S.C. 112 since foreign requesters would be denied access to deposits where a patentee had never sought foreign patent protection. A restriction to experimental purposes only, while more justifiable, raises two problems. One is that "experimental purposes" have not been defined and the term has been open to several interpretations. The other is that the proper redress for non-experimental use is a suit for patent infringement, not a suit based on the requester's promise to the depo comment suggests that a rule be adopted permitting the depositor to require that a requesting party acknowledge that the furnishing of a sample of the deposited biological material does not constitute a license, express or implied, to use that sample for any purpose.

Response: None of the suggestions have been adopted for essentially the same rationale discussed in the response to the previous comment. None suggest how to draft a regulation which both accomplishes the intended purpose and is not inconsistent with law, and which provides a compelling justification and rationale for departing from present policy and practice. The suggestion that a requesting party agree to comply with 35 U.S.C. 271 as a condition precedent to obtaining a sample of deposited biological material is interpreted as an agreement not to infringe a corresponding valid patent, something which a requesting party is already bound not to do under law. The suggestion that a depositor be permitted to require a requesting party to acknowledge that there is no express or implied license to use a sample for any purpose exceeds the rulemaking authority of the Office since certain unlicensed uses of patented subject matter have been found by the courts to be permissible.

Comment: Many of the comments suggesting adoption of the substance of § 1.207(c) and/or the WIPO recommendations on experimental use and export also suggest adoption of rules permitting additional restrictions. One comment suggests requiring the recipient of biological material to report, at least annually, to the patent holder, on the research and other results obtained by use of the biological material. The same commentator suggests that even after patent expiration, an unlicensed recipient should not be permitted to use the biological material for other than experimental purposes absent agreement from the depositor. The commentator would prohibit commercial use of the biological material without permission of the depositor. Another comment suggests that the policy consideration for permitting deposits is to insure that the patented invention can be practiced after patent expiration. Requiring a requesting party to enter into an agreement with the depositor defining the terms and conditions under which a sample of the deposited material would be used making an accounting of such use, and proof of compliance, is neither unreasonable nor contrary to law. It would not place an administrative burden on the Office since the depository could be permitted to release samples only if the requesting party signs a license. Any attempt by the depositor to impose an unlawful restriction and withhold release would be a matter for the courts, not the Office. Another comment suggests various additional restrictions be adopted. These are (1) that the requesting party have residence in the U.S. or in the country where the depository is located, if different; (2) that the patentee be given the option to restrict furnishing of samples to independent experts only for the duration of the patent; and (3) that the deposit be released only if the depositor expressly consents (in the absence of which validity of the patent must be resolved without recourse to the deposit). Restriction (1) should be adopted so that the deposit cannot be legally exported to a country where the patent owner has no enforceable rights. Restriction (2) should be adopted to prevent access of the deposited material to potential infringers. Its adoption should be coupled with a statement that a deposit released to an expert shall be regarded as being available to the public. Restriction (3) should be adopted as an extension to the description in proposed § 1.201 that the disclosure "may include a deposit." In other words, the patentee at any time during the patent term should be able to rely on the written description alone for satisfying 35 U.S.C. 112, such as where the reasons for requiring a deposit originally no longer exist.

Response: None of the suggestions have been adopted for essentially the same reasons discussed in the responses to the previous two comments.

Comment: A depository commentator suggests that proposed § 1.207(d) needs further deliberation. Now, publication in a U.S. patent of a deposit and accession number is sufficient for that depository (ATCC) to make samples available. The Office should be prepared to receive several thousand requests for certification under § 1.207(d) if adopted. If the Office is going to certify the availability of deposits, it should certify the availability of all deposits. Easier than the proposed rule would be to include a statement in the patent that there is a deposit, its accession number and where it is deposited, and that it has been made under the condition that it is available upon publication of the issued patent.

Response: The suggestion has not been adopted. The comment appears to be interpreting the term "Upon request" at the beginning of proposed § 1.207(d) to mean "Upon request to a depository for a sample of a deposited material", or in other words, the commentator appears to have interpreted the proposed language as requiring the depository to request certification from the Office each time a request for a sample of a deposit is made. It was not intended to impose such a burden on depositories. Rather, it was intended that the term "Upon request" refer to a request made to the Office. Therefore, proposed § 1.207(d), revised by inserting the term "made to the Office" after "Upon request", has been adopted as § 1.808(c).

Comment: One comment suggests that there is no apparent reason for the use of the different words " [e]stablishing" and "[a]rguing", in proposed paragraphs (b)(2) and (b)(3), respectively, of § 1.208 since the same meaning is intended by each. Either word alone should be used in both subparagraphs (2) and (3). The same comment goes on to suggest that the reference to paragraph (b)(2) in the last sentence of proposed § 1.208(b)(3) is redundant since the examiner may be convinced that a deposit is not required where the applicant has established that the involved biological material is known and readily available to the public. A comment along the same lines suggests that paragraph (b)(2) is unnecessary. As a purely logical matter, an applicant ought to be entitled to reply to a rejection either by making an acceptable deposit or arguing why a deposit is not required under the circumstances. Proposed 1.208(b)(2) is merely one possibility for an argument that a deposit is not required.

Response: The suggestions have been adopted. Proposed § 1.208(b)(2) has not been adopted and proposed § 1.208(b)(3) has been substantially adopted as 1.809(b)(2). In addition, § 1.809(b)(2) provides for examination with respect to a patent, since deposit issues may arise in connection with a reissue application and/or a reexamination proceeding, and provides also for an argument that a deposit actually made should be accepted.

Comment: A number of comments suggest that the term "taxonomic description" in proposed § 1.208(d)(3) is unclear and inappropriate in some cases. One comment suggests that it is not clear how complete a description is required. If construed in its broadest sense, it could have the undesirable effect of delaying filing of an application until taxonomic characteristics have been determined. Some biological materials within the scope of the proposed rules, such as plasmids, are not susceptible of taxonomic description. The requrement that the specification contain a taxonomic description should not be adopted since such a description may not be possible and since the availability of a deposit makes such a description superfluous, since the taxonomy is inherent in the deposit. The response to comments made earlier regarding the taxonomic description requirement is inconsistent with the proposed rule. The response states that the extent to which a taxonomic description is required will depend on the facts of the case yet the proposed rule states that the specification shall contain such a description. The response states that the taxonomic description must be sufficient for purposes of 35 U.S.C. 112 yet the requirement of a deposit presupposes that a written description alone will not satisfy the statute. The need to verify that the deposited biological material is that disclosed in the specification arises only when the deposit is made after the filing date. That situation can be dealt with by deleting the taxonomic description requirement from § 1.208(d) and adding a new subparagraph (e) which would provide that in cases where a deposit is made after the filing date and where the nature of the material permits, a taxonomic description is required in addition to the items specified in subparagraph (d). Another comment suggests that the term "taxonomic" be deleted since it is irrelevant to many types of deposits and would provide greater clarity to the rules. Another comment suggests that the current language in proposed § 1.208 (d)(3) be replaced with "Fully identify and describe the deposited material".

Response: The suggestions have been adopted in part. Section 1.809(d)(3) as adopted requires a description of the deposited biological material sufficient to specifically identify it and to permit examination. While the rule does not by its terms require a taxonomic description, such a description should satisfy the rule as adopted in cases where the biological material deposited admits of a taxonomic description.

Comment: The Office should petition the Budapest Assembly to address the same issues dealt with in the proposed rules so that they apply to both U.S. and foreign filings. Uniformity in the rules is important, especially for U.S. inventors who file here and abroad.

Response: While uniformity in both U.S. and foreign rules is desirable, this is not deemed to be the appropriate forum in which to address the suggestion.

Discussion of Specific Sections

BIOLOGICAL MATERIAL [§ 1.801]:

The section indicates that the rules pertaining to deposits for purposes of patents for inventions under 35 U.S.C. 101 are intended to relate to biological material. For the purposes of these rules, the term "biological material" is defined in terms of a non-exhaustive list of representative materials which can be deposited in accordance with the procedures defined in these rules. Since these rules are intended to address procedural matters in the deposit of biological material for patent purposes, and are not designed to decide such substantive issues such as whether a deposit of a particular organism or material would be recognized or needed to be made for the purposes of satisfying the statutory requirements for patentability under 35 U.S.C. 112, the definition provided in this section is intended to be permissive - specifically defining materials which can be deposited.

Biological material includes material that is capable of self-replication either directly or indirectly. Direct self-replication includes those situations where the biological material reproduces by itself. Representative examples of materials capable of self-replication are defined in the rule. Indirect self-replication is meant to include those situations where the biological material is only capable of replication when another self-replicating biological material is present. Self-replication after insertion in a host is one example of indirect self-replication. Examples of indirect replicating biological materials include viruses, phages, plasmids, symbionts, and replication defective cells. The list of representative examples of each type of replicating material includes viruses to demonstrate that the lists are not intended to be mutually exclusive

Although plant material is included within the scope of the definition of biological material for purposes of patents for inventions under 35 U.S.C. 101, these rules on deposits are not applicable to applications filed under the Plant Patent Act (35 U.S.C. 161-164). The Office is of the view that a deposit is not required under the present provisions of 35 U.S.C. 162. Thus, no plant patent granted under the provisions of 35 U.S.C. 161-164 need be supported by a deposit. As with other biological material deposited for purposes of patents for inventions under 35 U.S.C. 101, the deposit of plant material together with the written specification must enable those skilled in the art to make and use the claimed invention.

As with some types of reproducible biological material, seeds can be reproduced only after a growing season which may be relatively long. Although the rules do not specify a specific number of seeds to be deposited to meet the requirements of these rules, the Office will consider 2500 to be a minimum number in the normal case, but will give an applicant the opportunity to provide justification why a lesser number would be suitable under the circumstances of a particular case. The Department of Agriculture requires a deposit of 2500 seeds for the grant of a Plant Variety Protection Certificate. As the reproduction of seeds will often take a substantial period of time, the Office will require, at a minimum, a number of seeds that is likely to satisfy demand for samples once the patent is granted.

Section 1.801 does not attempt to identify what biological material either needs to be or may be deposited to comply with the requirements of 35 U.S.C. 112. For the most part, this issue must be addressed on a case-by-case basis. Thus, while the Office does not presently contemplate that there would be any situations where a material that is not capable of self-replication either directly or indirectly would be acceptable as a deposit, an applicant is clearly not precluded in any given application, by these rules, from attempting to show why the deposit of such a material should be acceptable to satisfy the requirements of 35 U.S.C. 112.

NEED OR OPPORTUNITY TO MAKE A DEPOSIT [§ 1.802]

This section permits a deposit of a biological material to be referenced in a patent application where an invention is, or relies on, a biological material. The invention may rely on a biological material for the purposes of making or using the invention, either as a preferred mode or an alternative mode of operation. It is not necessary, for the purposes of paragraph (a), that a deposit be required to satisfy the requirements of 35 U.S.C. 112 before a reference to a deposit is permitted in the specification.

There is no necessary implication or presumption that can or should be made about the need for a deposit simply because reference to a deposit is made in an application disclosure. As noted in paragraph (b), biological material need not be deposited unless access to such material is necessary for the satisfaction of the statutory requirements for patentability under 35 U.S.C. 112 and that access is not otherwise available in the absence of a deposit. Where a deposit is required to provide the necessary access, a deposit is acceptable for patent purposes only where it is made in accordance with these regulations. Even where access to biological material is required to satisfy these statutory requirements, a deposit may not be necessary if access sufficient to satisfy these requirements is otherwise available.

For example, applicant could show that the biological material is known and readily available to the public. The concepts of "known and readily available" are considered to reflect a level of public accessibility to a necessary component of an invention disclosure that is consistent with an ability to make and use the invention. To avoid the need for a deposit on this basis, the biological material must be both known and readily available - neither concept alone is sufficient. A material may be known in the sense that its existence has been published, but is not available to those who wish to obtain that particular known biological material. Likewise, a biological material may be available in the sense that those having possession of it would make it available upon request, but no one has been informed of its existence.

By showing that a biological material is known and readily available or by making a deposit in accordance with these rules, applicant does not guarantee that such biological material will be available forever. Public access during the term of the patent may affect the enforceability of the patent. Although there is a public interest in the availability of a deposited biological material during and after the period of enforceability of the patent, the examiner need not be unduly concerned about continued access to the public. Unless there is a reasonable basis to believe that the biological material will cease to be available during the life of the patent, the examiner should accept current availability as satisfying the requirement. The incentives provided by the patent system should not be constrained by the mere possibility that a disclosure that was once enabling would become non-enabling over a period of time through no fault of the patentee. In re Metcalfe, 410 F.2d 1378, 161 USPQ 789 (CCPA 1969).

There are many factors that may be used as indicia that a biological material is known and readily available to the public. Relevant factors include commercial availability, references to the biological material in printed publications, declarations of accessibility by those working in the field, evidence of predictable isolation techniques, or an existing deposit made in accordance with these rules. Each factor may or may not be sufficient alone to demonstrate that the biological material is known and readily available. Those applicants that rely on evidence of accessibility other than a deposit take the risk that the patent may no longer be enforceable if the biological material necessary to satisfy the requirements of 35 U.S.C. 112 ceases to become accessible.

The Office will accept commercial availability as evidence that a biological material is known and readily available only when the evidence is clear and convincing that the public has access to the material. A product could be commercially available but only at a price that effectively eliminates accessibility to those desiring to obtain a sample. The relationship between an applicant relying on a biological material and the commercial supplier relied upon is one factor that would be considered in determining whether the biological material was known and readily available. However, the mere fact that the biological material was available only through the patent holder or the patent holder's agents or assigns shall not, by itself, justify a finding that the necessary material is not readily available, absent reason to believe that access to the biological material would later be improperly restricted.

The mere reference to a deposit or the biological material itself in any document or publication does not necessarily mean that the deposited biological material is readily available. Even a deposit made under the Budapest Treaty and referenced in a United States or foreign patent document would not necessarily meet the test for known and readily available unless the deposit was made under conditions which are consistent with those specified in these rules, including the one that requires, with one possible exception, that all restrictions on the accessibility will be irrevocably removed upon the granting of the patent.

Applicant may show that a deposit is not necessary even though specific biological materials are required to practice the invention if those biological materials can be made or isolated without undue experimentation. Deposits may be required to support the claims if an isolation procedure requires undue experimentation to obtain the desired biological material. Ex Parte Jackson, 217 USPQ 804 (PTO Bd. Pat. App. 1982) No deposit is required, however, where the required biological materials can be obtained from publicly available material with only routine experimentation and a reliable screening test. Tabuchi v. Nubel, 559 F.2d 1183, 194 USPQ 521 (CCPA 1977); Ex Parte Hata, 6 USPQ 2d 1652 (PTO Bd. Pat. App. & Int. 1987).

Once a deposit is made in a depository complying with these rules, and under conditions complying with these rules, a biological material will be considered to be readily available even though some requirement of law or regulation in the United States or in the country where the depository institution is located permits access to the material only under conditions imposed for health, safety or similar reasons. This provision is consistent with the Budapest Treaty (Article 5) and is designed to permit the patenting of inventions involving materials having restricted distribution, where the restrictions are imposed for the public, as opposed to the private, welfare.

Paragraph (c) specifically provides that the mere reference to a deposit of biological material in the specification disclosure or the actual deposit of such material does not create any presumption that such referenced or deposited material is necessary to satisfy 35 U.S.C. 112, or that a deposit in accordance with these regulations is or was required. Since reference to a biological material cannot be added to a specification disclosure after filing an application without risking the prohibited introduction of new matter (35 U.S.C. 132), applicants must be permitted to address the need to make a deposit in accordance with these regulations without jeopardizing a filing date. Thus, the examiner has the burden of showing that a deposit is required to satisfy 35 U.S.C. 112, and cannot rely on whether a deposit has been made or has been referenced in the specification disclosure to establish a prima facie case that the disclosure does not comply with 35 U.S.C. 112 without deposit.

ACCEPTABLE DEPOSITORY [§ 1.803]

This section indicates that a depository will be recognized as acceptable for the purposes of these regulations if it is either an International Depositary Authority (IDA) established under the Budapest Treaty, or if it is a depository recognized as suitable by the Commissioner. After the effective date of these regulations, a deposit of biological material which is made in a depository which is not recognized as acceptable under this regulation will not be considered as satisfying the requirements of 35 U.S.C. 112. On the other hand, if a deposit is not required to satisfy the requirements of 35 U.S.C. 112, it is permissible to make reference to such a deposit even though it may not be in a depository or made under the conditions which are acceptable under these regulations. As new depositories are accepted under the Budapest Treaty or are recognized as suitable by the Commissioner, their identity will be announced in the Official Gazette.

An organization may be recognized as suitable by the Office if the procedure and conditions specified in paragraphs (a)(2) and (b) are followed. Generally, it is not the intention of the Office to recognize as suitable any organization where the need for a suitable depository for patent purposes is being met by depositories recognized as IDAs under the Budapest Treaty. Suitability will be judged by the Commissioner, based on need and the information supplied by the organization seeking status, and information obtained from other sources that may be consulted.

While there is a desire to provide flexibility to a patent applicant in selecting an appropriate depository, these rules are not intended to permit each patent applicant to become its own depository since both the patent owner and the public have an interest in the continued availability and accessibility of the deposit during the enforceable life of the patent, and the public has a continuing interest in its availability when the patent is no longer enforceable. The concept of a depository independent of the control of the depositor or an IDA as an acceptable depository is based on the need and desire to ensure the safe and reliable storage of a deposited biological material under circumstances that are substantially free of the opportunity for intentional or negligent handling of the deposited material. The use of an independent depository or internationally recognized depository will tend to preserve the integrity of the deposit process against those that may accidentally alter the deposited material, may wish to tamper with the deposited material or may wish to resume control of its availability when the patent is no longer enforceable, and to preserve the interest of the public in the access to the biological material once the term of the patent expires.

When a depository having status under paragraph (a)(2) of this regulation seeks to change the kinds of biological materials that it will accept and maintain for the purposes of these rules, a communication requesting such a change should be directed to the Commissioner containing the information requested in paragraph (b). When such a change is requested, the requesting organization should provide a complete list of the kinds of biological materials it will accept.

Paragraph (d) of this section indicates that once a depository is recognized as suitable for the purposes of this rule, or has defaulted or discontinued its performance under this section, notice thereof will be published in the Official Gazette of the Patent and Trademark Office. A current list of IDAs recognized under the Budapest Treaty is as follows:

TIME OF MAKING AN ORIGINAL DEPOSIT [§ 1.804]

This section specifies the time for making an original deposit to fulfill the requirements of 35 U.S.C. 112. Paragraph (a) specifies not only a permissible time frame for making an original deposit, but also specifies that the biological material deposited must be specifically identified in the application for patent as filed. The requirement for a specific identification is consistent with the description requirement of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112, and to provide an antecedent basis for the biological material which either has been or will be deposited before the patent is granted.

The description in the Lundak application as filed (now patent 4,594,325) provides a suitable illustration of the specific identification and description which is required in an application for patent as filed. In that application, an immortal B-cell line was disclosed and claimed. The cell line was referred to in the application as filed as WI-L2-729 HF2. The methods of obtaining and using this cell line were also described in the application as filed. A deposit of the cell line was made with the American Type Culture Collection (ATCC) about a week after the application was filed in the United States. The United States Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit held that the requirements of access by the Office to a sample of the cell line during pendency, and public access after grant, were met by Lundak's procedures. The Court further held that the addition of information designating the depository, accession number, and deposit date of the deposited cell line in ATCC after the filing date did not violate the prohibition against new matter in 35 U.S.C. 132. In re Lundak, 773 F.2d 1216, 227 USPQ 90 (Fed Cir. 1985). It must be clear from the application as filed that the invention claimed and described in the specification "was fully capable of being reduced to practice (i.e., no technological problems, the resolution of which would require more than ordinary skill and reasonable time, remained in order to obtain an operative, useful process)." Feldman v. Aunstrup, 517 F.2d 1351, 1355, 186 USPQ 108, 113 (CCPA 1975), cert. denied, 424 U.S. 912 (1976).

When the original deposit is made after the effective filing date of an application for patent, applicant is required to promptly submit a verified statement from a person in a position to corroborate that the biological material which is deposited is a biological material specifically identified in the application (the filing date of which is relied upon) as filed. The nature of this corroboration will depend on the circumstances in the particular application under consideration, including the length of time between the application filing date and the date of deposit. While few, if any, situations can be imagined where the description requirement of 35 U.S.C. 112 can be satisfied where the biological material was not in existence at the time of filing, the rules do not preclude such a situation. There is no requirement in the patent law that an actual reduction to practice occur as a condition precedent to filing a patent application. The requirement for a verified statement is not necessary under paragraph (b) of this section if the person making the statement is an attorney or agent registered to practice before the Office.

For the purposes of complying with the requirements of 35 U.S.C. 112, a deposit of a biological material may be made at any time before filing the application for patent or during the pendency of the application subject to the conditions of § 1.809. Where the deposit is needed to satisfy the requirement of 35 U.S.C. 112 and is made during the pendency of the application, it must be made no later than the time period set by the examiner at the time the Notice of Allowance and Issue Fee Due is mailed. A necessary deposit need not be made by applicant until the application is in condition for allowance so long as applicant provides a written assurance that an acceptable deposit will be made on or before the payment of the issue fee. This written assurance must provide sufficiently detailed information to convince the examiner that there is no outstanding issue regarding deposits that needs to be resolved.

Those applicants intending to file patent applications in a country foreign to the United States relying upon biological material that must be deposited to satisfy the requirements of 35 U.S.C. 112 when the application is filed in the United States are cautioned that in many countries the deposit must be made before the filing date of the priority application in order to obtain foreign priority rights. Thus, while the deposit of a biological material subsequent to the effective filing date of a United States application is sufficient to comply with 35 U.S.C. 112, an applicant may not be able to rely on the filing date of such a U.S. application if a patent is sought in a country foreign to the United States.

REPLACEMENT OR SUPPLEMENT OF DEPOSIT [§ 1.805]

This section relates to the deposit of a biological material to replace or supplement a previous deposit. The term "replacement" is directed to those situations where one deposit is being substituted for another. An applicant may have greater latitude in replacing a deposit during the pendency of an application than after the patent is granted. Replacement will typically take place where the earlier deposit is no longer viable. The term "supplement" is directed to those situations where the earlier deposit is still viable in the sense that it is alive and capable of replication either directly or indirectly, but has lost a quality (e.g., purity, functionality) it allegedly possessed at the time the application was filed. The procedures in these rules contemplate that only the original depositor would have a right to replace or supplement the original deposit.

Paragraph (a) relates to the procedure for replacing or supplementing a deposit with respect to a pending application or a patent. An applicant for patent or patent owner whose patent is the subject of a reissue application or reexamination proceeding is required to notify the Office when it obtains information that the depository possessing a deposit either cannot furnish samples thereof or can furnish samples thereof but the deposit has become contaminated or has lost its capability to function as described in the specification. When the Office is so notified or otherwise becomes aware of such information, the need for making a replacement or supplemental deposit will be determined by the same considerations used to determine the need for an original deposit under § 1.802(b).

A replacement or supplemental deposit made in connection with a pending application for patent will be accepted if it meets all the requirements for making an original deposit. It should be noted that for a pending application for patent, applicant need not replace or supplement the identical material previously deposited, but may make an original deposit of a biological material which is specifically identified and described in the application as filed. Whether this alternative deposit will meet the requirements of 35 U.S.C. 112 with respect to the claimed subject matter must be resolved by the examiner on a case-by-case basis.

A replacement or supplemental deposit made in connection with a patent, whether or not it is the subject of a pending reissue application or reexamination proceeding, shall not be recognized in any Office proceeding unless a certificate of correction under § 1.323 is requested by the patent owner which meets the terms of paragraphs (b) and (c) of this section. These paragraphs specify the procedures that a patent owner must follow to ensure both that a replacement or supplemental deposit will be recognized in any Office proceeding and that a certificate of correction under this section containing "up to date" information about a deposited biological material will be granted. The term "recognized in any Office proceeding" as used in this section includes the proceeding in which a request for certificate of correction under this section is acted upon. Paragraph (b) describes the information which must be contained in the certificate of correction, whereas paragraph (c) describes when the request must be made and the information which must be provided in the request to make the correction. The rules require, inter alia, that replacement or supplement of a deposit be made diligently, followed by prompt request thereafter for a certificate of correction, as conditions precedent to being recognized in any Office proceeding. Thus, for example, if a patent owner learns early during the term of the patent that the depository cannot furnish samples of a deposit described in the patent and the patent owner fails to both diligently make a replacement deposit and promptly thereafter request a certificate of correction under these rules, a replacement deposit made years later when the patent becomes the subject of a reissue application or reexamination proceeding will not be recognized by the Office nor will any request for certificate of correction in connection with that deposit be granted.

Where a proper request for certificate of correction is made and has been granted, any correction made to the original patent will be automatically incorporated into any reissued or reexamined patent unless changes are made during examination of the reissue application or reexamination proceeding.

Paragraph (d) of § 1.805 sets forth the Office position that the failure to make a replacement deposit or, in the case of a patent, diligently make a replacement deposit and promptly thereafter request a certificate of correction which meets the terms of paragraphs (b) and (c) of this section, after notification that samples of an earlier deposit cannot be furnished, shall cause the application or patent involved to be treated in any Office proceeding as if no deposit were made.

Paragraph (e) thereof indicates that the Office will apply a rebuttable presumption of an identity between the replacement deposit and an original deposit where a patent making reference to the deposit is relied on during any Office proceeding. This means that where a replacement deposit is permitted and made, the examiner will assume that the same material as described in the patent is accessible from the identified depository unless evidence to the contrary comes to the attention of the Office.

An applicant for patent may make a replacement or supplemental deposit during the pendency of the application for any reason. The provisions of paragraph (f) of § 1.805 recognize that since an original deposit may be made during the pendency of the application subject to the conditions of § 1.809, a replacement or supplemental deposit logically cannot be held to any higher standard or any further requirements. Likewise, the provisions of paragraph (g) indicate that neither a replacement nor a supplemental deposit need be made where, at the point in time when replacement or supplement would otherwise be necessary, access to the necessary biological material was otherwise available. For example, a replacement or supplemental deposit would not be required under the circumstances where access to the necessary biological material was established through commercial suppliers.

The provisions of paragraph (h) of § 1.805 indicate that a replacement deposit is not required even though the depository cannot furnish samples, under certain conditions, to those requesting a sample outside of the jurisdiction where the depository is located. The conditions are specified in this paragraph as being limited to national security, health or environmental safety reasons.

Finally, paragraph (i) of this section indicates that the Office will not recognize in any Office proceeding a replacement deposit made by the patent owner where the depository could furnish samples of the deposit being replaced. The best evidence of what was originally deposited should not be lost through destruction or replacement if made in association with an existing patent. A supplemental deposit may be accepted in an Office proceeding, however, depending on the circumstances in each case.

TERM OF DEPOSIT [§ 1.806]

The term of deposit must satisfy the requirements of the Budapest Treaty which sets a term of at least 30 years from the date of deposit and at least five (5) years after the most recent request for the furnishing of a sample of the deposit was received by the depository. In the event that the 30-year term covers the 17-year term of the patent plus six (6) years to include the Statute of Limitations, no further requirement is necessary. The mere possibility of patent term extension or extended litigation involving the patent should not be considered in this analysis.

In the event that the 30-year term of deposit measured from the date of deposit would necessarily terminate within the period of enforceability of the patent (normally the 17-year term plus six (6) years), samples must be stored under agreements that would make them available beyond the enforceable life of the patent for which the deposit was made. No requirement should be made as to any particular period of time beyond the enforceable life of the patent. The purpose of the requirement is to insure that a deposited biological material necessary for the practice of a patented invention would be available to the public after expiration of the patent for which the deposit was made. The term of the deposit must comply with the requirements of each sentence of § 1.806 whether or not the deposit is made under the Budapest Treaty. A specific statement that the deposit complies with the second sentence of this section is required only where the 30-year term would terminate within the enforceable life of the patent.

VIABILITY OF DEPOSITS [§ 1.807]

This section requires that the deposit of biological material that is capable of self-replication either directly or indirectly must be viable at the time of deposit and during the term of deposit. This requirement for viability is essentially a requirement that the deposited material is capable of reproduction. For the purpose of making a deposit under these rules, there is no requirement that evidence be provided that the deposited material is capable or has the ability to perform any function described in the patent application. However, as with any other issue of description or enablement, if the examiner has evidence or reason to question the objective statements made in the patent application, applicants may be required to demonstrate that the deposited biological material will perform in the manner described.

Under the Budapest Treaty, there is a requirement that the deposit be tested for viability before it is accepted. Thus, a mere statement by applicant, an authorized representative of applicant or the assignee that the deposit has been accepted under the Budapest Treaty would satisfy § 1.807.

For each deposit which is not made under the Budapest Treaty, a viability statement must be filed in the patent application and contain the information listed in paragraph (b) of this section. Under paragraph (c), the examiner will accept the conclusion set forth in a viability statement which is issued by a depository recognized under § 1.803(a). If the viability test indicates that the deposit is not viable upon receipt, or the examiner cannot for scientific or other valid reasons accept the statement of viability received from the applicant, the examiner shall so notify the applicant stating the reasons for not acepting the statement and proceed with the examination process as if no deposit had been made.

FURNISHING OF SAMPLES [§ 1.808]

This section requires that the deposit of biological material be made under two (2) conditions:

(1) access to the deposit will be available during pendency of the patent application making reference to the deposit to one determined by the Commissioner to be entitled thereto under § 1.14 and 35 U.S.C. 122, and

(2) with one exception, that all restrictions imposed by the depositor onthe availability to the public of the deposited biological material will be irrevocably removed upon the granting of the patent.

The one exception that is permitted is specified in paragraph (b) of this section which permits the depositor to contract with the depository to require that samples of a deposited biological material shall be furnished only if a request for a sample, during the term of the patent meets any one or all of the three conditions specified in this paragraph. These conditions are:

(1) the request is in writing or other tangible form and dated; and/or

(2) the request contains the name and address of the requesting party and the accession number of the deposit; and/or

(3) the request is communicated in writing by the depository to the depositor along with the date on which the sample was furnished and thename and address of the party to whom the sample was furnished.

It should be noted that this exception to the general rule that all restrictions will be removed must be strictly followed and that no variations of this explicit exception will be accepted as meeting the conditions of this section. This exception is consistent with the provisions in the Budapest Treaty and its implementing regulations (Rule 11.4).

Since the mere description of a deposit or identity of a deposit in a patent specification is not necessarily an indication that a requirement for deposit was made or that a deposit which complies with these rules has been made, accessibility to a deposited material referenced in a patent may depend on the satisfaction of conditions not apparent on the face of the patent. For these reasons, and upon request made to the Patent and Trademark Office, the Office will certify whether a deposit has been stated to have been made under conditions which would make it available to the public as of the issue date of the patent grant provided the request is made to the Director of Patent Examining Group 180, and contains the following information:

(1) the name and address of the depository

(2) the accession number given to the deposit

(3) the patent number and issue date of the patent referring to the depositand

(4) the name and address of the requesting party.

For those deposits made pursuant to the Budapest Treaty, the World Intellectual Property Organization provides a form (Form BP-12) for requesting a certification of the availability of samples of deposited microorganisms pursuant to Rule 11.3(a) of the regulations under the Budapest Treaty. Copies of this form are available from the Director of Patent Examining Group 180.

EXAMINATION PROCEDURES [§ 1.809]

This section sets forth procedures that will be used by the examiner to address a deposit issue. Deposit issues may arise in the examination of claims in applications for patent and for reissue of a patent, and in the examination of new or amended claims in a reexamination proceeding. The burden is initially on the Office to establish that access to a biological material is necessary for the satisfaction of the statutory requirements for patentability under 35 U.S.C. 112. Once the Office has met this burden, the burden shifts to the applicant or patent owner to demonstrate that access to such biological material either is not necessary or is already available, or that a deposit of such material is being or will be made, replaced or supplemented in accordance with these regulations.

Under paragraph (a) of this section, once the examiner has determined that access to a biological material is necessary, and that access is not presently available in accordance with these regulations, the examiner should make an appropriate rejection under 35 U.S.C. 112.

The applicant or patent owner may respond, pursuant to paragraph (b)(2) of this section, to a rejection made under paragraph (a) thereof by arguing why a deposit is not needed under the circumstances and/or why a deposit actually made should be acceptable. Other prescribed responses which are available to such a rejection depend upon whether the rejection is made in an application for patent, on the one hand, or in a proceeding involving a patent, i.e., an application for reissue patent or reexamination proceeding, on the other hand.

In an application for patent, applicant may respond, pursuant to paragraph (b)(1) of this section, by either making an acceptable original, replacement or supplemental deposit in accordance with these regulations, or assuring the Office in writing that an acceptable deposit will be made on or before the date of payment of the issue fee. In a proceeding involving a patent, the patent owner may respond, pursuant to paragraph (b)(1) of this section, by requesting a certificate of correction of the patent which meets the terms of paragraphs (b) and (c) of § 1.805. In all cases, any other response shall be considered nonresponsive. The rejection will be repeated and made final until the requirements of paragraph (b)(1) of this section are satisfied or the examiner is convinced that a deposit, is not required for the claimed subject matter.

As set forth in paragraph (c) of this section, in the event that an application for patent is otherwise in condition for allowance except for a needed deposit and the Office has received a written assurance that an acceptable deposit will be made, the Office will mail to the applicant a requirement that the needed deposit be made within three (3) months together with the Notice of Allowance and Issue Fee Due. Although the period for paying the issue fee cannot be extended under the provisions of § 1.136, the period for satisfying the requirement to make an acceptable deposit may be extended under the provisions of that section. Failure to make the needed deposit in accordance with this requirement may be considered a failure to prosecute the application under 35 U.S.C. 133 and result in abandonment of the application.

The type of written assurance which will be considered acceptable by the Office that an acceptable deposit will be made within the required time must include sufficient information to conclude that there is no outstanding issue with regard to the deposit of an appropriate biological material under conditions which satisfy these rules.

In a proceeding involving a patent, it may not be possible to request a certificate of correction of the patent which meets the terms of paragraphs (b) and (c) of § 1.805. For example, if the patent owner is on notice that samples of an original deposit can no longer be furnished by the depository, failure to diligently make a replacement deposit will preclude grant of a certificate of correction. A replacement deposit subsequently made will not be recognized by the Office nor will a request for certificate of correction, even if made promptly thereafter, be granted. It would also not be possible to request a certificate of correction of the patent which meets the terms of paragraphs (b) and (c) of § 1.805 where no original deposit was made before or during the pendency of the application which matured into the patent.

A patent defective because of lack of a necessary deposit is necessarily fatally defective for failure to comply with the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112. Reissue is not available in such cases. See In re Hay, 534 F.2d 917, 189 USPQ 790 (CCPA 1976). Whether reissue is available where a biological material necessary for compliance with 35 U.S.C. 112 was known and readily available at the time of issuance of the patent and subsequently ceased to be readily available is problematic. Nevertheless, the rules do not provide for post-issue original deposits.

Where an applicant for patent has any doubt whether access to a biological material specifically identified in the specification is necessary to satisfy 35 U.S.C. 112 or whether such a material, while presently freely available, may become unavailable in the future, the applicant would be well-advised to make a deposit thereof before any patent issues. Similarly, where a patent owner has any doubt whether a deposit referred to in the specification is of a biological material necessary to satisfy 35 U.S.C. 112 and, if the material is necessary, whether it is otherwise known and readily available, the patent owner would be well-advised to follow the procedures set forth in paragraphs (b) and (c) of 1.805 after receiving the notice specified in those paragraphs.

Paragraph (d) of this section sets forth the requirements for the content of the specification with respect to a deposited biological material. Specifically, the specification shall contain the accession number for the deposit, the date of the deposit, the name and address of the depository, and a description of the deposited biological material sufficient to specifically identify it and to permit examination. The description must be sufficient to permit verification that the deposited biological material is in fact that disclosed. Once the patent issues, the description must be sufficient to aid in the resolution of questions of infringement. As a general rule, the more information that is provided about a particular deposited biological material, the better the examiner will be able to compare the identity and characteristics of the deposited biological material with the prior art.

OTHER CONSIDERATIONS

The rules are in conformity with the requirements of the Regulatory Flexibility Act (Pub. L. 96-354), Executive Orders 12291 and 12612 and the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et seq.

The General Counsel has certified to the Chief Counsel for Advocacy, Small Business Administration, that this rule change is not expected to have a significant adverse economic impact on a substantial number of small entities (Regulatory Flexibility Act, Pub. L. 96-354). The deposit practice will not impose extra work on patent applicants (whether small or large businesses or individuals).

The Patent and Trademark Office has determined that this rule change is not a major rule under Executive Order 12291. The annual effect on the economy will be less than $100 million.

There will be no major increases in costs or prices for consumers, individual industries, Federal, State or local government agencies, or geographic regions. There will be no adverse effects on competition, employment, investment, productivity, innovation, or on the ability of United States based enterprises to compete with foreign-based enterprises in domestic or export markets.

The Patent and Trademark Office has also determined that this notice has no Federalism implications affecting the relationship between the National Government and the States as outlined in Executive Order 12612.

These rules contain a collection of information requirement subject to the Paperwork Reduction Act which has been approved by the Office of Management and Budget under Control No. 0651-0022. Public reporting burden for this collection of information is estimated to average one hour per response, including the time for reviewing instructions, searching existing data sources, gathering and maintaining the data needed to make a deposit or request a sample, and completing and reviewing the collection of information. It is further estimated that a respondent depository would spend about five hours collecting and submitting the necessary information to be recognized as a suitable depository by the Office. Send comments regarding this burden estimate or any other aspect of this collection of information, including suggestions for reducing this burden, to the Office of Management and Organization, Patent and Trademark Office, Washington, D.C. 20231, and to the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs, Office of Management and Budget, Washington, D.C. 2050 (Paperwork Reduction Project 0651-0022). No comments regarding this burden estimate or any other aspect of this collection of infomation, including suggestions for reducing this burden, were received in response to the notice of proposed rulemaking.

Deposit of Biological Material

§ 1.801 Biological material.

For the purposes of these regulations pertaining to the deposit of biological material for purposes of patents for inventions under 35 U.S.C. 101, the term biological material shall include material that is capable of self-replication either directly or indirectly. Representative examples include bacteria, fungi including yeast, algae, protozoa, eukaryotic cells, cell lines, hybridomas, plasmids, viruses, plant tissue cells, lichens and seeds. Viruses, vectors, cell organelles and other non-living material existing in and reproducible from a living cell may be deposited by deposit of the host cell capable of reproducing the non-living material.

§ 1.802 Need or Opportunity to make a deposit.

(a) Where an invention is, or relies on, a biological material, the disclosure may include reference to a deposit of such biological material.

(b) Biological material need not be deposited unless access to such material is necessary for the satisfaction of the statutory requirements for patentability under 35 U.S.C. 112. If a deposit is necessary, it shall be acceptable if made in accordance with these regulations. Biological material need not be deposited, inter alia, if it is known and readily available to the public or can be made or isolated without undue experimentation. Once deposited in a depository complying with these regulations, a biological material will be considered to be readily available even though some requirement of law or regulation of the United States or of the country in which the depository institution is located permits access to the material only under conditions imposed for safety, public health or similar reasons.

(c) The reference to a biological material in a specification disclosure or the actual deposit of such material by an applicant or patent owner does not create any presumption that such material is necessary to satisfy 35 U.S.C. 112 or that deposit in accordance with these regulations is or was required.

§ 1.803 Acceptable depository.

(a) A deposit shall be recognized for the purposes of these regulations if made in

(1) any International Depositary Authority (IDA) as established under the Budapest Treaty on the International Recognition of the Deposit of Microorganisms for the Purposes of Patent Procedure, or

(2) any other depository recognized to be suitable by the Office. Suitability will be determined by the Commissioner on the basis of the administrative and technical competence, and agreement of the depository to comply with the terms and conditions applicable to deposits for patent purposes. The Commissioner may seek the advice of impartial consultants on the suitability of a depository. The depository must:

(i) Have a continuous existence;

(ii) Exist independent of the control of the depositor;

(iii) Possess the staff and facilities sufficient to examine the viability of a deposit and store the deposit in a manner which ensures that it is kept viable and uncontaminated;

(iv) Provide for sufficient safety measures to minimize the risk of losing biological material deposited with it

(v) Be impartial and objective;

(vi) Furnish samples of the deposited material in an expeditious and proper manner; and

(vii) Promptly notify depositors of its inability to furnish samples, and the reasons why.

(b) A depository seeking status under paragraph (a)(2) of this section must direct a communication to the Commissioner which shall:

(1) Indicate the name and address of the depository to which the communication relates;

(2) Contain detailed information as to the capacity of the depository to comply with the requirements of paragraph (a)(2) of this section, including information on its legal status, scientific standing, staff and facilities;

(3) Indicate that the depository intends to be available, for the purposes of deposit, to any depositor under these same conditions;

(4) Where the depository intends to accept for deposit only certain kinds of biological material, specify such kinds;

(5) Indicate the amount of any fees that the depository will, upon acquiring the status of suitable depository under paragraph (a)(2) of this section, charge for storage, viability statements and furnishings of samples of the deposit.

(c) A depository having status under paragraph (a)(2) of this section limited to certain kinds of biological material may extend such status to additional kinds of biological material by directing a communication to the Commissioner in accordance with paragraph (b) of this section. If a previous communication under paragraph (b) of this section is of record, items in common with the previous communication may be incorporated by reference.

(d) Once a depository is recognized to be suitable by the Commissioner or has defaulted or discontinued its performance under this section, notice thereof will be published in the Official Gazette of the Patent and Trademark Office.

§ 1.804 Time of making an original deposit.

(a) Whenever a biological material is specifically identified in an application for patent as filed, an original deposit thereof may be made at any time before filing the application for patent or, subject to § 1.809, during pendency of the application for patent.

(b) When the original deposit is made after the effective filing date of an application for patent, the applicant shall promptly submit a verified statement from a person in a position to corroborate the fact, and shall state, that the biological material which is deposited is a biological material specifically identified in the application as filed, except if the person is an attorney or agent registered to practice before the Office, in which case the statement need not be verified.

§ 1.805 Replacement or supplement of deposit.

(a) A depositor, after receiving notice during the pendency of an application for patent, application for reissue patent or reexamination proceeding, that the depository possessing a deposit either cannot furnish samples thereof or can furnish samples thereof but the deposit has become contaminated or has lost its capability to function as described in the specification, shall notify the Office in writing, in each application for patent or patent affected. In such a case, or where the Office otherwise learns, during the pendency of an application for patent, application for reissue patent or reexamination proceeding, that the depository possessing a deposit either cannot furnish samples thereof or can furnish samples thereof but the deposit has become contaminated or has lost its capability to function as described in the specification, the need for making a replacement or supplemental deposit will be governed by the same considerations governing the need for making an original deposit under the provisions set forth in § 1.802(b). A replacement or supplemental deposit made during the pendency of an application for patent shall not be accepted unless it meets the requirements for making an original deposit under these regulations, including the requirement set forth under § 1.804(b). A replacement or supplemental deposit made in connection with a patent, whether or not made during the pendency of an application for reissue patent or a reexamination proceeding or both, shall not be accepted unless a certificate of correction under § 1.323 is requested by the patent owner which meets the terms of paragraphs (b) and (c) of this section.

(b) A request for certificate of correction under this section shall not be granted unless the certificate identifies:

(1) The accession numter for the replacement or supplemental deposit;

(2) The date of the deposit; and

(3) The name and address of the depository.

(c) A request for a certificate of correction under this section shall not be granted unless the request is made promptly after the replacement or supplemental deposit has been made and:

(1) Includes a verified statement of the reason for making the replacement or supplemental deposit;

(2) Includes a verified statement from a person in a position to corroborate the fact, and shall state, that the replacement or supplemental deposit is of a biological material which is identical to that originally deposited;

(3) Includes a verified showing that the patent owner acted diligently—

(i) In the case of a replacement deposit, in making the deposit after receiving notice that samples could no longer be furnished from an earlier deposit, or

(ii) In the case of a supplemental deposit, in making the deposit after receiving notice that the earlier deposit had become contaminated or had lost its capability to function as described in the specification;

(4) Includes a verified statement that the term of the replacement or supplemental deposit expires no earlier than the term of the deposit being replaced or supplemented; and

(5) Otherwise establishes compliance with these regulations, except that if the person making one or more of the required statements or showing is an attorney or agent registered to practice before the Office, that statement or showing need not be verified.

(d) A depositor's failure to replace a deposit, or in the case of a patent, to diligently replace a deposit and promptly thereafter request a certificate of correction which meets the terms of paragraphs (b) and (c) of this section, after being notified that the depository possessing the deposit cannot furnish samples thereof, shall cause the application or patent involved to be treated in any Office proceeding as if no deposit were made.

(e) In the event a deposit is replaced according to these regulations, the Office will apply a rebuttable presumption of identity between the original and the replacement deposit where a patent making reference to the deposit is relied upon during any Office proceeding.

(f) A replacement or supplemental deposit made during the pendency of an application for patent may be made for any reason.

(g) In no case is a replacement or supplemental deposit of a biological material necessary where the biological material, in accordance with 1.802(b), need not be deposited.

(h) No replacement deposit of a biological material is necessary where a depository can furnish samples thereof but the depository for national security, health or environmental safety reasons is unable to provide samples to requesters outside of the jurisdiction where the depository is located.

(i) The Office will not recognize in any Office proceeding a replacement deposit of a biological material made by a patent owner where the depository could furnish samples of the deposit being replaced.

§ 1.806 Term of deposit.

A deposit made before or during pendency of an application for patent shall be made for a term of at least thirty (30) years and at least five (5) years after the most recent request for the furnishing of a sample of the deposit was received by the depository. In any case, samples must be stored under agreements that would make them available beyond the enforceable life of the patent for which the deposit was made.

§ 1.807 Viability of deposit.

(a) A deposit of biological material that is capable of self-replication either directly or indirectly must be viable at the time of deposit and during the term of deposit. Viability may be tested by the depository. The test must conclude only that the deposited material is capable of reproduction. No evidence is necessarily required regarding the ability of the deposited material to perform any function described in the patent application.

(b) A viability statement for each deposit of a biological material defined in paragraph (a) of this section not made under the Budapest Treaty on the International Recognition of the Deposit of Microorganisms for the Purposes of Patent Procedure must be filed in the application and must contain:

(1) The name and address of the depository;

(2) The name and address of the depositor;

(3) The date of deposit;

(4) The identity of the deposit and the accession number given by the depository;

(5) The date of the viability test;

(6) The procedures used to obtain a sample if the test is not done by the depository; and

(7) A statement that the deposit is capable of reproduction.

(c) If a viability test indicates that the deposit is not viable upon receipt, or the examiner cannot, for scientific or other valid reasons, accept the statement of viability received from the applicant, the examiner shall proceed as if no deposit has been made. The examiner will accept the conclusion set forth in a viability statement issued by a depository recognized under

§ 1.808 Furnishing of samples.

(a) A deposit must be made under conditions that assure that:
(1) Access to the deposit will be available during pendency of the patent application making reference to the deposit to one determined by the Commissioner to be entitled thereto under § 1.14 and 35 U.S.C. 122, and
(2) Subject to paragraph (b) of this section, all restrictions imposed by the depositor on the availability to the public of the deposited material will be irrevocably removed upon the granting of the patent.
(b) The depositor may contract with the depository to require that samples of a deposited biological material shall be furnished only if a request for a sample, during the term of the patent:
(1) Is in writing or other tangible form and dated;
(2) Contains the name and address of the requesting party and the accession number of the deposit; and
(3) Is communicated in writing by the depository to the depositor along with the date on which the sample was furnished and the name and address of the party to whom the sample was furnished.
(c) Upon request made to the Office, the Office will certify whether a deposit has been stated to have been made under conditions which make it available to the public as of the issue date of the patent grant provided the request con tains:
(1) The name and address of the depository;
(2) The accession number given to the deposit;
(3) The patent number and issue date of the patent referring to the deposit; and
(4) The name and address of the requesting party.

§ 1.809 Examination procedures.

(a) The examiner shall determine pursuant to § 1.104 in each application for patent, application for reissue patent or reexamination proceeding if a deposit is needed, and if needed, if a deposit actually made is acceptable for patent purposes. If a deposit is needed and has not been made or replaced or supplemented in accordance with these regulations, the examiner, where appropriate, shall reject the affected claims under the appropriate provision of 35 U.S.C. 112, explaining why a deposit is needed and/or why a deposit actually made cannot be accepted.
(b) The applicant for patent or patent owner shall respond to a rejection under paragraph (a) of this section by
(1) In the case of an applicant for patent, making an acceptable original or replacement or supplemental deposit or assuring the Office in writing that an acceptable deposit will be made on or before the date of payment of the issue fee, or, in the case of a patent owner, requesting a certificate of correction of the patent which meets the terms of paragraphs (b) and (c) of § 1.805, or
(2) Arguing why a deposit is not needed under the circumstances of the application or patent considered and/or why a deposit actually made should be accepted. Other replies to the examiner's action shall be considered non-responsive. The rejection will be repeated until either paragraph (b)(1) of this section is satisfied or the examiner is convinced that a deposit is not needed.
(c) If an application for patent is otherwise in condition for allowance except for a needed deposit and the Office has received a written assurance that an acceptable deposit will be made on or before payment of the issue fee, the Office will mail to the applicant a Notice of Allowance and Issue Fee Due together with a requirement that the needed deposit be made within three months. The period for satisfying this requirement is extendable under § 1.136. Failure to make the needed deposit in accordance with this requirement will result in abandonment of the application for failure to prosecute.
(d) For each deposit made pursuant to these regulations, the specification shall contain:
(1) The accession number for the deposit;
(2) The date of the deposit;
(3) A description of the deposited biological material sufficient to specifically identify it and to permit examination; and
(4) The name and address of the depository.

(69) Means Or Step Plus Function Limitation Under 35 U.S.C. § 112, 6th Paragraph

The following guidelines have been distributed to patent examiners for guidance on examining practice and procedure relating to limitations falling under 35 U.S.C. § 112, 6th paragraph, after In re Donaldson, 29 USPQ2d 1845 (Fed. Cir.1994). These guidelines will be incorporated into the Manual of Patent Examining Procedure.

April 20, 1994 CHARLES E. VAN HORN
Patent Policy and Projects Administrator

Examination Guidelines For Claims Reciting A "Means or Step Plus Function" Limitation In Accordance With 35 U.S.C. § 112, 6th Paragraph

The purpose of this memo is to set forth guidelines for the examination of § 112, 6th paragraph "means or step plus function" limitations in a claim. The court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit, in its en banc decision In re Donaldson, 29 USPQ2d 1845 (Fed. Cir. 1994), decided that a "means-or-step-plus-function" limitation should be interpreted in a manner different than patent examining practice has dictated for at least the last forty-two years. The Donaldson decision affects only the manner in which the scope of a "means or step plus function" limitation in accordance with § 112, 6th paragraph, is interpreted during examination. Donaldson does not directly affect the manner in which any other section of the patent statutes is interpreted or applied. When making a determination of patentability under 35 U.S.C. §§ 102 or 103, past practice was to interpret a "means or step plus function" limitation by giving it the "broadest reasonable interpretation." Under the PTO's long-standing practice this meant interpreting such a limitation as reading on any prior art means or step which performed the function specified in the claim without regard for whether the prior art means or step was equivalent to the corresponding structure, material or acts described in the specification. However, in Donaldson the Federal Circuit stated that: Per our holding, the "broadest reasonable interpretation" that an examiner may give means-plus-function language is that statutorily mandated in paragraph six. Accordingly, the PTO may not disregard the structure disclosed in the specification corresponding to such language when rendering a patent ability determination.[1] Thus, effective immediately, examiners shall interpret a § 112, 6th paragraph "means or step plus function" limitation in a claim as limited to the corresponding structure, materials or acts described in the specification and equivalents thereof in accordance with the following guidelines.

I. Identifying a § 112, 6th paragraph limitation

Although there is no magic language that must appear in a claim in order for it to fall within the scope of § 112, 6th paragraph, it must be clear that the element in the claim is set forth, at least in part, by the function it performs as opposed to the specific structure, material, or acts that perform the function. Limitations that fall within the scope of § 112, 6th paragraph include: (1) a jet driving device so constructed and located on the rotor as to drive the rotor . . .[2] ["means" unnecessary]

(2) "printing means" and "means for printing" would have the same connotations[3]
(3) force generating means adapted to provide . . .[4]
(4) call cost register means, including a digital display for providing a substantially instantaneous display for . . .[5]
(5) reducing the coefficient of friction of the resulting film[6] [step plus function; "step" unnecessary], and
(6) raising the Ph of the resultant pulp to about 5.0 to precipitate . . .[7]
In the event that it is unclear whether the claim limitation falls within the scope of § 112, 6th paragraph, a rejection under § 112, 2d paragraph may be appropriate. Donaldson does not affect the holding of In re Hyatt, 708 F.2d 712, 218 USPQ 195 (Fed. Cir. 1983) to the effect that a single means claim does not comply with the enablement requirement of § 112, first paragraph. As Donaldson applies only to an interpretation of a limitation drafted to correspond to § 112, 6th paragraph, which by its terms is limited to "an element in a claim to a combination," it does not affect a limitation in a claim which is not directed to a combination.

II. Examining procedure

A. Scope of the Search and Identification of the Prior Art
As noted above, in Donaldson the Federal Circuit recognized that it is important to retain the principle that claim language should be given its broadest reasonable interpretation. This principle is important because it helps insure that the statutory presumption of validity attributed to each claim of an issued patent is warranted by the search and examination conducted by the examiner. It is also important from the standpoint that the scope of protection afforded by patents issued prior to Donaldson are not unnecessarily limited by the latest interpretation of this statutory provision. Finally, it is important from the standpoint of avoiding the necessity for a patent specification to become a catalogue of existing technology.[8]
The Donaldson decision thus does not substantially alter examining practice and procedure relative to the scope of the search. Both before and after Donaldson, the application of a prior art reference to a means or step plus function limitation requires that the prior art element perform the identical function specified in the claim. However, if a prior art reference teaches identity of function to that specified in a claim, then under Donaldson an examiner carries the initial burden of proof for showing that the prior art structure or step is the same as or equivalent to the structure, material, or acts described in the specification which has been identified as corresponding to the claimed means or step plus function.
The "means or step plus function" limitation should be interpreted in a manner consistent with the specification disclosure. If the specification defines what is meant by the limitation for the purposes of the claimed invention, the examiner should interpret the limitation as having that meaning. If no definition is provided, some judgment must be exercised in determining the scope of the limitation.

B. Making a prima facie case of equivalence
If the examiner finds that a prior art element performs the function specified in the claim, and is not excluded by any explicit definition provided in the specification for an equivalent, the examiner should infer from that finding that the prior art element is an equivalent, and should then conclude that the claimed limitation is anticipated by the prior art element. The burden then shifts to applicant[9] to show that the element shown in the prior art is not an equivalent of the structure, material or acts disclosed in the application. In re Mulder, 716 F.2d 1542, 219 USPQ 189 (Fed. Cir. 1983).[10] The factors to be considered when determining whether the applicant has successfully met the burden of proving that the prior art element is not equivalent to the structure, material or acts described in the applicant's specification are discussed below.
However, even where the applicant has met that burden of proof and has shown that the prior art element is not equivalent to the structure, material or acts described in the applicant's specification, the examiner must still make a § 103 analysis to determine if the claimed means or step plus function is obvious from the prior art to one of ordinary skill in the art. Thus, while a finding of non-equivalence prevents a prior art element from anticipating a means or step plus function limitation in a claim, it does not prevent the prior art element from rendering the claim limitation obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art.
Because the exact scope of an "equivalent" may be uncertain, it would be appropriate to apply a § 102/§ 103 rejection where the balance of the claim limitations are anticipated by the prior art relied on.[11] In addition, although it is normally the best practice to rely on only the best prior art references in rejecting a claim, alternative grounds of rejection may be appropriate where the prior art shows elements that are different from each other, and different from the specific structure, material or acts described in the specification, yet perform the function specified in the claim.

C. Determining whether an applicant has met the burden of proving non-equivalence after a prima facie case is made
If the applicant disagrees with the inference of equivalence drawn from a prior art reference, the applicant may provide reasons why the applicant believes the prior art element should not be considered an equivalent to the specific structure, material or acts disclosed in the specification. Such reasons may include, but are not limited to: 1) teachings in the specification that particular prior art is not equivalent, 2) teachings in the prior art reference itself that may tend to show non-equivalence, or 3) Rule 132 affidavit evidence of facts tending to show non-equivalence.
When the applicant relies on teachings in applicant's own specification, the examiner must make sure that the applicant is interpreting the "means or step plus function" limitation in the claim in a manner which is consistent with the disclosure in the specification. If the specification defines what is meant by "equivalents" to the disclosed embodiments for the purpose of the claimed means or step plus function, the examiner should interpret the limitation as having that meaning. If no definition is provided, some judgment must be exercised in determining

[2] The term "device" coupled with a function is a proper definition of structure in accordance with the last paragraph of § 112. The addition of the words "jet driving" to the term "device" merely renders the latter more definite and specific. Ex partes Stanley, 121 USPQ 621 (Bd. App. 1958).
[3] Ex parte Klumb, 159 USPQ 694 (Bd. App. 1967). However, the terms "plate" and "wing", as modifiers for the structureless term "means", specify no function to be performed, and do not fall under the last paragraph of § 112.

[9] No further analysis of equivalents is required of the examiner until applicant disagrees with the examiner's conclusion, and provides reasons why the prior art element should not be considered an equivalent.

[11] A similar approach is authorized in the case of product-by- process claims because the exact identity of the claimed product or the prior art product cannot be determined by the examiner. In re Brown, 450 F.2d 531, 173 USPQ 685 (CCPA 1972) the scope of "equivalents." Generally, an "equivalent" is interpreted as embracing more than the specific elements described in the specification for performing the specified function, [12]but less than any element that performs the function specified in the claim.

The scope of equivalents embraced by a claim limitation is dependent on the interpretation of an "equivalent." The interpretation will vary depending on how the element is described in the supporting specification. The claim may or may not be limited to particular structure, material or acts (e.g. steps) as opposed to any and all structure, material or acts performing the claimed function, depending on how the specification treats that question.

If the disclosure is so broad as to encompass any and all structure, material or acts for performing the claimed function, the claims must be read accordingly when determining patentability. When this happens the limitation otherwise provided by "equivalents" ceases to be a limitation on the scope of the claim in that an equivalent would be any structure, material or act other than the ones described in the specification that perform the claimed function. For example, this situation will often be found in cases where (1) the claimed invention is a combination of elements, one or more of which are selected from elements that are old per se, or (2) apparatus claims are treated as indistinguishable from method claims.[13]

On the other end of the spectrum, the "equivalents" limitation as applied to a claim may also operate to constrict the claim scope to the point of covering virtually only the disclosed embodiments. This can happen in circumstances where the specification describes the invention only in the context of a specific structure, material or act that is used to perform the function specified in the claim.

When deciding whether an applicant has met the burden of proof with respect to showing non-equivalence of a prior art element that performs the claimed function, the following factors may be considered. First, unless an element performs the identical function specified in the claim, it cannot be an equivalent for the purposes of § 112, 6th paragraph.[14]

Second, while there is no litmus test for an "equivalent" that can be applied with absolute certainty and predictability, there are several indicia that are sufficient to support a conclusion that one element is or is not an "equivalent" of a different element in the context of § 112, 6th paragraph. Among the indicia that will support a conclusion that one element is or is not equivalent of another are:

1) Whether the prior art element performs the function specified in the claim in substantially the same way, and produces substantially the same results as the corresponding element disclosed in the specification.[15]

2) Whether a person of ordinary skill in the art would have recognized the interchangeability of the element shown in the prior art for the corresponding element disclosed in the specification.[16]

3) Whether the prior art element is a structural equivalent of the corresponding element disclosed in the specification being examined.

[17]That is, the prior art element performs the function specified in the claim in substantially the same manner as the function is performed by the corresponding element described in the specification.

4) Whether the structure, material or acts disclosed in the specification represents an insubstantial change which adds nothing of significance to the prior art element.[18]

These examples are not intended to be an exhaustive list of the indicia that would support a finding that one element is or is not an equivalent of another element for the purposes of § 112, 6th paragraph. A finding according to any of the above examples would represent a sufficient, but not the only possible, basis to support a conclusion that an element is or is not an equivalent. There could be other indicia that also would support the conclusion.

In determining whether arguments or Rule 132 evidence presented by an applicant are persuasive that the element shown in the prior art is not an equivalent, the examiner should consider and weigh as many of the above-indicated or other indicia as are presented by applicant, and should determine whether, on balance, the applicant has met the burden of proof to show non-equivalence. However, under no circumstance should an examiner accept as persuasive a bare statement or opinion that the element shown in the prior art is not an equivalent embraced by the claim limitation. Moreover, if an applicant argues that the "means" or "step" plus function language in a claim is limited to certain specific structural or additional functional characteristics (as opposed to "equivalents" thereof) where the specification does not describe the invention as being only those specific characteristics, the claim should not be allowed until the claim is amended to recite those specific structural or additional functional characteristics.[19]

Finally, as in the past, applicant has the opportunity during proceedings before the Office to amend the claims so that the claimed invention meets all the statutory criteria for patentability. An applicant may choose to amend the claim by further limiting the function so that there is no longer identity of function with that taught by the prior art element, or the applicant may choose to replace the claimed means plus function limitation with specific structure material or acts that are not described in the prior art.

D. Related issues under Section 112, first or secondparagraphs

The Donaldson decision may create some uncertainty as to what applicant regards as the invention. If this issue arises, it should be addressed in a rejection under § 112, 2d paragraph. While § 112, 6th paragraph permits a particular form of claim limitation, it cannot be read as creating an exception either to the description, enablement or best mode requirements of the paragraph or the definiteness requirement of the 2d paragraph of § 112. In re Knowlton, 481 F.2d 1357, 178 USPQ 486 (CCPA 1973).

If a "means or step plus function" limitation recited in a claim is not supported by corresponding structure, material or acts in the specification disclosure, the following rejections should be considered: (1) under § 112, 1st paragraph, as not being supported by an enabling disclosure because the person skilled in the art would not know how to make and use the invention without a description of elements to perform the function;[20] (2) under § 112, 2d paragraph, as being indefinite because the element or step is not defined in the specification by corresponding structure, material or acts; and (3) under §§ 102 or 103 where the prior art anticipates or renders obvious the claimed subject matter including the means or step that performs the function specified in the claim. [Theory: since there is no corresponding structure, etc. in the specification to limit the means or step plus function limitation, an equivalent is any element that performs the specified function].

[12]To interpret "means plus function" limitations as limited to a particular means set forth in the specification would nullify the provisions of § 112 requiring that the limitation shall be construed to cover the structure described in the specification and equivalents thereof. [20] Otherwise, a claim could be allowed having broad functional language which in reality is limited to only the specific structure or steps disclosed in the specification. This would be contrary to public policy of granting patents which provide adequate notice the public as to a claim's true scope.

[21]The description of an apparatus with block diagrams describing the function, but not the structure, of the apparatus is not fatal under the enablement requirement of § 112, 1st paragraph, as long as the structure is conventional and can be determined without an undue amount of experimentation. In re Ghiron, 442 F.2d 985, 991, 169 USPQ 723, 727 (CCPA 1971).

III. Avoid confusion with the doctrine of equivalents

An "equivalent" for the purposes of § 112, 6th paragraph, should not be confused with the doctrine of equivalents. The doctrine of equivalents, most often associated with Graver Tank & Mfg. Co. v. Linde Air Products, 339 U.S. 605, 85 USPQ 328 (1950), is sometimes applied to do equity among the parties before the court in an infringement action involving an issued patent. The doctrine typically involves a three-part inquiry - whether an accused device performs substantially the same function, in substantially the same way, to obtain substantially the same result as the claimed invention. Section § 112, 6th paragraph limits the scope of the broad language of "means or step plus function" limitations, in a claim to a combination, to the structures, materials and acts described in the specification and equivalents thereof. The doctrine of equivalents equitably expands exclusive patent rights beyond the literal scope of a claim.[21] Accordingly, decisions involving the doctrine of equivalents should not unduly influence a determination under § 112, 6th paragraph during ex parte examination.

RIN: 0651-AA67

Revision of Affidavits Under 37 CFR 1.131

Agency: Patent and Trademark Office, Commerce
Action: Notice of proposed rulemaking
Summary: The Patent and Trademark Office (Office) proposes to amend the rules of practice relating to submission of affidavits or declarations under 37 CFR 1.131 (a) to implement the relevant provisions of Public Law No. 103 - 182 and the GATT (General Agreement on Trade and Tariffs), and to provide relief in certain circumstances where a common assignee holds both an application and a patent claiming patentably indistinct, but not identical, inventions.
Date: Written comments must be submitted on or before December 1, 1994. No oral hearing will be held.
Addressees: Address written comments to the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Washington, D.C. 20231, Attention: Charles E. Van Horn, Deputy Assistant Commissioner for Patent Policy and Projects, or by fax to (703) 305-8825.
For Further Information Contact: Charles E. Van Horn by telephone at (703) 305-9054 or Hiram Bernstein by telephone at (703) 305-9282 or by mail marked to the attention of Charles E. Van Horn, Deputy Assistant Commissioner for Patent Policy and Projects, and addressed as above.
Supplementary Information: Public Law No. 103-182 (November 4, 1993) implementing the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA), amended 35 U.S.C. 104 to provide that for the purpose of obtaining a patent, an applicant can show a date of invention in the United States, or in a NAFTA country which occurred after the date of implementation (i.e., December 8, 1993). Although GATT enabling legislation has not been passed, these proposed rule changes assume that it will be passed, and therefore changes to 37 CFR 1.131(a) similar to NAFTA would be required. See Article 27, paragraph 1, of the Agreement on Trade-related Aspects of Intellectual Property Rights, Including Trade in Counterfeit Goods, of the GATT. In the event that the GATT enabling legislation is not enacted when the final rules are published, the proposed rule changes relative to the GATT will be withdrawn.

The Office proposes to amend 37 CFR 1.131(a), which is currently limited to facts showing a completion of the invention in the United States, to allow for a submission of facts in an affidavit or declaration that show completion of the invention in a NAFTA or a World Trade Organization (WTO) Member country. The WTO is established under the GATT agreement to resolve disputes between signatories to the agreement. The facts presented must demonstrate completion of the invention prior to the effective date of a reference thought to bar the grant of a patent or the patentability of a claim in a patent under reexamination.

Additionally, the Office recognizes that there is a potential conflict between existing 37 CFR 1.131(a) and 37 CFR 1.602(a). Section 1.131(a) prohibits affidavits or declarations thereunder when the same patentable invention as defined in 37 CFR 1.601(n) (i.e., patentably indistinct inventions) is claimed. An interference under 35 U.S.C. § 135, rather than antedating under § 1.131(a), is generally the available remedy. However, 37 CFR 1.602(a) provides that when the applications or the application and patent are owned by a single party, interferences are not declared or continued unless good cause is shown. This can result in a hardship where there is an issued patent that can no longer be amended as by filing a continuation-in-part application. Where there are two or more pending applications, the conflict can be avoided by filing a continuation-in-part application incorporating the conflicting inventions in a single application.

The Office proposes to amend 37 CFR 1.131 to broaden its application to a single party where inventions of a pending application and a patent held by the party are patentably indistinct but not identical. Under the proposed additions to § 1.131, an affidavit or declaration could be filed by a party to avoid a 35 U.S.C. § 103 rejection based on a 35 U.S.C. §§ 102(a) or (e) patent owned by that party, where the patent claimed an invention that was patentably indistinct, but not identical to an invention claimed in an application or patent undergoing reexamination.

The proposed addition to § 1.131 would not affect the use of the issued patent in a rejection based on double patenting. However, where patentably indistinct but not identical inventions are claimed, a double patenting rejection can be avoided by filing an appropriate terminal disclaimer. In addition, petitions under § 1.183 will be entertained for waiver of § 1.131 requirements in appropriate instances where two pending applications claiming patentably indistinct but not identical inventions are held by a single party.

Discussion of Specific Rules:

Section 1.131(a), if amended to (a)(1) as proposed, would allow a § 1.131 affiant or declarant to rely upon facts occurring in a NAFTA or a WTO Member country to show completion of the invention. The term "domestic" would be changed to "U.S." The section is proposed to be amended from a single sentence to three sentences.

Section 1.131(a)(2), if added as proposed, would limit the availability of acts showing completion of the invention in a NAFTA or WTO Member country to those acts occurring subsequent to the effective date of the agreements.

Section 1.131(a)(3), if added as proposed, would allow a showing of prior invention to be made in a pending application or a patent that is undergoing reexamination where a single party holds both the application or patent undergoing reexamination and another patent where the claimed inventions were, at the time the later invention was made, both owned by the single party or subject to an obligation of assignment to that party. Further, in order to rely on proposed § 1.131(a)(3), the inventions claimed in the application or in the patent undergoing reexamination and in the other patent must not be identical as set forth in 35 U.S.C. § 102.

Other Considerations:

The proposed rule changes are in conformity with the requirements of the Regulatory Flexibility Act, 5 U.S.C. 601 et seq., Executive Order 12612, and the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et seq. The Office of Management and Budget has determined that the proposed rule changes are not significant for the purposes of E.O. 12866.

The Assistant General Counsel for Legislation and Regulation of the Department of Commerce has certified to the Chief Counsel for Advocacy, Small Business Administration, that the proposed rule changes will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities (Regulatory Flexibility Act, 5 U.S.C. 605(b)), because the proposed rules would affect only a small number of applications and would provide a streamlined and simplified procedure, eliminating the need for requesting waiver of the rules.

The Patent and Trademark Office has also determined that this notice has no Federalism implications affecting the relationship between the National Government and the States as outlined in Executive Order 12612.

These rule changes will not impose any additional burden under the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et seq.

Authority: 35 U.S.C. § 6, unless otherwise noted.

2. Section 1.131 is proposed to be amended by revising paragraph (a) to read as follows:

§ 1.131 Affidavit or declaration of prior invention to overcome cited patent or publication.

(a) ►(1)◄ When any claim of an application or a patent under reexamination is rejected on reference to a [domestic] ►U.S.◄ patent which substantially shows or describes but does not claim the same patentable invention, as defined in § 1.601(n), as the rejected invention, or on reference to a foreign patent or to a printed publication, [and] the inventor of the subject matter of the rejected claim, the owner of the patent under reexamination, or the person qualified under §§ 1.42, 1.43 or 1.47, [shall make] ►may overcome the patent or publication by filing an appropriate◄ oath or declaration ►,◄ [as to] ►The oath or declaration must include◄ facts showing a completion of the invention in this country ►or in a NAFTA or WTO Member country◄ before the filing date of the application on which the [domestic] ►U.S.◄ patent issued, or before the date of the foreign patent, or before the date of the printed publication [, then][.] ►When an appropriate oath or declaration is made,◄ the patent or publication cited shall not bar the grant of a patent to the inventor or the confirmation of the patentability of the claims of the patent, unless the date of such patent or printed publication is more than one year prior to the date on which the inventor's or patent owner's application was filed in this country.

►(a)(2) A date of completion of the invention may not be established under this section before December 8, 1993, in a NAFTA country, or before _____ in a WTO Member country other than a NAFTA country.

(a)(3) Notwithstanding the provisions of paragraph (a)(1), a showing may be made under this section where the inventions defined by a claim in an application or a patent under reexamination and by a claim in another U.S. patent are not identical as set forth in 35 U.S.C. 102, and where the inventions were, at the time the later invention was made, owned by the same person or subject to an obligation of assignment to the same person.◄

(72) In re Baird

The Patent and Trademark Office (PTO) has received a decision of the Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit in In re Baird, F.2d , 29 USPQ2d 1550 (Fed. Cir. 1994). In the opinion of the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Baird was wrongly decided by the Court because an improper standard of patentability under 35 U.S.C. § 103 was applied in assessing the obviousness question before the Court.

The Court's decision in Baird is inconsistent with applicable binding precedent. The Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences (Board), in correctly deciding the case, applied and cited the proper binding precedent, which includes In re Susi, 440 F.2d 442, 169 USPQ 423 (CCPA 1971), followed by the Federal Circuit in Merck & Co. v. Biocraft Laboratories, Inc., 874 F.2d 804, 10 USPQ2d 1843 (Fed. Cir.), cert. denied, 493 U.S. 975 (1989).

Ordinarily, where the Commissioner believes that the Federal Circuit has erroneously decided an appeal, it would be appropriate to ask for reconsideration or to ask the Solicitor General to file a petition for certiorari to seek review of the decision. However, in this case, the PTO has discovered additional reasons for reopening prosecution of the application. Under these circumstances, it would not be appropriate to burden the applicant or the courts with further pleadings when ultimately a rejection will be entered. Compare In re Gould, 673 F.2d 1385, 213 USPQ 628 (CCPA 1982) (remand to Board authorized even after appellant filed brief where Solicitor indicated that new rejection would be made if court reversed rejection on appeal).

In order to properly serve the public and patent applicants appearing before the PTO, it is imperative that the PTO apply a consistent standard of patentability in the examination of patent applications. Baird is inconsistent with applicable binding precedent. Accordingly, to maintain uniformstandards in the examination of patent applications, patent examiners are directed to follow the In re Susi and Merck decisions rather than the Baird decision and to cite this notice as a full response to any applicant who may rely on the Baird decision in responding to rejections.

Should an issue similar to that raised in the Baird case come before the Federal Circuit in the future, the conflict between Baird and the above- noted binding precedent will be called to the Court's attention so that it may resolve any conflict.

Discussion

I. Statutory Subject Matter - 35 U.S.C. § 101

Inventions may be patented only if they fall within one of the four statutory classes of subject matter of 35 U.S.C. § 101: "process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter." See Kewanee Oil Co. v. Bicron Corp., 416 U.S. 470, 483, 181 USPQ 673, 679 (1974):

> [N]o patent is available for a discovery, however useful, novel, and nonobvious, unless it falls within one of the express categories of patentable subject matter of 35 U.S.C. § 101.

Subject matter that does not fall within one of the statutory classes of 35 U.S.C. § 101 is said to be "nonstatutory" or to be "unpatentable subject matter."

The broad language of § 101 is intended to dilineate a "general industrial boundary" of patentable invention. In re Bergy, 596 F.2d 952, 974 n.11, 201 USPQ 352, 372 n.11 (CCPA 1979), vacated, 444 U.S. 1028, aff'd sub nom., Diamond v. Chakrabarty, 447 U.S. 303, 206 USPQ 193 (1980). The first statutory class, process, is defined in 35 U.S.C. § 100(b) and refers to acts, while the last three classes, machine, manufacture and composition of matter, refer to physical things; therefore, the general field of patentable invention consists of new acts and new things. Id. The classes relevant to this discussion are "process" and "machine." A "process" is equivalent to a "method." Bergy, 596 F.2d at 965, 201 USPQ at 364. The term "machine" is used interchangeably with "apparatus." In re Prater, 415 F.2d 1393, 1395 n.11, 162 USPQ 541, 543 n.11 (CCPA 1969).

The question of whether a claimed invention satisfies the other conditions for patentability is "wholly apart from whether the invention falls into a category of statutory subject matter" (emphasis deleted). Diamond v. Diehr, 450 U.S. 175, 190, 209 USPQ 1, 9 (1981) (citing Bergy, 596 F.2d at 961, 201 USPQ at 361). As stated in Parker v. Flook, 437 U.S. 584, 593, 198 USPQ 193, 198-99 (1978):

> The obligation to determine what type of discovery is sought to be patented must precede the determination of whether that discovery is, in fact, new [i.e., novel under § 102] or obvious [§ 103].

See also In re Sarkar, 588 F.2d 1330, 1333 n.10, 200 USPQ 132, 137 n.10 (CCPA 1978) ("If the subject matter as claimed is subject to patenting, i.e., if it falls within § 101, it must them be examined for compliance with § 102 and 103").

Legislative history indicates that Congress contemplated that the subject matter provisions be given a broad construction and were intended to "include anything under the sun that is made by man." Diamond v. Chakrabarty, 447 U.S. at 309, 206 USPQ at 197. Any process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter constitutes statutory subject matter unless it falls within a judicially determined exception to § 101. In re Pardo, 684 F.2d 912, 916, 214 USPQ 673, 677 (CCPA 1982). Exceptions include laws of nature, physical phenomena and abstract ideas. Diehr, 450 U.S. at 185, 209 USPQ at 7, and cases cited therein. This analysis addresses whether mathematical algorithms and computer programs are statutory subject matter.

II. Mathematical Algorithms

A. Mathematical algorithms per se are not a statutory "process" under § 101

A mathematical algorithm is defined as a "procedure for solving a given type of mathematical problem." Gottschalk v. Benson, 409 U.S. 63, 65, 175 USPQ 673, 674 (1972); Flook, 437 U.S. at 585 n.1, 198 USPQ at 195 n.1; Diehr, 450 U.S. at 186, 209 USPQ at 8. Mathematical algorithms are nonstatutory because they have been determined not to fall within the § 101 statutory class of a "process." Benson. "[A]n algorithm, or mathematical formula, is like a law of nature, which cannot be the subject of a patent." Diehr, 450 U.S. at 186, 209 USPQ at 8. The exception applies only to mathematical algorithms since any process is an "algorithm" in the sense that it is a step-by-step procedure to arrive at a given result. In re Walter, 618 F.2d 758, 764 n.4, 205 USPQ 397, 405 n.4. (CCPA 1980); Pardo, 684 F.2d at 915, 214 USPQ at 676.

Although mathematical algorithms per se are nonstatutory, as stated in Diehr, 450 U.S. at 187-88, 209 USPQ at 8-9:

> [A] claim drawn to subject matter otherwise statutory does not become nonstatutory simply because it uses a mathematical formula, computer program, or digital computer. . . .[I]n Parker v. Flook we stated that "a process is not unpatentable simply because it contains a law of nature or a mathematical algorithm." 437 U.S. at 590. It is now commonplace that an application of a law of nature or mathematical formula to a known structure or process may well be deserving of patent protection. As Justice Stone explained four decades ago:
> > "While a scientific truth, or the mathematical expression of it, is not a patentable invention, a novel and useful structure created with the aid of knowledge of scientific truth may be." Mackay Radio & Telegraph Co. v. Radio Corp. of America, 306 U.S. 86, 94 (1939). [Citations omitted.]

The Supreme Court thus recognizes that mathematical algorithms are "the basic tools of scientific and technological work." Benson, 409 U.S. at 67, 175 USPQ at 675, and should not be the subject of exclusive rights, whereas technological application of scientific principles and mathematical algorithms furthers the constitutional purpose of promoting "the Progress of . . . Useful arts." U.S. Const. art. I, 8. It is also recognized that mathematical algorithms may be the most precise way to describe the invention.

Where claims involve mathematical algorithms, as stated in In re Abele, 684 F.2d 902, 907, 214 USPQ 682, 687 (CCPA 1982):

> The goal is to answer the question "What did applicants invent?" If the claimed invention is a mathematical algorithm, it is improper subject matter for patent protection, whereas if the claimed invention is an application of the algorithm, § 101 will not bar the grant of a patent.

The tests for determining whether claims containing mathematical algorithms are statutory have gradually evolved in the courts since the Supreme Court's decision in Benson in 1972.

B. Evolution of the two-part test for mathematical algorithm-statutory subject matter

The proper legal analysis of mathematical algorithm-statutory subject matter cases is the two-part test of In re Freeman, 573 F.2d 1237, 197 USPQ 464 (CCPA 1978), as modified by Walter and Abele. See In re Meyer, 688 F.2d 789, 796, 215 USPQ 193, 198 (CCPA 1982) ("A more comprehensive test for cases involving mathematical algorithms is set forth in In re Abele"). A review of the evolution of the analysis provides some useful insights into the application of the test.

In Benson, the Supreme Court concluded that claims directed to a particular algorithm for converting binary coded decimal numbers to binary numbers was not statutory subject matter. The Supreme Court further concluded that any patent issued on those claims "would wholly pre-empt the mathematical formula and in practical effect would be a patent on the algorithm itself." 409 U.S. at 72, 175 USPQ at 676. These two conclusions formed the basis for the two-part analysis of the Court of Customs and Patent Appeals (CCPA) in Freeman, 573 F.2d at 1245, 197 USPQ at 471:

> First, it must be determined whether the claim directly or indirectly recites an "algorithm" in the Benson sense of that term, for a claim which fails even to recite an algorithm clearly cannot wholly preempt an algorithm. Second, the claim must be further analyzed to ascertain whether in its entirety it wholly preempts that algorithm.

In 1978, the Supreme Court held in Flook that a claim need "not . . . cover every conceivable application of the formula" to be nonstatutory. 437 U.S. at 586, 198 USPQ at 196. This decision left undefined what constitutes statutory subject matter. In Walter, the CCPA modified the second step of Freeman to require a more positive approach to determining what is claimed, 618 F.2d at 767, 205 USPQ at 407:

> If it appears that the mathematical algorithm is implemented in a specific manner to define structural relationships between the physical elements of the claim (in apparatus claims) or to refine or limit claim steps (in process claims), the claim being otherwise statutory, the claim passes muster under § 101. If, however, the mathematical algorithm is merely presented and solved by the claimed invention, as was the case in Benson and Flook, and is not applied in any manner to physical elements or process steps, no amount of post-solution activity will render the claim statutory; nor is it saved by a preamble merely reciting the field of use of the mathematical algorithm.

The CCPA noted that while the second step of Freeman was "stated in terms of preemption" it had consistently been applied "in the spirit of the foregoing principles." 618 F.2d at 767, 205 USPQ at 407.

In Abele, the CCPA further modified the second part of the test to provide a more comprehensive test, 684 F.2d at 906-7, 214 USPQ at 686:

> Appellants summarize the Walter test as setting forth two ends of a spectrum: what is now clearly nonstatutory, i.e., claims in which an algorithm is merely presented and solved by the claimed invention (preemption), and what is clearly statutory, i.e., claims in which an algorithm is implemented in a specific manner to define structural relationships between the physical elements of the claim (in an apparatus claim) or to refine or limit steps (in a process). Appellants urge that the statement of the test in Walter fails to provide a useful tool for analyzing claims in the "gray area" which falls between the two ends of that spectrum. We agree that the board's understanding and application of the Walter analysis justifies appellant's position. However, the Walter analysis quoted above does not limit patentable subject matter only to claims in which structural relationships or process steps are defined, limited or refined by the application of the algorithm.
> Rather, Walter should be read as requiring no more than that the algorithm be "applied in any manner to physical elements or process steps," provided that its application is circumscribed by more than a field of use limitation or non-essential post-solution activity. Thus, if the claim would be "otherwise statutory," id., albeit inoperative or less useful without the algorithm, the claim likewise presents statutory subject matter when the algorithm is included. This broad reading of Walter, we conclude, is in accord with the Supreme Court decisions [holding "that a claim drawn to subject matter otherwise statutory does not become nonstatutory simply because it uses a mathematical formula, computer program, or digital computer," Diamond v. Diehr, 450 U.S. at 187, 209 USPQ at 8].

The reason for the modification of the test was because, as noted in Abele, 684 F.2d at 909, 214 USPQ at 688:

> The algorithm [in Abele] does not necessarily refine or limit the earlier steps of production and detection as would be required to achieve the status of patentable subject matter by the board's narrow reading of Walter.

The second test of Abele suggests that the determination of whether the algorithm is "applied in any manner to physical element or process steps" may be made by viewing the claims without the algorithm and determining whether what remains is "otherwise statutory." This analysis focuses on identifying the statutory process in the claim and is consistent with previous cases such as Walter, 618 F.2d at 769, 205 USPQ at 409 ("Examination of each claim demonstrates that each has no substance apart from the calculations involved"). The technique of viewing the claim without the mathematical algorithm is not inconsistent with the requirement that claims must be considered "as a whole" under § 101.

The requirement that claims be considered "as a whole" arose out of the now rejected "point of novelty" approach to statutory subject matter. Under the "point of novelty" approach, if a claim considered without the nonstatutory subject matter was unpatentable over the prior art (i.e., if the algorithm was at the "point of novelty" of the claim), the claims were found to not recite statutory subject matter. This approach was consistently rejected by the CCPA. See In re Chatfield, 545 F.2d 152, 191 USPQ 730 (CCPA 1976), cert. denied, 434 U.S. 875 (1977); In re Deutsch, 553 F.2d 689, 193 USPQ 645 (CCPA 1977); In re de Castelet, 562 F.2d 1236, 195 USPQ 439 (CCPA 1977); Freeman; Sarkar; Walter. The point of novelty approach was finally put to rest in Diehr, 450 U.S. at 188-89, 209 USPQ at 9:

> In determining the eligibility of respondents' claimed process for patent protection under § 101, their claims must be considered as a whole. It is inappropriate to dissect the claims into old and new elements and then to ignore the presence of the old elements in the analysis. . . . The "novelty" of any element or steps in a process, or even of the process itself, is of no relevance in determining whether the subject matter of a claim falls within the § 101 categories of possibly patentable subject matter.

Under the second test of Abele, the claims are considered without the algorithm to determine whether what remains is "otherwise statutory," not to determine whether what remains is novel and nonobvious.

C. Application of the two-part test

1. Step 1 - presence of a mathematical algorithm

a. Mathematical algorithm

A mathematical algorithm is a "procedure for solving a given type of mathematical problem." In this sense, a mathematical algorithm refers "to methods of calculation, mathematical formulas, and mathematical procedures generally." Walter, 618 F.2d at 764-65 n.4, 205 USPQ at 405 n.4. "The type of mathematical computation involved does not determine whether a procedure is statutory or nonstatutory." In re Gelnovatch, 595 F.2d 32, 41, 201 USPQ 136, 145 (CCPA 1979). A "claim for an improved method of calculation, even when tied to a specific end use, is unpatentable subject matter under § 101." Flook, 437 U.S. at 595 n.18, 198 USPQ at 199 n.18.

Mathematical algorithms may represent scientific principles, laws of nature, or ideas or mental processes for solving complex problems. See Meyer, 688 F.2d at 794-95, 215 USPQ at 197:

> Scientific principles, such as the relationship between mass and energy [E = mc2], and laws of nature, such as the acceleration of gravity, namely a = 32 ft./sec.^{2}, can be represented in mathematical format. However, some mathematical algorithms and formulae do not represent scientific principles or laws of nature; they represent ideas or mental processes and are simply logical vehicles for communicating possible solutions to complex problems.

See also Safe Flight Instrument Corp. v. Sundstrand Data Control, Inc., 706 F. Supp. 1146, 10 USPQ2d 1733 (D.Del. 1989) (mathematical algorithm representing a natural phenomenon, windshear). No distinction is made between mathematical algorithms invented by man, and mathematical algorithms representing discoveries of scientific principles and laws of nature which reveal a relationship that has always existed.

b. "Process" versus "apparatus" claims

Since mathematical algorithms have been determined not to fall within the § 101 statutory class of a "process," attempts have been made to circumvent the nonstatutory subject matter rejection by drafting mathematical algorithms as "machine" claims. The technique used is to draft the method steps in terms of "means for" language permitted by 35 U.S.C. § 112, sixth paragraph. While such a claim is technically a "machine" or "apparatus" claim, the courts have held that form of the claim does not control whether the subject matter is statutory. See In re Maucorps, 609 F.2d 481, 485, 203 USPQ 812, 815-16 (CCPA 1979):

> Labels are not determinative in § 101 inquiries. "Benson applies equally whether an invention is claimed as an apparatus or process, because the form of the claim is often an exercise in drafting." In re Johnson, 589 F.2d 1070, 1077, 200 USPQ 199, 206 ([CCPA] 1978). "Though a claim expressed in 'means for' (functional) terms [under 35 U.S.C. § 112, sixth paragraph] is said to be an apparatus claim, the subject matter as a whole of that claim may be indistinguishable from that of a method claim drawn to the steps performed by the 'means.' "In re Freeman, 573 F.2d at 1247, 197 USPQ at 472. Moreover, that the claimed computing system may be a "machine" within "the ordinary sense of the word," as appellant argues, is irrelevant. The holding in Benson "forecloses a purely literal reading of § 101."

The test for determining whether "means for" apparatus claims should be treated as method claims is stated in Walter, 618 F.2d at 768, 205 USPQ at 408:

> If the functionally-defined disclosed means and their equivalents are so broad that they encompass any and every means for performing the recited functions, the apparatus claim is an attempt to exalt form over substance since the claim is really to the method or series of functions itself . . . . In such cases the burden must be placed on the applicant to demonstrate that the claims are truly drawn to specific apparatus distinct from other apparatus capable of performing the identical functions.

If this burden has not been discharged, the apparatus claim will be treated as if it were drawn to the method or process which encompasses all of the claimed "means." See In re Maucorps, 609 F.2d at 485, 203 USPQ at 815-816; In re Johnson, 589 F.2d at 1077, 200 USPQ at 206; In re Freeman, 573 F.2d at 1247, 197 USPQ at 472. The statutory nature of the claim under § 101 will then depend on whether the corresponding method is statutory.

See also Meyer, 688 F.2d at 795 n.3, 215 USPQ at 198 n.3; Abele, 684 F.2d at 909, 214 USPQ at 688; Pardo, 684 F.2d at 916 n.6, 214 USPQ at 677 n.6; Arshal v. United States, 621 F.2d 421, 427-28, 208 USPQ 397, 404 (Ct. Cl. 1980), cert. denied, 449 U.S. 1077 (1981), reh'g denied, 450 U.S. 1050 (1981). In Maucorps, the limitation of various "means" in claim 1 to include certain "electric circuits" did not prevent the claim from being treated as a method. A claim is not presumed to be statutory simply because it is in apparatus form.

c. Form of the mathematical algorithm

The first step of the analysis is to determine whether the claim directly or indirectly recites a mathematical algorithm. A mathematical algorithm can appear in many forms. As stated in Freeman, 573 F.2d at 1246, 197 USPQ at 471:

> The manner in which a claim recites a mathematical algorithm may vary considerably. In some claims, a formula or equation may be expressed in traditional mathematical symbols so as to be immediately recognizable as a mathematical algorithm. See, e.g., In re Richman, 563 F.2d 1026, 195 USPQ 340 ([CCPA] 1977); In re Flook, 559 F.2d 21, 195 USPQ 9 ([CCPA] 1977), cert. granted sub nom., Parker v. Flook, [437 U.S. 584] (1978). Other claims may use prose to express a mathematical computation or to indirectly recite a mathematical equation or formula by means of a prose equivalent therefor. See, e.g., In re de Castelet, supra (claims 6 and 7); In re Waldbaum, 559 F.2d 611, 194 USPQ 465 ([CCPA] 1977). A claim which substitutes, for a mathematical formula in algebraic form, "words which mean the same thing," nonetheless recites an algorithm in the Benson sense. In re Richman, supra 563 F.2d at 1030, 195 USPQ at 344. Indeed, the claims at issue in Benson did not contain a formula or equation expressed in mathematical symbols.

Claims which include mathematical formulas or calculations expressed in mathematical symbols clearly include a mathematical algorithm. Mathematical algorithms in prose form may be expressed as literal translations of the mathematical algorithm (e.g., substituting the expression "division" or "taking the ratio" for a division sign) or may be expressed in words which indicate the mathematical algorithm. See Safe Flight Instrument, 706 F. Supp. at 1148, 10 USPQ2d at 1734 (subtracting); Abele, 684 F.2d at 908 n.8, 214 USPQ at 687 n.8 ("The algorithm, calculating the difference, is defined in the specification as a Gaussian weighting function"); In re Taner, 681 F.2d 787, 790, 214 USPQ 678, 681 (CCPA 1982) (summing); In re Johnson, 589 F.2d 1070, 1079, 200 USPQ 199, 208 (CCPA 1978) ("'computing' connotes the execution of one or a sequence of mathematical operations"); In re Waldbaum, 559 F.2d 611, 194 USPQ 465 (CCPA 1977) (method of claim 1 "to count" the number of busy lines "solves a mathematical problem, to wit, counting a number of busy lines in a telephone system," In re Bradley, 600 F.2d 807, 810 n.4, 202 USPQ 480, 484 n.4 (CCPA 1979), aff'd by an equally divided court sub nom., Diamond v. Bradley, 450 U.S. 381, 209 USPQ 97 (1981)).

It is not always possible to determine by inspection of the claim whether it indirectly recites a mathematical algorithm; in such instances the analysis "requires careful interpretation of each claim in the light of its supporting disclosure." Johnson, 589 F.2d at 1079, 200 USPQ at 208. See also id. at 1078-79, 200 USPQ at 208 ("the flow diagrams which form part of the specification disclose explicit mathematical equations which are to be used in conjunction with each of these [claimed] steps [of 'determining' or 'correlating']"); Waldbaum, 559 F.2d 611, 194 USPQ 465 ("series of steps for manipulating binary numbers within a procedure for calculating the number of binary 1's and 0's present" was considered a mathematical algorithm, Gelnovatch, 595 F.2d at 39, 201 USPQ at 143); In re Sherwood, 613 F.2d 809, 818, 204 USPQ 537, 545 (CCPA 1980), cert. denied, 450 U.S. 994 (1981) ("claims must be said to include the indirect recitation of a mathematical equation"); Meyer,

688 F.2d at 795, 215 USPQ at 198 (claims indirectly "recite a mathematical algorithm, which represents a mental process that a neurologist should follow").

2. Step 2- is the mathematical algorithm "applied in any manner to physical elements or process steps?"

The second test is to determine whether the mathematical algorithm is "applied in any manner to physical elements or process steps." The guideline for the analysis should be the CCPA's suggestion in Abele to view the claim without the mathematical algorithm to determine whether what remains is "otherwise statutory"; if it is, it does not become nonstatutory simply because it uses a mathematical algorithm. It is recognized that "[t]he line between a patentable 'process' and an unpatentable 'principle' is not always clear." Flook, 437 U.S. at 589, 198 USPQ at 197. There are no definitive "tests for determining whether a claim positively recites statutory subject matter." Meyer, 688 F.2d at 796 n.4, 215 USPQ at 198 n.4. Nevertheless, some useful guidelines may be synthesized out of the court decisions.

a. Post-solution activity

If the only limitation aside from the mathematical algorithm is insignificant or non-essential "post-solution activity," the claimed subject matter is nonstatutory. Flook, 437 U.S. at 590, 198 USPQ at 197:

> The notion that post-solution activity . . . can transform an unpatentable principle into a patentable process exalts form over substance. A competent draftsman could attach some form of post-solution activity to almost any mathematical formula; the Pythagorean theorem would not have been patentable, or partially patentable, because a patent application contained a final step indicating that the formula, when solved, could be usefully applied to existing surveying techniques.

Insignificant post-solution activity by itself is insufficient to constitute a statutory process. In Flook, the final step of adjusting an alarm limit was not sufficient. See also Safe Flight (final step of "means for processing said windshear signal to provide an indication representing the magnitude thereof" not sufficient); Abele, 684 F.2d at 909, 214 USPQ at 688 (final step of display: "that the result is displayed as a shade of gray rather than as simply a number provides no greater or better information, considering the broad range of applications encompassed by the claims"); Walter, 618 F.2d at 770, 205 USPQ at 409 (final step in dependent claim of magnetic recording: "If § 101 could be satisfied by the mere recordation of the results of a nonstatutory process on some record medium, even the most unskilled patent draftsman could provide for such a step"); Gelnovatch, 595 F.2d at 41 n.7, 201 USPQ at 145 n.7 (final step of storing outputs: "each of the steps of the claimed process, except perhaps the final step of equating the process outputs to the values of the last set of process inputs, directly or indirectly recites a mathematical computation"); Sarkar, 588 F.2d at 1332 n.6, 200 USPQ at 136 n.6 (final step of constructing an obstruction at a location determined by a mathematical model: "Sarkar no longer relies upon bridge of dam construction as post-solution activity steps effective to bring his process within 101"); de Castelet, 562 F.2d at 1244, 195 USPQ at 446 (final step of transmitting: "That the computer is instructed to transmit electrical signals, representing the result of its calculations . . . does not transform the claim into one for a process merely using an algorithm").

The absence of post-solution activity or the fact that any post-solution activity may be trivial is only one factor to be considered. On one hand, as stated in Walter, 618 F.2d at 767-68, 205 USPQ at 407:

> if the end-product of a claimed invention is a pure number, as in Benson and Flook, the invention is nonstatutory regardless of any post-solution activity which makes it available for use by a person or machine for other purposes.

On the other hand, as stated in Abele, 684 F.2d at 908 n.9, 214 USPQ at 687 n.9:

> "the fact that [the] equation is the final step is not determinative of the section 101 issue." In re Richman, 563 F.2d at 1030, 195 USPQ at 343. Accord, In re Taner, 681 F.2d 787 ([CCPA] 1982), overruling In re Christensen, 478 F.2d 1392, 178 USPQ 35 ([CCPA] 1973).

The particular order of the steps should not be determinative of the statutory subject matter inquiry.

b. Field of use limitations

A mathematical algorithm is not made statutory by "attempting to limit the use of the formula to a particular technological environment." Diehr, 450 U.S. at 191, 209 USPQ at 10. Thus, "field of use" or "end use" limitations in the claim preamble are insufficient to constitute a statutory process. This is consistent with the usual treatment of preambles as merely setting forth the environment. See Flook (the preamble, while limiting the application of the claimed method to "a process comprising the catalytic chemical conversion of hydrocarbons" did not serve to render the method statutory); Walter, 618 F.2d at 769, 205 USPQ at 409 ("Although the claim preambles relate the claimed invention to the art of seismic prospecting, the claims themselves are not drawn to methods of or apparatus for seismic prospecting"); de Castelet, 562 F.2d at 1244 n.6, 195 USPQ at 446 n.6 ("The potential for misconstruction of preamble language requires that compelling reason exist before that language may be given weight"). Compare Waldbaum, 559 F.2d at 616 n.6, 194 USPQ 469 n.6 (portion of preambles referred to in method portion of claims "are necessary for completeness of the claims and are proper limitations thereto").

c. Data-gathering steps

If the only limitations in the claims in addition to the mathematical algorithm are data-gathering steps which "merely determine values for the variables used in the mathematical formulae used in making the calculations," such antecedent steps are insufficient to change a nonstatutory method of calculation into a statutory process. See In re Richman, 563 F.2d at 1030, 195 USPQ at 343; Sarkar, 588 F.2d at 1335, 200 USPQ at 139 ("If the steps of gathering and substituting values were alone sufficient, every mathematical equation, formula, or algorithm having any practical use would be per se subject to patenting as a 'process' under § 101"); Gelnovatch, 595 F.2d at 41 n.7, 201 USPQ at 145 n.7 ("claimed step of perturbing the values of a set of process inputs (step 3), in addition to being a mathematical operation, appears to be a data-gathering step"). Where the claim "presents data gathering steps not dictated by the algorithm but by other limitations which require certain antecedent steps" the claim may present statutory subject matter. Abele, 684 F.2d at 908, 214 USPQ at 687.

d. Transformation of something physical

In determining whether the claim recites a statutory process or a nonstatutory mathematical algorithm, it is useful to analyze whether there is transformation of something physical into a different form. One distinction is made between transformation of physical "signals" from one physical state to a different physical state, a statutory process in the electrical arts, and mere mathematical manipulation of "data" which, by itself, is not a statutory process. Compare Taner (conversion of "substantially spherical seismic signals" into "a form representing the earth's response to cylindrical or plane waves" was statutory process); Sherwood, 613 F.2d at 819, 204 USPQ at 546 (conversion of amplitude-versus-time seismic traces into amplitude-versus-depth seismic traces was statutory process because it "converts one physical thing into another physical thing just as any other electrical circuitry would do"); and Johnson (technique for removing unwanted noise from a seismic trace was statutory process); with Walter, 618 F.2d at 768, 770, 205 USPQ at 407, 409 (if "the claimed invention produces a physical thing . . . the fact that it is represented in numerical form does not render the claim nonstatutory" but finding that the "signals" claimed "may represent either physical quantities or abstract quantities" and thus were to the algorithm itself and not a particular application); Richman (method of calculating airborne radar boresight correction angle from "a plurality of signal sets" not statutory); Gelnovatch, 595 F.2d at 42, 201 USPQ at 145 (where "the claims solely recite a method whereby a set of numbers is computed from a different set of numbers by merely performing a series of mathematical computations, the claims do not set forth a statutory process"); and Benson (conversion of binary coded decimal numbers into pure binary numbers not statutory). It is manifest that the statutory nature of the subject matter does not depend on the labels "signals" or "data."

e. Structural limitations in process claims

Another issue is the effect of structural limitations in method claims. While structural limitations in method claims are not improper, they are usually not entitled to patentable weight unless they somehow affect or form an essential part of the process. See Benson, 409 U.S. at 73, 175 USPQ at 677 (claim 8 recited use of a "reentrant shift register"); Waldbaum, 559 F.2d at 616, 194 USPQ at 469 (machine limitations in data processor method claims); de Castelet, 562 F.2d at 1244, 195 USPQ at 447 ("Claims to nonstatutory processes do not automatically and invariably become patentable upon incorporation of reference to apparatus"). The related problem of specific structural language in apparatus claims has been treated, supra, in section II.C.1.b.

D. Examples

1. Diamond v. Diehr

The following claim was held to recite statutory subject matter.

> 1. A method of operating a rubber-molding press for precision molded compounds with the aid of a digital computer, comprising: providing said computer with a data base for said press including at least, natural logarithm conversion data (ln), the activation energy constant (C) unique to each batch of said compound being molded, and a constant (x) dependent upon the geometry of the particular mold of the press, initiating an interval timer in said computer upon the closure of the press for monitoring the elapsed time of said closure, constantly determining the termperature (Z) of the mold at a location closely adjacent to the mold cavity in the press during molding, constantly providing the computer with the temperature (Z), repetitively calculating in the computer, at frequent intervals during each cure, the Arrhenius equation for reaction time during the cure, which is ln v = CZ + x where v is the total required cure time, repetitively comparing in the computer at said frequent intervals during the cure each said calculation of the total required cure time calculated with the Arrhenius equation and said elapsed time, and opening the press automatically when a said comparison indicates equivalence.

Step 1 The claim contains an equation for controlling the in-mold time: ln v = CZ + x.

Step 2 The claimed subject matter is statutory because it recites an "otherwise statutory" process in addition to the mathematical algorithm. As stated in Abele, 684 F.2d at 907, 214 USPQ at 686:

> In Diehr, were the claims to be read without the algorithm, the process would still be a process for curing rubber, although it might not work as well since the in-mold time would not be as accurately controlled.
> The steps in the process, 450 U.S. at 187, 209 USPQ at 8:
> include installing rubber in a press, closing the mold, constantly determining the temperature of the mold, constantly recalculating the appropriate cure time through the use of the formula and a digital computer, and automatically opening the press at the proper time.
> The statutory nature of the claim is not based on the post-solution activity of opening the press, but on the application of the mathematical algorithm to the whole process.

2. Parker v. Flook

The following claim in Flook was held to recite nonstatutory subject matter.

> 1. A method for updating the value of at least one alarm limit on at least one process variable involved in a process comprising the catalytic chemical conversion of hydrocarbons wherein said alarm limit has a current value of > wherein Bo is the current alarm base and K is a predetermined alarm offset which comprises:

> Bo + K
> (1) determining the present value of said process variable, said present value being defined as PVL;
> (2) determining a new alarm base Bl using the following equation:
> Bl = Bo(1.0 - F) + PVL(F)
> where F is a predetermined number greater than zero and less than 1.0; > (3) determining an updated alarm limit which is defined as Bl + K; and thereafter
> (4) adjusting said alarm limit to said updated alarm limit value.

Step 1 The claim contains a mathematical algorithm comprising determining a new alarm base in step (2) and computing an "alarm limit" in step (3).

Step 2 When viewed without the steps of the mathematical algorithm, steps (2) and (3), the only limitations remaining are the preamble limitation restricting the field of use to "a process comprising the catalytic chemical conversion of hydrocarbons"; the data-gathering step of step (1); and the post-solution step of step (4). None of these limitations comprises an "otherwise statutory" process. The claim seeks to protect a method for computing an "alarm limit" rather than the application of the computation within an otherwise statutory process.

3. In re Abele

In Abele, claim 5 was held to recite nonstatutory subject matter under § 101 whereas dependent claim 6 was statutory.

> 5. A method of displaying data in a field comprising the steps of calculating the difference between the local value of the data at a data point in the field and the average value of the data in a region of the field which surrounds said point for each point in said field, and displaying the value of said difference as a signed gray scale at a point in a picture which corresponds to said data point.
> 6. The method of claim 5 wherein said data is X-ray attenuation data produced in a two dimensional field by a computed tomography scanner.

Step 1 Claim 5 contains a mathematical algorithm, "calculating the difference," which is defined in the specification as a Gaussian weighting function.

Step 2 When claim 5 is viewed without the mathematical algorithm, the only remaining limitation is the post-solution activity of displaying the result. The display by itself did not constitute an "otherwise statutory" process. The court held that "the algorithm is neither explicitly nor implicitly applied to any certain process." 684 F.2d at 909, 214 USPQ at 688. However, when dependent claim 6 is added to the limitations of claim 5, 684 F.2d at 908, 214 USPQ at 687-88:

> Were we to view the claim absent the algorithm, the production, detection and display steps would still be present and would result in a conventional CAT-scan process . . . . [W]e view the production, detection, and display steps as manifestly statutory subject matter and are not swayed from this conclusion by the presence of an algorithm in the claimed method.

III. Computer Programs

A. "Computer programs" versus "computer processes"

A "process" or "algorithm" is a step-by-step procedure to arrive at a given result. In the patent area, a "computer process" or "computer algorithm" is a process, i.e., a series of steps, which is performed by a computer. A "[computer] program is a sequence of coded instructions for a digital computer." Benson, 409 U.S. at 65, 175 USPQ at 674. Computer programs are equivalently known as "software."

Unfortunately for discussion in this area, "[b]oth the series of steps performed by a computer, and the software directing those steps, have acquired the name 'computer programs.'" Gelnovatch, 595 F.2d at 45 n.5, 201 USPQ at 148 n.5 (Markey, C.J., dissenting). What is sought to be protected by patent is the underlying process. As stated in Gelnovatch, 595 F.2d at 44, 201 USPQ at 147:

> Confusion may be avoided if it be realized that what is at issue is not the "program," i.e., the software, but the process steps which the software directs the computer to perform.

See, e.g., Maucorps, 609 F.2d at 483, 203 USPQ at 814 ("The [claimed] invention is implemented via a computer program written in FORTRAN IV, either built into the calculating machine, or loaded into a general purpose computer").

B. Statutory nature of computer processes

1. The Supreme Court has not ruled on the patentability of computer programs.

The Supreme Court has not ruled on whether computer processes are per se statutory or nonstatutory. The decisions in Benson, Flook and Diehr all dealt with claims viewed as mathematical algorithms. In Benson and Diehr, the claims contained mathematical algorithms implemented by a computer. In Benson, the Court held that the claims preempted the use of the mathematical algorithm, but did not hold that "any program servicing a computer" would be nonstatutory. In Diehr, the Court held that the claims otherwise defined a statutory process for curing rubber, and that the inclusion of a mathematical algorithm or computer program did not make claim nonstatutory. The claim in Flook did not involve a computer process.

In Dann v. Johnston, 425 U.S. 219, 189 USPQ 257 (1976), rev'g on other grounds, In re Johnston, 502 F.2d 765, 183 USPQ 172 (CCPA 1974), which involved a "machine system for automatic record-keeping of bank checks and deposits," the Court declined to discuss the § 101 issue of the general patentability of computer programs, 425 U.S. at 220, 189 USPQ at 258:

> We find no need to treat that question in this case, however, because we conclude that in any event respondent's system is unpatentable on grounds of obviousness. 35 U.S.C. § 103.

In Diamond v. Bradley, an equally divided Supreme Court affirmed the CCPA's decision in Bradley. The claims were directed to computer "firmware," which refers to microinstructions permanently embodied in hardware elements, and not to a computer application or process. The CCPA found that the claims literally recited a machine and that, in applying the two-part test of Freeman, the claims did not recite a mathematical algorithm.

2. The CCPA has held that computer processes are statutory unless they fall within a judicially determined exemption

In Pardo, the most recent CCPA case on computer processes, the CCPA stated that, 684 F.2d at 916, 214 USPQ at 677:

> any process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter constitutes statutory subject matter unless it falls within a judicially determined exception to section 101.

The major (and perhaps only) exception in the area of computer processes is the mathematical algorithm. Although not binding precedent on the Federal Circuit, the district court in Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis, Inc. v. Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, 564 F. Supp. 1358, 1367, 218 USPQ 212, 218 (D. Del. 1983) stated:

> The CCPA [has] . . . held that a computer algorithm, as opposed to a mathematical algorithm, is patentable subject matter.

If a computer process claim does not contain a mathematical algorithm in the Benson sense, the second step of the Freeman-Walter-Abele test is not reached, and the claimed subject matter will usually be statutory.

The traditional approach by the CCPA to the PTO's rejection of computer processes as nonstatutory subject matter has been to apply the two-part test for mathematical algorithms and to find statutory subject matter if the claims do not recite a mathematical algorithm. See Pardo, 684 F.2d at 916, 214 USPQ at 676 (process for converting source program into object program: "we are unable to find any mathematical formula, calculation, or algorithm either directly or indirectly recited in the claimed steps of examining, compiling, storing, and executing"); In re Toma, 575 F.2d 872, 877, 197 USPQ 852, 856 (CCPA 1978) (process for translating a source natural language, e.g., Russian, to a target natural language, e.g., English: "[we] are unable to find any direct or indirect recitation of a procedure for solving a mathematical problem"); In re Phillips, 608 F.2d 879, 883, 203 USPQ 971, 975 (CCPA 1979) (process for preparing architectural specifications: "Our analysis of the claims on appeal reveals no recitation, directly or indirectly, of an algorithm in the Benson and Flook sense"); Freeman, 573 F.2d at 1246, 197 USPQ at 471 ("The method claims here at issue do not recite process steps which are themselves mathematical calculations, formulae, or equations"); Deutsch, 553 F.2d 689, 692, 193 USPQ 645, 648 (CCPA 1977) (method of operating a system of manufacturing plants: "Nothing in the methods claimed by Deutsch preempts a mathematical formula, an algorithm, or any specific computer program"); Chatfield, 545 F.2d at 158, 191 USPQ at 736 (method of reassigning priorities within a computer: "[the] independent claims contain neither a mathematical formula nor a mathematical algorithm").

If the computer process is found to contain a mathematical algorithm, it must then pass the second part of the Freeman-Walter-Abele test for statutory subject matter. See, e.g., Sherwood; Maucorps; Gelnovatch.

Arguably, other exceptions such as "methods of doing business" and "mental steps" may be raised if a claim is not a true computer process, but merely recites that an otherwise nonstatutory process is performed on a computer. de Castelet, 562 F.2d at 1244, 195 USPQ at 447 ("Claims to nonstatutory processes do not automatically and invariable become patentable upon incorporation of reference to apparatus"). These would appear to be exceptions with very narrow application to claims which are not limited to implementation by a machine. For example, while a "method of doing business" per se is not statutory subject matter, "a method of operation on a computer to effectuate a business activity" has been held to be statutory subject matter. Paine, Webber v. Merrill Lynch, 564 F. Supp. at 1369, 218 USPQ at 220. See also Deutsch, 553 F.2d at 692 n.5, 193 USPQ at 648 n.5 (claims were not a method of doing business because "[t]hey do not merely facilitate business dealings"); Johnston, rev'd on other grounds, Dann v. Johnston (apparatus claims directed to system for automatic record-keeping of bank checks and deposits did not cover a method of doing business). Similarly, machine or computer implementation of "mental steps" is statutory subject matter. Prater; In re Bernhart, 417 F.2d 1395, 163 USPQ 611 (CCPA 1969); In re Musgrave, 431 F.2d 882, 167 USPQ 280 (CCPA 1970). See also Toma (computer implemented method for translation of natural languages is statutory).

RIN 0651-AA52

Amendment to Rules for Extension of Patent Term

Agency: Patent and Trademark Office, Commerce.
Action: Notice of Proposed Rulemaking.
Summary: The Patent and Trademark Office (Office) proposes to amend the rules directed to the extension of patent term to implement the provisions of Pub. L. No. 103-179 (December 3, 1993) and to clarify the requirements for eligibility. The proposed rules establish procedures for the Commissioner to issue an interim extension of the term of a patent where the original term would expire before a product covered by the patent has received regulatory approval for commercial marketing or use. The rules also are proposed to be amended to clarify that an application for patent term extension must be based on regulatory activities performed by the patent owner or its agent.
Dates: Written comments must be submitted on or before January 12, 1995. There will be no oral hearing.
Address: Address written comments to Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Washington, D.C. 20231 marked to the attention of Charles E. Van Horn, Deputy Assistant Commissioner for Patent Policy and Projects, or by FAX to (703) 305-8825.
For Further Information Contact: Charles E. Van Horn by telephone at (703) 305-9054 or Gerald A. Dost by telephone at (703) 305-9282 or by mail addressed to Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Washington, D.C. 20231 marked to the attention of Charles E. Van Horn, Deputy Assistant Commissioner for Patent Policy and Projects, or by FAX to (703) 305-8825.
Supplementary Information: Patent term extension has been available under 35 U.S.C. § 156 for patents that claim certain products that are subject to regulatory review before being commercially marketed or used. Prior to enactment of Pub. L. No. 103-179, eligibility for patent term extension was dependent on regulatory approval of the product before the original patent term expired. Pub. L. No. 103-179 has made it possible, under appropriate circumstances, to obtain interim extensions of patent term where the regulatory process is likely to extend beyond the expiration of the patent term.

One purpose of the proposed rule change is to revise the present regulations contained in 37 C.F.R. Part 1, Subpart F, to include provisions for interim extension of the patent term prior to regulatory approval of the product that can now form the basis of patent term extension. These proposed rules set forth procedures that govern the content and submission of applications for an interim extension of a patent term, and procedures governing the interim extension determination and issuance of interim patent term extension certificates by the Office.

Initial guidelines directed to the preparation and filing of applications for interim extensions of patent terms as authorized by Pub. L. 103-179 were published as "Guidelines For Interim Extension Under 35 U.S.C. § 156(d)(5) of a Patent Term Prior To Regulatory Approval of a Product For Commercial Marketing or Use - Public Law 103-179 (December 3, 1993)" in the Official Gazette at 1159 Off. Gaz. Pat. Office 12 (February 1, 1994). It is intended that those guidelines will continue in effect until the promulgation of final rules based on the proposed rulemaking.

It is important to keep in mind the distinction between an interim patent term extension under § 156(e)(2) and the interim patent term extension provided for by Pub. L. No. 103-179 under § 156(d)(5). The former applies after regulatory approval has occurred and is addressed in 37 C.F.R. § 1.760. Interim patent term extensions under § 156(e)(2) are not affected by the proposed changes to the rules. The latter applies before regulatory approval has occurred and is addressed in 37 C.F.R. §§ 1.780 and 1.790.

The eligibility criteria for obtaining an interim extension under § 156(d)(5) are substantially the same as for obtaining patent term extension under § 156 after regulatory approval has occurred. Under the provisions of Pub. L. No. 103-179, a patent owner or its agent may submit an application for an interim patent term extension within six months, but not later than 15 days, of the original expiration date of the patent. At the time the application is submitted, the regulatory review period must have advanced to the approval phase as defined in § 156(g), but must not have ended. For a new drug, for example, the approval phase is defined in § 156(g)(1)(B)(ii) as the period beginning on the date a new drug application was initially submitted for the new drug under section 505 of the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act.

The content of the application for interim extension is proposed to be the same as for an application for patent term extension following regulatory review, with certain modifications necessitated by the circumstances. For example, the application for interim term extension will not be required to contain information about regulatory approval since that event has not occurred. A fee is proposed for each interim extension application filed before regulatory approval occurs - $400.00 for the initial application for interim extension and $200.00 for each supplementary application for interim extension.

The processing of an application for interim patent term extension under Pub. L. No. 103-179 will not require transmission of a copy of the application to the regulatory agency. However, it is contemplated that the Office will consult with the regulatory agency, as it has been doing for the past 10 years under § 156, on the question of eligibility for patent term extension.

If the patent is eligible for extension but for the fact that it is still under regulatory review, the Office can extend the patent term in one-year increments not to exceed five years from the expiration date. Any such extension would terminate 60 days after market approval. Before the 60-day period expires, the patentee could submit an application for patent term extension, supplying any additional information necessary to obtain any additional extension available under § 156.

The interim extension of patent term available under § 156(d)(5) cannot exceed the extension from the original patent term that would be available after regulatory approval. Thus, for example, a patent that was subject to the two-year extension limitation of § 156(g)(6)(C), could not obtain interim extension beyond two years from the original patent term expiration date. However, after an interim extension under § 156(d)(5) has been granted, the amount of patent term extension available after regulatory review is controlled by either § 156(d)(5) or § 156(g)(6)(A) or (B). In no case would the extension go beyond five years from the original expiration date of the patent. However, for those situations falling under § 156(g)(6)(C), where regulatory approval occurs within the two-year period after the original expiration date of the patent, the extension after approval is measured from the date on which the product receives permission for commercial marketing or use. § 156(d)(5)(E)(ii).

Review of recent applications for patent term extension has revealed that the provisions of 37 C.F.R. § 1.785(c) may be read as being inconsistent with 35 U.S.C. § 156. The statute requires that an application for patent term extension be filed by the patent owner or its agent. 35 U.S.C. § 156(d)(1). The statute further requires under § 156(d)(1)(D) a description of the activities undertaken by the applicant (i.e., the patent owner or its agent) during the regulatory review period, and specifies in § 156(d)(2)(B)(i) that the lack of due diligence by the applicant during the regulatory review period may be taken into account. Given these statutory requirements, the Office has held that in order to be eligible for patent term extension, the patent owner or its agent must have undertaken the activities that lead to regulatory approval. If a patent owner has not been involved, either directly or indirectly, in the regulatory review process, that patent owner has not lost any effective patent life since it never invested time and resources necessary to obtain approval for commercial marketing or use. Accordingly, to the extent that § 1.785 could be interpreted to permit a patent owner to obtain a patent term extension where neither the patent owner nor its agent were responsible for activities leading to regulatory approval, it was misleading and contrary to both the letter and intent of § 156.

Discussion of Specific Rules:

Section 1.750, if amended as proposed, would be changed to also provide for an eligibility determination which will be made on applications for interim extension filed in compliance with § 1.790. The section is further modified to limit the mailing of a notice of a final determination to applications filed in compliance with § 1.740 after the regulatory approval process is complete.

Section 1.760, if amended as proposed, would have the title recite that the section is directed to requests for interim extensions of patent term under 35 U.S.C. § 156(e)(2), to distinguish it from interim extensions available under Pub. Law. No. 103-179, proposed to be addressed in § 1.780.

Section 1.765(a), if amended as proposed, would change the phrase (two occurrences) "the Office of the Secretary" to read "the Office or the Secretary." The change provides that the applicant has a duty of disclosure to both the Patent and Trademark Office and the Secretary of Health and Human Services or the Secretary of Agriculture.

Section 1.780, if amended as proposed, would provide that a certificate of interim extension under 35 U.S.C. § 156(d)(5) will be issued to the applicant. Section 1.780 would also provide for notification of the issuance of the certificate of interim extension under 35 U.S.C. § 156(d)(5), including the identity of the product currently under regulatory review, to be published in the Federal Register.

Section 1.785, if amended as proposed, would require the applicant for extension, i.e., the patent owner or its agent, to also have been the marketing applicant who obtained regulatory approval of the product for commercial marketing or use. While regulatory approval can be obtained by a party other than the patent owner, that other party must have been an agent of the patent owner when obtaining the regulatory approval in order for the patent owner to be eligible to apply for extension of the patent term.

Section 1.790, if added as proposed, would provide for one or more interim extensions for periods of up to one year for patents where the applicable regulatory review period described in paragraph (1)(B)(ii), (2)(B)(ii), (3)(B)(ii), (4)(B)(ii), or (5)(B)(ii) of section 156(g) that began for the patented product may extend beyond the expiration of the patent term in effect.

Paragraph (a) of proposed § 1.790 defines the time periods in which the initial interim extension application and each subsequent interim extension application must be filed in the Office. In no event will interim extensions be granted under proposed § 1.790 for a period of extension longer than that to which the applicant would be entitled to under 35 U.S.C. § 156(c).

Paragraph (b) of proposed § 1.790 would establish that the content requirements for the initial interim extension applications are substantially the same as the content requirements for a formal application for extension of patent term under § 1.740 and a complete application under § 1.741, except that the content requirements relate to a product currently undergoing regulatory review. In other words, the interim extension applications contain information available to the patent owner or its agent at the time the application is filed.

Paragraph (c) of proposed § 1.790 permits each interim extension application after the initial interim extension application to be limited to a request for a subsequent interim extension along with a statement that the regulatory review period has not been completed and any materials or information required under §§ 1.740 and 1.741 not present in the preceding interim extension application.

Section § 1.795, if added as proposed, would provide that any interim extension granted under 35 U.S.C. § 156(d)(5) terminates at the end of the 60-day period beginning on the date on which the product involved receives permission for commercial marketing or use. If within that 60-day period the patent owner or its agent files additional information required under 35 U.S.C. § 156(d)(1) not contained in the applications for interim extension, the patent shall be further extended in accordance with the provisions of 35 U.S.C. § 156.

Other Considerations:

The proposed rule changes are in conformity with the requirements of the Regulatory Flexibility Act, 5 U.S.C. § 601 et seq., E. O. 12612, and the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et seq. The proposed rule changes have been determined to be not significant for the purposes of E.O. 12866.

The General Counsel of the Department of Commerce has certified to the Chief Counsel for Advocacy, Small Business Administration, that the proposed rule changes will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities (Regulatory Flexibility Act, 5 U.S.C. § 605(b)), because the proposed rules would affect only a very small number of patents eligible for interim patent term extension.

The Office has also determined that this notice has no federalism implications affecting the relationship between the National Government and the States as outlined in E.O. 12612.

These rule changes will impose no substantial additional burden under the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. § 3501 et seq. The paperwork burden imposed by adherence to the patent term extension rules is currently approved by the Office of Management and Budget under Control Number 0651-0020. Comments relating to this requirement should be directed to the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs of OMB, Attention: Desk Officer for Commerce, Patent and Trademark Office.

(j) For filing an application for extension of the term of a patent

►(1) Application for extension under § 1.740◄[(§ 1.740)].....$1,000.00

►(2) Initial application for interim extension under § 1.790.....$400.00

(3) Subsequent application for interim extension under § 1.790.....$200.00◄

3. Section 1.750 is proposed to be revised to read as follows:

§ 1.750 Determination of eligibility for extension of patent term

A determination as to whether a patent is eligible for extension may be made by the Commissioner solely on the basis of the representations contained in the application for extension filed in compliance with § 1.740 ►or § 1.790◄. This determination may be delegated to appropriate Patent and Trademark Office officials and may be made at any time before the certificate of extension is issued. The Commissioner or other appropriate officials may require from applicant further information or make such independent inquiries as desired before a final determination is made on whether a patent is eligible for extension. ►In an application for extension filed in compliance with § 1.740, a◄ [A] notice will be mailed to applicant containing the determination as to the eligibility of the patent for extension and the period of time of the extension, if any. This notice shall constitute the final determination as to the eligibility and any period of extension of the patent. A single request for reconsideration of a final determination may be made if filed by the applicant within such time as may be set in the notice of final determination or, if no time is set, within one month from the date of the final determination. The time periods set forth herein are subject to the provisions of [37 CFR] ►§◄1.136.

4. In § 1.760, the heading is proposed to be revised to read as follows:

§ 1.760 Interim extension of patent term ►under 35 U.S.C. § 156(e)(2)◄.

5. Section 1.765(a) is proposed to be revised to read as follows:

§ 1.765 Duty of disclosure in patent term extension proceedings.

(a) A duty of candor and good faith toward the Patent and Trademark Office and the Secretary of Health and Human Services or the Secretary of Agriculture rests on the patent owner or its agent, on each attorney or agent who represents the patent owner and on every other individual who is substantively involved on behalf of the patent owner in a patent term extension proceeding. All such individuals who are aware, or become aware, of material information adverse to a determination of entitlement to the extension sought, which has not been previously made of record in the patent term extension proceeding must bring such information to the attention of the Office [of] ►or◄ the Secretary, as appropriate, in accordance with paragraph (b) of this section, as soon as it is practical to do so after the individual becomes aware of the information. Information is material where there is a substantial likelihood that the Office [of] ►or◄ the Secretary would consider it important in determinations to be made in the patent term extension proceeding.

6. Section 1.780 is proposed to be revised to read as follows:

§ 1.780 Certificate of extension of patent term.

If a determination is made pursuant to § 1.750 that a patent is eligible for extension and that the term of the patent is to be extended, a certificate of extension, under seal, ►or certificate of interim extension under 35 U.S.C. § 156(d)(5)◄ will be issued to the applicant for the extension of the patent term. Such certificate will be recorded in the official file of the patent and will be considered as part of the original patent. Notification of the issuance of the certificate of extension will be published in the Official Gazette of the Patent and Trademark Office. ►Notification of the issuance of the certificate of interim extension under 35 U.S.C. § 156(d)(5), including the identity of the product currently under regulatory review, will be published in the Official Gazette of the Patent and Trademark Office and in the Federal Register.◄ No certificate of extension will be issued if the term of the patent cannot be extended, even though the patent is otherwise determined to be eligible for extension. In such situations the final determination made pursuant to § 1.750 will indicate that no certificate will issue.

7. Section 1.785 is proposed to be revised to read as follows:

§ 1.785 Multiple applications for extension of term of the same patent or of different patents for the same regulatory review period for a product

(a) Only one patent may be extended for a regulatory review period for any product (§ 1.720[(g)] ►(h)◄). If more than one application for extension of the same patent is filed, the certificate of extension of patent term, if appropriate, will be issued based upon the first filed application for extension.

(b) If more than one application for extension is filed by a single applicant which seeks the extension of the term of two or more patents based upon the same regulatory review period, and the [applications or] ►patents are◄ otherwise eligible for extension pursuant to the requirements of this subpart, in the absence of an election by the applicant, the certificate of extension of patent term, if appropriate, will be issued upon the application for extension of the patent ►term◄ having the earliest date of issuance of those patents for which extension is sought.

(c) If an application for extension is filed which seeks the extension of the term of a patent based upon the same regulatory review period as that relied upon in one or more applications for extension pursuant to the requirements of this subpart, the certificate of extension of patent term will be issued on the application only if [—

(1) The applicant for extension] ►the patent owner or its agent◄ is the holder of the regulatory approval granted with respect to the regulatory review period [, or

(2) The holder of the regulatory approval granted with respect to the regulatory review period is not an applicant and the applicant for extension holds express and exclusive authorization from the holder of the regulatory approval to rely upon the regulatory review period as the basis for the application for extension, or

(3) The holder of the regulatory approval granted with respect to the regulatory review period is not an applicant and no applicant for extension holds an express and exclusive authorization from the holder of the regulatory approval to rely upon the regulatory review period as the basis for the application for extension and the application is for extension of the patent having the earliest date of issuance of those patents for which extension is sought based upon the same regulatory review period].

(d) An application for extension shall be considered complete and formal regardless of whether it contains the identification of the holder of the regulatory approval granted with respect to the regulatory review period [or express and exclusive authorization from the holder of the regulatory approval to rely on the regulatory review period for extension]. When an application contains such information, or is amended to contain such information, it will be considered in determining whether an application is eligible for an extension under this section. A request may be made of any applicant to supply such information within a non-extendable period of not less than one (1) month whenever multiple applications for extension of more than one patent are received and rely upon the same regulatory review period. Failure to provide such information within the period for response set shall be regarded as conclusively establishing that the applicant is not the holder of the regulatory approval [and is not expressly and exclusively authorized by the holder of the regulatory approval to seek the extension being sought]. (e) Determinations made under this section shall be included in the notice of final determination of eligibility for extension of the patent term pursuant to § 1.750 and shall be regarded as part of that determination.

8. Section 1.790 is proposed to be added to read as follows:

►§ 1.790 Interim extension of patent term under 35 U.S.C. § 156(d)(5).

(a) An owner of record of a patent or its agent who reasonably expects that the applicable regulatory review period described in paragraph (1)(B)(ii), (2)(B)(ii), (3)(B)(ii), (4)(B)(ii), or (5)(B)(ii) of subsection (g) of 35 U.S.C. 156 that began for a product that is the subject of such patent may extend beyond the expiration of the patent term in effect may submit one or more applications for interim extensions for periods of up to one year each. The initial application for interim extension must be filed during the period beginning 6 months and ending 15 days before the patent term is due to expire. Each subsequent application for interim extension must be filed during the period beginning 60 days before and ending 30 days before the expiration of the preceding interim extension. In no event will the interim extensions granted under this section be longer than the maximum period of extension to which the applicant would be entitled under 35 U.S.C. § 156(c).
(b) A complete application for interim extension under this section shall include all of the information required for a formal application under § 1.740 and a complete application under § 1.741. Sections (a)(1), (a)(2), (a)(4), and (a)(6)-- (a)(17) of § 1.740 and § 1.741 shall be read in the context of a product currently undergoing regulatory review. Sections (a)(3) and (a)(5) of § 1.740 are not applicable to an application for interim extension under this section.
(c) The content of each subsequent interim extension application may be limited to a request for a subsequent interim extension along with a statement that the regulatory review period has not been completed and any materials or information required under § 1.740 and § 1.741 not present in the preceding interim extension application.◄

9. Section 1.791 is proposed to be added to read as follows:

►§ 1.791 Termination of interim extension granted prior to regulatory approval of a product for commercial marketing or use.

Any interim extension granted under 35 U.S.C. § 156(d)(5) terminates at the end of the 60-day period beginning on the date on which the product involved receives permission for commercial marketing or use. If within that 60-day period the patent owner or its agent files an application for extension under § 1.740 and § 1.741 including any additional information required under U.S.C. § 156(d)(1) not contained in the application for interim extension, the patent shall be further extended in accordance with the provisions of 35 U.S.C. § 156.◄

(75) GUIDELINES FOR INTERIM EXTENSION UNDER 35 U.S.C. § 156(d)(5) OF A PATENT TERM PRIOR TO REGULATORY APPROVAL OF A PRODUCT FOR COMMERCIAL MARKETING OR USE - PUBLIC LAW 103-179 (December 3, 1993)

This notice is intended to establish initial guidelines for patent owners who are seeking interim extensions of patent terms pursuant to newly enacted 35 U.S.C. § 156(d)(5). These guidelines will be in effect until further notice. These guidelines do not affect the rights of a patent owner or the procedures to request interim extensions under 35 U.S.C. § 156(e)(2).

Section 156(d)(5)(A) of Title 35, United States Code, provides that a patent owner seeking an interim extension of the terms of a patent pursuant to its provisions must submit an application to the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks (Commissioner) within a certain defined period of time. Section 156(d)(5) specifies certain components the application is to contain, including "such patent or other information as the Commissioner may require." See 35 U.S.C. § 156(d)(5)(A)(v). Section 156(h) provides that the "Commissioner may establish such fees as the Commissioner determines appropriate to cover the costs to the Office of receiving and acting upon applications under this section." The purpose of this notice is to provide guidelines which a patent owner or its agent should use in (1) deciding whether the requirements for the submission of an application for an interim extension of the term of a patent are satisfied, and (2) making the submission of such an application to the Patent and Trademark Office.

This notice includes guidelines as to the actual content of an application for interim extension of the term of a patent. The guidelines should be used in determining whether a patent is subject to, and meets the conditions for interim extension of its term under section 156(d)(5). The guidelines should also be used in preparing and filing an application for interim extension of the patent term. If any application for interim extension of the term of a patent is filed in accordance with 35 U.S.C. ¿ 156(d)(5), but is not in compliance with the requirements of this notice, applicant will be notified of the deficiences in the application and will be given a period of time within which to correct the deficiences.

(76) Petitioning to Make Applications Relating to Biotechnology Special

This notice is intended to highlight the procedures which are available to applicants and, in particular, to applicants seeking patents on inventions relating to biotechnology, so as to have their applications accorded "special" status. A new interim procedure is also hereby established. Applications which have been made special will be advanced out of turn for examination and, subject alone to diligent prosecution by the applicant, will continue to be treated as special throughout the entire course of prosecution in the Patent and Trademark Office.

The Office accords special status to patent applications by granting petitions to make special on a number of grounds. These grounds include, for example, prospective manufacture of the invention, actual infringement of the invention, that the invention will materially enhance the quality of the environment and for inventions relating to safety of research in the field of recombinant DNA. See 37 CFR 1.102 and Manual of Patent Examining Procedure (MPEP) section 708.02 for details. Applicants seeking patents on inventions relating to biotechnology may petition based on any of the above grounds if they meet the appropriate criteria.

A new application (one which has not received any examination by the examiner) may be granted special status under the accelerated examination program. As set forth in MPEP 708.02, applicants are not subject to any of the above-mentioned criteria under this program but merely must 1) submit a written petition and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(i) which presently is $72.00; 2) present all claims directed to a single invention; 3) submit a statement that a pre-examination search was made, specifying by whom the search was made and listing the field of search; 4) submit one copy of each of the references deemed most closely related to the subject matter encompassed by the claims; and 5) submit a detailed discussion of the references pointing out how the claimed subject matter is distinguishable over the references. In those instances where the petition for this special status does not meet all the prerequisites set forth above, applicant will be notified of the defects and will be given an opportunity to perfect the petition.

In addition to the above-noted procedures to have biotechnology applications accorded special status, a new interim procedure is hereby established whereby applicants who are small entities may request that their biotechnology applications be granted special status. To take advantage of this interim special status for biotechnology inventions, an applicant must file a petition with the petition fee under 37 CFR 1.17(i) requesting the special status and must (1) state that small entity status has been established or include a verified statement establishing small entity status; (2) state that the subject of the patent application is a major asset of the small entity; and (3) state that the development of the technology will be significantly impaired if examination of the patent application is delayed including an explanation of the basis for making the statement. This newly established interim procedure will remain in effect until further notice in the Official Gazette. It is intended that a notice discontinuing this procedure will be published as the average pendency approaches the 18 month goal in this area. If the number of requests for making applications special under this procedure is too great, the procedure may have to be limited or discontinued.

The Office is continuing to work to reduce the pendency time for all applications. Special efforts are being made to reduce the pendency of biotechnology applications where filings are increasing rapidly and an already large backlog exists. Meanwhile, applicants who so desire can petition to have their applications made special as noted above. Questions concerning petitions to make special should be directed as follows:

1) to the Office of the Assistant Commissioner for Patents for petitions based on the grounds of prospective manufacture or infringement;
2) to the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences for petitions on applications within the jurisdiction of the Board; or
3) to the appropriate Examining Group for petitions to make special on all other grounds.

37 CFR Part 5
Patent Law Foreign Filing Amendments

Agency: Patent and Trademark Office, Commerce
Action: Notice of Final Rulemaking
Summary: The Patent and Trademark Office (Office) is amending the rules of practice in patent cases to implement the Patent Law Foreign Filing Amendments Act of 1988, Subtitle B of Public Law 100-418. The rules reflect changes made to 35 U.S.C. 184 which specify that a license is not required to, file amendments, modifications, and supplements containing additional subject matter to a previously licensed foreign patent application if such amendments, modifications, and supplements do not change the general nature of the invention disclosed in the application in a manner which would require a corresponding United States patent application to be made available for national security inspection under 35 U.S.C. 181. These regulatory changes are applicable to most existing foreign filing license holders if their patent application did not undergo security inspection under 35 U.S.C 181. Also, under the rules, a retroactive foreign filing license may be granted in situations where a proscribed foreign filing occurred through error and without deceptive intent as opposed to the earlier standard of inadvertence.
Effective Date: Feb. 19, 1991.
Supplementary Information: A notice of proposed rulemaking was published in the Federal Register at 55 Fed. Reg. 24270-24275 (June 15, 1990) and at 1116 Official Gazette 21-25 (July 10, 1990). No oral hearing was held. Three written comments on the proposed rulemaking were received. The comments received and replies thereto are listed below.

The rules are intended to implement the Patent Law Foreign Filing Amendments Act of 1988, Subtitle B of Public Law 100-418 (hereinafter the Act), which amended §§ 184, 185 and 186 of Title 35, United States Code, in order to simplify the procedures for United States inventors filing and prosecuting patent applications in foreign countries. The Office has not made any rule changes to implement the amendments to 35 U.S.C. 185 or 186 since these changes affect matters outside its jurisdiction.

Section 184 of Title 35 is intended to protect United States national security interests by preventing the disclosure of potentially sensitive inventions made in the United States to foreign nationals by the act of filing a patent application in foreign countries. An inventor may not apply for a foreign patent on an invention made in the United States until at least six (6) months after the inventor has filed a United States patent application unless the inventor receives a license from the Office permitting an earlier foreign filing. This six month period assures the Office the opportunity to screen applications for information the disclosure of which might be detrimental to the national security. Also, § 184, as originally enacted, authorized the Office to grant a retroactive license for an unlicensed foreign filing of a patent application if the foreign filing was inadvertent and if the disclosure of the subject matter in the application would not be detrimental to United States security interests.

The original regulatory implementation of 35 U.S.C. 184 required applicants to obtain a license not only for the original foreign patent application but also for the filing of almost any information in support of the application, thereby creating administrative problems for United States inventors seeking foreign patent protection. For example, foreign patent offices often demand that additional technical data, such as the melting point of a chemical, be added to a patent application. An additional foreign filing license was usually required before the inventor could submit modifications, amendments, or supplements to a previously licensed foreign patent application, regardless of how trivial the change might be.

Recognizing the problems involved in obtaining these additional licenses, the Office promulgated rules in 1984 (see § 5.15(a) and 49 Fed. Reg. 13456 (April 4, 1984)) to streamline the licensing procedure. The 1984 rule change provided that an inventor could obtain in applications, the disclosure of the content of which is not potentially detrimental to United States security interests, a license which permitted the foreign filing of modifications, amendments, and supplements without further licensing if such changes were within the scope or character of the originally licensed invention (§ 5.15(a)). The 1984 rule change, however, could not be made retroactive, and therefore had no effect on licenses granted under the old system. If an applicant wished to broaden a pre-April 4, 1984, foreign filing license to the scope allowed by§ 5.15(a), this involved filing a separate petition under§ 5.15(c) in each application.

The present Act clarifies the statutory basis for the current Patent and Trademark Office rules by providing that inventors, in most circumstances, are not required to obtain an additional license to file modifications, amendments, and supplements to their foreign applications for which a foreign filing license has been obtained under § 5.15(a). Unlike the previous Office rules, these rules broaden the scope of most existing licenses, provided that the conditions contained in the Act are met.

The Act and these rules also address difficulties associated with attempts to procure a retroactive foreign filing license. Some applicants faced loss of their patent rights due to improper foreign filings even though they believed, in good faith, that a license was not necessary for certain minor changes to their foreign application. Court decisions have held that supplemental information filed abroad was exempt from the license requirement only when it was recited verbatim in the United States patent application, or was so commonly known that it could have been said to have been expressly disclosed in the United States application. In re Gaertner, 604 F.2d 1348, 202 USPQ 714 (CCPA 1979). If a patent applicant did not obtain a foreign filing license from the Office, any corresponding United States patent was at risk of being held invalid under 35 U.S.C. 185 if technical information was added to the foreign application, even if the technical information was completely unrelated to United States security interests.

Loss of United States patent rights subsequent to an "inadvertent" unlicensed foreign filing could be avoided if a retroactive license was obtained under 35 U.S.C. 184. Twin Disc, Inc. v. United States, 10 Cl. Ct. 713, 231 USPQ 417 (Ct. Cl. 1986) and Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Co. v. Norton Co., 366 F.2d 238, 151 USPQ 1 (6th Cir. 1966), cert. denied, 385 U.S. 1005 (1967). While the Gaertner decision defined a broad range of circumstances under which a foreign filing license would be required, other court decisions made correction of licensing errors difficult by setting forth various strict interpretations of the standard of "inadvertence." Compare Iron Ore Co. of Canada v. Dow Chemical Co., 177 USPQ 34 (D. Utah 1972), aff'd, 500 F.2d 189, 182 USPQ 520 (10th Cir. 1974) and Reese v. Dann, 391 F. Supp. 12, 185 USPQ 492 (D.D.C.

1975). An inventor could fail to meet the standard of "inadvertence" even if the information disclosed was not significant in nature and did not contain any sensitive national security information. For example, one decision suggested that the filing of information abroad was intentional because the inventor first considered the applicability of § 184. Shelco, Inc. v. Dow Chemical Co., 322 F. Supp. 485, 168 USPQ 395 (N.D. Ill. 1970), aff'd, 466 F.2d 613, 173 USPQ 451 (7th Cir. 1972), cert. denied, 409 U.S. 876 (1972). Under the Shelco standard, if supplemental information had been filed abroad as a considered, willful act, even though done through error in the belief that the information disclosed abroad did not exceed the scope of the disclosure in the United States patent application, the filing would not be "inadvertent"; and, therefore, the subject information could not qualify for a retroactive license.

The Act addresses these problems, and the rules implement the intention of the Act. The Act changes the language of the statute to provide that an inventor may receive a retroactive license if the inventor can show that the premature filing of a foreign patent application, or the submission of supplemental information in support of a foreign patent application, was made "through error and without deceptive intent." This criterion is equivalent to that for reissue of a patent under 35 U.S.C. 251 to correct errors made without any deceptive intention. The reissue error requirement has been considered by the courts. See, e.g., In re Weiler, 790 F.2d 1576, 229 USPQ 673 (Fed. Cir. 1986) and In re Wadlinger 496 F.2d 1200, 181 USPQ 826 (CCPA 1974). The applicant for a retroactive license also must show that the foreign filing did not disclose any information detrimental to the national security and that diligence was exercised in seeking a retroactive license once the applicant became aware of the proscribed foreign filing.

The Act became effective on August 23, 1988, but it does not affect any final decision made by the Office or a court, nor the rights or liabilities of any party under a patent in a case pending before a court on the above date or under any subsequent patent deriving priority rights from such patent under 35 U.S.C. 120 or 121. Therefore, the retroactive effect of the Act and the rules is limited.

Comments on the Proposed Rules

Comment

One comment stated that the discussion in the proposed rulemaking of the modification of the standard for obtaining a retroactive license from inadvertence to "through error and without deceptive intent" should have included a reference to In re Wadlinger, 492 F.2d 1200, 181 USPQ 826 (CCPA 1974) rather than to In re Weiler, 790 F.2d 1576, 229 U8PQ 673 (Fed. Cir. 1986) The comment stated that Wadlinger was a more appropriate and illustrative case because it discusses more fully the meaning of the term "error" as encompassing "inadvertence, accident or mistake" and as having a very broad meaning. The comment also noted that Wadlinger was referenced in comments made in the hearing on the proposed legislation as indicative of the reissue standard being applied to retroactive license requests

Reply

A citation to In re Wadlinger has been added to the citation of In re Weiler in the discussion of the final rules. It was not the intent of the Office by citing the Weiler case to suggest that decisions on petitions for the grant of retroactive licenses would be limited by that case. Decisions are based on the particular facts in each case and the entire body of law with respect to the standard of "through error and without deceptive intent."

Comment

A comment stated that the Office should provide additional examples in the explanatory text in the final rule as to changes that may be made to foreign applications that have been licensed under 37 CFR 5.15(a) without obtaining any additional license. The comment pointed out that examples were given in the 1984 rulemaking.

Reply

The list of examples presented at the time that 37 CFR 5.15(a) was adopted in 1984 was not intended to be all-inclusive. The Office is not aware of any judicial decisions setting limits to changes that may be made under a 5.15(a) license. Depending on the nature and the criticality, changes in temperature, portions, size, etc., outside of a previously disclosed value or range that do not change the general nature of the invention from what was previously disclosed are within the scope of a § 5.15(a) license. However, if the newly disclosed value or range does change the general nature of the invention from that of the originally disclosed value or range, then a separate license is required. Likewise, new species or subcombinations of a previously disclosed genus or combination would appear to require an additional license to include such a change in a foreign application.

Comment

One comment stated that the Office should provide clarification of the attorney's ability to make decisions as to whether or not the added subject matter, in his opinion, changes the general nature of the invention.

Reply

Not only does the attorney have the ability to make the decision as to whether or not the additional subject matter changes the general nature of the invention, the attorney has the responsibility to do so. The Office will not give advisory opinions on whether an additional license is necessary, and will treat any provisional requests for a prospective or retroactive license as a request for a license. The procedure of the Office resolving any questions as to the security inspection status of any changes to previously licensed material is intended to apply only to those changes that have been submitted to the Office, i.e., the Office will reply to any inquiry as to whether previously submitted subject matter underwent, or should have undergone, security review.

Comment

One comment questioned what would happen if an attorney on considered judgment, honestly believed that a supplement did not change the general nature of a licensed invention, but that judgment later proved to be erroneous.

Reply

The Act and the rules now provide for a retroactive license to be granted in situations where it can be shown that a filing was made without a license through error and without deceptive intent. Thus, a retroactive license could be sought under § 5.25.

Discussion Of Specific Rule Changes

Section 5.11(a), as amended, specifies when a license is required before filing any foreign application for patent, including any modifications, amendments and supplements or divisions thereof. Section 5.11(a) adopts the statutory definition of "application" in 35 U.S.C. 184. Also, the rule, as amended, clarifies that the provisions of this section apply only to inventions made in the United States as stated in 35 U.S.C. 184. However, where an improvement or modification to a foreign-origin invention is made in the United States, a license would be required for the additional subject matter. The language proposed for § 5.11(e)(3) has been redrafted for clarity but still provides that an inventor need not obtain a supplemental license to file modifications, amendments and supplements containing subject matter not disclosed in, or divisions of, a foreign application for which an initial foreign filing license was not required, as long as the corresponding United States application was not required to be made available for inspection under 35 U.S.C. 181 and § 5.1 and the changes did not alter the general nature of the invention in a manner which would require the United States application to have been made available for inspection under 35 U.S.C. 181 and § 5.1. The need for a supplemental license depends on whether the changes altered the general nature of the invention, rather than the label applied to the changes, i.e., "Continuation", "Continuation In-Part", "Division", etc.

Authorized parties may determine whether a particular application was forwarded to the defense agencies for inspection under 35 U.S C. 181 either by reviewing the filing receipt to determine if a license is or was granted, in which case security inspection did not occur, or by reviewing the file wrapper to determine if an access acknowledgment under 35 U.S.C. 181 is present, in which case security inspection did occur. If verification of the security inspection status of an application is needed, the authorized parties may submit a written request therefor to the Office, directed to the attention of Licensing and Review. A written response from the Office will be issued. In the event Office records are not available, a de novo determination by the Office will be made of the need for defense agency inspection under the present national security standards. If security inspection was not required under 35 U.S.C. 181, then the provisions of the Act will convert a previously granted or implied license into one having the scope of proposed § 5.15(a).

Section 5.15(a), as amended, adopts the specific provisions of the Act and clarifies the existing rules by expressly stating that the license provisions of the paragraph are applicable to United States applications which were not required to be made available for inspection under 35 U.S.C. 181 and § 5.1. The inspection provisions of 35 U.S.C. 181 delegate to the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks the authority to decide which applications will be forwarded to United States defense agencies for national security inspection when the Government has no property interest in the invention. The fact that an application was forwarded to the defense agencies does not necessarily mean that the application was properly within the inspection scope of 35 U.S.C. 181. Thus, if an application was not required to be inspected but was inspected by mistake, it is eligible for such a license. The changes to the regulation expressly apply to modifications, amendments, and supplements to a previously licensed foreign application, and divisions thereof, provided the not alter the general nature of the invention in a manner which would require a corresponding United States application to have been made available for inspection under 35 U.S.C. 181.

The language of § 5 15(a)(1) also has been clarified. If the filing of the foreign application was pursuant to a license granted under § 5.15 and issued prior to publication of the notice in the Federal Register at 49 Fed. Reg. 13456 (April 4, 1984) for subject matter which was not appropriate for inspection under 35 U.8.C. 181, the license is now expanded to cover amendments, modifications, and supplements thereto, or divisions thereof, which do not change the general nature of the invention in a manner which would require such application to be made available for security inspection under 35 U.S.C. 181. Also, paragraphs (a)(3) and (a)(4) of § 5.15 have been merged in order to more clearly define the type of subsequent changes to a previously licensed foreign patent application which may be filed without any additional license. In particular, it is made clear that these changes must not be such as to require the application to be made available for security inspection. Any questions about the security inspection status of any application or amendments, modifications, and supplements thereto, or divisions thereof, will be handled in the manner as described above.

Section 5.15(b), as amended, clarifies the existing rule by expressly stating that the license provisions of § 5.12(b) are applicable to United States applications which were required to be made available for inspection under 35 U.S.C. 181 and§ 5.1. The amendments also clarify the language of the paragraph and indicate that the more restrictive license under this paragraph includes authority to take actions in the foreign or international application, provided subject matter additional to that covered by the license is not involved Section 5.15(c), as amended, clarifies the existing rule by expressly stating that the granting of a § 5.15(a) scope to a license under § 5.15(b) and conversion provisions of this paragraph are only applicable to material submitted under § 5.13 or United States applications, which are not, or were not, required to be made available for inspection under 35 U.S.C. 181 and § 5.1.

Sections 5.15(e) and (f), as amended, substitute a reference to § 5.15(a)(3) rather than to § 5.15(a)(4) which has been eliminated as a separate paragraph. Paragraph (e) also has been amended to state that changes to the general nature of the invention, which would require the application to have been made available for inspection under 35 U.S.C. 181 and § 5.1, require a separate license.

Section 5.25(a), as amended, provides that the inventor may receive a retroactive license if the inventor can show that the premature filing of papers in a foreign patent office was made through error and without deceptive intent. This criterion is the same as that for "error without any deceptive intention" for reissue of a patent and replaces the previous standard of inadvertence. This section also has been amended to clarify that each country in which a proscribed filing occurred must be listed in a petition for retroactive license. Also, the rule has been amended to define a verified statement as being in the form of either an oath or a declaration. Finally, the rule has been clarified by defining the period over which error without deceptive intent must be shown as being the time leading up to and including the proscribed foreign filing

Other Considerations

The rule change is in conformity with the requirements of the Regulatory Flexibility Act, 5 U.S.C. 601 et seq., Executive Orders 12291 and 12612, and the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et seq.

The General Counsel of the Department of Commerce has certified to the Acting Chief Counsel for Advocacy, Small Business Administration, that the rule change will not have a significant adverse economic impact on a substantial number of small entities (Regulatory Flexibility Act, 5 U.S.C. 605(b)) because the rules simplify the procedures for all United States inventors who file and prosecute applications in foreign countries.

The Patent and Trademark Office has determined that this rule change is not a major rule under Executive Order 12291. The annual effect on the economy will be less than $100 million. There will be no major increase in costs or prices for consumers, individuals, industries, Federal, state or local government agencies, or geographic regions. There will be no significant adverse effects on competition, employment, investment, productivity, innovation, or on the ability of the United States-based enterprises to compete with foreign-based enterprises in domestic or export markets.

The Patent and Trademark Office has also determined that this notice has no Federalism implications affecting the relationship between the National Government and the States as outlined in Executive Order 12612.

These rules contain a collection of information requirement subject to the Paperwork Reduction Act which has previously been approved by the Office of Management and Budget under Control No. 0651-0011 with an expiration date of March 31, 1993. The average time for each petition for license under § 51.12(b) or § 5.25 is estimated to be approximately thirty (30) minutes, including time for reviewing instructions, gathering and maintaining data needed, and completing and reviewing the petition submission. Send comments regarding this burden estimate to the Patent and Trademark Office, Office of Management and Organization, Washington, D.C. 20231, and the Office of Management and Budget, Washington, D.C. 20503 (Attention: Paperwork Reduction Project 0651-0011).

PART 5 - SECRECY OF CERTAIN INVENTIONS AND LICENSES TO EXPORT AND FILE APPLICATIONS IN FOREIGN COUNTRIES

1. The authority citation for Part 5 is revised to read as follows:

Authority: 35 U.S.C. 6, 41, 181-188, as amended by the Patent Law Foreign Filing Amendments Act of 1988, Pub. L. 100-418 102 Stat. 1567; the Arms Export Control Act, as amended, 22 U.S. C. 2751 et seq., the Atomic Energy Act of 1954, as amended, 42 U. 2. Section 5.11, paragraphs (a) and (e), are revised to read as follows:

§ 5.11 License for filing in a foreign country an application on an invention made in the United States or for transmitting an international application.

VOL 1170 ISS 1 JA 3 1995 UMI

(a) A license from the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks under 35 U.S.C. 184 is required before filing any application for patent including any modifications, amendments, or supplements thereto or divisions thereof or for the registration of a utility model, industrial design, or model, in a foreign patent office or any foreign patent agency or any international agency other than the United States Receiving Office, if the invention was made in the United States and:

(1) An application on the invention has been on file in the United States less than six months prior to the date on which the application is to be filed, or

(2) No application on the invention has been filed in the United States.

* * * * *

(e) No license pursuant to paragraph (a) of this section is required:

(1) If the invention was not made in the United States, or

(2) If the corresponding United States application is not subject to a secrecy order under § 5.2, and was filed at least six months prior to the date on which the application is filed in a foreign country, or

(3) For subsequent modifications, amendments and supplements containing additional subject matter to, or divisions of, a foreign patent application if:

(i) a license is not, or was not, required under paragraph (e)(2) of this section for the foreign patent application;

(ii) the corresponding United States application was not required to be made available for inspection under 35 U.S.C. 181 and § 5.1; and

(iii) such modifications, amendments, and supplements do not, or did not, change the general nature of the invention in a manner which would require any corresponding United States application to be or have been available for inspection under 35 U.S.C. 181 and § 5.1.

* * * * *

3. Section 5.15, paragraphs (a), (b), (c), (e) and (f), are revised to read as follows:

§ 5.15 Scope of license.

(a) Applications or other materials reviewed pursuant to § 5.12 through 5.14, which were not required to be made available for inspection by defense agencies under 35 U.S.C. 181 and § 5.1, will be eligible for a license of the scope provided in this paragraph. This license permits subsequent modifications, amendments, and supplements containing additional subject matter to, or divisions of, a foreign patent application, if such changes to the application do not alter the general nature of the invention in a manner which would require the United States application to have been made available for inspection under 35 U.S.C. 181 and § 5.1. This license also covers the inventions disclosed in foreign applications which had been granted a license under this part prior to April 4, 1984, and which were not subject to security inspection under 35 U.S.C. 181 and § 5.1. Grant of this license authorizes the export and filing of an application in a foreign country or the transmitting of an international application to any patent agency orinternational patent agency when the subject matter of the foreign or international application corresponds to that of the domestic application. This license includes authority:

(1) To export and file all duplicate and formal application papers in foreign countries or with international agencies;

(2) To make amendments, modifications, and supplements, including divisions, changes or supporting matter consisting of the illustration, exemplification, comparison, or explanation of subject matter disclosed in the application; and

(3) To take any action in the prosecution of the foreign or international application provided that the adding of subject matter or taking of any action under paragraphs (a)(1) and (2) of this section does not change the general nature of the invention disclosed in the application in a manner which would require such application to have been made available for inspection under 35 U.S.C. 181 and § 5.1 by including technical data pertaining to:

(i) Defense services or articles designated in the United States Munitions List applicable at the time of foreign filing, the unlicensed exportation of which is prohibited pursuant to the Arms Export Control Act, as amended, and 22 CFR Parts 121 through 130; or

(ii) Restricted Data, sensitive nuclear technology or technology useful in the production or utilization of special nuclear material or atomic energy, the dissemination of which is subject to restrictions of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954, as amended, and the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Act of 1978, as implemented by the regulations for Unclassified Activities in Foreign Atomic Energy Programs, 10 CFR Part 810, in effect at the time of foreign filing.

(b) Applications or other materials which were required to be made available for inspection under 35 U.S.C. 181 and § 5.1 will be eligible for a license of the scope provided in this paragraph. Grant of this license authorizes the export and filing of an application in a foreign country or the transmitting of an international application to any foreign patent agency or international patent agency. Further, this license includes authority to export and file all duplicate and formal papers in foreign countries or with foreign and international patent agencies and to make amendments, modifications, and supplements to, file divisions of, and take any action in the prosecution of the foreign or international application, provided subject matter additional to that covered by the license is not involved.

(c) A license granted under § 5.12(b) pursuant to § 5.13 or § 5.14 shall have the scope indicated in paragraph (a) of this section, if it is so specified in the license. A petition, accompanied by the required fee (1.17(h)), may also be filed to change a license having the scope indicated in paragraph (b) of this section to a license having the scope indicated in paragraph (a) of this section. No such petition will be granted if the copy of the material filed pursuant to § 5.13 or any corresponding United States application was required to be made available for in-spection under 35 U.S.C. 181 and § 5.1. The change in the scope of a license will be effective as of the date of the grant of the petition.

(e) Any paper filed abroad or transmitted to an international patent agency following the filing of a foreign or international application which changes the general nature of the subject matter disclosed at the time of filing in a manner which would require such application to have been made available for inspection under 35 U.S.C. 181 and § 5.1 or which involves the disclosure of subject matter listed in paragraphs (a)(3)(i) or (ii) of this section must be separately licensed in the same manner as a foreign or international application. Further, if no license has been granted under § 5.12(a) on filing the corresponding United States application, any paper filed abroad or with an international patent agency which involves the disclosure of additional subject matter must be licensed in the same manner as a foreign or international application.

(f) Licenses separately granted in connection with two or more United States applications may be exercised by combining or dividing the disclosures, as desired, provided:

(1) Subject matter which changes the general nature of the subject matter disclosed at the time of filing or which involves subject matter listed in paragraphs (a)(3)(i) or (ii) of this section is not introduced, and

(2) In the case where at least one of the licenses was obtained under § 5.12(b), additional subject matter is not introduced.

* * * * *

4. Section 5.25, paragraph (a), is revised to read as follows:

§ 5.25 Petition for retroactive license

(a) A petition for a retroactive license under 35 U.S.C. 184 shall be presented in accordance with § 5.13 or § 5.14 (a), and shall include:

(1) A listing of each of the foreign countries in which the unlicensed patent application material was filed,

(2) The dates on which the material was filed in each country,

(3) A verified statement (oath or declaration) containing:

(i) An averment' that the subject matter in question was not under a secrecy order at the time it was filed abroad, and that it is not currently under a secrecy order,

(ii) A showing that the license has been diligently sought after discovery of the proscribed foreign filing, and

(iii) An explanation of why the material was filed abroad through error and without deceptive intent without the required license under § 5.11 first having been obtained, and

(4) The required fee (§ 1.17(h)).

The above explanation must include a showing of facts rather than a mere allegation of action through error and without deceptive intent. The showing of facts as to the nature of the error should include statements by those persons having personal knowledge of the acts regarding filing in a foreign country and should be accompanied by copies of any necessary supporting documents such as letters of transmittal or instructions for filing. The acts which are alleged to constitute error without deceptive intent should cover the period leading up to and including each of the proscribed foreign filings.

Requests for Presidential Proclamations Under the Semiconductor Chip Protection Act of 1984, 17 U.S.C. 902(a)(2)

Agency: Patent and Trademark Office, Commerce
Action: Final Rule
Summary: The Patent and Trademark Office (PTO) is adding a new Subchapter C, Part 150 to its rules to implement the Presidential proclamation provisions of the Semiconductor Chip Protection Act of 1984, 17 U.S.C. 902(a)(2). The rules establish procedures for the evaluation of requests by foreign governments for the issuance of Presidential proclamations granting protection in the United States to mask works of foreign origin. The rules also permit the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks independently to initiate an evaluation. The effect of the rules will be to establish a regime of protection for foreign mask works in the United States, provided mask works of U.S. origin are adequately protected in the country requesting a Presidential proclamation.
Effective Date: August 1, 1988
For Further Information Contact: Michael K. Kirk, Assistant Commissioner for External Affairs, by telephone at (703)557-3065, or by mail marked to his attention and addressed to Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Box 4, Washington, D.C. 20231.
Supplementary Information: The Semiconductor Chip Protection Act of 1984 (SCPA) established a new form of intellectual property protection for mask works that are fixed in semiconductor chips. Mask works are defined as a "series of related images, however fixed or encoded," that represent the three-dimensional pattern in the layers of a semiconductor chip. Thus, the subject matter of protection under the SCPA are the layout designs of semiconductor chips, known in some countries as "integrated circuit layout designs" or as "semiconductor topographies." The SCPA provides a ten-year term of protection for original mask works measured from their date of registration or first commercial exploitation anywhere in the world. To maintain protection, mask works must be registered in the United States Copyright Office within two years of first commercial exploitation.

Protection for foreign mask works may be granted under both section 902 and section 914 of the SCPA. Section 902 sets out three different ways that foreign mask works may become eligible for protection in the United States. First, on the date the work is registered or is first commercially exploited anywhere in the world, the mask work is protectible if its owner is a national, domiciliary or sovereign authority of a foreign nation that is a party to a treaty that provides protection of mask works and to which the United States is also a party, or if a stateless person,wherever domiciled. Second, foreign mask works may be protected when they are first commercially exploited in the United States. The third way, set forth in section 902(a)(2), is where the foreign mask work comes within the scope of a Presidential proclamation. The President may issue a proclamation upon finding that a foreign nation extends to mask works of owners who are U.S. nationals or domiciliaries, protection (1) on substantially the same basis as that on which the foreign nation extends protection to mask works of its own nationals and domiciliaries and mask works first commercially exploited in that nation, or (2) on substantially the same basis as provided in the SCPA. Pursuant to Executive Order 12504, 50 FR 4849 (Feb. 4, 1985), requests for issuance of Presidential proclamations are to be presented to the President by the Secretary of Commerce.

Section 914 was included in the SCPA as a transitional provision, intended by Congress to encourage other countries to pass laws extending protection to this new form of intellectual property. Once laws were in place, it was reasoned, permanent protection for foreign mask works could be conferred under section 902 or through a multilateral treaty that extended coverage to mask works. Section 914 gives the Secretary of Commerce authority to issue orders extending interim protection to foreign mask work owners upon the satisfaction of certain conditions. First, the Secretary must find that the foreign nation is making good faith efforts and reasonable progress toward entering into a treaty with the United States, or toward enacting legislation that will protect U.S. mask works on the same basis as domestic mask works, or at a level similar to that provided under the SCPA. Second, the Secretary must determine that nationals, domiciliaries and sovereign authorities of the foreign nation are not engaged in the misappropriation, unauthorized distribution, or unauthorized commercial exploitation of mask works. Finally, the Secretary must determine that issuance of an interim order would promote the purposes of the SCPA and international comity with respect to the protection of mask-works.

By Amendment 1 to Department Organization Order 10-14, issued Dec. 3, 1984, the Secretary of Commerce delegated to the Assistant Secretary and Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks the authority under section 914 to make pertinent findings and to issue orders for the interim protection of foreign mask works. Amendment 2 to Department Organization Order 10-14, issued Sept. 28, 1987, expanded the earlier delegation to include responsibility for prescribing regulations for the presentation to the President of requests for issuance of proclamations under section 902.

The Commissioner has issued orders granting interim protection under section 914 for mask works produced in Australia, Belgium, Canada, Denmark, Finland, France, the Federal Republic of Germany, Greece, Ireland, Italy, Japan, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, and the United Kingdom. All of the interim protection orders were recently extended until May 31, 1989. See Extension of Previously-Granted Interim Orders Under the Semiconductor Chip Protection Act of 1984, 53 FR 16308 (May 6, 1988).

This proceeding was initiated by a Notice of Proposed Rulemaking published at 53 FR 5588-90 (Feb. 25, 1988). The notice set forth proposed regulations for the submission and evaluation of requests that the Secretary of Commerce recommend the issuance or revocation of a Presidential proclamation granting U.S. protection to foreign mask works under section 902(a)(2) of the SCPA. Comments on the proposed rules were received from the Commission of the European Communities and the U.S. Semiconductor Industry Association.

Discussion of Specific Rules

Section 150.1 of the new rules sets forth relevant definitions. Section 150.2 specifies the conditions under which an evaluation of recommending the issuance, revision, suspension or revocation of a section 902 proclamation will be initiated by the Commissioner. Section 150.2(a) provides that the Commissioner must initiate an evaluation of the propriety of recommending the issuance of a section 902 proclamation upon receipt of a request from a foreign government. Section 150.2(b) gives the Secretary the discretion to initiate independently an evaluation concerning issuance, revision, suspension or revocation of a proclamation, or as directed by the Secretary of Commerce.

Section 150.3(a) states that requests for the issuance of a section 902 Presidential proclamation shall be made by "foreign governments." The definition of "foreign government" in section 150.1 of the rules makes clear that international intergovernmental organizations may request Presidential proclamations on behalf of their member states.

Section 150.3(b) lists the documentation that must accompany requests for issuance of a proclamation. The laws, legal rulings, regulations, and administrative orders submitted must be in unedited, full-text form. Where possible, the materials submitted should be reproduced from the original document, e.g., from court reports or statutory instruments. Abstracts, summaries and commentaries are not acceptable. If the documents are not in English, a certified English translation must accompany them.

Section 150.4 sets out the procedure the Commissioner will follow after a request for issuance of a proclamation has been submitted, or following a decision independently to initiate an evaluation. If a foreign government requests a section 902 proclamation before a section 914 proceeding has taken place, under section 150.4(a) the Commissioner may initiate such a proceeding to compile a record of necessary information and, where appropriate, to provide interim protection in the United States while the section 902 request is pending. Section 150.4(b) provides that the information obtained during a section 914 proceeding, if one has been held, will be considered by the Commissioner in determining whether to recommend the issuance of a Presidential proclamation.

Section 150.4(c) provides that requests for Presidential proclamations, and notices of the Commissioner's determination independently to initiate section 902 evaluations, will be published in the Federal Register. Written comments will be requested. Section 150.4(d) requires the Commissioner to notify the Register of Copyrights and the Committees on the Judiciary of the Senate and the House of Representatives of the initiation of an evaluation. Under section 150.4(e), a hearing may be scheduled if the written comments raise issues that cannot be resolved through informal contacts Section 150.4(f) provides that the record to be considered by the Commissioner in determining whether to recommend a Presidential proclamation will be the request from a foreign government, if any, written comments received, the record of any section 914 proceedings, and the information obtained in a hearing, if one is held.

Sections 150.4(g) and (h) provide that the Commissioner will forward the draft recommendation to the Secretary, who will then forward a recommendation regarding issuance of a proclamation to the President. Section 150.5(a) makes clear that the recommendation for issuance of a proclamation may include terms and conditions regarding the duration of the proclamation. Section 150.5(b) provides that interested parties may request the revision, suspension or revocation of Presidential proclamations.

Comments on the Proposed Rules

Comments on the proposed rules were submitted by the Commission of the European Communities and the U.S. Semiconductor Industry Association (SIA). The Commission of the European Communities noted that any request for a proclamation in favor of mask works produced in the Member States will be made by the Commission. The Commission requested a clarification that the term "foreign governments" as used in section 150.3(a) includes international intergovernmental organizations which have been empowered by their member states to request Presidential proclamations granting U.S. protection to mask works produced in such states.

The PTO adopts the Commission's suggestion. The rules are not intended to preclude foreign governments from having requests for Presidential proclamations presented on their behalf by an international or regional intergovernmental organization. Accordingly, a definition of "foreign government" is added as section 150.1(b) of the rules, making clear that international intergovernmental organizations may request Presidential proclamations on behalf of their member states.

In its comments, the SIA requested that section 150.4(c) be amended to require that the Commissioner hold a public hearing when requested by any interested party after an evaluation has begun. As proposed, section 150.4(e)(2)(ii) gives the Commissioner discretion to hold a hearing to gather additional information if material issues raised in written comments cannot be resolved less formally. SIA also requested that section 150.4(f) be amended to include information obtained in public hearings in the list of materials to be evaluated by the Commissioner. SIA suggested that section 150.4(c) specify a time period of thirty (30) days after publication of a request for comments in the Federal Register during which written comments and requests for a hearing may be submitted.

The PTO does not agree that the Commissioner should be required to hold a hearing as part of every section 902 evaluation whenever requested. Section 150.4(b) provides that information obtained during section 914 proceedings will be used in evaluating requests for Presidential proclamations. Moreover, under section 150.4(a) the Commissioner may institute section 914 proceedings if an interim order has not been issued in favor of mask works from such a requesting nation. Given the thoroughness with which section 914 proceedings are generally conducted, the Commissioner is expected to have available a substantial record concerning the degree of protection for U.S. mask works in the subject country. A separate hearing might only serve to cause delay in such cases.

Moreover, effective public participation in the section 902 evaluation process is not dependent on whether the Commissioner holds a hearing. The rules proceed from the assumption that any material issues relating to protection of U.S. mask works in a requesting foreign country can be raised in written comments, and that these issues can be resolved flexibly through informal inter partes contacts. Where issues cannot be resolved through such informal contacts, section 150.4(e)(ii) gives the Commissioner discretion to hold a hearing to obtain additional views and to assist in resolving the issues. It is not evident that a mandatory hearing upon request of interested parties would provide an opportunity for exchange of views or information that is not otherwise available under section 150.4(e).

The PTO agrees that, if the Commissioner elects to hold a hearing, the information obtained should be included in the record. Accordingly, section 150.4(f) is amended to make this clarification. It is also proper that the rules specify a time period for the submission of comments following publication in the Federal Register of the request for a proclamation or the Commissioner's determination to initiate independently a section 902 evaluation. Thus, to ensure that all interested parties have sufficient time to investigate and prepare complete written comments, section 150.4(c) is amended to specify that comments must be submitted within sixty (60) days of Federal Register publication.

Discussion of Principal Changes

A new section 150.1(b) has been added to the rules as proposed to clarify that international or regional intergovernmental organizations may request Presidential proclamations on behalf of their member states, provided the member states have empowered the organization to make such requests. Proposed sections 150.1(c)-(g) have been redesignated as sections 150.1(d)-(h). The definition of "mask work" in section 150.1(d) (proposed section 150.1(c)) has been modified slightly to conform to the language in section 901(a)(2) of the SCPA. The definition of "Presidential proclamation" in section 150.1(e) (proposed section 150.1(d)) has been changed slightly by substituting the words "applying for" for the word "making" before the word "registrations." The purpose of this change is to conform the language of the rule to section 908 of the SCPA, which relates to mask work registration. The definition of "request" in section 150.1(f) (proposed section 150.1(e)) has been changed to indicate that the Commissioner is not required to treat request revision, suspension or revocation of a Presidential proclamation in the same way as requests for issuance of such proclamations (see discussion of section 150.5(b), infra).

Section 150.2(a) has been expanded to make clear that the Commissioner may initiate independently an evaluation of recommending the revision, suspension, or revocation of a Presidential proclamation, as well as an evaluation of recommending the issuance of a proclamation. This change reflects the amendment to section 902(a)(2) made by the Semiconductor Chip Protection Act Extension of 1987, which clarifies that the President has the authority to revise, suspend or revoke, as well as issue, proclamations extending protection to foreign mask works.

Section 150.3(b) has been changed to state that requests for issuance of a Presidential proclamation must be accompanied by "a copy" of laws, legal rulings, regulations or administrative orders, rather than "an official copy" of such materials, as was proposed. This change is made to avoid confusion arising from the fact that the meaning of "official copy" may vary from country to country. Section 150.3(b)(5) has been redesignated as section 150.3(b)(6), and a new section 150.3(b)(5) has been added to specify that the copies submitted to the PTO must be in full text, unedited, and where possible, be reproduced from the original document.

Section 150.4(c) has also been changed. The proposed rule stated that notices of requests by foreign governments for the issuance of Presidential proclamations will be published in the Federal Register. Language has been added to make clear that notices of the Commissioner's determination independently to initiate evaluations will also be published in the Federal Register. Section 150.4(c) has also been changed to provide that comments shall be submitted to the Commissioner within sixty (60) days of publication of the Federal Register notice. Section 150.4(f) has been modified to include information obtained in a public hearing held pursuant to section 150.4(e)(ii), if such a hearing is held, in the list of materials to be evaluated by the Commissioner.

Section 150.5(b) has been changed to reflect the amendment to section 902(a)(2) made by the Semiconductor Chip Protection Act Extension of 1987. The first sentence provides that any interested party may request the "revision, suspension or revocation" of a proclamation. The second sentence has been modified to provide that "requests for revision, suspension or revocation of a proclamation will be considered in substantially the same manner as requests for the issuance of a section 902 proclamation." The word "substantially" has been added to indicate that the Commissioner need not initiate a formal evaluation in every case where a request is made for the revision, suspension or revocation of a Presidential proclamation, in contrast to situations where a foreign government requests the issuance of such a proclamation. While good faith requests for the revision, suspension or revocation of a proclamation will be accorded fair procedural treatment, it is proper that the Commissioner have flexibility at the outset to consider such requests on a case-by-case basis as experience is gained under these rules. If necessary, the PTO may amend the rules at a later time to provide additional procedures for consideration of requests for revision, suspension or revocation of Presidential proclamations.

Stylistic changes have also been made in sections 150.2(a), 150.3(b)(6) (proposed section 150.3(b)(5)) and 150.5(a), but these changes are for purposes of clarity and are not substantive in nature.

Other Considerations

This rule does not have a significant impact on the quality of the human environment or the conservation of natural resources. This rule is in conformity with the requirements of the Regulatory Flexibility Act, 5 U.S.C. 601 et seq., Executive Orders 12291 and 12612, and the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980,44 U.S.C. 3501 et seq.

The General Counsel of the Department of Commerce has certified to the Small Business Administration that the proposed rule will not have a significant adverse economic impact on a substantial number of small entities (Regulatory Flexibility Act, 5 U.S.C. 601 et seq.) The economic impact of a Presidential proclamation on small entities will be beneficial, since such proclamations may be issued only upon a finding that a foreign nation extends reciprocal protection to U.S. mask works.

The Patent and Trademark Office has determined that this rule is not a major rule under Executive Order 12291. The annual effect on the economy will be less that $100 million. There will be no major increase in costs or prices for consumers, individual industries, federal, state or local government agencies, or geographic regions. By extending protection to foreign mask work owners, the ability of United States-based enterprises to compete with foreign-based enterprises in domestic or export markets will be enhanced.

The Patent and Trademark Office has also determined that this notice has no federalism implications affecting the relationship between the national government and the states as outlined in Executive Order 12612.

The rule will not impose a burden under the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3510 et seq., since no record-keeping or reporting requirements within the coverage of the Act are placed upon the public.

(79) Errors in Notice of Allowance

The purpose of this notice is to clarify existing Office practice with respect to providing a new issue fee due date. Sometimes errors appear on the Notice of Allowance, such as an incorrect number of claims, the misspelling of an inventor's name, an incorrect inventorship, or an incorrect title. A duplicate Notice of Allowance correcting the errors may be requested from the Group that mailed the Notice. However, a new issue fee due date will not be provided if the information on the original Notice of Allowance is sufficient to allow a reasonable practitioner to timely file a proper issue fee in the correct application. Specifically, the mere filing of a request for a corrected or duplicate Notice of Allowance will not act to stay the period for paying the issue fee.

(80) Initial Guidelines Implementing Changes in 35 U.S.C. 103, 116, and 120

The Patent and Trademark Office has established initial guidelines for patent examiners to use in implementing the changes made in 35 U.S.C. 103, 116, and 120 by Public Law 98-622, the Patent Law Amendments Act of 1984. As a service to the public, those guidelines are published below. A copy of Public Law 98-622 is also being published concurrently herewith. Some of the procedural aspects of matters contained in the guidelines will be incorporated into Title 37 of the Code of Federal Regulation through the rule-making process.

Dec. 11, 1984

Assistant Commissioner for Patents

Initial Guidelines As To Implementation Of 35 U.S.C. 103

Public Law 98-622 added a new sentence to 35 U.S.C. 103 which reads as follows:

"Subject matter developed by another person, which qualifies as prior art only under subsection (f) or (g) of section 102 of this title, shall not preclude patentability under this section where the subject matter and the claimed invention were, at the time the invention was made, owned by the same person or subject to an obligation of assignment to the same person."

The significant features resulting from this amendment to § 103 are the following:

(1) The only prior art which is disqualified is prior art under § 102(f) or (g) where the subject matter, i.e., the prior art, and the invention "were, at the time the invention was made, owned by the same person or subject to an obligation of assignment to the same person." (Person includes organization.)
(2) If the subject matter (prior art) qualifies as prior art under any other section, e.g., § 102(a), (b), or (e), it is still prior art and can be used.
(3) Amendment applies only to subject matter which qualifies as prior art under § 103; it does not affect subject matter which qualifies as prior art under § 102, i.e., anticipatory prior art.
(4) Term "another person" means any inventive entity other than the inventor and includes the inventor and any other person.
(5) Term "developed" is to be read broadly and is not limited to any particular manner of development.
(6) Subject matter derived from another under § 102(f) is prior art under § 103 unless the derived subject matter and the claimed invention are owned by, or subject to an obligation of assignment to, the same person at the time the claimed invention was made.
(7) The disclosure of an earlier filed patent application which issues as a patent continues to be prior art under § 102(e) against a later invented and filed application of another inventor even though the patent and the later application are owned by, or subject to an obligation of assignment to, the same person.
(8) Commonly owned applications, i.e., applications owned by the same person, may be refiled as a single application to avoid one or more of them becoming prior art against another under §§ 102(e) and 103.
(9) The phrase "owned by the same person" requires that the same person, persons, or organization own 100% of the subject matter (prior art) and 100% of the claimed invention.
(10) The phrase "subject to an obligation of assignment to the same person" requires that a legal obligation of assignment exist and not merely a moral or unenforceable obligation.
(11) As long as the same person owns the subject matter and the invention at the time the claimed invention was made, a license to another may be made without the subject matter becoming prior art.
(12) Amended § 103 requires actual ownership (or obligation to assign) be in existence at the time the claimed invention is made for the subject matter to be disqualified as prior art; acquiring one or the other later is not sufficient.
(13) Burden of establishing that subject matter is disqualified as prior art is placed on patent applicant and not on the patent examiner once the examiner establishes a prima facie case of obviousness based on the prior art.
(14) Double patenting rejections may now be made in applications based on commonly owned patents of different inventive entities and double patenting rejections of the obviousness type can be overcome by terminal disclaimers.
(15) A double patenting rejection may also be made in a later filed application where the application/patent on which the rejection is based and the later filed application are not commonly owned as long as one of the inventors is common between the later filed application and the application/patent; such a rejection cannot be overcome by terminal disclaimer in view of the lack of common ownership.
(16) The Commissioner's Notice of January 9, 1967, "Double Patenting", 834 O.G. 1615 (Jan. 31, 1967) is withdrawn to the extent that it does not authorize a double patenting rejection where different inventive entities are present.
(17) Inventors of subject matter not commonly owned at the time of the invention may file as joint inventors in a single application. However, the claims in such an application are not protected from a § 102(f)/ 103 or § 102(g)/103 rejection.

Implementation Steps As To Amended 35 U.S.C. 103

A. Applications To Be Considered

(1) Amended § 103 does not "affect any final decision made by the court or the Patent and Trademark Office before the date of enactment [November 8, 1984]. . . with respect to a patent or application for patent, if no appeal from such decision is pending and the time for filing an appeal has expired."
(2) The amendment of § 103 will not be considered to apply to:

(a) Any application which has been abandoned prior to November 8, 1984, unless such application is revived pursuant to the provisions of 37 CFR 1.137(a) or (b) and is pending on or after November 8, 1984;
(b) Any application in which all the claims have been allowed and in which prosecution has been closed prior to November 8, 1984, e.g., by an Ex parte Quayle action, a Notice of allowability, or a Notice of Allowance. However, a continuing application would obtain the benefit of amended § 103 if filed prior to the abandonment or issuance of the application; and
(c) Any application in which an appeal has been filed and is no longer pending or in which the time for filing an appeal has expired prior to November 8, 1984. However if the application contains allowed claims on or after November 8, 1984, the allowed claims are subject to amended § 103.

(3) The amendment to § 103 will be applied to any application (a) which is before the examiner for action and in which all the claims have not been allowed and the prosecution closed or (b) in which prosecution has been closed and is being reopened to reject the allowed claims on grounds other than 102(f) /103 or § 102(g)/103.
(4) Applications not before the examiner for action, e.g., an application in which a response from applicant is required, will not be considered as to the applicability of amended § 103 unless applicant takes timely action which properly requires an action on the merits by the examiner.

B. Conflicting Co-pending Applications Of Different Inventive Entities With No Indication That They Are Commonly Owned

(1) If the application files do not establish that they are owned by, or subject to an obligation of assignment to, the same person, the examiner will:
(a) assume that the applications are not commonly owned;
(b) examine the applications on all grounds other than any conflict between the applications;
(c) consider the applicability of § 102(f) /103 or § 102(g)/ 103 if one application refers to the other (if there is no cross-reference between the applications it would be inappropriate for the examiner to refer to one application in the other in view of 35 U.S.C. 122);
(d) consider interference if appropriate;
(e) suspend the later filed application if it is otherwise allowable until the earlier filed application is abandoned or issues as a patent and then reject the later filed application under § 102(e)/103, if appropriate; and
(f) proceed under item C below if at any time during the examination a statement is made that the applications are commonly owned.

C. Conflicting Co-pending Applications Of Different Inventive Entities Which Are Commonly Owned

(1) Co-pending applications will be considered by the examiner to be owned by, or subject to an obligation of assignment to, the same person if (a) the application files refer to assignments recorded in the PTO in accordance with 37 CFR 1.331 which convey the entire rights in the applications to the same person(s) or organization(s); or (b) copies of unrecorded assignments which convey the entire rights in the applications to the same person(s) or organization(s) are filed in each of the applications; or (c) an affidavit or declaration by the common owner is filed which states that there is common ownership and explains why the affiant believes there is common ownership; or (d) other evidence is submitted which establishes common ownership of the applications in question, e.g., a court decision determining the owner. In circumstances where the common owner is a corporation or other organization an affidavit or declaration averring common ownership may be signed by an official of the corporation or organization empowered to act on behalf of the corporation or organization.

(2) If the application files establish that they are owned by, or subject to an obligation of assignment to, the same person, the examiner will:

(a) examine the applications as to all grounds except § 102(f) and (g) as they apply through § 103 if the application files establish common ownership at the time the later invention was made;
(b) examine the applications for double patenting, including double patenting of the obviousness type, and make a provisional rejection, if appropriate, (see In re Mott, 190 USPQ 536 (CCPA 1976);
(c) examine the later filed application under § 102(e) as it applies through § 103 and make a provisional rejection under § 102(e)/103 in the later filed application, if appropriate;
(d) permit applicant of the later filed application to file an affidavit under 37 CFR 1.131 to overcome the provisional or actual § 102(e)/103 rejection, if appropriate, and a terminal disclaimer to overcome the provisional or actual rejection on double patenting of the obviousness type.

Initial Guidelines As To Implementation Of 35 U.S.C. 116

Public Law 98-622 amended 35 U.S.C. 116 to clarify that each inventor need not "sign the application" in addition to making the required oath and to add a new sentence which reads as follows:

> "Inventors may apply for a patent jointly even though (1) they did not physically work together or at the same time, (2) each did not make the same type or amount of contribution, or (3) each did not make a contribution to the subject matter of every claim of the patent."

The significant features resulting from these amendments to § 116 are the following:

(1) The joint inventors do not have to separately "sign the application," but only need apply for the patent jointly and make the required oath by signing the same; this is a clarification, but not a change in current practice.
(2) Inventors may apply for a patent jointly even though "they did not work together or at the same time," thereby clarifying (a) that it is not necessary that the inventors physically work together on a project, and (b) that one inventor may "take a step at one time, the other an approach at different times." (Monsanto Co. v. Kamp, 154 USPQ 259 (D.D.C. 1967)).
(3) Inventors may apply for a patent jointly even though "each did not make the same type or amount of contribution," thereby clarifying the "fact that each of the inventors plays a different role and that the contribution of onemay not be as great as that of another does not detract from the fact that the invention is joint, if each makes some original contribution, though partial, to the final solution of the problem." Monsanto supra.
(4) Inventors may apply for a patent jointly even though "each did not make a contribution to the subject matter of every claim of the patent."
(5) Inventors may apply for a patent jointly as long as each inventor made a contribution, i.e., was an inventor or joint inventor, of the subject matter of at least one claim of the patent; there is no requirement that all the inventors be joint inventors of the subject matter of any one claim.
(6) If an application by joint inventors includes more than one independent and distinct invention, restriction may be required with the possible result of a necessity to change the inventorship named in the application if the elected invention was not the invention of all the originally named inventors.
(7) The amendment to § 116 increases the likelihood that different claims of an application or patent may have different dates of invention; when necessary the Office or court may inquire of the patent applicant or owner concerning the inventors and the invention dates for the subject matter of the various claims.

Implementation Steps As To Amended 35 U.S.C. 116

(1) See items (1) to (4) above under "Applications To Be Considered" for applications to be considered under amended § 116.
(2) Pending applications will be permitted to be amended by complying with 37 CFR 1.48 to add claims to inventions by inventors not named when the application was filed as long as such inventions were disclosed in the application as filed since 37 CFR 1.48 permits correction of inventorship where the "correct inventor or inventors are not named in an application for patent through error without any deceptive intention on the part of the actual inventor or inventors."
(3) Under amended § 116 an examiner will reject claims under § 102(f) only in circumstances where a named inventor is not the inventor of at least one claim in the application; no rejection under § 102(f) is appropriate if a named inventor made a contribution to the invention defined in any claim of the application.
(4) Under amended § 116 considered in conjunction with amended § 103, a rejection may be appropriate under § 102(f)/103 where the subject matter, i.e., prior art, and the claimed invention were not owned by, or subject to an obligation of assignment to, the same person at the time the invention was made.
(5) Applicants are responsible for correcting, and will be required to correct, the inventorship in compliance with 37 CFR 1.48 when the application is amended to change the claims so that one (or more) of the named inventors is no longer an inventor of the subject matter of a claim remaining in the application.
(6) In requiring restriction in an application filed by joint inventors the examiner will remind applicants of the necessity to correct the inventorship pursuant to 37 CFR 1.48 if an invention is elected and the claims to the invention of one or more inventors are cancelled.
(7) The examiner will not inquire of the patent applicant concerning the inventors and the invention dates for the subject matter of the various claims until it becomes necessary to do so in order to properly examine the application.
(8) If an application is filed with joint inventors, the examiner will assume that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time the inventions covered therein were made, unless there is evidence to the contrary. If inventors of subject matter, not commonly owned at the time of the later invention, file a joint application, applicants have an obligation pursuant to 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim and the lack of common ownership at the time the later invention was made in order that the examiner may consider the applicability of § 102(f)/103 or 102(g)/103. The examiner will assume, unless there is evidence to the contrary, that applicants are complying with their duty of disclosure.

Initial Guidelines As To Implementation Of 35 U.S.C. 120

Public Law 98-622 amended 35 U.S.C. 120 by striking out "by the same inventor" and inserting in its place "which is filed by an inventor or inventors named in the previously filed application."

The amended first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 120 (the bracketed portion was deleted and the underlined portion added) reads as follows:

§ 120. Benefit of earlier filing date in the United States

An application for patent for an invention disclosed in the manner provided by the first paragraph of section 112 of this title in an application previously filed in the United States, or as provided by section 363 of this title, [by the same inventor] which is filed by an inventor or inventors named in the previously filed application shall have the same effect, as though filed on the date of the prior application, if filed before the patenting or abandonment of or termination of proceedings on the first application or on an application similarly entitled to the benefit of the filing date of the first application and if it contains or is amended to contain a specific reference to the earlier filed application."

The significant features of these amendments to § 120 are the following:

(1) A later filed application by an inventor or inventors of a previously filed co-pending application may claim the benefit of the previously filed co-pending application under § 120 even though the later filed application does not name all of the same inventors as the previously filed application.
(2) In order for the later filed application to be entitled to claim the benefit of the earlier filed co-pending application under § 120 the earlier filed co-pending application must
(a) have at least one inventor in common with the later filed application;
(b) disclose the common inventor's invention in the manner provided by the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112, i.e., fully disclose and support at least one of the common inventor's claims found in the later application.
(3) When necessary the Patent and Trademark Office or a court may inquire of the patent applicant or owner as to who invented, and the date of invention of, the subject matter being claimed in any claims in the later filed application.
(4) Double patenting rejections may be applicable, whether or not the applications and patents are commonly owned as long as the applications/patent(s) have at least one inventor in common.
(5) If the applications and patents are commonly owned, the rejection of the applications on the grounds of double patenting can be overcome by an appropriate terminal disclaimer as long as the identical invention is not being claimed. See In re Robeson, 141 USPQ 485 (CCPA 1964), and In re Kaye, 141 USPQ 829 (CCPA 1964).
(6) If the applications and patents are not commonly owned, the double patenting rejection is entered in the later filed application and cannot be overcome by a terminal disclaimer since the ownership of the subject matter being claimed belongs to someone other than the owner of the later application.

Implementation Steps As To Amended 35 U.S.C. 120

(1) See items (1) to (4) above under "Applications To Be Considered" for applications to be considered under amended § 120.
(2) The examiner will examine any earlier filed co-pending application to which priority is claimed under § 120 to determine if
(a) the earlier filed co-pending application has at least one inventor in common with the later filed application;
(b) the other requirements for claiming benefit under 120 are met; and
(c) a rejection on the grounds of double patenting is proper.
(3) As long as the formal requirements for claiming benefit under § 120 are met, the examiner will permit the claim to be made without examining the earlier filed co-pending application for disclosure and support of at least one claim of the later filed application under the first paragraph of § 112 unless it becomes necessary to do so, e.g. because of an interference or an intervening reference.
(4) The examiner will not inquire of the patent applicant as to who invented, and the date of invention of, the subject matter being claimed in any claims in the later filed application until it becomes necessary to do so in order to properly examine the application.
(5) The examiner will examine the earlier and later filed applications and make actual or provisional rejections for double patenting where appropriate, whether or not the applications are commonly owned.

Example 1 - Single Application - Plural Inventors

Inventors A and B, both employees of Company E with obligation to assign all their inventions to E develop inventions X and Y respectively. An application for patent is properly filed listing A and B as joint inventors and with claims to both X and Y as now possible under § 116 as amended by Public Law 98-622.

Situation 1.
The claims to X and Y are not patentably distinct.

Examiner's Action:
If otherwise patentable over the prior art—allows application.

Situation 2.
The claims to X and Y are patentably distinct.

Examiner's Action:
Require restriction and election of claims to either X or Y. The applicant, after election, must correct the inventorship of the application to ist only the inventor of the elected invention; for example, inventor A if claims to invention X were elected. A divisional application with B as inventor and claims to Y may claim benefit of the originally filed application under 35 U.S.C. 120 as amended by Public Law 98-622.

Situation 3.
The application contains a Markush-type claim to X and Y and separate species claims to X and Y.

Examiner's Action:
(a) Examine the application to determine if the inventions X and Y are restrictable. If so, the claims to elected invention X (assume X is elected by applicants) and the X portion of the Markush claim to X and Y are examined.
(i) if the claim to X is allowable, the entire Markush claim and the species claim to Y must also be examined.
(ii) if the claim to X is not allowable, no further action on species claim Y or the Y portion of the Markush claim is required.

The inventorship of the application at the time of allowance must be corrected, if necessary, to correspond to the inventions covered by the claims allowed.

Example 2 - Multiple applications - plural inventions

Inventors A and B, both employees of Company E, with obligation to assign all their inventions to E, develop inventions X and Y with Y being developed by B after knowledge of A's development of X. A files application on X before B's development of Y and B later files application. Both applications establish they are owned by Company E.

Situation 1.
The claims to X and Y are not patentably distinct.

Examiner's Action:
(a) Examine the applications as to all grounds except § 102(f) and (g) as they apply through § 103;
(b) Make a provisional rejection of the later filed application on the grounds of double patenting of the obviousness type, if appropriate. If a terminal disclaimer is filed in accordance with § 1.321(b), the provisional double patenting rejection of the obviousness type will be overcome;
(c) Examine the later filed application under § 102(e)/103 and make a provisional rejection based on § 102(e)/103, if appropriate. An affidavit under § 1.131 can be filed to overcome the rejection based on § 102(e)/103.

Situation 2.
After receiving the examiner's action in situation 1, A and B filed a continuation-in-part application with inventor C and claim A's invention, B's invention and an improvement they jointly developed with C. A and B abandon their prior applications.

Examiner's Action:
Examine the application in the normal manner; no double patenting and 102(e)/103 problems now exist.

Example 3 - Two copending applications with no indication in the record of common ownership
Inventor A files an application with claims to invention X. Another copending application is filed by inventor B claiming invention Y. There is no indication of common ownership.

Situation 1.
The claims in the two applications are directed to patentably distinct inventions.

Examiner's Action:
If the claims are otherwise allowable, the applications are both allowed.

Situation 2.
The claims in the two applications are not patentably distinct.

Examiner's Action:
The applications are prosecuted until one application is allowable. If the time difference between the two applications is too large to declare an interference, action on the later filed application is suspended until the earlier filed application issues as a patent. At that time the later filed application is rejected over the earlier filed application under § 102(e)/103.
If the filing dates of the applications are sufficiently close to declare an interference, claims for an interference should be suggested. If the applications are commonly owned, the common owner must make the ownership known. When such common ownership is made known, a provisional double patenting rejection should be made in the later filed application. If the double patenting rejection is of the obviousness type, a terminal disclaimer under 37 CFR 1.321(b) may be filed. The later filed application should be examined under § 102(e)/103 and a provisional rejection based on § 102(e)/103 should be made in the later filed application, if appropriate. An affidavit under § 1.131 can be filed to overcome a rejection based on § 102(e)/103.
Example 4 - Claims in single application by different inventors.
An application for patent is filed in the Patent and Trademark Office in which the owner E sets forth the following information.
"The subject matter of claim 1 was invented by inventor A. The subject matter of claim 2 was invented by inventor B. Inventor B knew of the invention of inventor A at the time he made his invention. Both A and B made their inventions while working for owner E with a duty to assign". The inventions are different but not patentably distinct.

Examiner's Action:
If the claims are patentable over the prior art, the application should be allowed.

Public Law 98-622
Signed November 8, 1984
Ninety-eighth Congress of the United States of America

AT THE SECOND SESSION

Begun and held at the City of Washington on Monday, the twenty-third day of January, one thousand nine hundred and eighty-four

An Act

To amend title 35, United States Code, to increase the effectiveness of the patent laws, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SHORT TITLE

SECTION 1. This Act may be cited as the "Patent Law Amendments Act of 1984".

TITLE I-PATENT IMPROVEMENT PROVISIONS

USE OF PATENTED INVENTIONS OUTSIDE

THE UNITED STATES

SEC. 101.(a) Section 271 of title 35, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:
"(f)(1) Whoever without authority supplies or causes to be supplied in or from the United States all or a substantial portion of the components of a patented invention, where such components are uncombined in whole or in part, in such manner as to actively induce the combination of such components outside of the United States in a manner that would infringe the patent if such combination occurred within the United States, shall be liable as an infringer.
"(2) Whoever without authority supplies or causes to be supplied in or from the United States any component of a patented invention that is especially made or especially adapted for use in the invention and not a staple article or commodity of commerce suitable for substantial noninfringing use, where such component is uncombined in whole or in part, knowing that such component is so made or adapted and intending that such component will be combined outside of the United States in a manner that would infringe the patent if such combination occurred within the United States, shall be liable as an infringer."

STATUTORY INVENTION REGISTRATION

SEC. 102.(a) Chapter 14 of title 35, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

§ 157. Statutory invention registration

"(a) Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, the Commissioner is authorized to publish a statutory invention registration containing the specification and drawings of a regularly filed application for a patent without examination if the applicant:
"(1) meets the requirements of section 112 of this title;
"(2) has complied with the requirements for printing, as set forth in regulations of the Commissioner;
"(3) waives the right to receive a patent on the invention within such period as may be prescribed by the Commissioner; and
"(4) pays application, publication, and other processing fees established by the Commissioner.
If an interference is declared with respect to such an application, a statutory invention registration may not be published unless the issue of priority of invention is finally determined in favor of the applicant.
"(b) The waiver under subsection (a)(3) of this section by an applicant shall take effect upon publication of the statutory invention registration.
"(c) A statutory invention registration published pursuant to this section shall have all of the attributes specified for patents in this title except those specified in section 183 and sections 271 through 289 of this title. A statutory invention registration shall not have any of the attributes specified for patents in any other provision of law other than this title. A statutory invention registration published pursuant to this section shall give appropriate notice to the public, pursuant to regulations which the Commissioner shall issue, of the preceding provisions of this subsection. The invention with respect to which a statutory invention certificate is published is not a patented invention for purposes of section 292 of this title.
"(d) The Secretary of Commerce shall report to the Congress annually on the use of statutory invention registrations. Such report shall include an assessment of the degree to which agencies of the Federal Government are making use of the statutory invention registration system, the degree to which it aids the management of federally developed technology, and an assessment of the cost savings to the Federal Government of the use of such procedures."
(b) The table of sections at the beginning of chapter 14 of title 35, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following:

"157. Statutory invention registration.".

(c) The amendments made by this section shall take effect six months after the date of the enactment of this Act.

PRIOR ART

SEC. 103. Section 103 of title 35, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following:
"Subject matter developed by another person, which qualifies as prior art only under subsection (f) or (g) of section 102 of this title, shall not preclude patentability under this section where the subject matter and the claimed invention were, at the time the invention was made, owned by the same person or subject to an obligation of assignment to the same person."

JOINT INVENTORS

SEC. 104. (a) Section 116 of title 35, United States Code, is amended by amending the first paragraph to read as follows:

"When an invention is made by two or more persons jointly, they shall apply for patent jointly and each make the required oath, except as otherwise provided in this title. Inventors may apply for a patent jointly even though (1) they did not physically work together or at the same time, (2) each did not make the same type or amount of contribution, or (3) each did not make a contribution to the subject matter of every claim of the patent."

(b) Section 120 of title 35, United States Code, is amended by striking out "by the same inventor" and inserting in lieu thereof "which is filed by an inventor or inventors named in the previously filed application".

ARBITRATION OF INTERFERENCES

SEC. 105. Section 135 of title 35, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:
"(d) Parties to a patent interference, within such time as may be specified by the Commissioner by regulation, may determine such contest or any aspect thereof by arbitration. Such arbitration shall be governed by the provisions of title 9 to the extent such title is not inconsistent with this section. The parties shall give notice of any arbitration award to the Commissioner, and such award shall, as between the parties to the arbitration, be dispositive of the issues to which it relates. The arbitration award shall be unenforceable until such notice is given. Nothing in this subsection shall preclude the Commissioner from determining patentability of the invention involved in the interference.".

EFFECTIVE DATE

SEC. 106. (a) Subject to subsections (b), (c), (d), and (e) of this section, the amendments made by this Act shall apply to all United States patents granted before, on, or after the date of enactment of this Act, and to all applications for United States patents pending on or filed after the date of enactment.
(b) The amendments made by this Act shall not affect any final decision made by the court or the Patent and Trademark Office before the date of enactment of this Act with respect to a patent or application for patent, if no appeal from such decision is pending and the time for filing an appeal has expired.
(c) Section 271(f) of title 35, United States Code, added by section 101 of this Act shall apply only to the supplying, or causing to be supplied, of any component or components of a patented invention after the date of enactment of this Act.
(d) No United States patent granted before the date of enactment of this Act shall abridge or affect the right of any person or his successors in business who made, purchased, or used prior to such effective date anything protected by the patent, to continue the use of, or to sell to others to be used or sold, the specific thing so made, purchased, or used, if the patent claims were invalid or otherwise unenforceable on a ground obviated by section 103 or 104 of this Act and the person made, purchased, or used the specific thing in reasonable reliance on such invalidity or unenforceability. If a person reasonably relied on such invalidity or unenforceability, the court before which such matter is in question may provide for the continued manufacture, use, or sale of the thing made, purchased, or used as specified, or for the manufacture, use, or sale of which substantial preparation was made before the date of enactment of this Act, and it may also provide for the continued practice of any process practiced, or for the practice of which substantial preparation was made, prior to the date of enactment, to the extent and under such terms as the court deems equitable for the protection of investments made or business commenced before the date of enactment.
(e) The amendments made by this Act shall not affect the right of any party in any case pending in court on the date of enactment to have their rights determined on the basis of the substantive law in effect prior to the date of enactment.

TITLE II-PATENT AND TRADEMARK OFFICE PROCEDURES

BOARD OF PATENT APPEALS AND INTERFERENCES

SEC. 201. (a) Section 7 of title 35, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

§ 7. Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences

The Commissioner, the Deputy Commissioner, the Assistant Commissioners, and the examiners-in-chief shall constitute the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences.
"(b) The Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences shall, on written appeal of an applicant, review adverse decisions of examiners upon applications for patents and shall determine priority and patentability of invention in interferences declared under section 135(a) of this title. Each appeal and interference shall be heard by at least three members of the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences, who shall be designated by the Commissioner. Only the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences has the authority to grant hearings.
"(c) Whenever the Commissioner considers it necessary, in order to keep current the work of the Board of Patent Apeals and Interferences, theCommissioner may designate any patent examiner of the primary examiner grade or higher, having the requisite ability, to serve as examiner-in-chief for periods not exceeding six months each. An examiner so designated shall be qualified to act as a member of the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences. Not more than one of the members of the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences hearing an appeal or determining an interference may be an examiner so designated. The Secretary of Commerce is authorized to fix the pay of each designated examiner-in-chief in the Patent and Trademark Office at not to exceed the maximum rate of basic pay payable for grade GS 16 of the General Schedule under section 5332 of title 5. The rate of basic pay of each individual designated examiner-in-chief shall be adjusted, at the close of the period for which that individual was designated to act as examiner-in-chief, to the rate of basic pay which that individual would have been receiving at the close of such period if such designation had not been made."

ence may be declared and the Commissioner shall give notice of such declaration to the applicants, or applicant and patentee, as the case may be. The Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences shall determine questions of priority of the inventions and may determine questions of patentability. Any final decision, if adverse to the claim of an applicant, shall constitute the final refusal by the Patent and Trademark Office of the claims involved, and the Commissioner may issue a patent to the applicant who is adjudged the prior inventor. A final judgment adverse to a patentee from which no appeal or other review has been or can be taken or had shall constitute cancellation of the claims involved in the patent, and notice of such cancellation shall be endorsed on copies of the patent distributed after such cancellation by the Patent and Trademark Office."

Miscellaneous Changes in Patent Practice

Agency: Patent and Trademark Office, Commerce.
Action: Final Rule.
Summary: The Patent and Trademark Office (Office) is amending the rules of practice in patent cases to: expand the authority to sign a terminal disclaimer in a patent application or a disclaimer in a patent; eliminate some formal requirements for an appeal brief for an appellant appearing without counsel; prohibit fee extensions of time to file reply briefs and requests for oral hearing; clarify the requirements for claiming foreign priority; specify the manner in which the fee deficiency is computed when applicants seek to correct an error in claiming small entity status; and correct errors in published regulations.
Effective Date: Jan. 3, 1994. The time periods and extension of time provisions of §§ 1.193 and 1.194 for filing reply briefs and requests for oral hearing will be applicable where the examiner's answer was mailed on or after the effective date.
For Further Information Contact: Abraham Hershkovitz by telephone at (703) 305-9282, or by facsimile transmission at (703) 305-8825, or by mail marked to his attention and addressed to: Office of the Assistant Commissioner for Patents, Box DAC, Washington, D.C. 20231.
Supplementary Information: In a Notice of Proposed Rulemaking published in the Federal Register at 57 FR 43412 (September 21, 1992) and in the Patent and Trademark Office Official Gazette at 1143 Off. Gaz. Pat. Office 33-40 (October 13, 1992), the Office proposed to amend several rules of practice in patent and trademark cases. This rulemaking includes changes in § 1.9(d) which were not part of the proposed rules. The changes in § 1.9(d) were made in order to update the information pertaining to establishing small entity status as a small business. No substantive changes have been made in § 1.9(d). The proposed rule requiring that the specification of a design application describe the nature and intended use of the article being claimed has been withdrawn. Additionally, the proposed rule prohibiting a fee extension of time to file corrected drawings after allowance has been withdrawn.

Written comments were submitted by 13 firms, one association and one individual. An oral hearing was not conducted.

The following includes a discussion of the rules being changed and the reasons for those changes and an analysis of the comments received in response to the notice of proposed rulemaking.

Discussion of Specific Sections to be Changed or Added:

(1) Definitions (Section 1.9)

Section 1.9(d) is amended in order to update the information therein regarding the regulations of the Small Business Administration (SBA). The SBA's rule for defining a small business has been modified. Section 1.9(d) will no longer repeat the SBA rule in its entirety. Rather, § 1.9(d), as adopted, contains a short summary of the SBA definitions. The size limit of 500 employees (including those of its affiliates) for a small business concern has not been changed. Information on size standards for a small business concern may be obtained from the Small Business Administration by calling (202) 205-6618, or by writing to: Small Business Administration, Size Standards Staff, 409 Third Street, S.W., Washington, D.C. 20416.

(2) Copies of Papers (Section 1.13)

Section 1.13(a) is amended to clarify that the paragraph pertains to non-certified copies, and that copies of patents, trademark registrations and other papers within the jurisdiction of the Office, as opposed to being within the jurisdiction of another agency, may be obtained from the Office upon payment of the fee therefor.
Section 1.13(b) is amended to clarify that certified copies of the above items may be obtained from the Office upon payment of the fee for a certified copy.

(3) Patent Applications Preserved in Secrecy (Section 1.14)

Section 1.14(b) is amended to correct a typographical error in that the second and third sentences of this section were inadvertently deleted during an earlier revision of this section. See 50 Fed. Reg. 9378 (March 7, 1985) and 1053 Off. Gaz. Pat. Office 10-26 (April 2, 1985). Section 1.14(b) is amended by restoring the deleted sentences and by changing, in the first sentence, the plural "applicants" to the singular "applicant".

(4) Effect on Fees of Failure to Establish Status, or Change Status, as Small Entity (Section 1.28)

Section 1.28(c) is amended to reflect Office practice in calculating fee deficiencies when fees have been improperly paid as a small entity. The Office receives deficiency payments that differ based on varying interpretations of § 1.28(c). Some simply double the small entity fee in effect when the fee was originally paid in error in the small entity amount, while others compute the difference between the fee already paid and the other than small entity fee level in effect at the time the deficiency is paid. The Office requires payments to be based on fee levels in effect at the time the other than small entity fee is paid.

Since 1989, fee levels have been adjusted annually. In view of these adjustments, there are frequently situations where the fee amount has changed since it was originally paid erroneously at the small entity rate. Calculation of deficiency amounts based on fee levels in effect at the time the deficiency is paid conforms with the general concept that fees to be paid are those in effect at the time of receipt of the fees. Section 1.28(c) is amended to reflect this practice of calculating the amount of the deficiency based on the fee level in effect at the time of the deficiency payment.

(5) Claim for Foreign Priority (Section 1.55)

Section 1.55(a) is amended to incorporate the limitations of 35 U.S.C. 119, which provides that the claim for priority and the appropriate copy of the foreign application must be filed before the patent is granted. Additionally, some applicants did not realize that submission of priority papers after payment of the issue fee, but before the grant of the patent, required the filing of a petition to accept submission of priority papers after payment of the issue fee. After a patent is granted, applicants may still be able to establish priority benefits by filing a reissue application to correct the failure to perfect the claim for priority. Brenner v. State of Israel, 400 F.2d 789, 158 USPQ 584 (D.C. Cir. 1968). Section 1.55(a) lists separately those instances when priority documents must be filed prior to payment of the issue fee to receive the benefit of the filing date of a prior foreign application. Furthermore, § 1.55(a) is amended to clarify when a verified English language translation of priority application not in the English language must be filed and to require a statement from the translator that the translation of the priority document is accurate. Krenitsky v. Utagawa, 215 USPQ 713 (Comm'r Pat. 1981).

(6) Claiming Benefit of Earlier Filing Date and Cross References to other Applications (Section 1.78)

Section 1.78(a) is amended to correct a typographical error. In the reference to the fee in § 1.21(l), the letter (l) should have appeared instead of the numeral (1). Section 1.78(a) is further amended to be consistent with § 1.5(a), by permitting the identification of the prior application by application number or serial number and filing date.

(7) Prohibition of Fee Extensions of Time (Section 1.136(a))

Section 1.136(a) is amended by adding two additional situations in which applicants would no longer be able to use fee extensions. Section 1.136(a) is rearranged so that referenced sections appear in numerical order. The new prohibitions will apply to situations where the request to extend the time is: (1) to permit filing reply briefs under § 1.193(b); and (2) to permit filing requests for oral hearing under § 1.194(b) before the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences (Board). Fee extensions of time to file reply briefs or requests for oral hearing delay transfer of jurisdiction of the appeal to the Board and unnecessarily delay final disposition of the appeal.
The Office has considered changing the practice to require payment of the fee and filing the request for an extension of time before the period set for response expires in the situations addressed in this rulemaking, but did not adopt that approach because of the complexity that it would introduce into the system.
Under the previous rules, applicants could request a maximum four-month extension of time under § 1.136(a) to file reply briefs or request oral hearings. Since the backlog of cases awaiting a decision by the Board has been reduced, these extension requests have resulted in unnecessary delays in transmitting appeals to the Board and increased pendency of applications. The periods specified in1.193(b) and 1.194(b), as adopted, are considered sufficient to file a reply brief or request an oral hearing. Extensions of time for cause may be available under § 1.136(b). Therefore, § 1.136(a) is amended to prohibit fee extensions of time to file a reply brief or request an oral hearing.

(8) Appeal to the Board of Patent appeals and Interferences (Section 1.191)

Section 1.191(d) is amended to be consistent with the changes to 1.136(a).

(9) Appellant's Brief (Section 1.192)

Sections 1.192(a) and (d) are amended by moving the last sentence of current § 1.192(d) to § 1.192(a) to highlight that the Board may refuse consideration of any arguments or authorities not included in the brief
Section 1.192(c) is amended to eliminate some of the formal requirements for an appeal brief for a pro se appellant, that is, an appellant appearing without counsel. An appellant appearing without counsel means there is no attorney or agent of record in the application or reexamination proceeding, the brief was not prepared by a registered practitioner, and the brief was not signed by a registered practitioner. Paragraph (c) is amended to allow a pro se appellant's brief to be accepted provided it is at least in substantial compliance with the requirements of subparagraphs (1), (2), (6) and (7) of paragraph (c). If a pro se appellant's brief is accepted, it will be presumed that a rejected group of claims stand or fall together unless an argument is included in the brief that presents reasons as to why appellant considers one or more claims in the rejected group of claims to be separately patentable from the other claims in the group.

(10) Examiner's Answer (Section 1.193)

Section 1.193(b) is amended to clarify the consequence of failure to file a reply brief in response to an expressly stated new ground of rejection made in an examiner's answer. The failure to file a reply brief will result in dismissal of the appeal as to the claims made subject to the expressly stated new ground of rejection. If the dismissal of the appeal applies to all claims in the application, the application will be abandoned. Additionally, this section is amended to change the period for filing a reply brief to two months from the date of the examiner's answer, regardless of whether the examiner's answer includes a new ground of rejection. The change to two months will avoid confusion in those cases in which there is a disagreement as to whether the examiner's answer in fact states a new ground of rejection and will provide an adequate period of time to file a reply brief without the need to request an extension of time. Finally, this section is amended to be consistent with the changes to § 1.136(a).

(11) Oral Hearing (Section 1.194)

Section 1.194(b) is amended to be consistent with the changes to 1.136(a). Under the previous rule, if a new ground of rejection was made in an examiner's answer, two months were permitted for filing a reply brief and, if a reply brief was filed, an applicant was permitted three months after the date of filing a reply brief to file a request for an oral hearing. In order to provide a more consistent approach vis-a-vis time periods for filing reply briefs and requests for oral hearing and to permit earlier decisions of issues on appeal, the period for filing a request for oral hearing has been changed to two (2) months from the date of an examiner's answer, regardless of whether the examiner's answer includes a new ground of rejection. This period should be sufficient to request an oral hearing without the need to request an extension of time.

(12) Decision by the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences (Section 1.196)

Section 1.196(f) is amended to refer to § 1.550(c) for extensions of time in reexamination proceedings.

(13) Action Following Decision (Section 1.197)

1170
1995
UMI

Section 1.197(b) is amended to refer to § 1.550(c) for extensions of time in reexamination proceedings.

(14) Amendments After Allowance (Section 1.312)

Section 1.312(b) is amended to clarify that the fee required for a petition under this section is that specified in § 1.17(i)(1).

(15) Statutory Disclaimers, Including Terminal Disclaimers (Section 1.321).

The title of section 1.321 is amended to clarify that this section applies to terminal disclaimers, as well as to statutory disclaimers in general. Section 1.321 is further amended to permit the signing of a disclaimer in a patent by the patentee, or an attorney or agent of record. whereas, persons permitted to sign a disclaimer in a patent application will be any person specified in § 1.33(a)(1)-(4). The person signing the disclaimer must state the present extent of the disclaiming party's (i.e., patentee's or assignee's) interest in the patent or patent application. Naturally, a disclaimer signed on behalf of a party who no longer has an ownership interest in the patent or patent application cannot be accepted since 35 U.S.C. 253 requires a disclaimer to be signed by the owner of the whole or any sectional interest in the patent or patent application.

Section 253 of Title 35 of the United States Code states that disclaimer of any complete claim in a patent may be made by the patentee. Furthermore, any terminal part of the patent granted or to be granted may be disclaimed by the patentee, or applicant, respectively. It was the recent policy of the Office to accept disclaimers only if signed by the owner of record. This policy was too restrictive in that it precluded authorized patent practitioners from signing disclaimers. Furthermore, it was often difficult to ascertain whether the person signing was in fact an officer of the entity owning rights to the application. Accordingly, the rules as adopted, permit an attorney or agent of record to sign terminal disclaimers.

If the patent or patent application is assigned to an organization, such as a corporation, partnership, university, Government agency, or similar entity, and the disclaimer is signed by the assignee, the assignee must comply with § 3.73(b). See "Taking Action in a Patent Matter Before the Office by the Assignee under 37 CFR 3.73", at 1150 Off. Gaz. Pat. Office 62 (May 25, 1993). However, the rules, as adopted, permit an attorney or agent of record to sign a terminal disclaimer without the need to comply with § 3.73(b). Paragraph (a) of this section is further amended to refer only to disclaimers filed in patents. The Office does not record a disclaimer of part of a claim or claims. Hence, paragraph (a) of this section is amended to indicate that a disclaimer which does not disclaim a complete claim or claims will be refused recordation, rather than "may be refused recordation" as the rule read previously.

Paragraph (b) of this section is amended to refer only to terminal disclaimers filed in a patent application. Section 1.321(b) is also amended to include a reminder that the disclaimer is binding upon the grantee and its successors or assigns.

Paragraph (c) of this section incorporates the language of former paragraph (b) of this section concerning terminal disclaimers to obviate a double patenting rejection. This paragraph also includes reference to terminal disclaimers filed in reexamination proceedings for the same purpose.

(16) Publication of Notice of Proposed Amendments (Section 1.352(a))

Section 1.352(a) is amended to delete the language "and in other cases whenever practicable" so that the Office may engage in expedited rulemaking when publication of a notice of proposed amendments to regulations is not required by law.

(17) Time for Payment of Maintenance Fees (Section 1.362)

Section 1.362 is amended to clarify applicability and due dates for payment of maintenance fees. Paragraph (c)(3) of § 1.362 indicates that the actual filing date of a continuing application determines applicability of maintenance fees, while paragraph (c)(4) indicates that in the case of a reissue application, the filing date of the original non-reissue application determines applicability of maintenance fees. Some patentees and patent practitioners expressed confusion with respect to applicability of maintenance fees in the case of a continuing application of a reissue application. Uncertainty has been expressed as to whether this type of application would fall within paragraph (c) (3) or (c) (4). The amendment to 1.362(c)(4) clarifies that continuing reissue application of a reissue application is subject to maintenance fees only if the original (non-reissue) patent would be subject to such fees. These amendments also remove any confusion that may have existed with regard to the due dates for payment of maintenance fees in reissued patents by adding § 1.362(h) to specify that the due dates for payment of maintenance fees in such reissued patents are computed from the date of grant of the original (non-reissue) patent. The due dates for payment of maintenance fees in a reissued patent are computed from the date of grant of the original (non-reissue) patent. Note the distinction between a continuing reissue application of a reissue application, and a regular continuing application of a reissue application as discussed In re Bauman, 683 F.2d 405, 214 USPQ 585 (CCPA 1982).

In a notice entitled "Revision of Patent and Trademark Fees" published in the Federal Register at 56 FR 65142 (December 13, 1991), the Office announced an amendment to its rules of practice. Included in that notice was a change to paragraph (e) of § 1.362 which was not intended. See 56 FR at 65146. The portion of paragraph (e) which was not intended to be amended is changed back to its earlier version.

(18) Request by Applicant for Interference With Patent (Section 1.6077)

Section 1.607(a)(5) (i) is amended to correct a typographical error in the spelling of the word "count".

(19) Export of Technical data (Section 5.19)

Section 5.19(a) is amended to correct the citations set forth in the rule and to update the name of the office in the Department of Commerce.

(20) Sharing legal fees (Section 10.48)

Section 10.48(b) is amended to correct a typographical error in the spelling of the word "deceased".

Response to Comments on the Rules

The comments received in response to the notice of proposed rulemaking have been given careful consideration and a number of the suggested modifications have been adopted. The comments and responses are discussed below.

Comment: One comment inquired as to why the phrase by "serial number and filing date" was used in § 1.78(a), where as the phrase "application number (consisting of the series code and serial number, e.g., 07/123,456), or the serial number and filing date" was used in § 1.5(a).

Response: The inconsistency has been removed by having section 1.78(a) changed to use terminology consistent with § 1.5(a).

Comment: A number of comments directed to § 1.85(c) expressed concern that applications would become abandoned as a result of the proposal that fee extensions of time under § 1.136(a) could not be obtained for filing corrected drawings.

Response: The proposal that fee extensions of time under § 1.136(a) not be permitted for filing corrected drawings has been withdrawn.

Comment: Regarding § 1.85(c), one comment recommended that the Notice of Draftman's Patent Drawing Review (PTOL-948) include seperate boxes for each drawing objection (e.g., a seperate box for each of "pale," "rough," "blurred," and "jagged"); that drafting personnel be better trained to more completely communicate the objection to any particular drawing; and that the Notice of Allowability indicate for which specific figure formal drawings are required.

Response: The proposed rule changed to § 1.85(c) has been withdrawn. Questions concerning the Notice of Draftman's Patent Drawing Review may be referred to the Official Draftman at (703) 305-8335, and questions concerning any requirement on a Notice of Allowability should be directed to the examiner.

Comment: Regarding §§ 1.153 and 1.154, a number of comments objected to the proposed requirement that the specification of a design application contain a statement of the nature and intended use of the article claimed.

Response: The proposed rule change regarding §§ 1.153 and 1.154 has been withdrawn. The Office will continue its current practice of mailing a request for information where the nature or intended use of the article is not evident in the application file.

Comment: Regarding § 1.153, one comment stated that the language of the proposed rule is unclear as to whether an abstract is required. The comment recommended that the Office should require an abstract and require it to provide the necessary information.

Response: As discussed above, the proposed rule change regarding §§ 1.153 and 1.154 has been withdrawn. The present rules do not require an Abstract. Suggestions concerning this issue may be directed to the Director of Examining Group 2900.

Comment: Regarding §§ 1.193(b) and 1.194(b), one comment opposed the elimination of fee extensions in the filing of reply briefs and requests for oral hearings, as one month, while often a sufficient time to file a reply brief, is insufficient where counsel must communicate with a patent department or foreign applicants, especially where there is a delay between the time the Office mails the communication and it is received by counsel.

Response: The period for filing a reply brief or request for oral hearing has been changed to two months from the date of the examiner's answer. The period was extended to two months in this rulemaking, as adopted, to provide appellants adequate time to take appropriate action, and to provide a uniform period in the rules to file a reply brief or request an oral hearing. Extensions of time for cause under § 1.136(b) will be available for those rare situations when an extension is necessary.

Comment: Regarding §§ 1.193(b) and 1.194(b), one comment opposed the elimination of fee extensions in the filing of reply briefs and requests for oral hearings, as a one-month period for response is insufficient for sole practitioners and persons who do not maintain offices for the sole purpose of responding to Office communications.

Response: As discussed above, the period for filing a reply brief or request for oral hearing has been changed to two months from the date of the examiner's answer. This two-month period should be an adequate period of time for filing a reply brief or a request for an oral hearing. Extensions of time for cause under § 1.136(b) will be available for those rare situations when an extension is necessary.

Comment: Regarding §§ 1.193(b) and 1.194(b), one comment deemed it reasonable and necessary that the Board have at its disposal all possible arguments. The refusal to enter a reply brief was characterized as an impediment to a decision based upon a complete record. Additionally, the comment argued that the refusal to enter a reply brief would result in attempts to enter the arguments under another guise, such as during oral argument or by filing a memorandum of oral argument.

Response: An appellant should present all arguments for patentability in the appeal brief. A reply brief should not be necessary to present a complete record, and would be inappropriate except in those case where the examiner has introduced a new point of argument or new ground of rejection in the examiner's answer.

Comment: Regarding §§ 1.193(b) and 1 194(b), one comment noted that fee extensions for filing reply briefs and requests for oral hearings do not create any more of a delay in the final disposition of an appeal than a fee extension for filing the Notice of Appeal or the brief in support of the appeal.

Response: The comment reflects a misunderstanding of the appeal process and the handling of applications in which an appeal has been filed. Under the existing rules before this rulemaking, appellants were able, with the maximum four-month fee extension, to file reply briefs or request oral hearings up to six months after an examiner's answer. As a result, appeals otherwise ready for a decision were either held in the examining group for that period of time before transmittal to the Board or when transmitted to the Board earlier, were occasionally acted upon by a Board panel before the reply briefs or requests for oral hearing were filed, requiring the Board to vacate its decision. As the backlog of appeals awaiting a decision by the Board has been reduced, retaining applications in the examining group has resulted in unnecessarily prolonging the pendency of applications. Under the rules as adopted, appellants are generally given more time (two months instead of one month) to file a reply brief or request an oral hearing, and the Office minimizes the delay necessary before transmitting the appeal to the Board for decision.

Comment: Regarding § 1.193(b), one comment stated that an appeal should not be dismissed for failure to file a reply brief to a new ground of rejection made in the examiner's answer, unless the examiner's answer expressly states that there is a new ground of rejection. The comment suggests that this rule should recite "If the examiner's answer expressly states a new ground of rejection is being made...."

Response: The proposal has been adopted to the extent that the final rule, as adopted, states "If the examiner's answer expressly states that it includes a new ground of rejection, appellant must file a reply thereto within two months from the date of such answer to avoid dismissal of the appeal as to the claims subject to the new ground of rejection."

Comment: Regarding § 1.193(b), one comment recommended that appellants should be given three months to respond to a new ground of rejection in an examiner's answer, as the current two-month time period is inadequate, and this period would be equal to the period given for response to rejections under § 1.106.

Response: This recommendation is not adopted. The Office experience has shown that the two-month period from the date of an examiner's answer has been an adequate period of time for filing a reply brief in response to a new ground of rejection. Also, it is desirable to set a uniform period of time in the rules to file a reply brief. Extensions of time for cause under § 1.136(b) will be available for those rare situations when an extension is necessary.

Comment: One comment recommended that appellants should be permitted to obtain fee extensions where the examiner's answer includes a new ground of rejection.

Response: This recommendation is not adopted. As indicated above, fee extensions for filing reply briefs have resulted in unnecessarily prolonging the pendency of applications. Extensions of time for cause under § 1.136(b) will be available for those rare situations when an extension is necessary.

Comment: Regarding §§ 1.193(b) and 1.194(b), one comment suggested that the rule be modified to permit the filing of a request for an oral hearing concurrently with a reply brief as one cannot appropriately determine the necessity for an oral hearing until a reply brief is drafted.

Response: Under the proposed rules, the time period for filing a request for an oral hearing was the later of one month from the date of an examiner's answer, or the date of filing a timely reply brief. Under the rules as adopted, an appellant has two months from the date of the examiner's answer to file a reply brief and request an oral hearing. Therefore, a request for oral hearing may be filed concurrently with a reply brief.

Comment: Regarding § 1.312, one comment recommended that amendments under § 1.312 be processed expeditiously, as the current system for the processing of such amendments is inadequate.

Response: Examiners are instructed to act promptly on all amendments under § 1.312. Any problems should be brought to the attention of the Group Director.

OTHER CONSIDERATIONS

The rule changes are in conformity with the requirements of the Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C. 601 et seq.), Executive Orders 12291 and 12612 and the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et seq.

The General Counsel of the Department of Commerce has certified to the Chief Counsel for Advocacy, Small Business Administration, that these rule changes will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities (Regulatory Flexibility Act, 5 U.S.C. 605(b)). The principal impact of these changes is to permit persons other than the assignee of a patent application or patent to sign certain disclaimers, incorporate existing Office policy into the regulations and eliminate the opportunity to pay for extensions of time in certain situations where the extensions substantially interfere with the efficient operation of the Office.

The Office has determined that this rule change is not a major rule under Executive Order 12291. The annual effect on the economy will be less than $100 million. There will be no major increase in costs or prices for consumers; individuals; industries; Federal, state or local government agencies; or geographic regions. There will be no significant adverse effects on competition, employment, investment, productivity, innovation, or on the ability of United States-based enterprises to compete with foreign-based enterprises in domestic or export markets.

The Office has also determined that this notice has no Federalism implications affecting the relationship between the National Government and the States as outlined in Executive Order 12612.

These rule changes contain collection-of-information requirements subject to the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et seq., which has previously been approved by the Office of Management and Budget under Control No. 0651-0011. Public reporting burden for these collections of information is estimated to average 0.1 hours each for fee extensions of time under § 1.136(a), and 0.2 hours each for disclaimers under § 1.321, including the time for reviewing instructions, searching existing data sources, gathering and maintaining the data needed, and completing and reviewing the collection of information. Send comments regarding these burden estimates, or any other aspect of this collection of information, including suggestions for reducing the burden, to Abraham Hershkovitz, Office of the Assistant Commissioner for Patents, Box DAC, Washington, D.C. 20231, and to the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs, Office of Management and Budget, Washington, D.C. 20503 (ATTN: Paperwork Reduction Act Project No. 0651-0031).

The statement must be a verified statement if made by a person not registered to practice before the Patent and Trademark Office. The deficiency is based on the amount of the fee, for other than a small entity, in effect at the time the deficiency is paid in full.

The claim to priority need be in no special form and may be made by the attorney or agent if the foreign application is referred to in the oath or declaration as required by § 1.63. The claim for priority and the certified copy of the foreign application specified in the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 119 must be filed:

(1) in the case of an interference (§ 1.630);

(2) when necessary to overcome the date of a reference relied upon by the examiner;

(3) when specifically required by the examiner; and

(4) in all cases, before the patent is granted. If the claim for priority or the certified copy of the foreign application is filed after the date the issue fee is paid, it must be accompanied by a petition requesting entry and by the fee set forth in § 1.17(i)(1). If the certified copy filed is not in the English language, a translation need not be filed except in the case of an interference; or when necessary to overcome the date of a reference relied upon by the examiner; or when specifically required by the examiner, in which event an English language translation must be filed together with a statement that the translation of the certified copy is accurate. The statement must be a verified statement if made by a person not registered to practice before the Patent and Trademark Office.

§ 1.78 Claiming benefit of earlier filing date and cross references to other applications.

(a)(1) An application may claim an invention disclosed in a prior filed copending national application or international application designating the United States of America. In order for an application to claim the benefit of a prior filed copending national application, the prior application must name as an inventor at least one inventor named in the later filed application and disclose the named inventor's invention claimed in at least one claim of the later filed application in the manner provided by the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112. In addition, the prior application must be

(i) complete as set forth in § 1.51; or

(ii) entitled to a filing date as set forth in § 1.53(b) and include the basic filing fee set forth in § 1.16; or

(iii) entitled to a filing date as set forth in § 1.53(b) and have paid therein the processing and retention fee set forth in § 1.21 (1) within the time period set forth in § 1.53(d).

(a)(2) Any application claiming the benefit of a prior filed copending national or international application must contain or be amended to contain in the first sentence of the specification following the title a reference to such prior application, identifying it by application number (consisting of the series code and serial number), or serial number and filing date or international application number and international filing date and indicating the relationship of the applications. Cross-references to other related applications may be made when appropriate. (See § 1.14(b)).

8. Section 1.136, paragraph (a) is revised to read as follows:

§ 1.136 Filing of timely responses with petition and fee for extension of title for cause.

(a)(1) If an applicant is required to respond within a nonstatutory or shortened statutory time period, applicant may respond up to four months after the time period set if a petition for an extension of time and the fee set in § 1.17 are filed prior to or with the response, unless

(i) applicant is notified otherwise in an Office action,

(ii) the response is a reply brief submitted pursuant to§ 1.193(b),

(iii) the response is a request for an oral hearing submitted pursuant to § 1.194(b),

(iv) response is to a decision by the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences pursuant to §§ 1.196, 1.197 or 1.304, or

(v) the application is involved in an interference declared pursuant to § 1.611.)

(a)(2) The date on which the response, the petition, and the fee have been filed is the date of the response and also the date for purposes of determining the period of extension and the corresponding amount of the fee. The expiration of the time period is determined by the amount of the fee paid. In no case may an applicant respond later than the maximum time period set by statute, or be granted an extension of time under paragraph (b) of this section when the provisions of this paragraph are available. See § 1.136(b) for extensions of time relating to proceedings pursuant to §§ 1.193(b), 1.194, 1.196 or 1.197. See § 1.304 for extension of time to appeal to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit or to commence a civil action. 9. Section 1.191, paragraph (d) is revised to read as follows:

§ 1.191 Appeal to Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences.

* * * * *

(d) The time periods set forth in §§ 1.191 and 1.192 are subject to the provisions of § 1.136 for patent applications and § 1.550(c) for reexamination proceedings. The time periods set forth in §§ 1.193, 1.194, 1.196 and 1.197 are subject to the provisions of § 1.136(b) for patent applications or § 1.550(c) for reexamination proceedings. See § 1.304(a) for extensions of time for filing a notice of appeal to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit or for commencing a civil action.

10. Section 1.192, paragraphs (a), (c) introductor text and (d) are revised to read as follows:

§ 1.192 Appellant's brief

(a) The appellant shall, within 2 months from the date of the notice of appeal under § 1.191 in an application, reissue application, or patent under reexamination, or within the time allowed for response to the action appealed from, if such time is later, file a brief in triplicate. The brief must be accompanied by the requisite fee set forth in § 1.17(f) and must set forth the authorities and arguments on which the appellant will rely to maintain the appeal. Any arguments or authorities not included in the brief may be refused consideration by the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences.

(b) ***

(c) The brief shall contain the following items under appropriate headings and in the order here indicated unless there is no attorney or agent of record in the application or reexamination proceeding, the brief was not prepared by a registered practitioner, and the brief was not signed by a registered practitioner, wherein the brief will be accepted as complying with this paragraph provided it is at least in substantial compliance with the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2),(6) and (7):

* * * * *

(d) If a brief is filed which does not comply with the requirements of paragraph (c) of this section, the appellant will be notified of the reasons for non-compliance and provided with a period of one month within which to file an amended brief. If the appellant does not file an amended brief during the one-month period, or files an amended brief which does not overcome all the reasons for non-compliance stated in the notification, the appeal will be dismissed.

11. Section 1.193, paragraph (b) is revised to read as follows:

§ 1.193 Examiner's answer.

VOL 1170 ISS 1 JAN 3 1995 UMI

reply brief. If the examiner determines that the reply brief is not directed only to new points of argument raised in the examiner's answer, the examiner may refuse entry of the reply brief and will so notify the appellant. If the examiner's answer expressly states that it includes a new ground of rejection, appellant must file a reply thereto within two months from the date of such answer to avoid dismissal of the appeal as to the claims subject to the new ground of rejection; such reply may be accompanied by any amendment or material appropriate to the new ground. See § 1.136(b) for extensions of time for filing a reply brief in a patent application and § 1.550(c) for extensions of time in a reexamination proceeding.

* * * * *

12. Section 1.194, paragraph (b) is revised to read as follows:

§ 1.194 Oral hearing.

* * * * *

(b) If appellant desires an oral hearing, appellant must file a written request for such hearing accompanied by the fee set forth in § 1.17(g) within two months after the date of the examiner's answer. If appellant requests an oral hearing and submits therewith the fee set forth in § 1.17(g), an oral argument may be presented by, or on behalf of, the primary examiner if considered desirable by either the primary examiner or the Board. See § 1.136(b) for extensions of time for requesting an oral hearing in patent application and § 1.550(c) for extensions of time in a reexamination proceeding.

* * * * *

13. Section 1.196, paragraph (f) is revised to read as follows:

§ 1.196 Decision by the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences

* * * * *

(f) See 1.136(b) for extensions of time to take action under this section in a patent application and § 1.550(c) for extensions of time in a reexamination proceeding.

14. Section § 1.197, paragraph (b) is revised to read as follows:

§ 1.197 Action following decision.

* * * * *

(b) A single request for reconsideration or modification of the decision may be made if filed within one month from the date of the original decision, unless the original decision is so modified by the decision on reconsideration as to become, in effect, a new decision, and the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences so states. The request for reconsideration shall state with particularity the points believed to have been misapprehended or overlooked in rendering the decision and also state all other grounds upon which reconsideration is sought. See § 1.136(b) for extensions of time for seeking reconsideration in a patent application and § 1.550(c) for extensions of time in a reexamination proceeding.

* * * * *

15. Section 1.312, paragraph (b) is revised to read as follows:

§ 1.312 Amendments after allowance.

* * * * *

(b) Any amendment pursuant to paragraph (a) of this section filed after the date the issue fee is paid must be accompanied by a petition including the fee set forth in § 1.17(i)(1) and a showing of good and sufficient reasons why the amendment is necessary and was not earlier presented.

16. Section 1.321 is revised to read as follows:

§ 1.321 Statutory Disclaimers, including Terminal Disclaimers.

(a) A patentee owning the whole or any sectional interest in a patent may disclaim any complete claim or claims in a patent. In like manner any patentee may disclaim or dedicate to the public the entire term, or any terminal part of the term, of the patent granted. Such disclaimer is binding upon the grantee and its successors or assigns. A notice of the disclaimer is published in the Official Gazette and attached to the printed copies of the specification. The disclaimer, to be recorded in the Patent and Trademark Office, must:

(1) be signed by the patentee, or an attorney or agent of record;

(2) identify the patent and complete claim or claims, or term being disclaimed. A disclaimer which is not a disclaimer of a complete claim or claims, or term will be refused recordation;

(3) state the present extent of patentee's ownership interest in the patent; and

(4) be accompanied by the fee set forth in § 1.20(d).

(b) An applicant or assignee may disclaim or dedicate to the public the entire term, or any terminal part of the term, of a patent to be granted. Such terminal disclaimer is binding upon the grantee and its successors or assigns. The terminal disclaimer, to be recorded in the Patent and Trademark Office, must:

(1) be signed:(i) by the applicant, or

(ii) if there is an assignee of record of an undivided part interest, by the applicant and such assignee, or

(iii) if there is an assignee of record of the entire interest, by such assignee, or

(iv) by an attorney or agent of record;

(2) specify the portion of the term of the patent being disclaimed;

(3) state the present extent of applicant's or assignee's ownership interest in the patent to be granted; and

(4) be accompanied by the fee set forth in § 1.20(d).

(c) A terminal disclaimer, when filed to obviate a double patenting rejection in a patent application or in a reexamination proceeding, must:

(1) comply with the provisions of paragraphs (b)(2) through (b)(4) of this section;

(2) be signed in accordance with paragraph (b)(1) of this section if filed in a patent application, or in accordance with paragraph (a)(1) of this section if filed in a reexamination proceeding; and

(3) include a provision that any patent granted on that application or any patent subject to that reexamination proceeding shall be enforceable only for and during such period that said patent is commonly owned with the application or patent which formed the basis for the rejection.

17. Section 1.352 is amended by revising paragraph (a) to read as follows:

§ 1.352 Publication of notice of proposed amendments.

(a) Whenever required by law, notice of proposed amendments to the regulations in this part will be published in the Official Gazette and in the FEDERAL REGISTER. If not published with the notice, copies of the text will be furnished to any person requesting the same. All comments, suggestions, and briefs received within a time specified in the notice will be considered before adoption of the proposed amendments which may be modified in the light thereof.

(1) 3 years and 6 months and through the day of the 4th anniversary of the grant for the first maintenance fee.

(2) 7 years and 6 months and through the day of the 8th anniversary of the grant for the second maintenance fee, and

(3) 11 years and 6 months and through the day of the 12th anniversary of the grant for the third maintenance fee.

(h) The periods specified in §§ 1.362(d) and (e) with respect to a reissue application, including a continuing reissue application thereof, are counted from the date of grant of the original non-reissue application on which the reissued patent is based.

(82) U.S. Department of Commerce
Patent and Trademark Office
Special Status for Patent Applications
Relating to Superconductivity

On Commercial Applications of Superconductivity, the President stated that "We need to strengthen patent laws to increase protection for manufacturing processes and speed up the patent process so that it can keep pace with the fast-paced world of high technology." The President also noted that "to most of us laymen, superconductivity was a completely new term, but it wasn't long before we learned of the great promise it held out to alter our world for the better - a quantum leap in energy efficiency that would bring with it a host of benefits, not least among them a reduced dependence on foreign oil, a cleaner environment, and a stronger national economy." The President's Superconductivity Initiative of even date included, as a major administrative component, a proposal "Directing the Patent and Trademark Office to accelerate the processing of patent applications and adjudication of disputes involving superconductivity technologies when requested by the applicants to do so."

In accordance with the President's proposal, the Patent and Trademark Office will, on request, accord "special" status to all patent applications for inventions involving superconductive materials. Examples of such inventions would include those directed to the superconductive materials themselves as well as to their manufacture and application. In order that the Patent and Trademark Office may implement this procedure, we invite all applicants desiring to participate in this program to request that their applications be accorded "special" status. Such requests should be in writing, should identify the application by serial number and filing date, and should be accompanied by a statement under 37 CFR 1.102 that the invention involves superconductive materials. No fee is required. The statement must be verified if made by a person not registered to practice before the Patent and Trademark Office. Decisions whether to accord "special" status on the basis of a request will be made by the appropriate Group Director.

Requests should be addressed to the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Washington, D.C. 20231.

(83) Preparation for Processing High Temperature Superconductor Technology

In response to the President's Superconductivity Initiative announced on July 28, 1987 and with the expectation of the filing of increasing numbers of patent applications relating to higher temperature superconductors, the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office has taken a number of steps to prepare for the effective handling of applications on this subject matter.

These actions include (1) establishing a special Task Force to prepare for the processing of patent applications for higher temperature superconductor technology; (2) making patent applications relating to this technology special on request of the applicant and (3) renewing support for legislation providing for an expanded scope of protection for process patents to cover products made by the patented process.

The responsibilities of the Task Force are to (1) coordinate the development of a Patent and Trademark Office capability to examine the expected large number of patent applications in this area and (2) provide an information resource and sounding board for legal and practice questions and policy development in this area. The Task Force has been assigned a number of specific tasks, such as developing a complete search file on superconductivity technology for the use of Examiners and the public, establishing a training program for examiners on the technology and assuring a uniform and consistent application of the patent law to the technology in the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office.

Amendment of Patent and Trademark Rules concerning Judicial Review of Decisions of the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences and the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board and other Miscellaneous Matters.

Agency: Patent and Trademark Office, Commerce.
Action: Final Rule.
Summary: The Patent and Trademark Office (PTO) is amending the rules of practice in patent and trademark cases, Parts 1 and 2 of Title 37, Code of Federal Regulations, relating to (1) decisions of the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences (BPAI), (2) requests for reconsideration of decisions of the BPAI and the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board (TTAB), (3) extensions of time in proceedings after a decision by the BPAI under §§ 1.196 and 1.197, (4) practices concerning judicial review of final decisions of the BPAI and TTAB, (5) extensions of time for seeking judicial review of BPAI and TTAB decisions and (6) miscellaneous changes in the practice before the BPAI and housekeeping amendments.

Two recent decisions of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit have held that even though the BPAI includes a new ground for rejection in its decision under 37 CFR § 1.196(b)(3), appellants may appeal directly to the Federal Circuit without first seeking reconsideration at the BPAI. Where judicial review is sought without requesting reconsideration, the arguments against the new ground of rejection are developed for the first time during court proceedings. The amendments require that appellants seek reconsideration of the new ground of rejection prior to appeal or commencement of a civil action.

Experience under the previous rules relating to judicial review of final board decisions indicated that the rules may have been confusing in certain respects relating to the time in which judicial review must be sought and the manner in which extensions of time for seeking judicial review may be obtained. The rules eliminate any confusion as to when judicial review must be sought and standardize the manner of obtaining extensions of time to seek judicial review.

The rules also make clarifying and housekeeping amendments with respect to practice before the BPAI.
Effective Date: August 20, 1989.

Background

A notice of proposed rulemaking was published in the Federal Register at 54 Fed. Reg. 11009 (March 16, 1989) and at 1101 Official Gazette 6 (April 4, 1989). No oral hearing was held and no written comments were received.

Discussion of Specific Rules

(1) Decisions of the BPAI and requests for reconsideration of BPAI and TTAB decisions

Only final decisions of the BPAI and TTAB are subject to judicial review. 35 U.S.C. §§ 141, 145; U.S.C. § 1071; 28 U.S.C. § 1295 (a)(4)(A) and (B).

Section 1.196(b) provides that if the BPAI has knowledge of any grounds, not involved in the appeal, for rejecting any appealed claim, it may include in its decision a statement to that effect. The statement then constitutes a new rejection of the claims. The previous rules permitted appellants to treat the decision as a final decision in the case and thus immediately appealable. 37 CFR § 1.196(b)(3) (1988). Therefore, when an appellant proceeded under this option, arguments against the new rejection were presented for the first time to the reviewing court.

A recent decision by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit rejected the Commissioner's argument that an appellant should not be permitted to contest the BPAI's new ground for rejection because it had not requested reconsideration of that ground by the BPAI. In re Evanega, 829 F.2d 1110, 1113, 4 USPQ 2d 1249, 1252 (Fed. Cir. 1987). See also In re Nielson, 816 F.2d 1567, 1570, 2 USPQ 2d 1525, 1527 (Fed. Cir. 1987). In Evanega, the Commissioner urged that requiring appellants to request reconsideration, where the BPAI adopts a new ground for rejection, would provide the BPAI with an opportunity to consider appellant's arguments and correct any errors while the case was still in the PTO. This conserves judicial resources, and in any event, obtains the benefit of the BPAI's view should judicial review ultimately be sought. The court held, however, that in view of PTO regulations (37 CFR § 1.196(b)(3)) which "expressly provide that the board's decision, even if based on a new ground, is a final determination and thus may be appealed without seeking reconsideration," appellant could not be required to request reconsideration by the BPAI. Id.

The new rule changes eliminate 37 CFR § 1.196(b)(3). By removing § 1.196(b)(3), appellants no longer have the option of treating a new ground of rejection as final and immediately appealable. Appellants' options are limited to requesting remand to the examiner or requesting reconsideration by the BPAI as set forth in §§ 1.196(b)(1) and 1.196(b)(2). The preamble of § 1.196(b) has been amended to specifically recite that a new ground of rejection shall not be considered a final decision for judicial review.

Appellants still may elect further prosecution before the examiner under 37 CFR § 1.196(b)(1) or request reconsideration under 1.196(b)(2). The option of § 1.196(b)(2) requires that any request for reconsideration address the new ground of rejection and specifically state the reasons why the new ground was in error. Section 1.196(b)(2) also provides that the BPAI will reconsider the new rejection and, if necessary, render a new decision. The decision on reconsideration will be deemed to incorporate the earlier decision except for any portions of the earlier decision specifically withdrawn.

Reconsideration or remand need not be requested if appellant does not contest the new ground. Appellants may seek judicial review as to claims not subject to the new ground.

Section 1.196(a) expressly provides for remands to the examiner for further consideration. The BPAI has inherent authority, as part of its role in reviewing standards of patentability applied in the PTO, to remand applications to the examiner for further consideration. Cf. Manual of Patent Examining Procedure (MPEP) §§ 1211 and 1212. The change merely makes express that which is inherent.

The amendments also delete the portion of former § 1.196(d) which provides (1) that any decision which includes a remand shall not be a final decision for the purposes of judicial review and (2) that upon conclusion of the proceedings on remand the BPAI may enter an order making its decision final. Those provisions have been included as new § 1.196(e). Under this paragraph, decisions pursuant to § 1.196(b) would not be final as to the claims subject to a new rejection.

The last sentence of former § 1.196(b)(1) has been deleted and placed in new § 1.196(e).

(2) Requests for reconsideration of BPAI and TTAB decisions

Section 1.197(b) provides that any request for reconsideration must specifically state the points believed to have been misapprehended or overlooked in the BPAI's decision. Experience has shown that many requests for reconsideration are nothing more than reargument of appellant's position on appeal. The provision, as adopted, limits requests to the points of law or fact which appellant feels were overlooked or misapprehended by the BPAI.

The amendments also clarify the exception found in the first sentence of § 1.197(b) by including specific references to the "original decision" and the "decision on reconsideration." Some confusion had been noted with respect to the meaning of the current language. In order to simplify calculation of times for requesting recosideration of the decisions of the boards, §§ 1.658(b), 2.129(c), and 2.144 specify a period of one month rather than the periods expressed in days. Section 1.197(a) already specified a one-month period.

(3) Extensions of time after a decision by the BPAI to take action under §§ 1.196 and 1.197

Appellants in patent cases may no longer use fee extensions under § 1.136(a) to extend the time for making an election under § 1.196(b) or seeking reconsideration under § 1.197.

Under previous rules appellants could request reconsideration of a BPAI decision up to five months after a decision or file a response to a new ground of rejection up to six months after the decision. This inordinately delayed final disposition of appeals. Section 1.136(a) provides that fee extensions are not available to file responses to a BPAI decision pursuant to §§ 1.196, 1.197 or 1.304. One month is deemed to be ample time to submit a request for reconsideration. Note that Fed. R. Civ. P. 59 provides 10 days and Fed. R. App. P. 40 provides 14 days for similar requests. Extensions under § 1.136(b) will be available to extend the time to file a response under §§ 1.196 and 1.197. Section 1.304(a) exclusively governs extensions of time to file a notice of appeal to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit or to commence a civil action. See further discussion below.

Section 1.136(a) specifically refers to § 1.136(b) for extensions of time to file responses under §§ 1.196 and 1.197 and refers to § 1.304 for extensions of time to initiate judicial review. Sections 1.196(f) and 1.197(b) correlatively reference § 1.136(b) for extensions of time.

Fee extensions are not available to extend the time for electing further prosecution before the examiner under § 1.196(b)(1). Where an appellant elects further prosecution before the examiner, fee extensions under § 1.136(a) remain available to respond to the primary examiner's Office actions.

(4) Time for seeking judicial review of decisions of the BPAI and TTAB

Under previous rules, judicial review of final decisions of the BPAI or TTAB had to be sought within sixty days of the decision or thirty days after a decision on reconsideration. However, where a decision on reconsideration was, in effect, a new decision, it was not always clear whether the time for appeal was thirty or sixty days. Sections 1.304(a) and 2.146(d)(1) provide a two-month period to appeal from either the date of the decision or the decision on a timely filed request for reconsideration.

Some problems have been noted with respect to the time for seeking judicial review in days. Miscalculations of the statutory sixty-day time period have resulted in filing untimely requests for judicial review. In order to simplify calculation of the time for seeking judicial review, §§ 1.304(a) and 2.145(d)(1) specify two months. The two-month period meets the sixty-day requirement of 35 U.S.C. §§ 142, 145 and 146 and 15 U.S.C. §§ 1071(a)(2) and (b)(1) except for time periods which include February 28. In order to comply with the sixty-day requirement, §§ 1.304(b) and 2.145(d)(2) provide that an additional day shall be added to any two-month period for initiating judicial review which includes February 28. Appeals will always be timely if the judicial review is initiated within two months of the final decision.

Previously, the rules did not specify a time period for filing a cross-appeal or cross-action in inter partes cases. The absence of such a time period made it difficult for parties and their attorneys to make appropriate plans for judicial review. For example, in an interference where there has been a split judgment, one of the parties may be satisfied with the judgment but may desire to appeal the adverse judgment only if an appeal is noted by the other party. Where the appeal is filed on the last possible day, a cross-appeal is precluded. Sections 1.304(a) and 2.145(d)(1) specify that the time for filing a cross-appeal or commencing a cross-action expires (1) fourteen days after service of the notice of appeal or the summons and complaint or (2) two months after the decision to be reviewed, whichever is later.

Similarly, no provision for filing a cross-action was provided where an appellee elects to have further proceedings conducted in the district court pursuant to 35 U.S.C. § 146 or 15 U.S.C. § 1071(a)(1). Section 1.304(c) and 2.145(d)(3) provide that the time for filing a cross-action expires 14 days after service of the summons and complaint. The district court will determine whether any cross-action was timely filed since neither the complaint nor cross-action is filed in the PTO.

(5) Extensions of time to seek judicial review

In the past, standards for granting requests for extensions of time to take an appeal or commence a civil action varied depending upon which board was involved and upon the particular type proceeding before the board. For example, extensions relating to patent applications could be obtained by paying the appropriate fee under 1.136(a). However, in reexamination proceedings or when judicial review was sought from a decision of the TTAB, the requester must demonstrate sufficient cause under § 1.550(c) or § 2.145(d)(1). The rules standardize the manner in which an extension of time to initiate judicial review may be obtained. The PTO has adopted a standard which is similar to the standard used in the Federal courts for granting extensions. Under the rules the Commissioner may extend the time (1) for good cause if requested before the expiration of the time provided for initiating judicial review or (2) upon a showing of excusable neglect in failing to initiate judicial review if requested after the expiration of the time period. This standard will be applicable in both trademark and patent proceedings (§§ 1.304(a) and 2.145(e)) once the "last" decision, i.e., either the decision (in circumstances where no timely reconsideration is sought) or the decision on reconsideration, of either board has been entered. In patent cases, extensions of time under § 1.136(b) and § 1.550(c) and fee extensions under 37 CFR § 1.136(a) are no longer available to extend the time for the purpose of judicial review once a decision or a decision on reconsideration has been entered. Section 1.304(a) states that the provisions of §§ 1.136 and 1.550(c) are not available to extend the time to initiate judicial review. Sections 1.136(a), 1.136(b), 1.191(d), 1.550(c), 1.645(a) and (b) refer to § 1.304 for extensions of time for seeking judicial review after a decision has been entered. Section 1.645(a) has been amended by (1) adding the introductory phrase "Except to extend the time for filing a notice of appeal to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit or for commencing a civil action," to the first sentence and (2) deleting the references to filing a notice of appeal or commencing a civil action in the second sentence.

In view of the amendments to §§ 1.197 and 1.304, relating to extensions of time to seek reconsideration or initiate judicial review, § 1.191(d) does not refer to §§ 1.196 and 1.197.

(6) Miscellaneous amendments

In the past, appellants could use fee extensions to delay the time for requesting an oral hearing at the BPAI. This delays final disposition of the appeal and causes administrative problems and duplication of effort due to the transfer of the appeal to the hearing docket. Section 1.191(d) no longer refers to § 1.194. Fee extensions are no longer available to extend the time for requesting an oral hearing. Extensions under § 1.136(b) are available to extend the time to request an oral hearing.

Section 1.191(b) has been rewritten as one sentence without any change in substance.

Some confusion has resulted as to who has jurisdiction over a patent application after a notice of appeal to the BPAI has been filed. Problems arose, for example, as to the appropriate PTO official to decide certain petitions and other matters after an appeal has been filed. MPEP § 1210 indicates that jurisdiction over the application normally passes at one of five possible times listed therein. Section 1.191 includes a new section (e) which provides that jurisdiction transfers to the BPAI when the application or reexamination file including all briefs and examiner's answers is transmitted to the BPAI. Thus, jurisdiction transfers to the BPAI when all written submissions by the applicant and the examiner have been entered and the application papers have been forwarded to the BPAI.

New paragraph 1.191(e) also includes a provision that the Commissioner, prior to the time the BPAI renders its decision, may sua sponte order that an application be remanded to the examiner for further consideration. This provision merely makes explicit the inherent authority of the Commissioner to direct and supervise the examination of patent applications.

Under previous rules there was some confusion as to when "termination of proceedings" occurs. Section 1.197(c) provides that proceedings are "terminated" when the Federal Circuit's mandate is received by the PTO or after the time for appeal from the judgment of the district court in a civil action under 35 U.S.C. § 145 has expired. The language "In such cases," in the second sentence of former 1.197(c) has been eliminated since it was superfluous and may have been confusing.

The rules delete the phrase "that he or she elects" and substitutes "electing" therefor in §§ 1.304(c) and 2.145(c)(3), as amended. The amendment merely changes wording without any change in substance.

Section 1.196(b) changes the verb "make" to "makes" to conform the verb to the singular subject of the sentence.

Sections 1.301, 1.303, 2.145(a)(2) and 2.145(c)(3) no longer refer to transmittal of the certified list and certified copies of the notice of election to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit under 35 U.S.C. § 141 or 15 U.S.C. § 1071(a)(1). These procedures are required by applicable statutes or Court Rules and are unnecessary in the PTO's regulations.

Sections 1.304(a), 1.304(c), 2.145(c)(3) and 2.145(d)(1) include a statement that the certificate of mailing provisions of § 1.8 are not applicable. No substantive change is involved since the inapplicability of § 1.8 is already stated in §§ 1.8(a)(2)(viii) and (ix).

Sections 1.304(b) and 2.145(d)(2) recite "Federal holiday in the District of Columbia" rather than "legal holiday." These changes merely conform the language of these sections with the language of 35 U.S.C. § 21(b) and 37 CFR § 1.7.

Section 2.145(c)(2) and (3) include changes in wording without any change in substance.

Other Considerations

These rules will not have a significant impact on the quality of the human environment or the conservation of energy resources.

The rule change is in conformity with the requirements of the Regulatory Flexibility Act (Pub. L. 96-354), Executive Orders 12291 and 12612, and the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 350 et seq.

The General Counsel of the Department of Commerce has certified to the Chief Counsel for Advocacy, Small Business Administration that the rule change will not have a significant adverse economic impact on a substantial number of small entities [Regulatory Flexibility Act, Pub. L. 96-354]. The rule change requiring appellants to request reconsideration under the specific circumstances set forth is not expected to result in an increase of fees charged by attorneys and agents to entities, including small entities, since the rule change is intended to eliminate erroneous grounds for rejection prior to appeal and in some instances is expected to eliminate the need for appeal.

The Patent and Trademark Office has determined that this rule change is not a major rule under Executive Order 12291. The annual effect to the economy will be less than $100 million. There will be no major increase in costs or prices for consumers, individual industries, federal, state or local government agencies, or geographic regions. There will be no significant adverse effects on competition, employment, investment, productivity, innovation, or on the ability of United States-based enterprises to compete with foreign-based enterprises in domestic or export markets.

The PTO has also determined that this notice has no Federalism implications affecting the relationship between the national government and the states as outlined in Executive Order 12612. The rule change will not impose a burden under the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et seq., since no record keeping or reporting requirements within the coverage of the Act are placed upon the public.

For the reasons given in the preamble and pursuant to the authority granted to the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks by 35 U.S.C. 6, Parts 1 and 2 of Title 37 of the Code of Federal Regulations are amended as set forth below.

PART 1-RULES OF PRACTICE IN PATENT CASES

1. The authority citation for 37 CFR Part 1 continues to read as follows:

Authority: 35 U.S.C. 6, unless otherwise noted.

2. Section 1.136 is revised to read as follows:

§ 1.136 Filing of timely responses with petition and fee for extension of time and extensions of time for cause.

(a) If an applicant is required to respond within a non-statutory or shortened statutory time period, applicant may respond up to four months after the time period set if a petition for an extension of time and the fee set in § 1.17 are filed prior to or with the response, unless (1) applicant is notified otherwise in an Office action, (2) the application is involved in an interference declared pursuant to § 1.611 or (3) the response is to a decision by the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences pursuant to §§ 1.196, 1.197 or 1.304. The date on which the response, the petition, and the fee have been filed is the date of the response and also the date for purposes of determining the period of extension and the corresponding amount of the fee. The expiration of the time period is determined by the amount of the fee paid. In no case may an applicant respond later than the maximum time period set by statute, or be granted an extension of time under paragraph (b) of this section when the provisions of this paragraph are available. See § 1.136(b) for extensions of time relating to proceedings pursuant to §§ 1.196 or 1.197, § 1.304 for extension of time to appeal to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit or to commence a civil action, § 1.645 for extension of time in interference proceedings and § 1.550(c) for extension of time in reexamination proceedings.

(b) When a response with petition and fee for extension of time cannot be filed pursuant to paragraph (a) of this section, the time for response will be extended only for sufficient cause, and for a reasonable time specified. Any request for such extension must be filed on or before the day on which action by the applicant is due, but in no case will the mere filing of the request effect any extension. In no case can any extension carry the date on which response to an Office action is due beyond the maximum time period set by statute or be granted when the provisions of paragraph (a) of this section are available. See § 1.304 for extension of time to appeal to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit or to commence a civil action, § 1.645 for extension of time in interference proceedings and § 1.550(c) for extension of time in reexamination proceedings.

3. Section 1.191 is amended by revising paragraphs (b) and (d) and adding paragraph (e) to read as follows:

§ 1.191 Appeal to Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences

* * * * *

(b) The appeal in an application or reexamination proceeding must identify the rejected claim or claims appealed, and must be signed by the applicant, patent owner or duly authorized attorney or agent.

* * * * *

(d) The time periods set forth in §§ 1.191 through 1.193 are subject to the provisions of § 1.136 for patent applications or § 1.550(c) for reexamination proceedings. See § 1.304(a) for extensions of time for filing a notice of appeal to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit or for commencing a civil action.

(e) Jurisdiction over the application or patent under reexamination passes to the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences upon transmittal of the file, including all briefs and examiner's answers, to the Board. Prior to the entry of a decision on the appeal, the Commissioner may sua sponte order the application remanded to the examiner.

4. Section 1.196 is amended by revising paragraphs (a), (b) and (d) and adding new paragraphs (e) and (f) to read as follows:

§ 1.196 Decision by the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences

(a) The Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences, in its decision, may affirm or reverse the decision of the examiner in whole or in part on the grounds and on the claims specified by the examiner or remand the application to the examiner for further consideration. The affirmance of the rejection of a claim on any of the grounds specified constitutes a general affirmance of the decision of the examiner on that claim, except as to any ground specifically reversed.

(b) Should the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences have knowledge of any grounds not involved in the appeal for rejecting any appealed claim, it may include in the decision a statement to that effect with its reasons for so holding, which statement shall constitute a new rejection of the claims. A new rejection shall not be considered final for the purpose of judicial review. When the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences makes a new rejection of an appealed claim, the appellant may exercise either of the following two options with respect to the new ground:

(1) The appellant may submit an appropriate amendment of the claims so rejected or a showing of facts, or both, and have the matter reconsidered by the examiner in which event the application will be remanded to the examiner. The statement shall be binding upon the examiner unless an amendment or showing of facts not previously of record be made which, in the opinion of the examiner, overcomes the new ground for rejection stated in the decision. Should the examiner again reject the application the applicant may again appeal to the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences.

(2) The appellant may have the case reconsidered under § 1.197(b) by the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences upon the same record. The request for reconsideration shall address the new ground for rejection and state with particularity the points believed to have been misapprehended or overlooked in rendering the decision and also state all other grounds upon which reconsideration is sought. Where request for such reconsideration is made the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences shall reconsider the new ground for rejection and, if necessary, render a new decision which shall include all grounds upon which a patent is refused. The decision on reconsideration is deemed to incorporate the earlier decision, except for those portions specifically withdrawn on reconsideration, and is final for the purpose of judicial review.

(d) Although the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences normally will confine its decision to a review of rejections made by the examiner, should it have knowledge of any grounds for rejecting any allowed claim it may include in its decision a recommended rejection of the claim and remand the case to the examiner. In such event, the Board shall set a period, not less than one month, within which the appellant may submit to the examiner an appropriate amendment, a showing of facts or reasons, or both, in order to avoid the grounds set forth in the recommendation of the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences. The examiner shall be bound by the recommendation and shall enter and maintain the recommended rejection unless an amendment or showing of facts not previously of record is filed which, in the opinion of the examiner, overcomes the recommended rejection. Should the examiner make the recommended rejection final the applicant may again appeal to the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences.

(e) Whenever a decision of the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences includes or allows a remand, that decision shall not be considered a final decision. When appropriate, upon conclusion of proceedings on remand before the examiner, the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences may enter an order otherwise making its decision final.

(f) See § 1.136(b) for extensions of time to take action under this section.

5. Section 1.197 is amended by revising paragraphs (b) and (c) to read as follows:

§ 1.197 Action following decision

* * * * *

(b) A single request for reconsideration or modification of the decision may be made if filed within one month from the date of the original decision, unless the original decision is so modified by the decision on reconsideration as to become, in effect, a new decision, and the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences so states. The request for reconsideration shall state with particularity the points believed to have been misapprehended or overlooked in rendering the decision and also state all other grounds upon which reconsideration is sought. See 37 CFR § 1.136(b) for extensions of time for seeking reconsideration.

(c) Termination of proceedings. Proceedings are considered terminated by the dismissal of an appeal or the failure to timely file an appeal to the court or a civil action (§ 1.304) except: (1) where claims stand allowed in an application or (2) where the nature of the decision requires further action by the examiner. The date of termination of proceedings is the date on which the appeal is dismissed or the date on which the time for appeal to the court or review by civil action (§ 1.304) expires. If an appeal to the court or a civil action has been filed, proceedings are considered terminated when the appeal or civil action is terminated. An appeal to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit is terminated when the mandate is received by the Office. A civil action is terminated when the time to appeal the judgment expires.

6. Section 1.301 is revised to read as follows:

§ 1.301 Appeal to U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit.

Any applicant or any owner of a patent involved in a reexamination proceeding dissatisfied with the decision of the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences, and any party to an interference dissatisfied with the decision of the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences, may appeal to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit. The appellant must take the following steps in such an appeal: (a) In the Patent and Trademark Office file a written notice of appeal directed to the Commissioner (see §§ 1.302 and 1.304); and (b) in the Court, file a copy of the notice of appeal and pay the fee for appeal, as provided by the rules of the Court.

7. Section 1.303 is amended by revising paragraph (c) to read as follows:

§ 1.303 Civil Action under 35 U.S.C. 145, 146, 306.

(c) If any adverse party to an appeal taken to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit by a defeated party in an interference proceeding files notice with the Commissioner within twenty days after the filing of the defeated party's notice of appeal to the court (§ 1.302), that he or she elects to have all further proceedings conducted as provided in 35 U.S.C. 146. The notice of election must be served as provided in § 1.646.

8. Section 1.304 is revised to read as follows:

§ 1.304 Time for appeal or civil action.

(a) The time for filing the notice of appeal to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit (§ 1.302) or for commencing a civil action (§ 1.303) is two months from the date of the decision of the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences. If a request for reconsideration or modification of the decision is filed within the time provided under § 1.197(b) or § 1.658, the time for filing an appeal or commencing a civil action shall expire two months after action on the request. In interferences, the time for filing a cross-appeal or cross-action expires (1) 14 days after service of the notice of appeal or the summons and complaint or (2) two months after the date of decision of the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences, whichever is later. The time periods set forth in this section are not subject to the provisions of §§ 1.136, 1.550(c) or 1.645(a) or (b). The Commissioner may extend the time for filing an appeal or commencing a civil action (1) for good cause shown if requested in writing before the expiration of the period for filing an appeal or commencing a civil action, or (2) upon written request after the expiration of the period for filing an appeal or commencing a civil action upon a showing that the failure to act was the result of excusable neglect. The certificate of mailing practice of § 1.8 is not available for filing a notice of appeal or cross-appeal. See 1.8(a)(2)(ix).

(b) The times specified in this section in days are calendar days. The times specified herein in months are calendar months except that one day shall be added to any two-month period which includes February 28. If the last day of the time specified for appeal of commencing a civil action falls on a Saturday, Sunday or Federal holiday in the District of Columbia, the time is extended to the next day which is neither a Saturday, Sunday nor a Federal holiday.

(c) If a defeated party to an interference has taken an appeal to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit and an adverse party has filed notice under 35 U.S.C. 141 electing to have all further proceedings conducted under 35 U.S.C. 146 (§ 1.303(c)), the time for filing a civil action thereafter is specified in 35 U.S.C. 141. The time for filing a cross-action expires 14 days after service of the summons and complaint. The certificate of mailing practice of § 1.8 is not available for filing a notice of appeal of cross-appeal. See 1.8(a)(2)(viii).

9. Section 1.550 is amended by revising paragraph (c) to read as follows:

§ 1.550 Conduct of reexamination proceedings

* * * * *

(c) The time for taking any action by a patent owner in a reexamination proceeding will be extended only for sufficient cause, and for a reasonable time specified. Any request for such extension must be filed on or before the day on which action by the patent owner is due, but in no case will the mere filing of the request effect any extension. See § 1.304(a) for extensions of time for filing a notice of appeal to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit or for commencing a civil action.

* * * * *

10. Section 1.645 is amended by revising paragraphs (a) and (b) to read as follows:

§ 1.645 Extension of time, late papers, stay of proceedings

(a) Except to extend the time for filing a notice of appeal to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit or for commencing a civil action, a party may file a motion (§ 1.635) seeking an extension of time to take action in an interference. See § 1.304(a) for extensions of time for filing a notice of appeal to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit or for commencing a civil action. The motion shall be filed within sufficient time to actually reach the examiner-in-chief before expiration of the time for taking action. A moving party should not assume that the motion will be granted even if there is no objection by any other party. The motion will be denied unless the moving party shows good cause why an extension should be granted. The press of other business arising after an examiner-in-chief sets a time for taking action will not normally constitute good cause. A motion seeking additional time to take testimony because a party has not been able to procure the testimony of a witness shall set forth the name of the witness, any steps taken to procure the testimony of the witness, the dates on which the steps were taken, and the facts expected to be proven through the witness.

(b) Any paper belatedly filed, will not be considered except upon motion (§ 1.635) which shows sufficient cause why the paper was not timely filed. See § 1.304(a) for exclusive procedures relating to belated filing of a notice of appeal to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit or belated commencement of a civil action.

* * * * *

11. Section 1.658 is amended by revising paragraph (b) to read as follows:

§ 1.658 Final Decision

* * * * *

(b) Any request for reconsideration of a decision under paragraph (a) of this section shall be filed within one month after the date of the decision. The request for reconsideration shall specify with particularity the points believed to have been misapprehended or overlooked in rendering the decision. Any reply to a request for reconsideration shall be filed within 14 days of the date of service of the request for reconsideration. Where reasonably possible, service of the request for reconsideration shall be such that delivery is accomplished by hand or "Express Mail." The Board shall enter a decision on the request for reconsideration. If the Board shall be of the opinion that the decision on the request for reconsideration significantly modifies its original decision under paragraph (a) of this section, the Board may designate the decision on the request for reconsideration as a new decision.

PART 2 - RULES OF PRACTICE IN TRADEMARK CASES

12. The authority citation for 37 CFR Part 2 continues to read as follows:

13. Section 2.129 is amended by revising paragraph (c) to read as follows:

§ 2.129 Oral argument; reconsideration

* * * * *

(c) Any request for rehearing or reconsideration or modification of a decision issued after final hearing must be filed within one month from the date of the decision. A brief in response must be filed within fifteen days from the date of service of the request. The times specified may be extended by order of the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board on motion for good cause.

14. Section 2.144 is revised to read as follows:

Any request for rehearing or reconsideration, or modification of the decision, must be filed within one month from the date of the decision. Such time may be extended by the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board upon a showing of sufficient cause.

15. Section 2.145 is amended by revising paragraphs (a), (c)(2), (c)(3), (d)(1), (d)(2) and (d)(3) and adding new paragraph (e) to read as follows:

§ 2.145 Appeal to court and civil action.

(a) Appeal to U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit. An applicant for registration, or any party to an interference, opposition, or cancellation proceeding or any party to an application to register as a concurrent user, hereinafter referred to as inter partes proceedings, who is dissatisfied with the decision of the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board and any registrant who has filed an affidavit or declaration under section 8 of the Act or who has filed an application for renewal and is dissatisfied with the decision of the Commissioner (§§ 2.165, 2.184), may appeal to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit. The appellant must take the following steps in such an appeal:

(1) In the Patent and Trademark Office give written notice of appeal to the Commissioner (see paragraphs (b) and (d) of this section);

(2) In the court, file a copy of the notice of appeal and pay the fee for appeal, as provided by the rules of the Court.

* * * * *

(c) * * *

(2) Any applicant or registrant in an ex parte case who takes an appeal to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit waives any right to proceed under section 21(b) of the Act.

(3) Any adverse party to an appeal taken to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit by a defeated party in an inter partes proceeding may file a notice with the Commissioner within twenty days after the filing of the defeated party's notice of appeal to the court (paragraph (b) of this section), electing to have all further proceedings conducted as provided in section 21(b) of the Act. The notice of election must be served as provided in § 2.119. The certificate of mailing practice of § 1.8 is not available for filing a notice of election. See § 1.8(a)(2)(viii).

(d) Time for appeal or civil action. (1) The time for filing the notice of appeal to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit (paragraph (b) of this section), or for commencing a civil action (paragraph (c) of this section), is two months from the date of the decision of the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board or the Commissioner, as the case may be. If a request for rehearing or reconsideration or modification of the decision is filed within the time specified in §§ 2.127(b), 2.129(c) or 2.144, or within any extension of time granted thereunder, the time for filing an appeal or commencing a civil action shall expire two months after action on the request. In inter partes cases, the time for filing a cross-action or a notice of a cross-appeal expires (1) 14 days after service of the notice of appeal or the summons and complaint or (2) two months from the date of the decision of the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board or the Commissioner, whichever is later. The certificate of mailing practice of § 1.8 is not available for filing a notice of appeal or cross-appeal See § 1.8(a)(2)(ix).

(2) The times specified in this section in days are calendar days. The times specified herein in months are calendar months except that one day shall be added to any two-month period which includes February 28. If the last day of time specified for an appeal, or commencing a civil action falls on a Saturday, Sunday or Federal holiday in the District of Columbia, the time is extended to the next day which is neither a Saturday, Sunday nor a Federal holiday.

(3) If a party to an inter partes proceeding has taken an appeal to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit and an adverse party has filed notice under section 21(a)(1) of the Act electing to have all further proceedings conducted under section 21(b) of the Act, the time for filing a civil action thereafter is specified in section 21(a)(1) of the Act. The time for filing a cross-action expires 14 days after service of the summons and complaint.

(e) Extensions of time to commence judicial review. The Commissioner may extend the time for filing an appeal or commencing a civil action (1) for good cause shown if requested in writing before the expiration of the period for filing an appeal or commencing a civil action, or (2) upon written request after the expiration of the period for filing an appeal or commencing a civil action upon a showing that the failure to act was the result of excusable neglect.

(85) Oral Hearings Before the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences

Equipment has recently been installed in the hearing rooms at the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences which will permit the presentation of oral arguments via the telephone to a panel hearing an ex parte appeal or conducting an interference hearing. In addition, there is a facsimile machine close to each of the Board hearing rooms.

Any ex parte appeal appellant who has requested an oral hearing as provided for by 37 CFR 1.194(b), and who has paid the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(g), or a party to an interference in which a date for an oral hearing has been set may file a request to present his/her oral arguments via the telephone. In the case of ex parte appeals such requests should be made in a paper addressed to the Chief Clerk of the Board. In the case of interference hearings the request should be in the form of a motion under 37 CFR 1.635.

The appellant or party to an interference who is making the request will be required to bear the cost of the telephone call.

37 CFR Part 1
Patent Interference Practice - Separate Patentability of Claims

Agency: Patent and Trademark Office, Commerce
Action: Notice of Proposed Rulemaking
Summary: The Patent and Trademark Office (PTO) proposes to amend its rules of practice in patent interference cases. In re Van Geuns, interpreted patent interference rules in a manner different from the manner in which the rules are interpreted by the Commissioner. The Federal Circuit held that the rules authorize a party to argue the separate patentability of claims that the PTO designates as corresponding to a single count. Under PTO rules, however, every claim designated to correspond to a count shall be directed to a single inventive concept. PTO proposes to amend the interference rules to specifically overcome the Federal Circuit's interpretation of the rules in Van Geuns. PTO proposes to specify that unless a party files a preliminary motion to contest the designation of a claim as corresponding to a count, the party shall be deemed to have conceded that all claims designated as corresponding to a count are unpatentable if any claim designated as corresponding to the count is held to be unpatentable and may not argue to an examiner-in-chief or the separate patentability of claims designated to correspond to the count. PTO also proposes to specify that when an examiner-in-chief in an interference becomes aware of a reason why a claim corresponding to a count may not be patentable, the examiner-in-chief may enter an order notifying the parties of the reason and set a time within which each party may present its views, which may include a preliminary motion. The rules would further specify that an opponent may file an opposition to any preliminary motion and that the party would file a reply to an opposition.

These rules will apply prospectively except when an examiner-in-chief notifies a party in an interference to the contrary. If a party is notified, the party will be given an opportunity to respond regarding the patentability of a count in the interference.

Dates: Comments must be submitted on or before Sept. 24, 1993.

Addresses: Address written comments to Box 8, Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Washington, D.C. 20231, marked to the attention of Fred E. McKelvey, Solicitor. Written comments will be available for public inspection in Suite 918, on the 9th floor of Crystal Park II, located at 2121 Crystal Drive, Arlington, Va.

For Further Information Contact: Fred E. McKelvey by telephone at (703) 305-9035 or by mail marked to his attention and addressed to Box 8, Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Washington, D.C. 20231.

Supplementary Information: The Patent and Trademark Office (PTO) conducts interference proceedings to determine who, as between two or more applicants for patent or one or more applicants and one or more patentees, is the first inventor of a patentable invention.

A primary examiner determines in the first instance whether the claims in an application interfere with the claims in another application or a patent. When the examiner is of the view that an interference exists, the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences (Board) is notified. 37 CFR § 1.609. An examiner-in-chief, i.e., a member of the Board, is assigned to each interference. The interference is declared by the examiner-in-chief. 37 CFR § 1.610(a).

Each separately patentable invention involved in the interference is defined by a count. The count is a vehicle for contesting priority of invention (i.e., who made the invention defined by the count first) and determining the evidence relevant to the issue of priority. Squires v. Corbett, 560 F2d. 424, 433, 194 USPQ 513, 519 (CCPA 1977); Case v. CPC Int'l, Inc., 730 F.2d 745, 749, 221 USPQ 196, 200 (Fed. Cir.), cert. denied, 469 U.S. 872 (1984); In re Van Geuns, 988 F.2d at 1184, 26 USPQ2d at 1058-59 (Fed. Cir. 1993).

Each claim of any application or patent to be involved in the interference is designated to correspond to the count or not to correspond to the count. A preliminary determination is made by the PTO as to which claims should be designated to correspond to the count. The claims that are initially determined to define the same patentable invention as the count are designated to correspond to the count. All other claims are designated as not corresponding to the count. The designation of claims as corresponding or not corresponding provides a starting point in an interference. Under PTO practice, there is a presumption that the designation of a claim as corresponding or not corresponding to a count is correct.

The rules authorize a party to file a preliminary motion to redefine an interference by designating a claim as corresponding or not corresponding to a count. 37 CFR § 1.633(c)(3) and (4). Prior to Van Geuns, the PTO had interpreted the rules to require a preliminary motion to designate a claim as not corresponding to a count as a condition to being able to argue to an examiner-in-chief or the Board that the claim is separately patentable from the other claims designated to correspond to the count. See Brooks v. Street, 16 USPQ2d 1374, 1378, (Bd. Pat. App. & Int. 1990); Flehmig v. Giesa 13 USPQ2d 1052, 1054, (Bd. Pat. App. & Int. 1989); Kwon v. Perkins, 6 USPQ2d 1747, 1751 (Bd. Pat. App. & Int. 1988), aff'd on other grounds, 886 F.2d 325, 12 USPQ2d 1308 (Fed. Cir. 1989); see also Lamont v. Berquer, 7 USPQ2d 1580, 1582 (Bd. Pat. App. & Int. 1988). In Van Geuns, however, the Federal Circuit interpreted the rules differently, stating:

"[T]he position of the Commissioner that claims designated as corresponding to a count stand or fall with the patentability of the subject matter of the count is overbroad."

988 F.2d at 1185, 26 USPQ2d as 1060. The Federal Circuit further stated:

"[W]e conclude that a party to an interference, who has failed to timely contest the designation of claims corresponding to a count, has not conceded that the claims corresponding to a count are anticipated or made obvious [i.e., are unpatentable] by the prior art when the subject matter of the count is determined to be unpatentable for obviousness. The PTO must determine, based n the actual prior art reference or references, whether claims not [designated as] corresponding exactly to the count are unpatentable."

Id, at _, 26 USPQ2d at 1060. The Federal Circuit still further stated:

"The interference rules do not specify whether a party may argue the patentability of claims separately to the EIC [examiner-in-chief] and the board."

Id. at _, 26 USPQ2d at 1060.

The changes proposed to the interference rules are designed to overcome the Federal Circuit's statement.

Subsection (f) of 37 CFR § 1.601, as proposed to be amended, would clarify that claims are designated to correspond to a count. The designation constitutes a rebuttable presumption that, with respect to patentability, the claims stand or fall with the count.

Subsection (f) would also eliminate the "but which defines the same patentable invention as the count" language, thereby eliminating the definition of "same patentable invention" in 37 CFR § 1.601(n) from the designation of claims that correspond substantially to a count. The purpose of the proposed changes is to overcome the Federal Circuit's Van Geuns statement that "[i]f a party does not timely contest the designation of claims, there is in effect a concession that all of the designated claims would be anticipated or made obvious if the count were actually prior art." Id. at _, 26 USPQ2d at 1060.

Finally, the definition of a "phantom count" would be revised to clarify that it is unpatentable to the parties under 35 U.S.C. § 112.

Subsection (k) of 37 CFR § 1.633, as proposed to be amended, would provide that a party who fails to contest, by way of a timely preliminary motion under 37 CFR § 1.633, the designation of a claim as corresponding to a count may not subsequently argue to an examiner-in-chief or the Board the separate patentability of claims designated to correspond to a count.

The first sentence of section 1.641, as proposed to be amended, would be redesignated subsection (a) and would clarify that the Examiner-in-Chief would notify the parties by order of the unpatentability of claims designated as corresponding to a count. The word "corresponding" would be changed to "designated to correspond" to conform with the proposed revision to subsection 1.601(f). Proposed subsection (a) would also indicate that responses to the order may include argument and any preliminary motion permitted under § 1.633(c), (d), or (h) as well as any supporting evidence.

A new subsection (b) would be added to section 1.641 that would specify that the opposition and reply practice undersection 1.638 applies to a preliminary motion filed in response to the Examiner-in-Chief's order under subsection (a) of this section.

Finally, the last sentence of the current section, 1.641 would be redesignated as subsection (c) and would include a reference to the preliminary motions under section 1.633 permitted under the revision to subsection (a) of this section.

These rules will apply prospectively except when an examiner-in-chief notifies a party in an interference to the contrary. If a party is notified, the party will be given an opportunity to respond regarding the patentability of a count in the interference.

OTHER CONSIDERATIONS

The proposed rule changes are in conformity with the requirements of the Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C. 601 et seq.), Executive Orders 12291 and 12612 and the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et seq.

The General Counsel of the Department of Commerce has certified to the Chief Counsel for Advocacy, Small Business Administration, that these proposed rule changes will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities (Regulatory Flexibility Act, 5 U.S.C. 605(b)). The principal impact of these proposed changes would be to clarify the procedure for arguing the patentability of claims corresponding to a count in patent interferences and thereby eliminate any confusion, delay, or redundancy that might result from misinterpretation of the current rules.

The Office has determined that this proposed rule change is not a major rule change, under Executive Order 12291. The annual effect on the economy will be less than $100 million. There will be no major increase in costs or prices for consumers; individuals; industries; Federal, state or local government agencies; or geographic regions. There will be no significant effects on competition, employment, investment, productivity, innovation, or on the ability of United States-based enterprises to compete with foreign-based enterprises in domestic or export markets.

The Office has also determined that this notice has no Federalism implications affecting the relationship between the National Government and the States as outlined in Executive Order 12612.

The rule change will not impose a burden under the Paperwork Reduction Act. 1980, 44 U.S.C 3501 et seq., since no record-keeping or reporting requirements within the coverage of the Act are placed upon the public.

List of Subjects in 37 CFR Part 1

Administrative practice and procedure, Courts, Inventions and patents. For the reasons set out in the preamble, it is proposed to amend 37 CFR part 1 wherein removals are indicated by brackets ([ ]) and additions by arrows (▶◀) as follows:

PART 1 - RULES OF PRACTICE IN PATENT CASES

1. The authority citation for 37 CFR part 1 would continue to read as follows:

Authority: 35 U.S.C. 6, unless otherwise noted.

2. Section 1.601 is proposed to be amended by revising Paragraph (f) to read as follows:

§ 1.601 Scope of rules, definitions.

* * * * *

(f) A "count" defines the interfering subject matter between:
(1) two or more applications or
(2) one or more applications and one or more patents.

When there is more than one count, each count shall define a separate patentable invention. Any claim of an application or patent [which] ▶that is designated to◀ correspond[s] to a count is a claim involved in an interference within the meaning of 35 U.S.C. 135(a). A claim of a patent or invention ▶that◀ [which] is identical to a count is said to "correspond exactly" to the count. A claim of a patent or application ▶that◀ [which] is not identical to a count [, but which defines the same patentable invention as the count,] is said to correspond substantially" to the count. When a count is broader in scope than all claims ▶that◀ [which] correspond to the count, the count is a "phantom count." A phantom count is not patentable to any party under 35 U.S.C. 112.

* * * * *

3. Section 1.633 is proposed to be amended by adding a new paragraph (k) to read as follows:

§ 1.633 Preliminary motions.

4. Section 1.641 is proposed to be revised as follows:

Unpatentability Discovered by Examiner-in-Chief

▶(a)◀ During the pendency of an interference, if the examiner-in-chief becomes aware of a reason why a claim ▶designated to correspond◀ [corresponding] to a count may not be patentable, the examiner-in-chief may [notify] ▶enter an order notifying◀ the parties of the reason and set a time within which each party may present its views, ▶which may include argument and any appropriate preliminary motion under § 1.633(c), (d), or (h), including any supporting evidence◀.

▶(c)◀ After considering any timely filed views, ▶including any timely filed preliminary motions under § 1.633,◀ the examiner-in-chief shall decide how the interference shall proceed.

Agency: Patent and Trademark Office, Commerce.

Action: Notice of Proposed Rulemaking

Summary: The Patent and Trademark Office proposes to amend the rules of practice in patent cases, Part 1 of Title 37, Code of Federal Regulations, relating to patent appeal and interference proceedings. The proposed changes include amendments to conform the interference rules to 35 U.S.C. 104 as amended by Public Law 103-182, 107, 2057 (1993) (North American Free Trade Agreement Implementation Act Stat. and a number of clarifying and housekeeping amendments.

Dates: Written comments must be submitted no later than November 30, 1994. A public hearing will be held on December 7, 1994. Requests to present oral testimony must be received no later than December 2, 1994.

Addresses: Address written comments to Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences, P.O. Box 15647, Arlington, Virginia 22215, marked to the attention of Fred E. McKelvey. Written comments will be available for public inspection in the interference copy room, which is located on the 10th floor of Crystal Gateway 2, 1225 Jefferson Davis Highway, Arlington, Virginia.

For Further Information Contact: Fred E. McKelvey by telephone at (703) 603-3320 or by mail marked to the attention of Fred E. McKelvey at P.O. Box 15647, Arlington, Virginia 22215.

Supplementary Information:

I. Amendments responsive to adoption of Public Law 103-182.

Several of the proposed amendments to the interference rules (i.e., 37 CFR §§ 1.601 et seq.) are responsive to Public Law 103-182, 107 Stat. 2057 (1993) (North American Free Trade Agreement Implementation Act), which amended 35 U.S.C. 104 to permit reliance on activities occurring in a "NAFTA country" to prove a date of invention. Paragraph (b) of § 104 as amended states that "the term 'NAFTA country' has the meaning given that term in section 2(4) of the North American Free Trade Agreement Implementation Act." That section of Public Law 103-182 has been codified at 19 U.S.C. 3301(4), which reads:

(4) NAFTA country Except as provided in section 3332 of this title, the term "NAFTA country" means—

(A) Canada for such time as the [North American Free Trade] Agreement is in force with respect to, and the United States applies the Agreement to, Canada; and

(B) Mexico for such time as the Agreement is in force with respect to, and the United States applies the Agreement to, Mexico.

Accordingly, it is proposed to amend 37 CFR § 1.601 by adding a new paragraph (r) defining the terms "NAFTA country" and "non-NAFTA country" and to amend the following interference rules, which set forth the requirements for preliminary statements, so as to permit reliance on activities occurring in a NAFTA country: §§ 1.622(b), 1.623(a) , 1.624(a) and 1.628(b)(2).

37 CFR 1.684, which relates to the taking of testimony in a foreign country, is proposed to be deleted and reserved in view of proposed amendments to §§ 1.671 and 1.672. Section 1.671 is proposed to be amended by redesignating paragraph (h) as paragraph (i) and adding new paragraphs (h) and (j). New paragraph (h) would set forth the requirements for a motion under § 1.635 to compel testimony or the production of documents or things in a foreign country. New paragraph (j) would provide that the weight to be given testimony taken in a foreign country will be determined on a case-by-case basis. Little, if any, weight would be given to testimony taken in a foreign country unless the party taking the testimony proves by clear and convincing evidence (1) that giving false testimony in an interference proceeding is punishable as perjury under the laws of the foreign country where the testimony is taken and (2) that the punishment in a foreign country for giving such false testimony is similar to the punishment for perjury committed in the United States. The proposed amendments to § 1.672 include amending paragraphs (a) and (b), redesignating current paragraphs (c) through (f) as paragraphs (e) through (h) and adding new provisions identified as paragraphs (c) and (d). Paragraph (a) as proposed to be amended would limit a party's case-in-chief testimony to affidavits, except where testimony is to be compelled under 35 U.S.C. 24 or compelled from a party or in a foreign country. New paragraph (c) would provide that where an opponent objects to the admissibility of any evidence contained in or submitted with an affidavit, the opponent must file and serve objections stating with particularity the nature of the objection, to which the party may respond by filing supplemental affidavits and supplemental official records and printed publications. New paragraph (c) further would provide that any objections to the admissibility of any evidence contained in or submitted with a supplemental affidavit shall be by a motion to suppress under § 1.656(h). New paragraph (d) of § 1.672 would require any cross-examination of affiants to be by deposition within the United States, which is defined in current § 1.601(p) as the United States of America, its territories and possessions. New paragraph (d) of § 1.672 would require that the party whose witness is to be cross-examined notice the deposition under § 1.673(e), obtain a court reporter and provide a translator if the witness will not testify in English. Although not set forth in the proposed rules, any party attending the deposition can bring its own translator or the parties can agree to share the cost of single mutually agreeable translator. Paragraphs (g) and (h) of § 1.671 as proposed to be amended would provide that a party seeking to compel testimony or production of documents or things pursuant to 35 U.S.C. 24 or to compel testimony or production from a party or in a foreign country would have to first file a § 1.635 motion to obtain permission from an administrative patent judge. A motion to compel testimony or the production of documents or things in a foreign country would have to show that the witness has been asked to testify in the United States and has refused to do so or that the individual or entity having possession, custody, and control of the document or thing has refused to produce the document or thing in the United States, even though the moving party has offered to pay the expenses involved in bringing the witness or the document or thing to the United States. When permission has been obtained from the administrative patent judge, the party, after also complying with the current requirements for an oral conference (§ 1.673(g)) and service of documents and a proffer of access to things (§ 1.673(b)), would be required to notice the deposition under § 1.673(a).

Section 1.616 is proposed to be amended by adding a paragraph (c) stating that to the extent that any information under the control of an individual or entity located in a NAFTA country concerning knowledge, use, or other activity relevant to proving or disproving a date of invention has been ordered to be produced by an administrative patent judge or the Board (§ 1.671(h)), but is not produced for use in the interference to the same extent as such information could be made available in the United States, the administrative patent judge or the Board shall draw such adverse inferences as may be appropriate under the circumstances, or take such other action permitted by statute, rule, or regulation, in favor of the party that requested the information in the interference, including imposition of appropriate sanctions under § 1.616(a).

Section 1.647, which currently requires a party who relies on a non-English language document to provide an English-language translation and an affidavit attesting to its accuracy, is proposed to be amended to extend these requirements to non-English language documents that a party is required to produce via discovery (see § 1.671(h)).

II. Attorney fees and expenses.

Section 1.616 is proposed to be amended by redesignating current paragraphs (a) through (e) as paragraphs (a)(1) through (a)(4) and (a)(6) and adding a new paragraphs (a)(5) and (b). New paragraph (a)(5) would authorize the award of compensatory (as opposed to punitive) expenses and/or attorney fees as a sanction for failing to comply with the rules or an order, since there are occasions when such a sanction would be more commensurate in scope with the infraction than the sanctions that are currently authorized. New paragraph (b) would authorize the imposition of a sanction, including a sanction in the form of compensatory expenses and/or attorney fees, against a party for taking or maintaining a frivolous position.

III. Certificates of prior consultation.

Paragraph (b) of § 1.637 currently requires that a miscellaneous motion under § 1.635 contain a certificate stating that the moving party has conferred with all opponents in a good faith effort to resolve by agreement the issues raised by the motion and indicating whether any other party plans to oppose the motion. It is proposed to amend paragraph (b) to extend the requirement for such a certificate to motions filed under §§ 1.633 and 1.634 and also to require the certificate to indicate that the reasons and facts in support of the motion were discussed with each opponent and, if an opponent has indicated that it will oppose the motion, to identify the issues and/or facts believed to be in dispute. The proposed requirement for consultation should result in a reduction in the number of issues raised by motions under § 1.633 and 1.634 as well as a reduction in the number of motions filed under those rules.

IV. Service of a "developing record."

In addition to the amendments to § 1.672 discussed above under the heading "Amendments responsive to adoption of Public Law 103-182," it is proposed to amend §§ 1.672, 1.682, 1.683 and 1.688 to require each party to serve on each opponent a "developing record" that will evolve into the record required to be filed under § 1.653. Specifically, in § 1.672, it is proposed to amend paragraph (b) to provide that a party presenting testimony of a witness by affidavit shall, no later than the time set by the administrative patent judge for serving affidavits, file (which includes serve) the affidavit, whether it is a new affidavit or an affidavit that was previously filed by that party during ex parte prosecution of an application or under § 1.608 or 1.639(b).

Sections 1.682, 1.683 and 1.688 are proposed to be amended to parallel the proposed amendments to § 1.672. Specifically, paragraph (a) of § 1.682 as proposed to be amended would provide that a party may introduce into evidence, if otherwise admissible, an official record or printed publication not identified in an affidavit or on the record during an oral deposition of a witness, by filing (which includes serving) a copy of the official record or publication no later than the time set for filing affidavits under § 1.672(b), thereby dispensing with the current requirement to file a notice of intent to rely on the official record or printed publication. In § 1.683, paragraph (a) as proposed to be amended would provide that a party may introduce into evidence, if otherwise admissible, testimony by affidavit or oral deposition from another interference, proceeding, or action involving the same parties by filing (which includes serving) a copy of the affidavit or a copy of the deposition transcript no later than the time set for filing affidavits under § 1.672(b), thereby dispensing with the current requirement for a party to file a motion under § 1.635 for leave to rely on such testimony. Section 1.688 as proposed to be amended would provide that, if otherwise admissible, a party may introduce into evidence an answer to a written request for an admission or an answer to a written interrogatory obtained by discovery under § 1.687 by filing a copy of the request for admission or the written interrogatory and the answer no later than the time set for filing affidavits under § 1.672(b). Thus, all evidence filed under §§ 1.672, 1.682, 1.683 and 1.688 that relates to a party's case-in-chief should be filed together no later than the date set by an administrative patent judge for the party to serve affidavits under § 1.672(b) for its case-in-chief and all evidence under those sections that relates to the party's rebuttal should be filed no later than the date set for the party to serve affidavits under § 1.672(b) for its case-in-rebuttal.

The pages of all affidavits and deposition transcripts would be required to have sequential numbers that would also serve as the record page numbers for the affidavits and transcripts in the party's record when it is filed under § 1.653. Likewise, the exhibits identified in the affidavits and deposition transcripts and any official records and printed publications served under § 1.682(a) would be required to have sequential numbers which would serve as the exhibit numbers when the exhibits are filed with the party's record. Affidavits and § 1.683(a) testimony would have to be accompanied by an index giving the name of each witness and the number of the page where the testimony of each witness begins. The exhibits would have to be accompanied by an index briefly describing the nature of each exhibit and giving the number of the page of affidavit or § 1.683(a) testimony where each exhibit identified in an affidavit or during an oral deposition is first identified and offered into evidence.

An opponent who objects to the admissibility of any evidence filed under §§ 1.672(b), 1.682(b), 1.683(a) and 1.688(a) would have to file objections under §§ 1.672(c), 1.682(c), 1.683(b) and 1.688(b) no later than the date set by the administrative patent judge for filing objections to affidavits under paragraph § 1.672(c). An opponent who fails to challenge the admissibility of the evidence on a ground that could have been raised in a timely objection under §§ 1.672(c), 1.682(c), 1.683(b) or 1.688(b) would not be permitted to move under § 1.656(h) to suppress the evidence on that ground. If an opponent timely files an objection to evidence filed under §§ 1.672(b), 1.682(b), 1.683(a) or 1.688(a), the party may respond by filing supplemental affidavits and, in the case of objections to evidence filed under §§ 1.672(b), 1.682(b) and 1.683(a), may also file supplemental official records and printed publications. No objection to the admissibility of supplemental evidence shall be made, except as provided by § 1.656(h). The page numbers of the supplemental affidavits would be sequentially numbered beginning with the number following the last page number of the testimony served under §§ 1.672(b), 1.683(a) and 1.688(a). Likewise, any additional exhibits identified in the supplemental affidavits and any supplemental official records and printed publications would be given sequential numbers beginning with the number following the last number of the previously identified exhibits. After the time expires for filing objections and supplemental affidavits, or earlier when appropriate, the administrative patent judge would set a time within which any opponent may file a request to cross-examine an affiant on oral deposition.

If any opponent requests cross-examination of an affiant, the party shall notice a deposition at a reasonable location within the United States under § 1.673(e) for the purpose of cross-examination. Any redirect and recross shall take place at the deposition. Within 45 days of the close of the period for taking cross-examination (§ 1.678 is proposed to be amended to change the time for filing certified transcripts from 45 days to 30 days), the party would serve (but not file) a copy of each deposition transcript on each opponent together with copies of any additional documentary exhibits identified by a witness during a deposition. The pages of the transcripts served under this paragraph and the accompanying exhibits would be sequentially numbered in the manner discussed above. The deposition transcripts would be accompanied by an index of the names of the witnesses, giving the number of the page where cross-examination, redirect and recross of each witness begins, and an index of exhibits of the type specified in § 1.672(b). At this point in time, the opponent will have been served with all of the testimony that will appear in the party's record (with the same page numbers) as well as all of the documentary exhibits that will accompany the record (with the same exhibit numbers).

Since the proposed amendments to § 1.672 would require a party, during its testimony period, to file all affidavits on which it intends to rely at final hearing, it is proposed to delete as unnecessary paragraph (e) of § 1.671, which requires a party to give notice of intent to rely on an affidavit filed by that party during ex parte prosecution of an application or an affidavit under § 1.608 or 1.639(b).

V. Withdrawal of previous notices.

Some of the clarifying and housekeeping amendments proposed in part VI below originally appeared in the same or similar form in two previous notices of proposed rulemaking, which are hereby withdrawn:

(a) RIN:0651-AA53 — "Patent Interference Practice - Notice of Proposed Rulemaking," 57 Fed Reg 2698 (Jan. 23, 1992), reprinted in 1135 Off. Gaz. Pat. Office 37 (Feb. 11, 1992); and

(b) RIN:0651-AA66 — "Patent Interference Practice - Separate Patentability of Claims," 58 Fed. Reg. 39704 (July 26, 1993), reprinted in 1153 Off. Gaz. Pat. Office 59 (Aug. 17, 1993).

VI. Miscellaneous amendments.

Throughout the rules, the term "examiner-in-chief" has been replaced by "administrative patent judge" to reflect the change in the title of the members of the Board. See Commissioner's Notice of October 13, 1993, published as "New Title for Examiners-in-Chief," 1156 Off. Gaz. Pat. Office 332 (Nov. 9, 1993).

In § 1.11, it is proposed to amend paragraph (e) to allow access to the file of an interference involving a reissue application once the interference has terminated or an award of priority or judgment has been entered as to all counts. Although it was intended that the public have access to any interference that involves a case which is open to the public and § 1.11(b) provides that a reissue application is open to the public, interferences involving reissue applications were inadvertently not included in current § 1.11(e).

In § 1.192, which specifies the contents of the brief of an appellant for final hearing in an ex parte appeal, it is proposed to amend paragraph (a) in three respects. The first proposal is to simplify the language used to refer to a brief filed by an applicant who is not represented by a registered practitioner. The second is to delete the requirement that such a brief be in substantial compliance with the requirements of paragraphs (c)(1), (2), (6) and (7), because experience has shown that it is better to evaluate such briefs on a case-by-case basis. The third is to codify the "good cause" standard that is currently used to determine whether the Board will consider any arguments or authorities not included in the brief. It is proposed to make clarifying amendments to paragraphs (c), (c)(5) and (c)(5)(ii), to redesignate current paragraphs (c)(1) through (c)(7) as paragraphs (c)(3) through (c)(9), and to add new paragraphs (c)(1) and (c)(2) that would require an appellant who has filed an appeal to the Board to identify the real party in interest and any related appeals and interferences. The proposed requirement to identify the real party in interest is derived from Federal Circuit Rule 47.4 and Federal Circuit Form 7. For some time, it has been necessary to know the identity of the real party in interest. This information would permit members of the Board to comply with ethics regulations associated with working on matters in which the member has an interest. The proposed requirement to identify related appeals and interferences is derived in part from Federal Circuit Rule 47.5 and, if adopted, would prevent the Board from entering inconsistent decisions in related cases.

Section 1.601 is proposed to be amended in several ways. Paragraph (f) as proposed to be amended would specify that a count should be sufficiently broad as to encompass the broadest corresponding patentable claim of each of the parties without being so broad as to be unpatentable over the prior art and also to indicate that a phantom count is unpatentable to all parties under the written description requirement of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112. Paragraph (g) as proposed to be amended would broaden the definition of "effective filing date" to mean the actual filing date when the involved application or patent is not entitled to the benefit of the filing date of an earlier application. Specifically, paragraph (g) would provide that the effective filing date of an application is the filing date of an earlier application accorded to the application under 35 U.S.C. 119, 120, 121 or 365, or, if no benefit is accorded, the filing date of the application. The effective filing date of a patent would be defined as the filing date of an earlier application accorded to the patent under 35 U.S.C. 120, 121, or 365(c) or, if no benefit is accorded, the filing date of the application which matured into the patent. The reference to 35 U.S.C. 121 is included to eliminate any doubt that a divisional application may be entitled to an earlier filing date in accordance with 35 U.S.C. 121.

Paragraph (j) is proposed to be amended by changing "which" to "that." Paragraph (l) is proposed to be amended by changing "assignee" to "assignee of record in the Patent and Trademark Office." Paragraph (q) is proposed to be amended by deleting "a panel of" as superfluous.

Section 1.602 is proposed to be clarified by changing "within 20 days of" to "within 20 days after."

Sections 1.603 and 1.606 are proposed to be amended by deleting the third sentence ("Each count shall define a separate patentable invention.") as redundant in view of the identical sentence in § 1.601(f). In addition, it is proposed to clarify §§ 1.603 and 1.606 by amending them to require each application to contain, or be amended to contain, at least one patentable claim which corresponds to each count.

In section 1.604, it is proposed to amend paragraph (a)(1) by changing "his or her" to "its."

In § 1.605, it is proposed to amend paragraph (a) for clarification.

Section 1.606 is also proposed to be amended to note that the claim in the application need not be, and most often will not be, identical to a claim in the patent.

In § 1.607, it is proposed to amend paragraph (a)(4) by changing "his or her" to "its" and to add a new paragraph (a)(6) requiring an applicant seeking an interference with a patent to demonstrate compliance with 35 U.S.C. 135(b), which provides:

> A claim which is the same as, or for the same or substantially the same subject matter as, a claim of an issued patent may not be made in any application unless such a claim is made prior to one year from the date on which the patent was granted.

Requiring an applicant to show compliance with § 135(b) before an interference is declared will prevent an interference from being declared where the applicant cannot satisfy § 135(b) with respect to any claim alleged to correspond to the proposed count.

In § 1.608, it is proposed to amend paragraphs (a) and (b) in several respects. First, both paragraphs are proposed to be amended to delete the information about effective filing dates, which would appear instead in § 1.601(g) as proposed to be amended. Second, it is proposed to relax the current requirement of paragraph (a) for an affidavit filed by the applicant. Paragraph (a) as proposed to be amended would permit a statement to be filed by the applicant or a practitioner of record. Third, it is proposed to change "sufficient cause" in paragraph (b) and in other interference rules to "good cause" in order to make it clear that only one "cause" standard is intended. Fourth, it is proposed to change "8 1/2 x 11 inches (21.8 by 27.9 cm.)" to "21.8 by 27.9 cm. (8 1/2 x 11 inches)."

In § 1.609, it is proposed to amend paragraphs (b)(2) and (b)(3) to require the examiner's statement (i.e., the form PTO-850, also known as the initial interference memorandum) to explain why each claim designated as corresponding to a count is directed to the same patentable invention as the count and why each claim designated as not corresponding to a count is not directed to the same patentable invention as the count. The proposed amendment, if adopted, would provide the Board and the parties with the benefit of the examiner's reasoning and would provide a better foundation for considering preliminary motions to designate claims as corresponding or as not corresponding to a count.

In § 1.610, it is proposed to amend paragraph (a) by deleting the language "a panel consisting of at least three members of" as superfluous and by deleting the reference to § 1.640(e), which is proposed to be amended to allow a request for reconsideration under § 1.640(c) to be decided by an individual administrative patent judge rather than by the Board. It is further proposed to amend paragraph (b) by deleting "Unless otherwise provided in this section," as unnecessary in light of the proposed amendment to paragraph (a).

Section 1.611 is proposed to be amended by redesignating paragraph (a)(8) as paragraph (a)(9) and adding a new paragraph (a)(8) requiring that a notice of declaration of interference indicate why each claim designated as corresponding to a count is directed to the same patentable invention as the count and why each claim designated as not corresponding to a count is not directed to the same patentable invention as the count. This information should assist the parties in deciding whether to move to have claims designated as corresponding or not corresponding to the count. An administrative patent judge can satisfy this requirement by enclosing a copy of the examiner's statement with the parties' copies of the declaration notice. It is also proposed to capitalize the first word in each of paragraphs (d)(2) and (d)(3).

In § 1.612, it is proposed to amend paragraph (a) to change "opposing party's" to "opponent's" and to add a sentence referring to § 1.11(e) concerning public access to interference files.

In § 1.614, it is proposed to clarify the meaning of paragraph (a) by changing "the Board shall assume jurisdiction" to "the Board acquires jurisdiction."

In § 1.616, in addition to authorizing an award of compensatory attorney fees and expenses in appropriate circumstances, as discussed above, it is proposed to amend current paragraph (b) (which is proposed to be redesignated as paragraph (a)(2)) to permit a party to be sanctioned for failing to comply with the rules or an order by entering an order precluding the party from filing any type of paper. Paragraph (b) currently permits entry of an order precluding the filing of a motion or a preliminary statement.

Section 1.617 is proposed to be amended to authorize a party against whom a § 1.617(a) order to show cause has been issued to respond with an appropriate preliminary motion under § 1.633(c), (f) or (g). A preliminary motion under § 1.633(c) to redefine the interference, under § 1.633(f) for benefit of the filing date of an earlier application or under § 1.633(g) attacking the benefit accorded a patentee may be appropriate where the count set forth in the notice declaring the interference is not the same as the count proposed in the applicant's showing under § 1.608(b). A preliminary motion under § 1.633(f) or (g) may also be appropriate where the count set forth in the notice declaring the interference is the same as the count proposed in the applicant's showing under § 1.608(b), but the notice either fails to accord the applicant the benefit of the filing date of an earlier application whose benefit was requested in the § 1.608(b) showing or accords the patentee the benefit of the filing date of an earlier application whose benefit the § 1.608(b) showing argued should not be accorded the patentee.

In § 1.618, it is proposed to amend paragraph (a) for clarification and to state that a paper that has been returned as unauthorized will not thereafter be considered in the interference. Paragraph (a) currently states that a paper that has been returned as unauthorized will not thereafter be considered by the Patent and Trademark Office.

In § 1.625, it is proposed to simplify paragraph (a) by deleting "the invention was made in the United States or abroad and" as surplusage. Section 1.626 is proposed to be simplified by changing "earlier application filed in the United States or abroad" to "earlier filed application." The same change is proposed for §§ 1.630, 1.633(f), 1.633(g) , 1.637(c)(1)(vi) 1.637(e)(1)(viii) , 1.637(e)(2)(vii) and 1.637(h)(4).

In § 1.628, it is proposed to amend paragraph (a) by changing "ends of justice" to "interest of justice" to be consistent with the language used in §§ 1.628(a) and 1.687(c), since a single standard is intended. Paragraph (a) of § 1.628 is also proposed to be amended to apply the "interest of justice" requirement only to corrected preliminary statements that are filed on or after the due date for serving preliminary statements. Where the moving party has not yet seen the opponent's statement, an opponent will not normally be prejudiced by the filing of a corrected statement.

In § 1.629, it is proposed to amend paragraphs (a), (c)(1) and (d) to make them consistent with the proposed amendment of the definition of "effective filing date" in § 1.601(g).

In § 1.631, it is proposed to amend paragraph (a) to delete "by the examiner-in-chief" (second occurrence) as superfluous.

Section 1.632 is proposed to be amended to more precisely state that a notice of intent to argue abandonment, suppression or concealment must be filed "within ten days after," rather than "within ten days of," the close of the testimony-in-chief of the opponent.

In § 1.633, it is proposed to amend paragraph (a) to specify that a claim shall be construed in light of the specification of the application or patent in which it appears. This amendment would administratively set aside the judicially created rule of In re Spina, 975 F.2d 854, 856, 24 USPQ2d 1142, 1144 (Fed. Cir. 1992), to the extent it held that the interference rules require that an ambiguous claim copied from a patent for interference purposes be construed in light of the disclosure of the patent. A claim that has been added to a pending application for any purpose, including to provoke an interference, would be given the broadest reasonable interpretation consistent with the disclosure of the application to which it is added, as are claims which are added during ex parte prosecution. As explained In re Zletz, 893 F.2d 319, 321, 13 USPQ2d 1320, 1322 (Fed. Cir. 1989).

> [d]uring patent examination the pending claims must be interpreted as broadly as their terms reasonably allow. When the applicant states the meaning that the claim terms are intended to have, the claims are examined with that meaning, in order to achieve a complete exploration of the applicant's invention and its relation to the prior art. See In re Prater, 415 F.2d 1393, 1404-05, 162 USPQ 541, 550-51 (CCPA 1969) (before the application is granted, there is no reason to read into the claim the limitations of the specification). The reason is simply that during patent prosecution when claims can be amended, ambiguities should be recognized, scope and breadth of language explored, and clarification imposed. Burlington Industries, Inc. v. Quigg, 822 F.2d 1581, 1583, 3 USPQ2d 1436, 1438 (Fed. Cir. 1987); In re Yamamoto, 740 F.2d 1569, 1571, 222 USPQ 934, 936 (Fed. Cir. 1984).

If a party believes an opponent's claim corresponding to the count is ambiguous when construed in light of the opponent's disclosure, the party should move under § 1.633(a) for judgment against the claim on the ground of unpatentability under the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112. In paragraph (a), it is also proposed to delete "by reference to the prior art of record" as unnecessary.

Paragraphs (a)(1) and (a)(2) of § 1.633 are proposed to be amended by deleting some unnecessary language from each paragraph and by changing "derivation" to "Derivation" in paragraph (a)(2). Paragraph (b), which concerns motions for judgment on the ground of no interference-in-fact, is proposed to be amended by stating that it is possible for claims of opponents presented in "means plus function" format to define separate patentable inventions even though the claims of the opponents contain the same literal wording. The reason is that the sixth paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112, which is applicable to "means plus function" limitations in application claims and patent claims, provides that such limitations are to be construed as covering the corresponding structure disclosed in the associated application or patent and equivalents thereof. In re Donaldson Co., 16 F.3d 1189, 29 USPQ2d 1845 (Fed. Cir. 1994).

Paragraph (i) of § 1.633 in its current form authorizes a party who opposes a preliminary motion under § 1.633(a), (b) or (g) to file a preliminary motion under § 1.633(c) or (d). It is proposed to amend paragraph (i) to additionally authorize a party-patentee to file a preliminary motion under § 1.633(h) to add to the interference an application for reissue of the party's involved patent. Because a reissue application can include an amended or new claim to be designated as corresponding to a count, the proposed amendment would give a patentee an option similar to that afforded in the same situation to a party-applicant, who can file a preliminary motion under § 1.633(c)(2) to amend a claim in, or add a claim to, its involved application to be designated as corresponding to a count.

In § 1.637, it is proposed to amend paragraph (a) to incorporate the substance of the Notice of the Chairman of the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences of August 10, 1990, published as "Interferences - Preliminary Motions for Judgment," 1118 Off. Gaz . Pat. Office 19 (Sept. 11, 1990). Paragraph (a) as proposed to be amended would state that where a party files a preliminary motion for judgment against an opponent under § 1.633(a) based on unpatentability over prior art having a date that appears to make the prior art equally applicable to the moving party, it will be presumed, without regard to the dates alleged in the preliminary statement of the party, that the cited prior art is also applicable to the party unless there is included with the motion an explanation, and evidence if appropriate, as to why the prior art does not apply to the party. The proposed amendment differs from the notice by providing that if the motion fails to include a sufficient explanation or evidence, the party will not be permitted to rely on any such explanation or evidence in response to or in any subsequent action in the interference. The notice had directed the administrative patent judge to request a satisfactory explanation from the party, a procedure which results in delaying a decision on the preliminary motion. Paragraph (a) is further proposed to be clarified by changing "Every" in the second sentence to "Each."

Paragraph (c)(1) of § 1.637 sets forth the requirements for a preliminary motion to add or substitute a proposed count. It is proposed to amend paragraph (c)(1)(v) in two respects. The first is to require a moving party to show that the proposed count is patentable over the prior art. The second is to specify that a proposed substitute count need only be shown to be patentably distinct from the other counts proposed to remain in the interference, since a proposed substitute count need not be patentably distinct from the count it is to replace. Paragraph (c)(1)(vi) is proposed to be amended to clarify that a preliminary motion under § 1.633(c)(1) need not be accompanied by a preliminary motion for benefit under § 1.633(f) unless the moving party seeks benefit with respect to the proposed count. It is also proposed to add a new paragraph (c)(1)(vii) specifying that where an opponent is accorded the benefit of the filing date of an earlier filed application in the notice of declaration of the interference, the moving party must show why the opponent is not also entitled to benefit of the filing date of the earlier filed application with respect to the proposed count. Otherwise, the opponent will be presumed to be entitled to the benefit of the earlier filed application with respect to the proposed count. The amendment would eliminate the need for an opponent to respond to a § 1.633(c)(1) motion with a preliminary motion under § 1.633(f) claiming benefit, which has the effect of delaying a decision on the § 1.633(c)(1) motion.

Paragraphs (c)(2)(ii) and (iii) of § 1.637 are proposed to be amended for clarification. Paragraphs (c)(2)(iv) and 1.637(c)(3)(iii), which relate to § 1.633(f) motions for benefit, are proposed to be deleted and reserved as unnecessary, since motions under § 1.633(c)(2) and (3) do not affect the count. Paragraph (c)(3)(ii), which applies to motions under § 1.633(c)(3) to designate a claim as corresponding to a count, is proposed to be amended to have claims compared to claims, as is the case in § 1.633(c)(4)(ii), which applies to motions filed under § 1.633(c)(4) to designate a claim as not corresponding to a count. The proposed amendment avoids the need to compare claims to counts, which are subject to different rules of construction than are claims.

Paragraph (c)(4)(ii) of § 1.637 is proposed to be amended to require that a party moving to designate a claim as not corresponding to a count must show that the claim could not serve as the basis for a preliminary motion under § 1.633(c)(1) to add a new count. The proposed amendment, if adopted, would preclude a party from moving to designate one of its claims as not corresponding to the count where an opponent's disclosure would support a similar claim, in which case the party could file a § 1.633(c)(1) preliminary motion proposing a claim to be added to the opponent's application and suggesting that the proposed claim and the party's claim in question be designated as corresponding to a proposed new count.

Paragraph (d)(4) of § 1.637, which authorizes a party to file a motion for benefit together with a motion under § 1.633(d), is proposed to be deleted and reserved as unnecessary, because motions filed under § 1.633(d) do not affect the count. Paragraphs (e)(1)(viii) and (e)(2)(vii) are proposed to amended to make it clear that a preliminary motion under § 1.633(e)(1) or (2) need not be accompanied by a preliminary motion for benefit under § 1.633(f) unless the moving party seeks benefit with respect to the proposed count. Paragraphs (e)(1)(ix) and (e)(2)(viii) are proposed to be added to specify that where an opponent is accorded the benefit of the filing date of an earlier filed application in the notice of declaration of the interference, the moving party must show why the opponent is not entitled to benefit of the earlier filed application with respect to the proposed count; otherwise, the opponent will be presumed to be entitled to benefit of the earlier filed application with respect to the proposed count. Paragraph (f)(2) of § 1.637 is proposed to be amended to change "abroad" to "in a foreign country" and to delete both occurrences of "filed abroad" as superfluous.

Paragraph (h) of § 1.637 is proposed to be amended to explain that a preliminary motion to add a reissue application that includes a new or amended claim to be designated as not corresponding to a count will be given the same treatment as a preliminary motion proposing to amend a claim in, or add a new claim to, an involved application to be designated as not corresponding to the count, i.e., the preliminary motion will be dismissed. See L'Esperance v. Nishimoto, 18 USPQ2d 1534, 1537 (Bd. Pat. App. & Int. 1991) (interference rules do not authorize a motion by party-applicant to amend or add a claim to be designated as not corresponding to the count).

In § 1.638, it is proposed to amend paragraph (b) for clarification by changing "a reply" to "any reply."

In § 1.639, it is proposed to amend paragraph (a), which requires that a motion, opposition or reply be accompanied by the evidence on which a party intends to rely in support of or in opposition to a motion, to be consistent with paragraphs (c) through (g), which permit some types of evidence to be filed after filing of the motion, opposition or reply. It is also proposed to amend paragraph (d)(1) by changing "call" to "use."

In § 1.640, it is proposed to amend paragraph (b) in several respects. The first is to provide that a decision on a preliminary motion shall be deferred to final hearing unless an administrative patent judge or the Board is of the opinion that a decision on a preliminary motion will materially advance the resolution of the interference. The second is to state that a matter raised by a party in support of or in opposition to a motion that is deferred to final hearing will not be entitled to consideration at final hearing unless the matter is raised in the party's brief at final hearing. It is also proposed to amend paragraph (b) to state that where the administrative patent judge determines that the interference shall proceed to final hearing on the issue of priority or derivation, a time shall be set for each party to file a paper identifying any decisions of the administrative patent judge that the party wishes to have reviewed at final hearing as well as identifying any deferred or belatedly filed motions that the party wishes to have considered at final hearing. Paragraph (b) as proposed to be amended would also require that any evidence a party wishes to have considered with respect to the decisions and motions to be considered or reviewed at final hearing, including any affidavits filed by the party under § 1.608(b) or 1.639(b), would have to be served on the opponent during the testimony-in-chief period of the party.

Paragraph (b)(1) of § 1.640 is proposed to be amended for clarification. Paragraph (b)(2), which currently states that a preliminary motion filed after a decision is entered on preliminary motions under § 1.633 will not be considered except as provided by § 1.655(b), is proposed to be amended to state that a preliminary motion filed after the time expires for filing preliminary motions will not be considered except as provided by § 1.645(b) by changing "1.655(b)" to "1.645(b)," which relates to consideration of belatedly filed papers in general.

Paragraph (c) of § 1.640, which currently requires an administrative patent judge or the Board to specifically authorize an opposition to a request for reconsideration of a decision by an administrative patent judge, is proposed to be amended to authorize an opponent to file an opposition, thereby saving the administrative patent judge or the Board the time it would otherwise take to determine whether an opposition should be authorized. If adopted, the administrative patent judge would continue to have the authority to deny a request for reconsideration without waiting for an opposition. In order to conserve the resources of the Board, it is also proposed to delete the last sentence of § 1.640(c) so as to authorize a single individual administrative patent judge to decide a request for reconsideration. Paragraph (c) is also proposed to be amended to require that a request for reconsideration be filed by hand or Express Mail. Paragraph (d)(1), which currently states that an order to show cause under that section can be based on a decision on a motion which is dispositive of the interference against a party as to any count, is proposed to be amended to include decisions on dispositive matters raised sua sponte by an administrative patent judge.

Paragraph (e) of § 1.640 is proposed to be amended to incorporate the substance of the Deputy Commissioner's Notice of December 8, 1986, published as "Interference Practice: Response to Order to Show Cause Under 37 CFR 1.640," 1074 Off. Gaz. Pat. Office 4 (Jan. 6, 1987), reprinted in 1086 Off. Gaz. Pat. Office 282 (Jan. 5, 1988). Specifically, paragraph (e) as proposed to be amended would provide that where the order to show cause was issued under § 1.640(d)(1), the party may respond with a paper (i) requesting that final hearing be set to review the decision which is the basis for the order and identifying every other decision of the administrative patent judge that the party wishes to have reviewed by the Board at a final hearing, or (ii) fully explaining why judgment should not be entered. Any other party would be permitted to file a response to the paper within 20 days of the date of service of the paper. Where the order was issued under § 1.640(d)(1) and the paper includes a request for final hearing, the response must identify every decision of the administrative patent judge that the responding party wishes to have reviewed by the Board at a final hearing. Where the order was issued under § 1.640(d)(1) and the paper does not include a request for final hearing, the response may include a request for final hearing, which must identify every decision of the administrative patent judge that the responding party wishes to have reviewed by the Board at a final hearing. Where only the response includes a request for a final hearing, the party who filed the paper would have 14 days from the date of service of the response in which to file a supplemental paper identifying any other decision of the administrative patent judge that the party wishes to have reviewed by the Board at a final hearing. The paper or the response thereto would have to be accompanied by a motion (§ 1.635) requesting a testimony period if a party wishes to introduce any evidence to be considered at final hearing (§ 1.671), such as affidavits previously filed under § 1.639(b). A request for a testimony period would be construed as including a request for final hearing. Where the paper contains an explanation of why judgment should not be entered in accordance with the order and no party has requested a final hearing, the decision that is the basis for the order would be reviewed based on the contents of the paper and the response. If the paper fails to show good cause, the Board would enter judgment against the party against whom the order issued.

Section 1.641 currently indicates that an administrative patent judge who, during the pendency of an interference, becomes aware of a reason why a claim designated to correspond to a count may not be patentable should notify the parties of the reason and set a time within which each party may present its views, which the administrative patent judge will consider in determining how the interference shall proceed. It is proposed to amend § 1.641 to indicate that a party's views may include argument or appropriate preliminary motions under § 1.633(c), (d) and (h), including any supporting evidence.

In § 1.643, it is proposed to amend paragraph (b) for clarification and also to change "ends of justice" to "interest of justice" to be consistent with the language used in other interference rules, including §§ 1.628(a) and 1.687(c).

In § 1.644, it is proposed to simplify paragraph (a) by changing "a panel consisting of more than one examiner-in-chief" to "the Board." Paragraphs (a)(1), (b) and (c) are proposed to be amended by changing both occurrences of "panel" to "Board." Paragraphs (a)(2) and (b) are proposed to be changed to provide that a petition seeking to invoke the supervisory authority of the Commissioner shall not be filed prior to the party's brief for final hearing; these paragraphs currently provide that such a petition shall not be filed prior to a decision of the Board awarding judgment.

Paragraph (b) of § 1.644 is proposed to be clarified by amending it to state that a petition under § 1.644(a) shall be considered timely if it is made as part of, or simultaneously with, a proper motion under § 1.633, 1.634, or 1.635 when granting the motion would require waiver of a rule. In other words, a petition under § 1.644(a)(2) must seek waiver of a rule prospectively rather than retroactively.

Paragraph (d) of § 1.644 is proposed to be amended to provide that the statement of facts in a petition preferably should be in numbered paragraphs and also to delete the second sentence as unnecessary. Paragraph (f) is proposed to be amended to change the "15 days" in which to request reconsideration of a decision by the Commissioner to "14 days." In paragraph (g), it is proposed to delete the quotation marks around "Express Mail."

Section 1.645, which in its current form permits consideration of a belatedly filed paper only if accompanied by a motion under § 1.635 which shows sufficient cause (§ 1.645(b)) why the paper was not timely filed, is proposed to be amended in several respects. First, it is proposed to change "sufficient cause" to "good cause" in order to use a single "cause" standard throughout the interference rules. Second, it is proposed to amend paragraph (b) to permit consideration of a belatedly filed paper if an administrative patent judge or the Board, sua sponte, is of the opinion that it would be in the interest of justice to consider the paper. An example would be where the delay is short (e.g., one day) and there is no prejudice to an opponent. For purposes of the sections other than § 1.645, a belatedly filed paper is considered "timely filed" if accompanied by a motion under § 1.635 which is granted.

Paragraph (d) of § 1.645 is proposed to be amended by deleting "In an appropriate circumstance" as superfluous in view of the language "may stay proceedings," which indicates that the administrative patent judge has the discretion to stay an interference.

In § 1.646, it is proposed to amend paragraph (a)(2) by deleting the reference to § 1.684, which is proposed to be deleted. It is proposed to amend paragraph (c)(1) by inserting "or causing a copy of the paper to be handed" after "By handing a copy of the paper" to make it clear that the paper need not be personally delivered by the party, i.e., that delivery by hand can effected by a commercial courier, for example. In paragraph (c)(4), it is proposed to change "mail" (second occurrence) to "first class mail" to make it clear that the service date specified in that paragraph applies only to first class mail. It is also proposed to redesignate paragraph (c)(5) as paragraph (c)(6) and to add a new paragraph (c)(5) which clarifies that a party may serve by Express Mail and that when service is effected by Express Mail, the date of service is considered to be the date of deposit with the U.S. Postal Service. Paragraph (d) is proposed to be amended to delete the quotation marks around "Express Mail." Paragraph (e) is proposed to be amended to state that the due date for serving a paper is the same as the due date for filing the paper in the Patent and Trademark Office.

In § 1.651, it is proposed to amend paragraph (a)(2) by deleting "(testimony includes testimony to be taken abroad under § 1.684)" in order to be consistent with the proposal to delete § 1.684. Paragraphs (c)(2) and (c)(3) are proposed to be amended to be consistent with the proposed amendment to the definition of "effective filing date" in § 1.601(g). In paragraph (d), it is proposed to change "abroad under § 1.684" to "in a foreign country."

In § 1.653, it is proposed to amend paragraph (a) in several ways. The first is to change the references to paragraphs of § 1.672 to be consistent with the proposed redesignation of certain paragraphs of § 1.672, discussed below. The second is to delete "of fact" in the clause "agreed statements of fact under § 1.672(f)" (proposed to be redesignated as § 1.672(h)), because agreed statements under § 1.672(f) can set forth either (1) how a particular witness would testify if called or (2) the facts in the case of one or more of the parties. The third is to delete "under § 1.684(c)," since § 1.684 is proposed to be deleted. A fourth proposed amendment to § 1.653(a) is to indicate that in addition to the types of testimony already set forth in paragraph (a), testimony includes copies of written interrogatories and answers and written requests for admissions and answers, which might be obtained where a motion for additional discovery under § 1.687(c) is granted.

Paragraph (b) of § 1.653 is proposed to be amended to be consistent with the proposed redesignation of certain paragraphs of § 1.672, to delete the reference to § 1.684(c), which is proposed to be cancelled, and for clarity. Paragraphs (c)(1) and (c)(4) of § 1.653 are proposed to be amended to make it clear that the only testimony to be included in a party's record is testimony submitted on behalf of the party. Having copies of the same testimony appear in both parties' records unnecessarily encumbers the records and is confusing in that a given page of testimony will have different page numbers in the different records, with the result that the briefs of the parties will refer to different record pages for the same testimony.

It is proposed that paragraph (c)(5) of § 1.653 be deleted and reserved. Paragraph (c)(5) currently requires that the record filed by each party include each notice, official record and printed publication relied upon by the party and filed under § 1.682(a). This requirement is considered unnecessary because such notices, official records and printed publications are in the nature of exhibits under § 1.653(i), which are submitted with but not included in the record. The inclusion of exhibits in the record merely increases the size of the record without serving any useful purpose.

Paragraph (g) of § 1.653 is proposed to be amended and paragraphs (f) and (h) deleted and reserved to eliminate the current distinction between typewritten and printed records. Paragraph (g) is also proposed to be amended to change "8 1/2 x 11 inches (21.8 by 27.9 cm.)" to "21.8 by 27.9 cm. (8 1/2 x 11 inches)" and to delete the requirement for justified margins and to require that the records be bound with covers at their left edges in such manner as to lie flat when open to any page and in one or more volumes of convenient size (approximately 100 pages per volume is suggested) and that when there is more than one volume, the numbers of the pages contained in each volume must appear at the top of the cover for each volume. Paragraph (i) is proposed to be amended to state that exhibits include documents and things identified in affidavits or on the record during the taking of oral depositions as well as official records and publications submitted pursuant to § 1.682(a).

In § 1.654, it is proposed to amend paragraph (a) by changing "shall" in the second sentence to "may" for clarity and also to reduce the time for oral argument by a party from 60 minutes to 30 minutes, because most hearings have required no more than 30 minutes per side and a panel has the discretion to grant more time at the hearing, where necessary.

In § 1.655, it is proposed to amend paragraph (a) by changing the standard of review from "erroneous or an abuse of discretion" to "an abuse of discretion." The recitation of a separate "error" standard is unnecessary, because an abuse of discretion may be found when (1) the decision of an administrative patent judge is clearly unreasonable, arbitrary or fanciful, (2) the decision is based on an erroneous conclusion of law, (3) the findings of the administrative patent judge are clearly erroneous, or (4) the record contains no evidence upon which the administrative patent judge rationally could have based the decision. See, e.g., Heat and Control, Inc. v. Hester Industries, Inc., 785 F.2d 1017, 228 USPQ 926 (Fed. Cir. 1986); Western Electric Co. v. Piezo Technology, Inc. v. Quigg, 860 F.2d 428, 8 USPQ2d 1853 (Fed. Cir. 1988).

It is proposed to amend paragraph (b) of § 1.655 to clarify which matters a party is not entitled to raise for consideration at final hearing. As proposed to be amended, paragraph (b) would provide that a party shall not be entitled to raise for consideration at final hearing a matter which properly could have been raised by a motion under § 1.633 or 1.634 unless (1) the matter was properly raised in a motion that was timely filed by the party under § 1.633 or 1.634 and the motion was denied or deferred to final hearing, (2) the matter was properly raised by the party in a timely filed opposition to a motion under § 1.633 or 1.634 and the motion was granted over the opposition or deferred to final hearing, or (3) the party shows good cause why the issue was not properly raised by a timely filed motion or opposition. It is also proposed to amend paragraph (b) of § 1.655 to state that a change of attorneys during the interference generally does not constitute good cause for failing to file a timely motion or opposition.

It is further proposed, in response to In re Van Geuns, 988 F.2d 1181, 26 USPQ2d 1057 (Fed. Cir. 1993), to amend paragraph (b) of § 1.655 by adding a sentence explaining that a party who fails to contest, by way of a timely filed preliminary motion under § 1.633(c), the designation of a claim as corresponding to a count may not subsequently argue the separate patentability or the lack of separate patentability of claims designated as corresponding to the count. The Patent and Trademark Office conducts interference proceedings to determine who, as between two or more applicants for patent or one or more applicants for patent and one or more patentees, is the first inventor of a patentable invention. A primary examiner determines in the first instance whether the claims in a pending application interfere with the claims in another pending application or unexpired patent. When the examiner is of the view that an interference exists, the Board is notified (§ 1.609). The interference is assigned to an administrative patent judge (§

1.610), who issues a notice declaring the interference (§ 1.611). Each separately patentable invention involved in the interference is defined by a count, which is merely a vehicle for contesting priority of invention (i.e., who made the invention defined by the count first) and determining the evidence relevant to the issue of priority. A preliminary determination is made by the Patent and Trademark Office as to which claims should be designated to correspond to the count. The claims that are initially determined to define the same patentable invention are designated as corresponding to the count. All other claims are designated as not corresponding to the count. The designation of claims provides a starting point in an interference. There is a presumption that the designation of a claim as corresponding or as not corresponding to a count is correct.

The interference rules authorize a party to file a preliminary motion to redefine an interference by designating a claim as corresponding (§ 1.633(c)(3)) or not corresponding (§ 1.633(c)(4)) to a count. Prior to Van Geuns, the Patent and Trademark Office interpreted the interference rules as requiring a party to file a preliminary motion under § 1.633(c)(4) to designate a claim as not corresponding to the count as a condition for arguing at final hearing that a claim designated as corresponding to the count is patentably distinct from another claim designated as corresponding to the count. See Brooks v. Street, 16 USPQ2d 1374, 1377 (Bd. Pat. App. & Int. 1990); Flehmig v. Geisa, 13 USPQ2d 1052, 1054 (Bd. Pat. App. & Int. 1989); Kwon v. Perkins, 6 USPQ2d 1747, 1750 (Bd. Pat. App. & Int. 1988), aff'd on other grounds, 886 F.2d 325, 12 USPQ2d 1308 (Fed. Cir. 1989); see also Lamont v. Berguer, 7 USPQ2d 1580, 1582 (Bd. Pat. App. & Int. 1988). However, in Van Geuns the Federal Circuit interpreted the rules differently, stating:

> [T]he position of the Commissioner that claims designated as corresponding to a count stand or fall with the patentability of the subject matter of the count is overbroad.

988 F.2d at 1185, 26 USPQ2d at 1060. The Court further stated:

> [W]e conclude that a party to an interference, who has failed to timely contest the designation of claims as corresponding to a count, has not conceded that claims corresponding to a count are anticipated or made obvious [i.e., are unpatentable] by the prior art when the subject matter of a count is determined to be unpatentable for obviousness. The PTO must determine, based on the actual prior art reference or references, whether claims not [designated as] corresponding exactly to the count are unpatentable.
> . . . The interference rules do not specify whether a party may argue the patentability of claims separately to the EIC [examiner-in-chief, now administrative patent judge] and the board.

Id. at 1186, 26 USPQ2d at 1060 (bracketed material added by the Commissioner). The proposed amendment to § 1.655(b) is designed to overcome the Federal Circuit's interpretation of the rules and to create a presumption that all claims designated as corresponding to a count are directed to the same patentable invention.

It is proposed to amend paragraph (c) of § 1.655 by changing "To prevent manifest injustice" to "In the interest of justice" to be consistent with the language used in other interference rules.

In § 1.656, it is proposed to redesignate paragraphs (b)(1) through (b)(6) as paragraphs (b)(3) through (b)(8), respectively, and to add new paragraphs (b)(1) and (b)(2) requiring the brief to include (1) a statement of interest identifying every party represented by the attorney in the interference and the real party in interest if the party named in the caption is not the real party in interest and (2) a statement of related cases indicating whether the interference was previously before the Board for final hearing and identifying any related appeal or interference which is pending before, or which has been decided by, the Board, or which is pending before, or which has been decided by, the Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit or a district court in a proceeding under 35 U.S.C. 146. A related appeal or interference is one which will directly affect or be directly affected by or have a bearing on the Board's decision in the pending interference. Appeals are mentioned because related issues may be present before the Board simultaneously in an ex parte appeal and an interference. It is also proposed to amend current paragraph (b)(3) (proposed to be redesignated as paragraph (b)(5)) to specify that statements of fact preferably should be presented in numbered paragraphs.

Current paragraph (b)(4) of § 1.656 (proposed to be redesignated as paragraph (b)(6)) requires that the opening brief of the junior party contain the contentions of the party with respect to the "issues to be decided," which has been construed to include the matter of whether some of the senior party's evidence of conception was inadmissible hearsay. Suh v. Hoefle, 23 USPQ2d 1321, 1323 (Bd. Pat. App. & Int. 1991). As support, the Board relied on Fisher v. Bouzard, 3 USPQ2d 1677 (Bd. Pat. App. & Int. 1987), and Moller v. Harding, 214 USPQ 730 (Bd. Pat. Int. 1982). Both of these cases concern interferences declared under the "old" interference rules (i.e., § 1.201 et seq.), of which § 1.254 specified that the opening brief of the junior party shall "present a full, fair statement of the questions involved, including his position with respect to the priority evidence on behalf of other parties." Current § 1.656(b)(4) does not expressly require, and was not intended to imply, that the opening brief of the junior party must address the evidence of any other party with respect to the issue of priority or any other issue. In order to clarify that the opening brief of a junior party need not address the evidence of the other parties, it is proposed to amend current paragraph (b)(4) to require that the junior party's opening brief contain the contentions of the party "with respect to the issues it is raising for consideration at final hearing." These issues would include the junior party's case-in-chief for priority with respect to an opponent or derivation by an opponent as well as matters raised in any denied or deferred motions of the junior party that are to be reviewed or considered at final hearing. Where the reply brief of the junior party includes a new argument in response the case-in-chief of the senior party as presented in the senior party's opening brief, the senior party may move under § 1.635 for leave to file a reply to the junior party's reply brief, which motion must be accompanied by a copy of the senior party's reply.

Paragraph (d) of § 1.656 is proposed to be amended to state that unless ordered otherwise by an administrative patent judge, briefs shall be double-spaced (except for footnotes, which may be single-spaced) and shall comply with the requirements of § 1.653 (g) for records except the requirement for binding. As a result, the current distinction between printed and typewritten briefs would be eliminated.

Paragraphs (e), (g) and (h) of § 1.656 are proposed to be amended to require an original and four copies (currently an original and three copies are required) of each brief, any proposed findings of fact and conclusions of law, any motion under 37 CFR 1.635 to suppress evidence and any opposition to a motion to suppress evidence.

Paragraph (g) of § 1.656, which permits a party to file proposed findings of fact and conclusions of law, is further proposed to be amended to require paragraph numbers for the findings of fact and conclusions of law.

Paragraph (h) is further proposed to be amended to state that a party's failure to challenge the admissibility of the evidence of an opponent on a ground that could have been raised in a timely objection under §§ 1.672(c), 1.682(c), 1.683(b) or 1.688(b) constitutes a waiver of the right to move under § 1.656(h) to suppress the evidence on that ground at final hearing.

Paragraph (i) of § 1.656 currently provides that if a junior party fails to file an opening brief for final hearing, an order may be issued by the administrative patent judge requiring the junior party to show cause why the failure to file a brief should not be treated as a concession of priority and further provides that judgment may be rendered against the junior party if the junior party "fails to respond" within a time period set in the order. The expression "fails to respond" has been misinterpreted by some junior parties as meaning that the mere filing of a response of any kind to the order to show cause should be sufficient to avoid the entry of judgment. Such an interpretation was not intended and if adopted would effectively negate § 1.656(i). The term "respond" is proposed to be changed to "show good cause" in order to make it clear that a junior party's failure to file a timely opening brief will not be excused unless good cause is shown to explain or justify the failure to file a brief. The language of the rule will then be consistent with the other interference rules concerning orders to show cause, e.g., § 1.640(c) and 1.652.

Section 1.657 is proposed to be amended to be consistent with the proposed changes to the definition of "effective filing date" in § 1.601(g) and to state that in an interference involving an application and a patent where the effective filing date of the application is after the date the patent issued, a junior party has the burden of establishing priority by clear and convincing evidence, and that in other interferences the junior party has the burden of establishing priority by a preponderance of the evidence. The proposed amendment would codify the holding of Price v. Symsek 988 F.2d 1187, 1190-91, 26 USPQ2d 1031, 1033 (Fed. Cir. 1993), as clarified by Bosies v. Benedict, 27 F.3d 539, 541-42, 30 USPQ2d 1862, 1864 (Fed. Cir. 1994).

In § 1.658, it is proposed to amend paragraph (a) to state that when the Board enters a decision awarding judgment as to all counts, the decision shall be regarded as a final decision for the purpose of judicial review (35 U.S.C. 141-144, 146) unless a request for reconsideration under paragraph (b) of this section is timely filed. In paragraph (b), third sentence, it is proposed to delete the phrases "[w]here reasonably possible" and "such that delivery is accomplished" as unnecessary and to add a sentence specifying that a decision on reconsideration is a final decision for the purpose of judicial review (35 U.S.C. 141-144, 146). It is also proposed to amend paragraph (b) by changing "reply to a request for reconsideration" to "opposition to a request for reconsideration" to be consistent with the terminology employed in § 1.640(c) regarding requests for reconsideration of decisions on preliminary motions.

Section 1.660 is proposed to be amended by adding a new paragraph (e) explaining that the failure of a party to comply with the notice provisions of § 1.660 may result in sanctions under § 1.616, that knowledge by, or notice to, an employee of the Office other than an employee of the Board, of the existence of the reexamination, application for reissue, protest, or litigation shall not be sufficient, and that the notice contemplated by this section is notice addressed specifically to an administrative patent judge or the Board.

In § 1.662, it is proposed to amend paragraph (a) by changing "filing by an applicant or patentee" in the second sentence to "filing by a party" to make it clear that the terminal disclaimer can be signed by the party's attorney or agent of record. For the same reason, it is proposed to change "by an applicant" to "by a party" in the third sentence of paragraph (a), which concerns abandonment of an involved application.

In paragraph (b) of § 1.662, the first sentence is proposed to be amended to change "omits all claims of the patent corresponding to the counts of the interference for the purpose of avoiding the interference" to "does not include a claim that corresponds to a count" in order to make it clear that judgment may not be entered where the reissue application includes a new or amended claim that should be designated as corresponding to a count, even if the patentee argues that it should be designated as not corresponding to a count. Similarly, it is proposed to change "reissue other than for the purpose of avoiding the interference" to "reissue which includes a claim that corresponds to a count."

In § 1.671, it is proposed to amend paragraph (a) by changing "evidence from another interference, proceeding, or action filed under § 1.683" to "testimony from another interference, proceeding, or action filed under § 1.683" in order to be consistent with the terminology of § 1.683. It is proposed to amend paragraphs (c)(6) and (c)(7) of § 1.671 to change "by oral deposition or affidavit" to "by affidavit or oral deposition." Paragraph (f) is proposed to be amended to clarify that the requirement for the significance of documentary and other exhibits to be discussed with particularity by a witness applies only to documentary and other exhibits identified by a witness in an affidavit or during oral deposition. Paragraph (f) does not apply to official records and printed publications submitted into evidence pursuant to § 1.682(a).

In § 1.672, in addition to the proposed amendments discussed above under the heading "Amendments responsive to adoption of Public Law 103-182," it is proposed to amend paragraph (b) by deleting the third sentence, which specifies the type of paper to be used for affidavits, as being superfluous in view of § 1.677(a). In paragraph (d), it is proposed to delete the fifth sentence ("A party electing to present testimony of a witness by deposition shall notice a deposition of the witness under § 1.673(a)."') as superfluous in view of the second sentence of § 1.672(d).

In § 1.673, it is proposed to amend paragraph (b) by changing the time for service of evidence to be relied on at an oral deposition from "at least three days" prior to the conference required by § 1.673(g) when service is by hand or by Express Mail to "at least three working days" prior to the conference. It is also proposed to amend paragraph (b) to change the time for service by any other means from 10 days to 14 days prior to the conference. It is proposed to amend paragraph (d) of § 1.673 by deleting the second sentence as unnecessary, since all depositions for a case-in-chief would have to be approved by an administrative patent judge. It is also proposed to delete the quotation marks around "Express Mail" in paragraph (b).

Also in § 1.673, it is proposed to clarify paragraph (e) by changing "party electing to present testimony by affidavit" to "party who has presented testimony by affidavit."

In paragraph (a) of § 1.674, which specifies before whom depositions may be taken, it is proposed to delete the reference to "United States or a territory or insular possession of the United States" in order to make this paragraph applicable to depositions for testimony compelled in foreign countries.

In § 1.675, it is proposed to amend paragraph (d), which concerns reading and signing of a transcript by the witness, to take into account that the witness might refuse to read and/or sign the transcript of the deposition, in which case the circumstances under which the witness refused to sign must be noted on the certificate by the officer who prepared the certified transcript (§ 1.676(c)).

In § 1.676, it is proposed to amend paragraph (a)(4) by changing "opposing party" to "opponent."

Section 1.677, which in its current form specifies the required form for transcripts of depositions, is proposed to be amended to also apply to affidavits. Furthermore, it is proposed to delete the reference to "typewritten" matter, to change "pica-type" to "11 point type" and to change "8 1/2 x 11 inches (21.8 by 27.9 cm.)" to "21.8 by 27.9 cm. (8 1/2 x 11 inches)."

In § 1.678, it is proposed to change the section heading from "Transcript of deposition must be filed" to "Time for filing transcript of deposition" for clarity and to amend the text by changing the time for filing the certified transcript from 45 days to 30 days.

In § 1.679, it is proposed to change "transcript" to "transcript of a deposition" for clarity and also to delete "for printing (§ 1. 653 (g))" as unnecessary.

In § 1.682, in addition to the proposed amendments discussed above under the heading "Service of a "'developing record,'" it is proposed to amend paragraph (a) by changing "identified during the taking of testimony of a witness" to "identified in an affidavit or on the record during an oral deposition of a witness" for clarity. It is also proposed to delete and reserve paragraph (a)(4) ("where appropriate, be accompanied by a certified copy of the official record or a copy of the printed publication (§ 1.671(d))") as superfluous in view of Rules 901 and 902 of the Federal Rules of Evidence, which apply to interference proceedings (§ 1.671(b)) and require authentication of evidence that is not self-authenticating. Finally, it is proposed to capitalize the first word in each of paragraphs (a)(2) , (a)(3) and (a)(4).

In § 1.685, it is proposed to amend paragraph (d) for clarification.

In § 1.687, it is proposed to amend paragraph (c) to refer to 1.647 concerning translations of documents in a foreign language.

Other Considerations: These proposed rules conform with the requirements of the Regulatory Flexibility Act, 5 U.S.C. 601 et seq., Executive Order 12866, and the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et seq. The Office of Management and Budget has determined that these proposed rules are not significant for the purposes of Executive Order 12866.

The Assistant Counsel for Legislation and Regulation of the Department of Commerce has certified to the Chief Counsel for Advocacy, Small Business Administration, that the proposed rule changes will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities (Regulatory Flexibility Act, 5 U.S.C. 605(b)), because the changes clarify existing rules setting forth the procedures used in patent appeals and interferences.

The Patent and Trademark Office has determined that this notice has no Federalism implications affecting the relationship between the National Government and the States as outlined in Executive Order 12612.

These rule changes will not impose any additional burden under the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et. seq., since no record keeping or reporting requirements within the coverage of the Act are placed upon the public.

List of Subjects in 37 CFR Part 1

Administrative practice and procedure, Courts, Inventions and patents.

For the reasons set out in the preamble, it is proposed to amend 37 CFR Part 1 wherein removals are indicated by brackets ([]) and additions by arrows (►◄) as follows:

PART 1 - Rules of Practice in Patent Cases

1. The authority citation for 37 CFR Part 1 would continue to read as follows:

Authority: 35 U.S.C. 6, unless otherwise noted.

2. Section 1.11 is proposed to be amended by revising paragraph (e) to read as follows:

§ 1.11 Files open to public

* * * * *

(e) The file of any interference involving a patent, a statutory invention registration, ► reissue application, ◄ or an application on which a patent has been issued or which has been published as a statutory invention registration, is open to inspection by the public, and copies may be obtained upon paying the fee therefor, if: (1) the interference has terminated, or (2) an award of priority or judgment has been entered as to all parties and all counts.

3. In § 1.192, it is proposed to revise paragraphs (a), (c), (c)(5) and (c)(5)(ii), redesignate current paragraphs (c)(1) through (c)(7) as paragraphs (c)(3) through (c)(9) and add new paragraphs (c)(1) and (c)(2) to read as follows:

§ 1.192 Appellant's brief.

(a) [The appellant] ►Appellant◄ shall, within 2 months from the date of the notice of appeal under § 1.191 [in an application, reissue application, or patent under reexamination,] or within the time allowed for response to the action appealed from, if such time is later, file a brief in triplicate. The brief must be accompanied by the requisite fee set forth in § 1.17(f) and must set forth the authorities and arguments on which [the] appellant will rely to maintain the appeal. Any arguments or authorities not included in the brief ►will◄ [may] be refused consideration by the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences ►, unless good cause is shown◄.

* * * * *

(c) The brief shall contain the following items under appropriate headings and in the order [here] indicated ►below◄ unless ►the brief is filed by an applicant who is not represented by a registered practitioner◄ [there is no attorney or agent of record in the application or reexamination proceeding, the brief was not prepared by a registered practitioner, and the brief was not signed by a registered practitioner, wherein the brief will be accepted as complying with this paragraph provided it is at least in substantial compliance with the requirements of paragraphs (c)(1), (2), (6) and (7)]:

►(1) Real Party in Interest. A statement identifying the real party in interest, if the party named in the caption of the brief is not the real party in interest, and the parent companies, subsidiaries (except wholly owned subsidiaries) and affiliates that have issued shares to the public of the real party in interest.

(2) Related Appeals and Interferences. A statement identifying by number and filing date all other appeals or interferences known to appellant, the appellant's legal representative, or assignee which will directly affect or be directly affected by or have a bearing on the Board's decision in the pending appeal.◄

[(1)] ►(3)◄ Status of Claims. A statement of the status of all the claims, pending or cancelled, and identifying the claims appealed.

[(2)] ►(4)◄ Status of Amendments. A statement of the status of any amendment filed subsequent to final rejection.

[(3)] ►(5)◄ Summary of Invention. A concise explanation of the invention defined in the claims involved in the appeal, which shall refer to the specification by page and line number, and to the drawing, if any, by reference characters.

[(4)] ►(6)◄ Issues. A concise statement of the issues presented for review.

[(5)] ►(7)◄ Grouping of Claims. For each ground of rejection which appellant contests and which applies to more than one claim, [it will be presumed that] the rejected claims ►shall◄ stand or fall together ►with the broadest claim, and only the broadest claim will be considered by the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences◄ unless:

►(i)◄ a statement is included that the rejected claims do not stand or fall together, and

►(ii)◄ in [the appropriate part or parts of] the argument under subparagraph ►(c)(8)◄ [(c)(6)] of this section appellant presents reasons as to why appellant considers the rejected claims to be separately patentable ►from the broadest claim. Merely pointing out what a claim covers is not an argument as to why the claim is separately patentable from the broadest claims◄.

[(6)] ►(8)◄ Argument. The contentions of [the] appellant with respect to each of the issues presented for review in subparagraph ►(c)(6)◄ [(c)(4)] of this section, and the basis therefor, with citations of the authorities, statutes, and parts of the record relied on. Each issue should be treated under a separate heading.

* * * * *

(v) For any rejection other than those referred to in paragraphs ►(c)(8)(i)◄ [(c)(6)(i)] to (iv) of this section, the argument shall specify the errors in the rejection and the specific limitations in the rejected claims, if appropriate, or other reasons, which cause the rejection to be in error.

[(7)] ►(9)◄ Appendix. An appendix containing a copy of the claims involved in the appeal.

(d) If a brief is filed which does not comply with all the requirements of paragraph (c) of this section, [the] appellant will be notified of the reasons for non-compliance and provided with a period of one month within which to file an amended brief. If [the] appellant does not file an amended brief during the one-month period, or files an amended brief which does not overcome all the reasons for non-compliance stated in the notification, the appeal will ►stand◄ [be] dismissed.

4. Section 1.601 is proposed to be amended by revising paragraphs (f), (g), (j), (k), (l) and (q) and adding a new paragraph (r) to read as follows:

§ 1.601 Scope of rules, definitions.

* * * * *

(f) A count defines the interfering subject matter between (1) two or more applications or (2) one or more applications and one or more patents. ►A count should be broad enough to encompass the broadest corresponding patentable claim of each of the parties. A count may not be so broad as to be unpatentable over the prior art.◄ When there is more than one count, each count shall define a separate patentable invention. Any claim of an application or patent [which] ►that is designated to◄ correspond[s] to a count is a claim involved in the interference within the meaning of 35 U.S.C. 135(a). A claim of a patent or application ►designated to correspond to a count that◄ [which] is identical to a count is said to "correspond exactly" to the count. A claim of a patent or application ►designated to correspond to a count that ◄[which] is not identical to a count [, but which defines the same patentable invention as the count,] is said to "correspond substantially" to the count. When a count is broader in scope than all claims which correspond to the count, the count is a "phantom count." A phantom count is [not patentable to any party] ►unpatentable to all parties under the written description requirement of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112◄.

(g) The effective filing date of an application [or a patent] is the filing date of an earlier application accorded to the application [or patent] under 35 U.S.C. 119, 120, ►121,◄ or 365 ►or, if no benefit is accorded, the filing date of the application. The effective filing date of a patent is the filing date of an earlier application accorded to the patent under 35 U.S.C. 120, 121, or 365(c) or, if no benefit is accorded, the filing date of the application which issued as the patent.◄

(j) An interference-in-fact exists when at least one claim of a party [which] ►that◄ corresponds to a count and at least one claim of an opponent [which] ►that◄ corresponds to the count define the same patentable invention.

(k) A lead attorney or agent is a registered attorney or agent of record who is primarily responsible for prosecuting an interference on behalf of a party and is the attorney or agent whom an ►administrative patent judge◄ [examiner-in-chief] may contact to set times and take other action in the interference.

(l) A party is (1) an applicant or patentee involved in the interference or (2) a legal representative or an assignee ►of record in the Patent and Trademark Office◄ of an applicant or patentee involved in an interference. Where acts of a party are normally performed by an attorney or agent, "party" may be construed to mean the attorney or agent. An "inventor" is the individual named as inventor in an application involved in an interference or the individual named as inventor in a patent involved in an interference.

(q) A final decision is a decision awarding judgment as to all counts. An interlocutory order is any other action taken by an ►administrative patent judge◄ [examiner-in-chief] or [a panel of] the Board in an interference, including the notice declaring an interference.

►(r) NAFTA country means NAFTA country as defined in section 2(4) of the North American Free Trade Agreement Implementation Act. A "non-NAFTA country" is a country other than the United States or a NAFTA country.◄

5. Section 1.602 is proposed to be amended by revising paragraph (c) to read as follows:

§ 1.602 Interest in applications and patents involved in an interference.

* * * * *

(c) If a change of any right, title, and interest in any application or patent involved or relied upon in the interference occurs after notice is given declaring the interference and before the time expires for seeking judicial review of a final decision of the Board, the parties shall notify the Board of the change within 20 days ►after◄ [of] the change.

6. Section 1.603 is proposed to be revised to read as follows:

§ 1.603 Interference between applications; subject matter of the interference.

Before an interference is declared between two or more applications, the examiner must be of the opinion that there is interfering subject matter claimed in the applications which is patentable to each applicant subject to a judgment in the interference. The interfering subject matter shall be defined by one or more counts. [Each count shall define a separate patentable invention.] Each application must contain, or be amended to contain, at least one ►patentable◄ claim which corresponds to each count. All claims in the applications which define the same patentable invention as a count shall be designated to correspond to the count.

7. Section 1.604 is proposed to be revised by changing paragraph (a)(1) to read as follows:

§ 1.604 Request for interference between applications by an applicant.

(a) * * *

(1) Suggesting a proposed count and presenting at least one claim corresponding to the proposed count or identifying at least one claim in [his or her] ►its◄ application that corresponds to the proposed count,

* * * * *

8. Section 1.605 is proposed to be amended by revising paragraph (a) to read as follows:

§ 1.605 Suggestion of claim to applicant by examiner.

(a) ►If no claim in an application is drawn to the same patentable invention claimed in another application or patent, the◄ [The] examiner may suggest that an applicant present a claim [in an application] ►drawn to an invention claimed in another application or patent◄ for the purpose of an interference with another application or a patent. The applicant to whom the claim is suggested shall amend the application by presenting the suggested claim within a time specified by the examiner, not less than one month. Failure or refusal of an applicant to timely present the suggested claim shall be taken without further action as a disclaimer by the applicant of the invention defined by the suggested claim. At the time the suggested claim is presented, the applicant may also (1) call the examiner's attention to other claims already in the application or which are presented with the suggested claim and (2) explain why the other claims [would be more appropriate to] ►should◄ be included in any interference which may be declared.

* * * * *

9. Section 1.606 is proposed to be revised to read as follows:

§ 1.606 Interference between an application and a patent; subject matter of the interference.

Before an interference is declared between an application and an unexpired patent, an examiner must determine that there is interfering subject matter claimed in the application and the patent which is patentable to the applicant subject to a judgment in the interference. The interfering subject matter will be defined by one or more counts. [Each count shall define a separate patentable invention.] ►The◄ [Any] application must contain, or be amended to contain, at least one ►patentable◄ claim which corresponds to each count. ►The claim in the application need not be, and most often will not be, identical to a claim in the patent.◄ All claims in the application and patent which define the same patentable invention as a count shall be designated to correspond to the count. At the time an interference is initially declared (§ 1.611), a count shall not be narrower in scope than any patent claim which corresponds to the count and any single patent claim will be presumed, subject to a motion under § 1.633(c), not to contain separate patentable inventions.

10. Section 1.607 is proposed to be amended by revising paragraph (a)(4) and adding a new paragraph (a)(6) to read as follows:

§ 1.607 Request by applicant for interference with patent.

(a) * * *

(4) Presenting at least one claim corresponding to the proposed count or identifying at least one claim already pending in [his or her] ►its◄ application that corresponds to the proposed count, and, if any claim of the patent or application identified as corresponding to the proposed count does not correspond exactly to the proposed count, explaining why each such claim corresponds to the proposed count, and

(5) * * *

►(6) Explaining how the requirements of 35 U.S.C. 135(b) are met, if the claim presented or identified under paragraph (a)(4) of this section was not present in the application until more than one year after the issue date of the patent.◄

* * * * *

11. Section 1.608 is proposed to be amended by revising paragraphs (a) and (b) thereof to read as follows:

VOL 1170 ISS 1 JAN 3 1995 UMI

§ 1.608 Interference between an application and a patent; prima facie showing by applicant.

(a) When the [earlier of the filing date or] effective filing date of an application is three months or less after the [earlier of the filing date or] effective filing date of a patent, [the applicant,] before an interference will be declared, ▶either the applicant or the applicant's attorney or agent of record◀ shall file [an affidavit] ▶a statement◀ alleging that there is a basis upon which ▶the◀ applicant is entitled to a judgment relative to the patentee.

(b) When the [earlier of the filing date or the] effective filing date of an application is more than three months after the [earlier of the filing date or the] effective filing date [under 35 U.S.C. 120] of a patent, the applicant, before an interference will be declared, shall file (1) evidence which may consist of patents or printed publications, other documents, and one or more affidavits which demonstrate that applicant is prima facie entitled to a judgment relative to the patentee and (2) an explanation stating with particularity the basis upon which the applicant is prima facie entitled to the judgment. Where the basis upon which an applicant is entitled to judgment relative to a patentee is priority of invention, the evidence shall include affidavits by the applicant, if possible, and one or more corroborating witnesses, supported by documentary evidence, if available, each setting out a factual description of acts and circumstances performed or observed by the affiant, which collectively would prima facie entitle the applicant to judgment on priority with respect to the [earlier of the filing date or] effective filing date of the patent. To facilitate preparation of a record (§ 1.653 (g) and (h)) for final hearing, an applicant should file affidavits on paper which is ▶21.8 by 27.9 cm. (8 1/2 x 11 inches)◀ [8 1/2 x 11 inches (21.8 by 27.9 cm.)]. The significance of any printed publication or other document which is self-authenticating within the meaning of Rule 902 of the Federal Rules of Evidence or § 1.671(d) and any patent shall be discussed in an affidavit or the explanation. Any printed publication or other document which is not self-authenticating shall be authenticated and discussed with particularity in an affidavit. Upon a showing of ▶good◀ [sufficient] cause, an affidavit may be based on information and belief. If an examiner finds an application to be in condition for declaration of an interference, the examiner will consider the evidence and explanation only to the extent of determining whether a basis upon which the application would be entitled to a judgment relative to the patentee is alleged and, if a basis is alleged, an interference may be declared.

12. Section 1.609 is proposed to be amended by revising paragraph (b)(2) and (b)(3) to read as follows:

§ 1.609 Preparation of interference papers by examiner.

* * * * *

(b) * * *

(2) The claims of any application or patent which correspond to each count, stating whether the claims correspond exactly or substantially to each count ▶and an explanation why each claim designated as corresponding to a count is directed to the same patentable invention as the count◀;

(3) The claims in any application ▶or patent◀ which [are deemed by the examiner to be patentable over any] ▶do not correspond to each◀ count ▶and an explanation why each claim designated as not corresponding to a count is not directed to the same patentable invention as the count◀; and

* * * * *

13. Section 1.610 is proposed to be amended by revising the section heading and paragraphs (a) through (e) to read as follows:

§ 1.610 Assignment of interference to ▶administrative patent judge◀ [examiner-in-chief], time period for completing interference.

(a) Each interference will be declared by an ▶administrative patent judge◀ [examiner-in-chief] who may enter all interlocutory orders in the interference, except that only [a panel consisting of at least three members of] the Board shall (1) hear oral argument at final hearing, (2) enter a decision under §§ 1.617, ▶1.640(e)◀ [1.640(c) or (e)], 1.652, 1.656(i) or 1.658 or (3) enter any other order which terminates the interference.

(b) As necessary, another ▶administrative patent judge◀ [examiner-in-chief] may act in place of the one who declared the interference. [Unless otherwise provided in this section, at] ▶At◀ the discretion of the examiner-in-chief assigned to the interference, a panel consisting of two or more members of the Board may enter interlocutory orders.

(c) Unless otherwise provided in this subpart, times for taking action by a party in the interference will be set on a case-by-case basis by the ▶administrative patent judge◀ [examiner-in-chief] assigned to the interference. Times for taking action shall be set and the ▶administrative patent judge◀ [examiner-in-chief] shall exercise control over the interference such that the pendency of the interference before the Board does not normally exceed two years.

(d) An ▶administrative patent judge◀ [examiner-in-chief] may hold a conference with the parties to consider: (1) Simplification of any issues, (2) the necessity or desirability of amendments to counts, (3) the possibility of obtaining admissions of fact and genuineness of documents which will avoid unnecessary proof, (4) any limitations on the number of expert witnesses, (5) the time and place for conducting a deposition (§ 1.673(g)), and (6) any other matter as may aid in the disposition of the interference. After a conference, the ▶administrative patent judge◀ [examiner-in-chief] may enter any order which may be appropriate.

(e) The ▶administrative patent judge◀ [examiner-in-chief] may determine a proper course of conduct in an interference for any situation not specifically covered by this part.

14. Section 1.611 is proposed to be amended by redesignating paragraph (c)(8) as paragraph (c)(9), adding a new paragraph (c)(8) and revising paragraphs (b), (c)(7) and (d) to read as follows:

§ 1.611 Declaration of interference.

* * * * *

(b) When a notice of declaration is returned to the Patent and Trademark Office undelivered, or in any other circumstance where appropriate, an ▶administrative patent judge◀ [examiner-in-chief] may (1) send a copy of the notice to a patentee named in a patent involved in an interference or the patentee's assignee of record in the Patent and Trademark Office or (2) order publication of an appropriate notice in the Official Gazette.

(c) * * *

(7) The claim or claims of any application or any patent which correspond to each count; [and]

(8) ▶Why each claim designated as corresponding to a count is directed to the same patentable invention as the count and why each claim designated as not corresponding to a count is not directed to the same patentable invention as the count; and

(9)◀ The order of the parties.

(d) The notice of declaration may also specify the time for: (1) Filing a preliminary statement as provided in § 1.621(a); (2) ▶Serving◀ [serving] notice that a preliminary statement has been filed as provided in § 1.621(b); and (3) ▶Filing◀ [filing] preliminary motions authorized by § 1.633, oppositions to the motions, and replies to the oppositions.

* * * * *

15. Section 1.612 is proposed to be amended by revising paragraph (a) to read as follows:

§ 1.612 Access to applications.

(a) After an interference is declared, each party shall have access to and may obtain copies of the files of any application set out in the notice declaring the interference, except for affidavits filed under § 1.131 and any evidence and explanation under § 1.608 filed separate from an amendment. A party seeking access to any abandoned or pending application referred to in the [opposing party's] ▶opponent's◀ involved application or access to any pending application referred to in the [opposing party's] ▶opponent's◀ patent must file a motion under § 1.635. ▶See § 1.11(e) concerning public access to interference files.◀

* * * * *

16. Section 1.613 is proposed to be amended by revising paragraphs (c) and (d) to read as follows:

§ 1.613 Lead attorney, same attorney representing different parties in an interference, withdrawal of attorney or agent.

* * * * *

(c) An ▶administrative patent judge◀ [examiner-in-chief] may make necessary inquiry to determine whether an attorney or agent should be disqualified from representing a party in an interference. If an ▶administrative patent judge◀ [examiner-in-chief] is of the opinion that an attorney or agent should be disqualified, the ▶administrative patent judge◀ [examiner-in-chief] shall refer the matter to the Commissioner. The Commissioner will make a final decision as to whether any attorney or agent should be disqualified.

(b)▶Unless an administrative patent judge or the Board is of the opinion that a decision on a preliminary motion would materially advance the resolution of the interference, decision on a preliminary motion shall be deferred to final hearing.◀ Motions ▶otherwise◀ will be decided by an ▶administrative patent judge◀ [examiner-in-chief]. An ▶administrative patent judge◀ [examiner-in-chief] may consult with an examiner in deciding motions involving a question of patentability. An ▶administrative patent judge◀ [examiner-in-chief] ▶may take up motions for decision in any order and◀ may grant or deny any motion or take such other action which will secure the just, speedy, and inexpensive determination of the interference. ▶A matter raised by a party in support of or in opposition to a motion that is deferred to final hearing will not be entitled to consideration at final hearing unless the matter is raised in the party's brief at final hearing. If the administrative patent judge determines that the interference shall proceed to final hearing on the issue of priority or derivation, a time shall be set for each party to file a paper identifying any decisions on motions or on matters raised sua sponte by the administrative patent judge that the party wishes to have reviewed at final hearing as well as identifying any deferred motions that the party wishes to have considered at final hearing. Any evidence that a party wishes to have considered with respect to the decisions and motions identified by the party or by an opponent for consideration or review at final hearing, including any affidavit filed by the party under § 1.608 or 1.639(b), shall be served on the opponent during the testimony-in-chief period of the party.◀

(1) ▶When appropriate after the time expires for filing replies to oppositions to preliminary motions◀ [When preliminary motions under § 1.633 are decided], the ▶administrative patent judge◀ [examiner-in-chief] will [, when necessary,] set a time for filing any amendment to an application involved in the interference and for filing a supplemental preliminary statement as to any new counts ▶which may become◀ involved in the interference ▶if a preliminary motion to amend or substitute a count has been filed◀. Failure or refusal of a party to timely present an amendment required by an ▶administrative patent judge◀ [examiner-in-chief] shall be taken without further action as a disclaimer by that party of the invention involved. A supplemental preliminary statement shall meet the requirements specified in § 1.623, § 1.624, § 1.625, or § 1.626, but need not be filed if a party states that it intends to rely on a preliminary statement previously filed under § 1.621(a). ▶At an appropriate time in the interference, and when necessary◀ [After the time expires for filing any amendment and supplemental preliminary statement], ▶an order will be entered redeclaring [the examiner-in-chief will, if necessary, redeclare] the interference.

(2) After ▶the time expires for filing preliminary motions◀ [a decision is entered on preliminary motions filed under § 1.633], a further ▶preliminary◀ motion under § 1.633 will not be considered except as provided by § [1.655(b)] ▶1.645(b)◀.

(c) When a decision on any motion under § 1.633, § 1.634, or § 1.635 ▶or on any matter raised sua sponte by an administrative patent judge◀ is entered which does not result in the issuance of an order to show cause under paragraph (d) of this section, a party may file a request for reconsideration within 14 days after the date of the decision. ▶The request for reconsideration shall be served by hand or Express Mail.◀ The filing of a request for reconsideration will not stay any time period set by the decision. The request for reconsideration shall specify with particularity the points believed to have been misapprehended or overlooked in rendering the decision. ▶An opponent may file an opposition within 14 days after service of the request for reconsideration.◀ [No opposition to a request for reconsideration shall be filed unless requested by an examiner-in- chief or the Board. A decision of a single examiner-in-chief will not ordinarily be modified unless an opposition has been requested by an examiner-in-chief or the Board. The request for reconsideration shall be acted on by a panel of the Board consisting of at least three examiners-in-chief, one of whom will normally be the examiner-in-chief who decided the motion].

(d) An ▶administrative patent judge◀ [examiner-in-chief] may issue an order to show cause why judgment should not be entered against a party when:

(1) A decision on a motion ▶or on a matter raised sua sponte by an administrative patent judge◀ is entered which is dispositive of the interference against the party as to any count;

* * * * *

(3) The party is a junior party whose preliminary statement fails to overcome the [earlier of the filing date or] effective filing date of another party.

(e) When an order to show cause is issued under paragraph (d) of this section, the Board shall enter judgment in accordance with the order unless, within 20 days after the date of the order, the party against whom the order issued files a paper which shows good cause why judgment should not be entered in accordance with the order.

▶(1) If the order was issued under paragraph (d)(1) of this section, the paper may (i) request that final hearing be set to review any decision which is the basis for the order as well as any other decision of the administrative patent judge that the party wishes to have reviewed by the Board at final hearing, or (ii) fully explain why judgment should not be entered.

(2)◀ Any other party may file a response to the paper within 20 days of the date of service of the paper. ▶If the order was issued under paragraph (d)(1) of this section and the paper includes a request for final hearing, the response must identify every decision of the administrative patent judge that the responding party wishes to have reviewed by the Board at a final hearing. If the order was issued under paragraph (d)(1) of this section and the paper does not include a request for final hearing, the response may include a request for final hearing, which must identify every decision of the administrative patent judge that the responding party wishes to have reviewed by the Board at a final hearing. Where only the response includes a request for a final hearing, the party that filed the paper has 14 days from the date of service of the response in which to file a supplemental paper identifying any other decision of the administrative patent judge that the party wishes to have reviewed by the Board at a final hearing.

(3) The paper or the response thereto should be accompanied by a motion (§ 1.635) requesting a testimony period if a party wishes to introduce any evidence to be considered at final hearing (§ 1.671). A request for a testimony period shall be construed as including a request for final hearing.

(4) If the paper contains an explanation of why judgment should not be entered in accordance with the order and no party has requested a final hearing, the decision that is the basis for the order shall be reviewed based on the contents of the paper and the response. If the paper fails to show good cause, the Board shall enter judgment against the party against whom the order issued.◀ [If the party against whom the order was issued fails to show good cause, the Board shall enter judgment against the party. If a party wishes to take testimony in response to an order to show cause, the party's response should be accompanied by a motion (§ 1.635) requesting the testimony period. See § 1.651(c)(4).]

40. Section 1.641 and the section heading are proposed to be revised to read as follows:

§ 1.641 Unpatentability discovered by ▶administrative patent judge◀ [examiner-in-chief].

▶(a)◀ During the pendency of an interference, if the administrative patent judge◀ [examiner-in-chief] becomes aware of a reason why a claim ▶designated to correspond◀ [corresponding] to a count may not be patentable, the ▶administrative patent judge◀ [examiner-in-chief] may ▶enter an order notifying◀ [notify] the parties of the reason and set a time within which each party may present its views ▶, which may include argument and any appropriate preliminary motions under § 1.633(c), (d) or (h), including any supporting evidence◀.

▶(b) If a party timely files a preliminary motion in response to the order of the administrative patent judge, any opponent may file an opposition pursuant to § 1.638(a). If an opponent files an opposition, the party may reply pursuant to § 1.638(b).

(c)◀ After considering any timely filed views, ▶including any timely filed preliminary motions under § 1.633,◀ the ▶administrative patent judge◀ [examiner-in-chief] shall decide how the interference shall proceed.

41. Section 1.642 is proposed to be revised to read as follows:

§ 1.642 Addition of application or patent to interference.

During the pendency of an interference, if the ▶administrative patent judge◀ [examiner-in-chief] becomes aware of an application or a patent not involved in the interference which claims the same patentable invention as a count in the interference, the ▶administrative patent judge◀ [examiner-in-chief] may add the application or patent to the interference on such terms as may be fair to all parties.

42. Section 1.643 is proposed to be amended by revising paragraph (b) to read as follows:

§ 1.643 Prosecution of interference by assignee.

* * * * *

(b) An assignee of a part interest in an application or patent involved in an interference may file a motion (§ 1.635) for entry of an order authorizing it to prosecute the interference. The motion shall show (1) the inability or refusal of the inventor to prosecute the interference or (2) other cause why ▶it is in the interest of◀ [the ends of] justice ▶to permit◀ [require that] the assignee of a part interest [be permitted] to prosecute the interference. The ▶administrative patent judge◀ [examiner-in-chief] may allow the assignee of a part interest to prosecute the interference upon such terms as may be appropriate.

43. Section 1.644 is proposed to be amended by revising paragraphs (a), (a)(1), (a)(2), (b), (c), (d), (f) and (g) to read as follows:

§ 1.644 Petitions in interferences.

(a) There is no appeal to the Commissioner in an interference from a decision of an ▶administrative patent judge◀ [examiner-in-chief]or ▶the Board◀ [a panel consisting of more than one examiner-in-chief] . The Commissioner will not consider a petition in an interference unless:

(1) The petition is from a decision of an ▶administrative patent judge◀ [examiner-in-chief] or [a panel] ▶the Board◀ and the ▶administrative patent judge◀ [examiner-in-chief] or the [panel] ▶Board◀ shall be of the opinion

(2) The petition seeks to invoke the supervisory authority of the Commissioner [and is not filed prior to the decision of the Board awarding judgment] and does not relate to

(3) * * *

(b) A petition under paragraph (a)(1) of this section filed more than 15 days after the date of the decision of the ▶administrative patent judge◀ [examiner-in-chief] or the [panel] ▶Board◀ may be dismissed as untimely. A petition under paragraph (a)(2) of this section shall not be filed prior to ▶the party's brief for final hearing (see § 1.656)◀ [the decision by the Board awarding judgment]. Any petition under paragraph (a)(3) of this section shall be timely if it is made as part of, or simultaneously with, a proper motion under § 1.633, § 1.634, or § 1.635 ▶when granting the motion would require waiver of a rule◀. Any opposition to a petition shall be filed within 15 days of the date of service of the petition.

(c) The filing of a petition shall not stay the proceeding unless a stay is granted in the discretion of the ▶administrative patent judge◀ [examiner-in-chief, the panel], ▶the Board,◀ or the Commissioner.

(d) Any petition must contain a statement of the facts involved ▶, preferably in numbered paragraphs,◀ and the point or points to be reviewed and the action requested. [Briefs or memoranda, if any, in support of the petition or opposition shall accompany or be embodied therein.] The petition will be decided on the basis of the record made before the ▶administrative patent judge◀ [examiner-in-chief] or the [panel] ▶Board◀ and no new evidence will be considered by the Commissioner in deciding the petition. Copies of documents already of record in the interference shall not be submitted with the petition or opposition.

* * * * *

(f) Any request for reconsideration of a decision by the Commissioner shall be filed within ▶14◀[15]days of the decision of the Commissioner and must be accompanied by the fee set forth in §1.17(h). No opposition to a request for reconsideration shall be filed unless requested by the Commissioner. The decision will not ordinarily be modified unless such an opposition has been requested by the Commissioner.

(g) Where reasonably possible, service of any petition, opposition, or request for reconsideration shall be such that delivery is accomplished within one working day. Service by hand or["]Express Mail["]complies with this paragraph.

44. Section 1.645 is proposed to be amended by revising paragraphs (a), (b) and (d) to read as follows:

§ 1.645 Extension of time, late papers, stay of proceedings.

(a) Except to extend the time for filing a notice of appeal to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit or for commencing a civil action, a party may file a motion (§ 1.635) seeking an extension of time to take action in an interference. See § 1.304(a) for extensions of time for filing a notice of appeal to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit or for commencing a civil action. The motion shall be filed within sufficient time to actually reach the ▶administrative patent judge◀ [examiner-in-chief] before expiration of the time for taking action. A moving party should not assume that the motion will be granted even if there is no objection by any other party. The motion will be denied unless the moving party shows good cause why an extension should be granted. The press of other business arising after an ▶administrative patent judge◀ [examiner-in-chief] sets a time for taking action will not normally constitute good cause. A motion seeking additional time to take testimony because a party has not been able to procure the testimony of a witness shall set forth the name of the witness, any steps taken to procure the testimony of the witness, the dates on which the steps were taken, and the facts expected to be proved through the witness.

(b) Any paper belatedly filed[,]will not be considered except upon motion (§ 1.635) which shows ▶good◀ [sufficient] cause why the paper was not timely filed[.] ▶or an administrative patent judge or the Board, sua sponte, is of the opinion that it would be in the interest of justice to consider the paper.◀ See § 1.304(a) for exclusive procedures relating to belated filing of a notice of appeal to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit or belated commencement of a civil action.

§ 1.646 Service of papers, proof of service.

(a) * * *

(2) Certified transcripts and exhibits which accompany the transcripts filed under §[§] 1.676 [or 1.684]; copies of transcripts shall be served as part of a party's record under § 1.653(c).

(b) Service shall be on an attorney or agent for a party. If there is no attorney or agent for the party, service shall be on the party. An ▶administrative patent judge◀ [examiner-in-chief] may order additional service or waive service where appropriate.

(c) Unless otherwise ordered by an ▶administrative patent judge◀ [examiner-in-chief], or except as otherwise provided by this subpart, service of a paper shall be made as follows:

(1) By handing a copy of the paper ▶or causing a copy of the paper to be handed◀ to the person served.

* * * * *

(4) By mailing a copy of the paper by first class mail; when service is by ▶first class◀ mail the date of mailing is regarded as the date of service.

(5) ▶By mailing a copy of the paper by Express Mail; when service is by Express Mail the date of deposit with the U.S. Postal Service is regarded as the date of service.

(6)◀ When it is shown to the satisfaction of an ▶administrative patent judge◀ [examiner-in-chief] that none of the above methods of obtaining or serving the copy of the paper was successful, the ▶administrative patent judge◀ [examiner-in-chief] may order service by publication of an appropriate notice in the Official Gazette.

(d) An ▶administrative patent judge◀ [examiner-in-chief] may order that a paper be served by hand or["]Express Mail["].

(e) ▶The due date for serving a paper is the same as the due date for filing the paper in the Patent and Trademark Office.◀ Proof of service must be made before a paper will be considered in an interference. Proof of service may appear on or be affixed to the paper. Proof of service shall include the date and manner of service. In the case of personal service under paragraphs (c)(1) through (c)(3) of this section, proof of service shall include the names of any person served and the person who made the service. Proof of service may be made by an acknowledgment of service by or on behalf of the person served or a statement signed by the party or the party's attorney or agent containing the information required by this section. A statement of an attorney or agent attached to, or appearing in, the paper stating the date and manner of service will be accepted as prima facie proof of service.

* * * * *

(d) Testimony, including any testimony to be taken ▶in a foreign country◀ [abroad under § 1.684], shall be taken and completed during the testimony periods set under paragraph (a) of this section. A party seeking to extend the period for taking testimony must comply with § 1.635 and § 1.645(a).

48. Section 1.652 is proposed to be revised to read as follows:

§ 1.652 Judgment for failure to take testimony or file record.

If a junior party fails to timely take testimony authorized under § 1.651, or file a record under § 1.653(c), an ▶administrative patent judge◀ [examiner-in-chief], with or without a motion (§ 1.635) by another party, may issue an order to show cause why judgment should not be entered against the junior party. When an order is issued under this section, the Board shall enter judgment in accordance with the order unless, within 15 days after the date of the order, the junior party files a paper which shows good cause why judgment should not be entered in accordance with the order. Any other party may file a response to the paper within 15 days of the date of service of the paper. If the party against whom the order was issued fails to show good cause, the Board shall enter judgment against the party.

The decision may (1) enter judgment, in whole or in part, (2) remand the interference to an ▶administrative patent judge◀ [examiner-in-chief] for further proceedings, or (3) take further action not inconsistent with law. A judgment as to a count shall state whether or not each party is entitled to a patent containing the claims in the party's patent or application which correspond to the count. When the Board enters a decision awarding judgment as to all counts, the decision shall be regarded as a final decision ▶for the purpose of judicial review (35 U.S.C. 141-144, 146) unless a request for reconsideration under paragraph (b) of this section is timely filed◀.

The filing by ▶a party◀ [an applicant or patentee] of a written disclaimer of the invention defined by a count, concession of priority or unpatentability of the subject matter of a count, abandonment of the invention defined by a count, or abandonment of the contest as to a count will be treated as a request for entry of an adverse judgment against the applicant or patentee as to all claims which correspond to the count. Abandonment of an application [by an applicant], other than an [applicant] ▶application◀ for reissue having a claim of the patent sought to be reissued involved in the interference, will be treated as a request for entry of an adverse judgment against the applicant as to all claims corresponding to all counts. Upon the filing by a party of a request for entry of an adverse judgment, the Board may enter judgment against the party.

(b) If a patentee involved in an interference files an application for reissue during the interference and ▶the reissue application does not include a claim that corresponds to a count◀ [omits all claims of the patent corresponding to the counts of the interference for the purpose of avoiding the interference], judgment may be entered against the patentee. A patentee who files an application for reissue ▶which includes a claim that corresponds to a count◀ [other than for the purpose of avoiding the interference] shall ▶, in addition to complying with the provisions of § 1.660(b),◀ timely file a preliminary motion under § 1.633(h) or show good cause why the motion could not have been timely filed or would not be appropriate.

An opponent that fails to challenge the admissibility of the evidence contained in or submitted with an affidavit on a ground that could have been raised in a timely objection under this paragraph will not be entitled to move under § 1.656(h) to suppress the evidence on that ground. If an opponent timely files objections, the party may, within 20 days of the due date for filing objections, file supplemental affidavits and supplemental official records and printed publications to overcome the objections. Patent Interference Proceedings

Agency: Patent and Trademark Office, Commerce.
Action: Final Rule
Summary: The Patent and Trademark Office (PTO) is amending its rules of practice in patent interference cases. The U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia recently decided Kochler v. Mustonen, Civil Action No. 90-1074 (D.D.C. Apr. 23, 1991). The District Court held that PTO practice regarding taking of testimony abroad was not clear. PTO rules require that a testimony period be set. The rules also require that testimony be taken during the testimony period. Rule 684 authorizes testimony to be taken abroad. However, rule 684 requires that a motion be filed for leave to take testimony abroad and that the motion be filed before the close of a party's testimony period. The District Court suggested that a motion to take testimony abroad, filed in PTO on the last day of the testimony period, could be considered timely even though taking of the testimony might occur after the testimony period. By this amendment, PTO will continue to authorize the filing of a motion to take testimony abroad. However, a party will have to file the motion within a time such that the testimony can be taken during the testimony period set under PTO rule 651.
Effective Date: Sept. 27, 1991
For Further Information Contact: Fred E. McKelvey by telephone at (703) 557-4035 or by mail marked to his attention and addressed to Box 8, Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Washington, DC 20231.
Supplementary Information: The PTO conducts interference proceedings to determine who as between two or more applicants for patent or one or more applicants and one or more patentees is the first inventor of a patentable invention. As part of its proofs in an interference, a party may request leave to take testimony abroad. 37 CFR § 1.684 (1990).

The U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia recently decided Kochler V. Mustonen, Civil Action No. 90-1074 (D.D.C. Apr. 23, 1991). The District Court held that PTO practice regarding taking of testimony abroad was not clear. PTO rule 651 (37 CFR § 1.651 (1990)) requires that a testimony period be set. Rule 651 also requires that testimony be taken during the testimony period. Rule 684 (37 CFR § 1.684 (1990)) authorizes testimony to be taken abroad. However, rule 684 requires that a motion be filed for leave to take testimony abroad and that the motion be filed before the close of a party's testimony period. The District Court suggested that a motion to take testimony abroad, filed in PTO on the last day of the testimony period, could be considered timely even though taking of the testimony might occur after the testimony period.

In a notice of proposed rule making published in the FEDERAL REGISTER on June 12, 1991 56 FR 26949, paragraphs (a) and (d) of rule 651 and rule 684 were proposed to be revised to require a party to file the motion to take testimony abroad within a time such that the testimony could be taken during the testimony period set under PTO rule 651.

One written comment was submitted by a Chief Executive Officer who stated his support of the proposed amendment. An attorney commented that the proposed amendment of § 1.684 appeared to foreclose the taking of testimony beyond any original time set under § 1.651. The attorney suggested language be added to paragraph (c) stating the alternative that testimony abroad must be completed within the time set under § 1.651 or by the Examiner-in-Chief. This suggestion has been adopted.
Other Considerations: The rule changes are in conformity with the requirements of the Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C. 601 et. seq.), Executive Orders 12291 and 12612 and the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et. seq.

The General Counsel of the Department of Commerce has certified to the Chief Counsel for Advocacy, Small Business Administration, that these rule changes will not have a significant adverse economic impact on a substantial number of small entities (Regulatory Flexibility Act, 5 U.S.C. 605(b)). The principal impact of these changes is to clarify the need for taking testimony abroad during the testimony period. The rule changes include no additional or increased fees. Substantive rights are not adversely affected.

The Office has determined that these rule changes are not a major rule under Executive Order 12291. The annual effect on the economy will be less than $100 million. Because most of the changes do not change burdens, there will be no major increase in costs or prices for consumers; individual industries; Federal, state or local government agencies; or geographic regions. There will be no significant adverse effects on competition, employment, investment, productivity or innovation, or on the ability of United States-based enterprises to compete with foreign-based enterprises in domestic or export markets.

The rule change will not impose any additional burden under the paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501*et seq.*

The Office has also determined that this rule change has no Federalism implications affecting the relationship between the National Government and the States as outlined in Executive Order 12612.

List of Subjects in 37 CFR Part 1

Administrative practice and procedure, Courts, Inventions and patents.

For the reasons set forth in the preamble and pursuant to the authority granted to the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks by 35 U.S.C. 6 and 135, the PTO is amending 37 CFR part 1 as follows:

(d) Testimony, including any testimony to be taken abroad under § 1.684, shall be taken and completed during the testimony periods set under paragraph (a) of this section. A party seeking to extend the period for taking testimony must comply with § 1.635 and § 1.645(a).

(7) Accompanied by written interrogatories to be asked of the witness.

A reply under § 1.638(b) may be filed and shall be limited to stating any objection to any cross-interrogatories proposed in the opposition.

(c) If the motion is granted, taking of the testimony abroad must be completed within the testimony period set under § 1.651 or within such time as may be set by the Examiner-in-Chief. The moving party shall be responsible for obtaining answers to the interrogatories and cross-interrogatories before an officer qualified to administer oaths in the foreign country under the laws of the United States or the foreign country. The officer shall prepare a transcript of the interrogatories, cross-interrogatories, and recorded answers to the interrogatories and cross-interrogatories and shall transmit the transcript to BOX INTERFERENCE, Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Washington, DC 20231, with a certificate signed and sealed by the officer and showing:

Unless false swearing in the giving of testimony before the officer shall be punishable as perjury under the laws of the foreign country where testimony is taken, the testimony shall be entitled to the same weight as testimony taken in the United States. The weight of the testimony shall be determined in each case.

Patent Interference Practice Burden of Proof

Agency: Patent and Trademark Office, Commerce
Action: Final Rule
Summary: The Patent and Trademark Office (PTO) is amending its rules of practice in patent interference cases. The amended rules specify that a party filing a motion has the burden of proof for that motion. The amended rules also more clearly state the nature of expert-witness and fact-witness evidence that must accompany a preliminary motion. Moreover, a definition of "interlocutory order," as contrasted with a final decision, is added to clarify the meaning of "interlocutory order."
Effective Date: Oct. 25, 1993. These rules will apply to all papers filed with the PTO on or after the effective date.
For Further Information Contact: Fred E. McKelvey by telephone at (703) 305-9035 or by mail marked to his attention and addressed to Box 8, Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Washington D.C. 20231.
Supplementary Information: A Notice of Proposed Rulemaking was published in the Federal Register (58 FR 528) on Jan. 6, 1993, and in the Official Gazette of the PTO (1147 Off. Gaz. 11) on Feb. 2, 1993. Comments were due Mar. 8, 1993. Four comments were received.

The PTO proposed moving the presumption of correctness of an interlocutory order, which is presently in 37 CFR § 1.655(a), to a proposed new subsection 1.601(q). The PTO also proposed to make explicit in 37 CFR § 1.637(a) that a party filing a motion has the burden of proving why it is entitled to the relief sought in the motion.

The PTO proposed to amend 37 CFR § 1.639 to incorporate guidance provided in Hanagan v. Kimura, 16 USPQ2d 1791, 1794 (Comm'r Pat. 1990). Subsection (c) of § 1.639 was proposed to be amended to refer to "additional evidence in the form of testimony" so as to distinguish the evidence needed under subsection (c) from evidence submitted under subsections (a) and (b). Subsection (d) to 37 CFR § 1.639 was proposed to be added to specify that the nature of evidence that must be submitted when an opinion of an expert is needed. Subsection (e) was proposed to be added to specify the nature of evidence that must be submitted when a statement of a fact witness is to be relied upon. Subsection (f) was proposed to be added to specify the nature of a showing that should be made when a statement of an opponent is needed or evidence in possession of an opponent is needed. Subsection (g) was proposed to be added to specify the nature of evidence that must be supplied if inter partes tests are to be conducted.

Present 37 CFR 1.655(a) was proposed to be amended by deleting the last sentence, which would be moved to and be included in the proposed definition of interlocutory order in proposed subsection 1.601(g).

The PTO received one comment that endorsed the proposed rulemaking, but was otherwise directed to an earlier rulemaking.

The PTO received two comments regarding proposed subsection 1.601(q). One comment suggested that procedural rules should not be placed in a definition. The comment suggested that the last two sentences of proposed subsection 1.601(q), which deal with the presumed correctness of interlocutory orders, be in a new subsection of section 1.655. This suggestion is adopted in part. The last two sentences of subsection 1.601(q) will be moved to the end of subsection 1.655(a).

A second comment challenged the sufficiency of the notice in the proposed rulemaking. The comment noted that the word "manifest" was omitted from the portion of existing subsection 1.655(a) that was moved to new subsection 1.601(q) and that the word "manifestly" was omitted from the remainder of subsection 1.655(a). The comment argued that the Notice of Proposed Rulemaking did not provide sufficient notice of these omissions, which the comment characterized as substantive changes, and thus violates the requirements of 5 U.S.C. § 553. This comment is not adopted.

The Notice of Proposed Rulemaking gave specific notice of the actual terms of the proposed rule. Cf. § 553(b) (requiring "[g]eneral notice" of "either the terms or substance of the proposed rule or a description of the subjects and issues involved.") In any case, no change actually occurs because the omitted words, "manifest" and "manifestly", in 37 CFR § 1.655(a) are unnecessary. No board decision is known to have relied on the distinction between "error", "clear error", and "manifest error". In appellate courts, manifest error is an extremely deferential standard of review that is closely tied to the abuse-of-discretion standard. See e.g., Datascope Corp. v. SMEC, Inc., 879 F.2d 820, 827-28, 11 USPQ2d 1321, 1326 (Fed. Cir. 1989) (finding no manifest error). Board review of an examiner-in-chief's interlocutory orders is not an independent review of a final decision by a lower tribunal. The board is the only entity that may decide interferences, 35 U.S.C. § 135(a), and the examiner-in-chief, who is a member of the board, 35 U.S.C. § 7(a), is almost always a member of the panel that ultimately decides the interference. Thus, an extremely deferential standard of appeal in this context is inappropriate.

The PTO received one comment regarding proposed subsection 1.637(a). The comment noted that subsection 1.637(a) had been misprinted so that the text "a statement of the precise relief requested, (2)" had been omitted following the "(1)". The comment is correct, the omission was a misprint, and the omitted text has been restored.

The PTO received one comment regarding 37 CFR § 1.639(b). The comment suggested that all proofs introduced under subsection 1.639(b) remain in the record after the decision on the preliminary motions unless the proofs are expressly withdrawn. The opposing party could treat such proofs as subsection 1.672(b) declarations and request an opportunity to cross examine the declarants. The suggestion is not adopted because it is beyond the scope of the present rulemaking.

The PTO received one comment regarding subsection 1.639(c). The comment assumed that the word "needed" had been intentionally deleted from the end of the first sentence of subsection 1.639(c), but noted that the deletion was not mentioned in the summary. The assumption is correct. This deletion is grammatically required after the addition of the text amending subsection 1.639(c).

The PTO received two comments regarding codification of the Hanagan guidelines in subsections 1.639(d)-(g). One comment endorsed codification of the Hanagan guidelines, but suggested that the codification be reformulated to increase flexibility. In particular, the comment pointed to the unusual case described in the Notice of Proposed Rulemaking where an opponent to a preliminary motion was overwhelmed with evidence. The comment suggested that the mandatory requirements of subsection 1.639, as amended, be revised to state that the information required under the Hanagan guidelines "should ordinarily" be provided. The comment is not adopted.

When necessary, a party opposing a preliminary motion should request an extension of time to submit the information described in subsections 1.639(d) through (g), which do not require the submission of the actual testimony or evidence. In contrast, in the example discussed in the Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, the examiner-in-chief deferred consideration of the preliminary motion until the final hearing to allow the opponent time to prepare a full opposition, which included the actual evidence the opponent relied upon to support the opposition. As the Notice of Proposed Rulemaking pointed out, examiners-in-chief have, and should exercise, discretion to extend time or otherwise remedy problems that may arise when applying the requirements of section 1.639 in specific cases.

A second comment suggested that the requirements of subsections 1.639(d) and (e) duplicate the declarations submitted under 37 CFR § 1.672(b). The comment recommends that the rules be revised to require a subsection 1.672(b) declaration be submitted once, during the motions period, in support of an opposition to a preliminary motion. The recommendation is not adopted.

Subsection 1.672(b) is directed to the technical requirements for submitting affidavits or depositions for testimony that will not be compelled. Subsection 1.639(c), which invokes the requirements of subsections 1.639(d) and (e), requires a description of the proposed testimony, not an affidavit or deposition of the testimony itself. A request under subsection 1.639(c) must describe the nature of the testimony being sought so the examiner-in-chief can determine whether the testimony is actually needed. Hanagan, 16 USPQ2d at 1794. Subsection 1.639(c) is intended to address the situation where evidence in the form of testimony is not available to the party asserting a need for the evidence. The Hanagan guidelines require such a party to justify the delay and inconvenience that may result by explaining what the party expects the testimony to prove. To this end, subsection 1.639(c) is revised to clarify that it only applies to testimony that is unavailable to the party seeking the testimony.

OTHER CONSIDERATION

The rule changes are in conformity with the requirements of the Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C.601 et seq.), Executive Orders 12291 and 12612, and the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et. seq.

The General Counsel of the Department of Commerce has certified to the Chief Counsel for Advocacy, Small Business Administration, that these rule changes will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities (Regulatory Flexibility Act, 5 U.S.C. 605(b)). The principle impact of these changes would be to clarify procedure in patent interferences and thereby eliminate ambiguity that may exist in current rules.

The Office has determined that these rule changes are not a major rule under Executive Order 12291. The annual effect on the economy will be less than $100 million. There will be no major increase in costs or prices for consumers; individuals; industries; Federal, state or local government agencies; or geographic regions. There will be no significant effects on competition, employment, investment, productivity, innovation, or on the ability of the United States-based enterprises to compete with foreign-based enterprises in domestic or export markets.

The Office has also determined that this notice has no Federalism implications affecting the relationship between the National Government and the States as outlined in Executive Order 12612.

These rule changes will not impose a burden under the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et seq., since no recordkeeping or reporting requirements within the coverage of the Act are placed upon the public.

List of Subjects in 37 CFR Part 1

§ 1.601 Scope of rules, definitions.

* * * * *

(q) A final decision is a decision awarding judgement as to all counts. An interlocutory order is any other action taken by an examiner-in-chief or a panel of the Board in an interference, including the notice declaring an interference.

3. Section 1.637 is amended by revising paragraph (a) to read as follows:

§ 1.637 Content of motions.

(a) A party filing a motion has the burden of proof to show that it is entitled to the relief sought in the motion. 4. Section 1.639 is amended by revising paragraph (c) and by adding paragraphs (d) through (g) as follows:

§ 1.639 Evidence in support of motion, opposition, or reply.

* * * * *

(c) If a party believes that additional evidence in the form of testimony that is unavailable to the party is necessary to support or oppose a preliminary motion under § 1.633 or a motion to correct inventorship under § 1.634, the party shall describe the nature of any proposed testimony as specified in paragraphs (d) through (g) of this section. If the examiner-in-chief finds that testimony is needed to decide the motion, the examiner-in-chief finds that testimony is needed to decide the motion, the examiner-in-chief may grant appropriate interlocutory relief and enter an order authorizing the taking of testimony and deferring a decision on the motion to final hearing.

(d) When additional evidence in the form of expert-witness testimony is needed in support of or opposition to a preliminary motion, the moving party or opponent should:

(1) identify the person whom it expects to call as an expert;

(2) state the field in which the person is alleged to be an expert; and

(3) state:

(i) the subject matter on which the person is expected to testify;

(ii) the facts and opinions to which the person is expected to testify: and

(iii) a summary of the grounds and basis for each opinion.

(e) When additional evidence in the form of fact-witness testimony is necessary, state the facts to which the witness is expected to testify.

(f) If the opponent is to be called, or if evidence in the possession of the opponent is necessary, explain the evidence sought, what it will show, and why it is needed.

(g) When inter partes tests are to be performed, describe the tests stating what they will be expected to show.

5. Section 1.655 is amended by revising paragraph (a) to read as follows:

§ 1.655 Matters considered in rendering a final decision.

(a) In rendering a final decision, the Board may consider any properly raised issue including (1) priority of invention, (2) derivation by an opponent from a party who filed a preliminary statement under § 1.625, (3) patentability of the invention, (4) admissibility of evidence, (5) any interlocutory matter deferred to final hearing, and (6) any other matter necessary to resolve the interference. The Board may also consider whether any interlocutory order was erroneous or an abuse of discretion. All interlocutory orders shall be presumed to have been correct and the burden of showing error or an abuse of discretion shall be on the party attacking the order. When two or more interlocutory orders involve the same issue, the last entered order shall be presumed to have been correct.

(90) Interference Practice: Matters Relating to Belated Preliminary Motions

In some interference proceedings, evidence which would provide a basis for a preliminary motion under 37 CFR 1.633 does not come to light until after a decision on preliminary motions has been entered. For example, a party may conclude, after hearing the opponent's testimony, that the opponent's application or patent does not comply with the "best mode" requirement of 35 USC § 112, first paragraph; or a prior art reference may be found which the party could not previously have located. The purpose of this notice is to clarify the policy of the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences as to what steps the party must take if it wishes to have an issue based on such evidence considered by the Board.

If the time for filing preliminary motions has expired, and then evidence comes to light which in the opinion of a party would provide basis for a preliminary motion under 37 CFR 1.633, that party may not simply raise the matter in its brief at final hearing for the Board's consideration. Rather, it is the policy of the Board that it will not consider the matter unless the party files promptly after the evidence becomes available:

(1) the appropriate preliminary motion under 37 CFR 1.633; and

(2) a motion under 37 CFR 1.635 showing sufficient cause why the preliminary motion was not timely filed, as required by 37 CFR 1.645(b). This motion must include the certificate required by 37 CFR 1.637(b).

If either party believes that additional evidence or discovery concerning the matter raised by the motion(s) is necessary, motions (1) and (2) should also be accompanied by or responded to by such other motions as may be appropriate, as for example, motions under 37 CFR 1.651(b) (4) or 1.687(c).

(91) Interference Practice: Response to Order to Show Cause Under 37 CFR 1.640

37 CFR 1.640(e) provides that when an order to show cause under 37 CFR 1.640(d) is issued against an interference party, the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences will enter judgment against that party "unless, within 20 days after the date of the order, the party against whom the order issued files a paper which shows good cause why judgment should not be entered in accordance with the order." In the application of this rule, some confusion has arisen as to the nature of the "paper" which the party must file when the basis of the order is 37 CFR 1.640(d)(1), i.e., where "[a] decision on a motion is entered which is dispositive of the interference against the party on any count."

Normally, the "paper" filed in response to such an order to show cause should be a simple request that final hearing (see 37 CFR 1.654) be set to review the decision on the motion which was dispositive of the interference against the party, as well as any other decision on motion which the party may wish to have reviewed by the Board.* When such a response is filed, the Examiner-in-Chief will normally set the times for filing briefs under 37 CFR 1.656. The response should be accompanied by a motion requesting a testimony period, if the party desires to take testimony. See 37 CFR 1.640(e), last sentence. Also, an opposing party may request a testimony period, even if the party responding to the order to show cause does not. Such a request should be filed promptly after the Examiner-in-Chief enters an order setting the brief times, but in no event more than twenty (20) days after entry of such order. Cf. the Commissioner's Notice of June 15, 1981, 1008 O.G. 9 (July 14, 1981).

Instead of filing a request that final hearing be set, the party under order to show cause may file a paper containing a full discussion of the reasons why judgment should not be entered. However, before deciding to file such a paper, the following should be taken into consideration:

(1) Such paper will be construed as a request for final hearing if a testimony period is requested;

(2) Such paper will be deemed a waiver of any opportunity to present oral argument concerning the matters discussed therein, and the matter will be decided by the Board based upon the content of the paper and any response thereto;

(3) An opposing party may still request final hearing and/or a testimony period within twenty (20) days of the date of service of the paper, and if either request is granted it will be necessary for the parties to file briefs under 37 CFR 1.656.

It is the policy of the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences that when final hearing is set pursuant to a request therefor following an order to show cause issued as a result of a decision on preliminary motions under 37 CFR 1.633 or 1.634, the parties must raise at that hearing for consideration by the Board all matters specified in 37 CFR 1.655(b) which were decided on the merits by the Examiner-in-Chief and which they wish to have considered. In other words, once the brief times are set for such a final hearing, every matter which was decided by an Examiner-in-Chief in connection with a motion under 37 CFR 1.633 or 1.634 must be raised in the parties' main briefs if the parties wish to have those matters considered by the Board. A party cannot wait to see what the Board's decision on one such matter will be and then, if the decision is unfavorable to the party and the case continues, raise that matter or any other such matter at a subsequent final hearing.

Deputy Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks.

(92) Winkler v. Guglielmino

On March 15, 1989, a panel of the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences entered a decision in an interference awarding priority to junior party, Guglielmino, and held that Winkler, the senior party, is not entitled to a patent containing a claim corresponding to the interference count because he admitted the subject matter of the count was unpatentable. Gugielmino v. Winkler, 11 USPQ2d 1389 (Bd. Pat. App. & Int. 1989).

An appeal was taken to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit. On May 9, 1990, the Federal Circuit vacated and remanded. Winkler v. Gulielmino, Appeal No. 89-1571 (Fed. Cir. May 9, 1990). The opinion in support of the decision was not published.

In view of the Federal Circuit's decision, the Board's published decision is no longer viable precedent and will not be followed.

In the future, a motion for judgment under 37 CFR § 1.633(a) contending that an opponent's claims corresponding to a count are not patentable over the prior art shall not be taken as an admission per se that the moving party's claims corresponding to the count are also unpatentable. However, if an Examiner-in-Chief or a panel of the Board determines that the motion should be granted on the merits and the prior art relied upon by the moving party is equally applicable to the claims of the moving party, action may be taken against all parties under 37 CFR § 1.641 by issuing an order to show cause. When the prior art relied upon in support of the motion is not a statutory bar, a party in the response to the order to show cause may request a testimony period for the purpose of presenting evidence to overcome the date of the relied upon prior art.

Prior cases, such as Slivinski v. Lane, 1922 Dec. Comm'r Pat. 4 (Comm'r Pat. 1922), held that when an applicant, in interference with a patent, called attention to a reference which allegedly anticipated the subject matter of the count, the interference should be dissolved and the applicant's claims rejected on the admission of non-patentability. The rationale behind this holding was that the Patent Office had no jurisdiction in an interference to cancel a patent. Since 35 U.S.C. § 135(a) gives the Board jurisdiction to consider patentability in an interference and present interference rules authorize a motion for judgment against a patentee based on unpatentability over the prior art, the holding of Slivinski and similiar cases is no longer applicable. Under 37 CFR §§ 1.601 through 1.690, a motion for judgment based on unpatentability over prior art does not constitute an admission of unpatentability to the moving party.

(93) Interferences-Preliminary Motions for Judgment

When a party files a preliminary motion for judgment [37 CFR 1.633(a)] against an opponent in an interference on the ground that the claim(s) corresponding to a count are unpatentable over prior art, and, based upon the effective filing date(s) of the application(s)/patent(s) involved in the interference, the prior art would also be applicable to the moving party, the following will apply:

1. The mere filing of the motion will not be construed as an admission by the moving party [See Commissioner's Notice of May 23, 1990, 1115 Off. Gaz. Pat. Office 31 (June 19, 1990), discussing Winkler v. Guglielmino, Appeal No. 89-1571 (Fed. Cir. May 9, 1990) (unpublished)].

2. The Examiner-in-Chief (EIC) will determine (i) whether the date(s) of the cited prior art are such that it would on its face appear to apply to the moving party, and (ii) if so, whether the motion includes an explanation as to why the prior art would not be applicable to the movant. If the motion does not contain an explanation, the EIC will send a letter to the moving party. The letter must: (a) inform the movant that the prior art appears to be applicable against the movant; (b) set a time period to provide an explanation as to why the prior art does not apply to the movant; (c) state that unless a sufficient explanation (and evidence, if appropriate, e.g., Rule 132 affidavit) is filled within the time set, the movant will not be permitted to rely on any such explanation (and evidence) in response to or in any subsequent action in the interference.

3. If the movant provides no explanation, or an insufficient explanation, as to why the cited prior art would not apply to the movant, the EIC will determine whether or not the prior art cited in support of the motion renders the count (claims corresponding to the count) unpatentabe to the moving party as well as each of the other parties. If the EIC concludes that the claims are unpatentable, the EIC will issue an Order to Show Cause under 37 CFR § 1.640 against all parties to whom the prior art is applicable without regard to the dates alleged in the preliminary statements.[1] Note that if the moving party expressly admits that the prior art renders his corresponding claims unpatentable, the EIC must still determine whether the corresponding claims of the other parties are unpatentable over that art.

4. In response to the Order to Show Cause, the parties have the options set forth in the Commissioner's Notice of December 8, 1986, 1074 Off. Gaz. Pat. Office 4 (January 6, 1987), and/or may move under 37 CFR § 1.651(c)(4) for a testimony period, if appropriate. However, the following should be noted:

A. If the party who filed the motion for judgment is under the Order to Show Cause, the party's showing and/or request for testimony in response to the Order may not be based upon any reasons which could have been, but were not, given in explanation of why the cited prior art would not apply to the party.

B. If the prior art is not a statutory bar to a party and the allegations in that party's preliminary statement, if proven, would antedate the effective date(s) of the prior art, an appropriate response to the Order to Show Cause would be a request to take testimony to antedate the prior art, as well as to prove priority of invention. If applicable, this option may be specified in the Order to Show Cause.

C. A request for a testimony period to remove the prior art based upon other reasons, e.g., inoperativeness of a reference, unexpected results, etc., must meet the criteria set forth in Hanagan v. Kimura, Interference No. 102,150_____ USPQ2d_____ (Comm'r. Pat. Apr. 5, 1990) (LEXIS, Patcop library, Omni file).

D. Even assuming corroboration, the evidence necessary to antedate a reference is not necessarily the same as that required to prove priority of invention. Cf. Anderson v. Norman, 185 USPQ 371 (Comm'r Pat. 1968). Therfore, depending on the circumstances, a request to take priority testimony may not be adequate to cover taking testimony to antedate the reference, and vice versa.

August 10, 1990 SAUL SEROTA
Chairman, Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences

[1] Goutzoulis v. Athale, 15 USPQ2d 1461 (Comm'r Pat.) suggests that a preliminary statement might be considered to determine whether an Order to Show Cause should be issued. In view of the procedure outlined herein, that suggestion will not be followed.

(94) Department of Commerce
Patent and Trademark Office
37 CFR Part 1
[Docket No. 50103-7058]

Arbitration of Patent Interference Cases

Agency: Patent and Trademark Office, Commerce.
Action: Final rule.
Summary: The Patent and Trademark Office is amending its rules to implement the arbitration provisions of section 105 of the Patent Law Amendments Act of 1984, Pub. L. 98-622.
Effective Date: May 27, 1987.
For Further Information Contact: Ian A. Calvert or Michael Sofocleous by telephone at (703) 557-4000 or by mail marked to the attention of either and addressed to Box Interference, Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Washington, D.C. 20231.

Supplementary Information: Section 105 of the Patent Law Amendments Act of 1984, enacted Nov. 8, 1984, provides for the arbitration of patent interference cases. Section 105, codified as 35 U.S.C. 135(d), provides:

Parties to a patent interference, within such time as may be specified by the Commissioner by regulation, may determine such contest or any aspect thereof by arbitration. Such arbitration shall be governed by the provisions of title 9 to the extent such title is not inconsistent with this section. The parties shall give notice of any arbitration award to the Commissioner, and such award shall, as between the parties to the arbitration, be dispositive of the issues to which it relates. The arbitration award shall be unenforceable until such notice is given. Nothing in this subsection shall preclude the Commissioner from determining patentability of the invention involved in the interference.

The Patent and Trademark Office (PTO) conducts interference proceedings to determine any question of patentability and priority of invention between two or more parties claiming the same patentable invention. An interference may be declared between two or more pending applications naming different inventors when, in the opinion of an examiner, the applications contain claims for the same patentable invention. An interference may be declared between one or more pending applications and one or more unexpired patents naming different inventors when, in the opinion of an examiner, any application and any unexpired patent contain claims for the same patentable invention. Patent interference cases can be quite expensive. Arbitration may prove useful to minimize expenses in interference cases. The arbitration rule applies to all pending interferences.

The PTO published an advance notice of rulemaking in the Federal Register of Jan. 16, 1985 (50 FR 2294-2296). The notice was also published in the Official Gazette on Feb. 12, 1985 (1051 O.G. 9-10). The notice also appeared in the Bureau of National Affairs' Patent, Trademark and Copyright Journal, Vol. 29, p. 310 (Jan. 24, 1985), hereinafter "BNA." Five written comments were received in response to the advance notice.

A notice of proposed rulemaking was published in the Federal Register on Sept. 15, 1986 (51 FR 32756-32762), in the Official Gazette on Oct. 21, 1986 (1071 O.G. 25-31), and in BNA's Patent, Trademark and Copyright Journal, Vol. 32, pp. 552-558 (Sept. 18, 1986). In response to the notice, three comments, two in writing and one by telephone, were received. These comments are discussed herein.

All written comments are available for public inspection in Rm. 10C01, Crystal Gateway 2, 1225 Jefferson Davis Hwy., Arlington, Va.

Discussion of the Rule

Under § 1.690 the arbitrator can determine issues of patentability as between the parties but a determination by him or her that the subject matter is patentable would not be binding upon the PTO. If the arbitrator's award holds that a party's claims corresponding to the count are unpatentable over prior art or under 35 U.S.C. 112, that determination would be binding on that party vis-a-vis the party's opponent and would result in a judgment adverse to that party. The judgment, however, would not discharge the duty that each party has under 37 CFR 1.56 to bring to the attention of the examiner in charge of its respective application any prior art and/or reason relied upon by the arbitrator in the determination of unpatentability.

It is the longstanding practice of the PTO to favor the settlement of interferences and the PTO looks with favor on all proper efforts in that direction as being conducive to the termination of the proceeding. See 4 Revise and Caesar, Interference Law and Practice, section 861, p. 2956 (Michie Co. 1948) and the Commissioner's Notice of Nov. 9, 1976, titled, "Extensions of Time and Filing of Papers in Interferences," 953 Official Gazette 2 (Dec. 7, 1976). In this regard, the notice states that:

* * * stipulation or motions for extensions of time under 37 CFR 1.245 will not henceforth be approved or granted, respectively, unless accompanied by a detailed showing of facts sufficient to establish that the action for which the extension is sought could not have been or cannot be taken or completed during the time previously set therefor, and that the entire extension appears necessary for the taking or completion of that action. Since the Office favors the amicable settlement of interferences, the foregoing requirement will be liberally applied in the case of a first request for extension of time for the purpose of negotiating settlement.

Consequently, the examiner-in-chief may give favorable consideration to a motion for an extension of time for purposes of settlement; however, a further motion for an extension for that purpose would not be granted unless it is accompanied by a schedule of specific dates showing that the parties will make a good faith effort to promptly terminate the proceeding. If preliminary motions under 37 CFR 1.633 have not been filed, the examiner-in-chief would not normally extend the time for their filing merely for purposes of settlement. In these circumstances, the examiner-in-chief would require that the preliminary motions be filed or that their filing be waived.

If the proceeding is in the testimony stage, the examiner-in-chief could grant the parties' motion to extend all the unexpired testimony times to close concurrently on the date the record is due provided they file a stipulation that any evidence to be submitted will be in one of the forms specified in 37 CFR 1.672(e) and (f), i.e., affidavit testimony or a stipulation either as to what a particular witness would testify to if called or the facts in the case of any party.

Analogously, the aforesaid practice would apply to arbitration. Section 1.690 requires that parties who intend to arbitrate an interference notify the examiner-in-chief in writing of their intention to arbitrate and file a copy of the arbitration agreement within 20 days of its execution. Pursuant to 35 U.S.C. 135(c) an agreement to arbitrate is considered to be one "made in connection with and in contemplation of the termination of the interference". The agreement must be in writing a copy filed in the PTO within 20 days after its execution. The notification of intention to arbitrate must be made in a separate paper. Merely incorporating the notification in the agreement is not sufficient to comply with § 1.690(a). The parties also will be required to adhere to a time schedule approved by the examiner-in-chief such that the interference proceeding can be expeditiously resolved so as to prevent the unnecessary postponement of the beginning of the running of the term of any patent resulting from an application involved in the interference. Pritchard v. Loughlin, 361 F.2d 483, 149 USPQ 841 (CCPA 1966).

If the parties desire to arbitrate an interference prior to the close of the motion period, the examiner-in-chief will not normally grant an extension of time for the purpose. The parties will be required to file their preliminary motions under 37 CFR 1.633. After the motions are filed, the examiner-in-chief could grant an extension only upon compliance with 37 CFR 1.645 which requires a showing of "good cause." Such a "good cause" showing would normally include a schedule, agreed to by the parties, setting forth, inter alia, the dates for (1) executing the arbitration agreement, (2) determining priority and (3) terminating the interference.

Section 1.690(a) requires that an arbitration agreement include the following:

(1) The name of the arbitrator or a date certain (not more than 30 days after the execution of the agreement) for his or her selection.

(2) The issues to be decided by the arbitrator.

(3) A provisions that the arbitrator's award is binding on the parties and that the Board can enter a judgment based thereon.

Section 1.690(c) requires that a copy of the arbitration award be filed within 20 days from the date of the award or by a date set by the examiner-in-chief.

If the proceeding is in the testimony stage and the parties desire to arbitrate, the examiner-in-chief could grant a reasonable extension for that purpose. A motion for a further extension for that purpose would not be granted unless it were accompanied by a schedule, agreed to by the parties, setting forth, inter alia, the dates for (1) executing the arbitration agreement, (2) determining priority, and (3) terminating the interference. If the parties are to submit the required schedule, a motion for a further extension could be granted. If the parties file a copy of the arbitration agreement and they agree that any evidence submitted in the proceeding will be in one of the forms specified by 37 CFR 1.672(e) or (f), the examiner-in-chief could give favorable consideration to the parties' motion that all the unexpired times be extended to close concurrently on the date the record is due. By that date, the parties would be required to file the arbitrator's award and their records, if necessary for the resolution of any issue not decided by the arbitrator. If the award is not dispositive of all the issues in the interference, the examiner-in-chief would set brief times so that parties could explain their evidence relating to any issues which the arbitrator did not, or was unable to decide. For example, the award might be dispositive of the issue of priority between the parties and leave for the Board's determination the question of substituting a new count raised in a preliminary motion under 37 CFR 1.633.

The arbitration award, filed by the parties, would be in the nature of a final decision and should include the following:

(1) The style (e.g., Jones v. Smith), the number of the interference and the names of the real parties in interest.

(2) The subject matter in issue, i.e., the counts and a table of counts, if necessary, indicating the relationship of the parties' claims corresponding to each count and those claims not corresponding thereto.

(3) The issues for decision before the arbitrator.

(4) The arbitrator's decision. The decision may also include a statement of the grounds and reasoning in support thereof.

(5) A summary, if appropriate, indicating, inter alia, that judgment should be awarded to one of the parties.

Any party to the arbitration can attack the award only in the manner provided by 9 U.S.C. 10 and 11.

9 U.S.C. 10 reads as follows:

In either of the following cases the United States court in and for the district wherein the award was made may make an order vacating the award upon the application of any party to the arbitration—

(a) Where the award was procured by corruption, fraud, or undue means.

(b) Where there was evident partiality or corruption in the arbitrators, or either of them.

(c) Where the arbitrators were guilty of misconduct in refusing to postpone the hearing, upon sufficient cause shown, or in refusing to hear evidence pertinent and material to the controversy; or of any other misbehavior by which the rights of any part have been prejudiced.

(d) Where the arbitrators exceeded their powers, or so imperfectly execute them that a mutual, final, and definite award upon the subject matter submitted was not made.

(e) Where an award is vacated and the time within which the agreement required the award to be made has not expired the court may, in its discretion, direct a rehearing by the arbitrators.

9 U.S.C. 11 reads as follows:

In either of the following cases, the United States court in and for the district wherein the award was made may make an order modifying or correcting the award upon the application of any party to the arbitration—

(a) Where there was an evident material miscalculation of figures or an evident material mistake in the description of any person, thing, or property referred to in the award.

(b) Where the arbitrators have awarded upon a matter not submitted to them, unless it is a matter not affecting the merits of the decision upon the matter submitted.

(c) Where the award is imperfect in matter of form not affecting the merits of the controversy.

The order may modify and correct the award, so as to effect the intent thereof and promote justice between the parties.

See, for example, Fairchild and Co., Inc. v. Richmond, F. and P. R. Co., 516 F.Supp. 1305 (D.D.C. 1981). If such an attack were to be made by one of the parties while the interference is pending before the Board, the Board would not stay the interference. Rather, the Board would issue its judgment in accordance with the award. So long as the award is in compliance with § 1.690, it would carry the presumption that the arbitrator acted correctly in making his decision and accordingly, the party designated by the award as the prevailing party would be entitled prima facie to a judgment in its favor. If the dissatisfied party brings an action in an appropriate United States district court and if the court vacates, modifies or corrects the award, the Board would take action consistent with the court's findings. No action would lie in the PTO to vacate or correct an arbitration award, unless all parties agreed in writing.

The following examples illustrate the practice of the PTO concerning arbitration.

Example 1

Arbitration Practice-Preliminary Stage

An interference is declared on or after Feb. 11, 1985. The examiner-in-chief sets a time in accordance with 37 CFR 1.611 for filing preliminary motions under 37 CFR 1.633 and preliminary statements. The parties decide to arbitrate the interference in accordance with § 1.690 and file a motion for an extension of time so that they can "freely" arbitrate the interference, but do not file a waiver of their right to file motions.

The examiner-in-chief would deny the motion because the parties' intention to arbitrate, in and of itself, does not constitute a showing of "good cause" within the meaning of 37 CFR 1.645(a). Even if the parties file an agreement to arbitrate, the PTO would not grant any extension of time to permit the parties to "freely" arbitrate an interference prior to the expiration of the time for filing preliminary motions.

Example 2

Arbitration Practice-Testimony Stage

An interference is declared on or after Feb. 11, 1985. The examiner-in-chief sets a time in accordance with 37 CFR 1.611 for filing preliminary motions under 37 CFR 1.633. The parties file preliminary motions; the examiner-in-chief renders a decision thereon and sets the testimony times. The parties file a notice of intent to arbitrate the interference under § 1.690(a) and a motion for a one month extension of the testimony times. The examiner-in-chief could grant the motion, but would indicate that if the parties file another motion for an extension for that purpose, the motion must be accompanied by a schedule, agreed to by the parties, setting forth the dates for (1) executing the arbitration agreement, (2) determining priority and (3) terminating the interference.

The parties file a motion for an additional one month extension of time to permit the parties to arbitrate the interference. Accompanying the motion is a proposed schedule of times and a copy of the arbitration agreement which provides, inter alia, (i) the name of the arbitrator or a date certain for his selection, (ii) that the arbitrator's award will be binding on the parties, (iii) the issues to be decided by the arbitrator and (iv) that the award will be filed by the date the record is due. The parties also indicate that the evidence to be filed in the proceeding will be in one of the forms specified by 37 CFR 1.672(e) or (f). The examiner-in-chief could grant the motion and indicate that he will give favorable consideration to a motion to extend all the unexpired times to close concurrently on the date the record is due should the parties request such.

On the date for filing the record, the parties file the arbitrator's award and their evidentiary records, if necessary. The award states (i) the style and number of the interference and the real parties in interest, (ii) the subject matter in issue and the parties' claims which correspond thereto and which do not correspond thereto, (iii) the issues for decision before the arbitrator, (iv) the arbitrator's decision (which may include a statement of the grounds and reasoning in support thereof) and (v) that judgment should be awarded to one of the parties. The examiner-in-chief examines the award to ensure that it complies with § 1.690 and is dispositive of the issues in the interference which can be decided by the arbitrator. If the award is otherwise acceptable, the Board would issue a judgment based on the award. If the award is not dispositive of all the issues in the interference, the examiner-in-chief would determine how the interference will proceed.

Example 3

Arbitration Practice-Award Decides Interference-in-Fact Issue and Junior Party Takes No Testimony

An interference is declared on or after Feb. 11, 1985. The examiner-in-chief sets a time in accordance with 37 CFR 1.611 for filing preliminary motions under 37 CFR 1.633 and preliminary statements. The junior party files a motion for judgment under 37 CFR 1.633(b) on the ground that there is no interference-in-fact between his claims corresponding to the count and his opponent's claims corresponding thereto. The examiner-in-chief denies the motion, examines the preliminary statements and sets the testimony times.

During the testimony period, the parties decide to arbitrate the interference, notify the examiner-in-chief of their intent to arbitrate and file an arbitration agreement which is approved by the examiner-in-chief. On the date for filing the record, the junior party files the award together with a motion requesting that the interference be terminated in view of the award. He does not file a record. In his award the arbitrator holds that no interference-in-fact exists between the parties' claims corresponding to the count.

The motion would be denied because the award decides a matter of patentability which would not result in a judgment adverse to one of the parties. Consequently, the junior party would be placed under an order to show cause why judgment under 37 CFR 1.652 should not be entered against him for his failure to file an evidentiary record by the time set therefore. In response to the order, the junior party requests final hearing to review the examiner-in-chief's denial of the motion for judgment and a testimony period to show no interference-in-fact. The examiner-in-chief would grant the junior party's request to the extent that final hearing is set and would deny the request for testimony because the junior party already had the opportunity to take testimony on the matter.

Arbitration Practice—Cannot Decide Patentability

An interference is declared on or after Feb. 11, 1985. The examiner-in-chief sets a time in accordance with 37 CFR 1.611 for filing preliminary motions under 37 CFR 1.633 and preliminary statements. The junior party files a motion for judgment under 37 CFR 1.633(a) on the ground that the claims corresponding to the count are unpatentable over prior art. In his decision on motions, the examiner-in-chief grants the motion and places both parties under an order pursuant to 37 CFR 1.640(d)(1) to show cause why judgment should not be entered against them as to the count. In response to the order, the senior party files a paper in accordance with 37 CFR 1.640(e) purportedly showing good cause why judgment should not be entered in accordance with the order and a motion requesting permission to arbitrate the patentability issue. The examiner-in-chief would deny the motion. The arbitrator is without authority to establish vis-a-vis the public that the subject matter of the court is patentable. Thus, the arbitration will serve no useful purpose. The Board would consider the senior party's paper and enter an appropriate order.

Example 5

Arbitration Practice—Award After Decision on Motions

An interference is declared on or after Feb. 11, 1985. The examiner-in-chief sets a time in accordance with 37 CFR 1.611 for filing preliminary motions under 37 CFR 1.633 and preliminary statements. The junior party files a motion for judgment under 37 CFR 1.633(a) on the ground that the claims corresponding to counts 1 and 2 are unpatentable over prior art. In his decision on motions, the examiner-in-chief grants the motion with respect to count 1, denies the motion with respect to count 2 and places both parties under an order pursuant to 37 CFR 1.640(d)(1) to show cause why judgment should not be entered against them as to count 1. The senior party files a paper in accordance with 37 CFR 1.640(e); the junior party, a response thereto. The Board considers the paper and the response thereto and based on the record enters judgment adverse to both parties as to count 1. Thereafter, the examiner-in-chief examines the preliminary statements and sets dates for taking testimony and filing the record.

During the testimony period, the parties decide to arbitrate the interference, notify the examiner-in-chief of their intent to arbitrate and file an arbitration agreement which is approved by the examiner-in-chief. In his award, the arbitrator decides that judgment should be awarded to the junior party. On the date for filing the record, both parties file the award together with a motion requesting that the interference be terminated in view of the award. No record is filed.

The motion would be granted and accordingly it would be held that the senior party is not entitled to a patent containing his claims corresponding to count 2.

Example 6

Arbitration Practice—Award Decides Patentability

An interference is declared on or after Feb. 11, 1985. The examiner-in-chief sets a time in accordance with 37 CFR 1.611 for filing preliminary motions under 37 CFR 1.633 and preliminary statements. No motions for judgment under 37 CFR 1.633 are filed and after the examination of the preliminary statements, the examiner-in-chief sets the testimony times.

During the testimony period, the parties decide to arbitrate the interference, notify the examiner-in-chief of their intent to arbitrate and file an arbitration agreement which is approved by the examiner-in-chief. In his award, the arbitrator finds (1) that the evidence is insufficient to establish a prior public use bar under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) against the junior party, (2) that the claims of the junior party corresponding to the count are patentable under 35 U.S.C. 103 over the prior art cited by the senior party to the junior party, and (3) that judgment on priority should be awarded to junior party. On the date for filing together with a motion requesting that the interference be terminated in view of the award.

The motion would be granted and accordingly it would be held that the senior party is not entitled to a patent containing his claims corresponding to the count. After the termination of the proceeding, each party has the duty under 37 CFR 1.56 to bring before the primary examiner the evidence concerning the purported public use bar and the prior art cited by the senior party and/or considered by the arbitrator.

Example 7

Arbitration Practice—Award Grants Priority to Junior Party Contingent Upon Granting of Preliminary Motion Under 1.633(C)

An interference is declared on or after Feb. 11, 1985. The examiner-in-chief sets a time in accordance with 37 CFR 1.611 for filing preliminary motions under 37 CFR 1.633 and preliminary statements. The junior party files a motion under 37 CFR 1.633(c)(1) to substitute another count. The examiner-in-chief denies the motion, examines the preliminary statements and sets the testimony times.

During the testimony period, the parties decide to arbitrate the interference, notify the examiner-in-chief of their intention to arbitrate and enter into an arbitration agreement which is approved by the examiner-in-chief. The agreement provides that any evidence to be submitted by the parties will be in the form of a stipulation under 37 CFR 1.672(e) and (f). The parties file a motion requesting that all the unexpired testimony times be extended to close concurrently on the date the record is due. The motion would be granted.

On the date for filing the record, the junior party files his record and the award. The award states, inter alia, that if the Board at final hearing should grant the junior party's motion under 37 CFR 1.633(c)(1) to substitute a new count, judgment should be awarded to the junior party based on the evidence. Otherwise, the award states that judgment should be awarded to the senior party.

The examiner-in-chief sets the brief times and after the filing thereof the interference would be set for final hearing so that the Board can review the examinter-in-chief's denial of the junior party's motion under 37 CFR 1.633(c) and issue an appropriate judgment based on the award.

Example 8

Arbitration Practice—Award Attacked

An interference is declared on or after Feb. 11, 1985. The examiner-in-chief sets a time in accordance with 37 CFR 1.611 for filing preliminary motions under 37 CFR 1.633 and preliminary statements. No preliminary motions are filed. The examiner-in-chief examines the preliminary statements and sets the testimony times.

During the testimony period, the parties decide to arbitrate the interference, notify the examiner-in-chief of their intention to arbitrate and file an arbitration agreement which is approved by the examiner-in-chief.

On the date for filing the record, both parties file their records. The junior party files the award which states that judgment should be awarded to him and a motion for judgment based on that award. The senior party files an opposition to the motion for judgment on the grounds (i) that the award contains errors of law, (ii) that the award was procured by "corruption, fraud or undue means" in violation of 9 U.S.C. 10(a), and (iii) that the arbitrator exhibited "evident partiality" in violation of 9 U.S.C. 10(b) and was "guilty of misconduct * * * in refusing to hear evidence pertinent and material" to the interference, citing 9 U.S.C. 10(c).

The Board would grant the judgment based on the award, holding that the senior party is not entitled to a patent containing his claims corresponding to the count. So long as the award is in compliance with the provisions of § 1.690, it would carry a presumption that the arbitrator acted properly in all respects. Consequently, before the PTO the award is binding upon the parties and the junior party is prima facie entitled to a judgment in its favor. Thus, no action lies in the PTO as regards the matter raised by the senior party. The senior party's action lies in an appropriate United States district court and the PTO would take any action consistent with the court's decision.

Example 9

Arbitration Practice—Award Cannot Modify Board's Final Decision

An interference is declared on or after Feb. 11, 1985. The examiner-in-chief sets a time in accordance with 37 CFR 1.611 for filing preliminary motions under 37 CFR 1.633 and preliminary statements. No motions are filed. The examiner-in-chief examines the preliminary statements and sets the testimony times.

During the testimony period, the parties decide to arbitrate the interference and enter into an arbitration agreement. Neither party notifies the examiner-in-chief of their intent to arbitrate nor do they file a copy of the agreement in the interference. Both parties timely file their records and briefs. Both waive oral argument. The Board enters a final decision after consideration of the evidence in favor of the senior party.

The junior party requests reconsideration of the Board's final decision, submits a copy of the arbitration award and moves that the Board set aside its final decision and enter judgment in his favor based on the award. In support of its request, the junior party cites 9 U.S.C. 9, which provides that "any party to the arbitration may apply to the court so specified for an order confirming the award" and 35 U.S.C. 135(d) which provides that title 9 applies to interference arbitrations.

The Board would deny the motion to set aside. The parties did not comply with § 1.690(a), i.e., notify the examiner-in-chief in writing of their intention to arbitrate and file a copy of the arbitration agreement within twenty (20) days of its execution. The denial of the motion is an appropriate sanction under 37 CFR 1.616. Such action by the Board is considered consistent with long-standing interference practice. Cf. Humphrey v. Fickert, 1904 Dec. Comm'r. Pat. 447 (Comm'r. 1904) wherein the Board, after it had considered the evidence, refused to set aside its award of priority to Fickert and act upon the Fickert's concession of priority in favor of Humphrey, the losing party.

Example 10

Arbitration Award Filed With Record—No Notice to Examiner-In-Chief

An interference is declared on or after Feb. 11, 1985. The examiner-in-chief sets a time in accordance with 37 CFR 1.611 for filing preliminary motions under 37 CFR 1.633 and preliminary statements. No motions are filed. The examiner-in-chief examines the preliminary statements and sets the testimony times.

During the testimony period, the parties decide to arbitrate the interference and enter into an arbitration agreement. Neither party notifies the examiner-in-chief of the agreement. The junior party timely files its record together with a copy of the arbitration award and a motion for judgment based on the award.

The motion would be denied. Under the provisions of 37 CFR 1.616, the examiner-in-chief would place both parties under an order to show cause why judgment should not be rendered against them for their failure to comply with 1.690(a), i.e., failing to notify him of their intent to arbitrate and file a copy of the arbitration agreement.

Discussion of Comments

One commentor suggested that the expression "An interference or any aspect thereof shall be arbitrated" in part (b) of proposed § 1.690 might be construed as going beyond the terms of the statute by authorizing an examiner-in-chief to require the parties to arbitrate an interference, and proposed that the quoted language be changed to "An arbitration proceeding under this section shall be conducted." To eliminate any possible misconstruction of the rule, this proposal has been adopted.

A second commentor suggested, by telephone, that a provision be added to proposed § 1.690 requiring that the arbitrator be familiar with United States interference practice, and that United States law be applied by the arbitrator in making the determination. He expressed the fear that a foreign arbitrator might reach a result contrary to established domestic law.

This suggestion has not been adopted. It is incumbent upon the parties to select the arbitrator, and to satisfy themselves as to his or her qualifications. Presumably if the arbitrator's decision is contrary to established law, any resulting patent would be subject to attack on that ground by a third party in subsequent litigation.

Another commentor stated that, with the arbitration rule, the PTO was "attempting to apply a band-aid to a system which cannot be cured by application of a band-aid," and that the first-to-file system should be adopted in place of the first-to-invent system. This suggestion is obviously far beyond the scope of the rule change under consideration. The first-to-invent system is mandated by statute and could not be replaced merely by a change in the rules. The purpose of § 1.690 is to establish a specific procedure governing the optional arbitration of interferences provided by section 105 of Pub. L. 98-622.

Other Considerations

This rule does not have a significant impact on the quality of the human environment or the conservation of natural resources.

The rule is in conformity with the requirements of the Regulatory Flexibility Act (Pub. L. 96-354), Executive Order 12291, and the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et seq.

The General Counsel of the Department of Commerce certified to the Small Business Administration that the rule will not have a significant adverse economic impact on a substantial number of small entities (Regulatory Flexibility Act. Pub. L. 96-354) because arbitration intended to minimize expenses in interference cases.

The Patent and Trademark Office has determined that this rule is not a major rule under Executive Order 12291. The annual effects on the economy will be less than $100 million. There will be no major increase in costs or prices for consumers, individual industries, federal, state or local government agencies, or geographic regions. There will be no significant adverse effects on competition, employment, investment, productivity, innovation, or on the ability of United States-based enterprises to compete with foreign-based enterprises in domestic or export markets.

The rule will not impose a burden under the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et seq., since no record keeping or reporting requirements within the coverage of the Act are placed upon the public.

List of Subjects in 37 CFR Part 1

Administrative practice and procedure, Authority delegations, Conflicts of interest, Courts, Inventions and patents, Lawyers.

For the reasons set out in the preamble and under the authority given to the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks by 35 U.S.C. 6 and 135, Part 1 of Title 37 CFR is amended as follows:

PART 1-RULES OF PRACTICE IN PATENT CASES

1. The authority citation for 37 CFR Part 1 would continue to read as follows:

Authority: 35 U.S.C. 6 unless otherwise noted.

2. New § 1.690 is added to Subpart E to read as follows:

§ 1.690 Arbitration of Interferences.

(a) Parties to a patent interference may determine the interference or any aspect thereof by arbitration. Such arbitration shall be governed by the provisions of Title 9, United States Code. The parties must notify the Board in writing of their intention to arbitrate. An agreement to arbitrate must be in writing, specify the issues to be arbitrated, the name of the arbitrator or a date not more than thrity (30) days after the execution of the agreement for the selection of the arbitrator, and provide that the arbitrator's award shall be binding on the parties and that judgment thereon can be entered by the Board. A copy of the agreement must be filed within twenty (20) days after its execution. The parties shall be solely responsible for the selection of the arbitrator and the rules for conducting proceedings before the arbitrator. Issues not disposed of by arbitration will be resolved in accordance with the procedures established in 37 CFR, Subpart E of Part 1, as determined by the examiner-in-chief.

(b) An arbitration proceeding under this section shall be conducted within such time as may be authorized on a case-by-case basis by an examiner-in-chief.

(c) An arbitration award will be given no consideration unless it is binding on the parties, is in writing and states in a clear and definite manner (1) the issue or issues arbitrated and (2) the disposition of each issue. The award may also include a statement of the grounds and reasoning in support thereof. Unless otherwise ordered by an examiner-in-chief, the parties shall give notice to the Board of an arbitration award by filing within twenty (20) days from the date of the award a copy of the award signed by the arbitrator or arbitrators. When an award is timely filed, the award shall, as to the parties to the arbitration, be dispositive of the issue or issues to which it relates.

(d) An arbitration award shall not preclude the Office from determining patentability of any invention involved in the interference.

(95) Disclosure Document Program

This notice consolidates and supersedes the notices of Mar. 26, 1969 (862 O.G. 1) and Aug. 11, 1970 (878 O.G. 1) relating to the Patent Office Disclosure Document Program. Under this program the Patent Office accepts and preserves, for a period of two years, papers referred to as "Disclosure Documents." These papers may be used as evidence of the dates of conception of inventions.

The Program

A paper disclosing an invention and signed by the inventor or inventors may be forwarded to the Patent Office by the inventor (or by any one of the inventors when there are joint inventors), by the owner of the invention, or by the attorney or agent of the inventor(s) or owner. It will be retained for two years and then be destroyed unless it is referred to in a separate letter in a related patent application within said two years.

A Disclosure Document is not a patent application and the date of its receipt in the Patent Office will not become the effective filing date of any patent application subsequently filed. However, like patent applications, these documents will be kept in confidence by the Patent Office. If patent protection is desired, a patent application should be filed as soon as possible.

This program does not diminish the value of conventional witnessed and notarized records as evidence of conception of an invention, but it should provide a more credible form of evidence than that provided by the popular practice of mailing a disclosure to oneself or another person by registered mail. The program is made available as a service to those persons desiring to use it.

Content of Disclosure Document

Although there are no restrictions as to content and claims are not necessary, the benefits afforded by a Disclosure Document will depend directly upon the adequacy of the disclosure. Therefore, it is strongly urged that the document contain a clear and complete explanation of the manner and process of making and using the invention in sufficient detail to enable a person having ordinary knowledge in the field of the invention to make and use the invention. When the nature of the invention permits, a drawing or sketch should be included. The use or utility of the invention should be described, especially in chemical inventions.

The Disclosure Document must be limited to written matter or drawings on paper or other thin, flexible material, such as linen or plastic drafting material, having dimensions or being folded to dimensions not to exceed 8 1/2 by 13 inches. Photographs also are acceptable. Each page should be numbered. Text and drawings should be sufficiently dark to permit reproduction with commonly used office copying machines.

A $10 fee is charged for filing a Disclosure Document. Payment must accompany the Disclosure Document when it is submitted to the Patent Office.

In addition to the $10 fee, the Disclosure Document must be accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope and a separate paper in duplicate, signed by the inventor, stating that he is the inventor and requesting that the material be received for processing under the Disclosure Document Program. The papers will be stamped by the Patent Office with an identifying number and date of receipt, and the duplicate request will be returned in the self-addressed envelope together with a warning notice indicating that the Disclosure Document may be relied upon only as evidence and that a patent application should be diligently filed if patent protection is desired. The inventor's request may take the following form:

"The undersigned, being the inventor of the disclosed invention, requests that the enclosed papers be accepted under the Disclosure Document Program, and that they be preserved for a period of two years."

Retention

The Disclosure Document will be preserved in the Patent Office for two years after its receipt and will then be destroyed unless it is referred to in a separate letter in a related patent application filed within the two-year period. The Disclosure Document must be referred to in the separate letter by title, number, and date of receipt. Acknowledgment of receipt of such letters will be made in the next official communication or in separate letter from the Patent Office. Unless it is desired to have the Patent Office retain the Disclosure Document beyond the two-year period, it is not required that it be referred to in a patent application.

Warning as to Limitations

The two-year retention period should not be considered to be a "grace period" during which the inventor can wait to file his patent application without possible loss of benefits. It should be recognized that in establishing priority of invention an affidavit or testimony referring to a Disclosure Document must usually also establish diligence in completing the invention or in filing the patent application since the filing of the Disclosure Document.

Inventors are also reminded that any public use or sale in the United States, or publication of the invention anywhere in the world, more than one year prior to the filing of a patent application on that invention will prohibit the granting of a patent on that invention.

If the inventor is not familiar with what is considered to be "diligence in completing the invention" or "reduction to practice" under the patent law, or if he has other questions about patent matters, the Patent Office advises him to consult an attorney or agent registered to practice before the Patent Office. Patent attorneys and agents may be found in the telephone directories of most major cities. Also, many large cities have associations of patent attorneys which may be consulted.

(96) Service of Process and Testimony of Employees of the Patent and Trademark Office and Production of Documents in Legal Proceedings

The Patent and Trademark Office (PTO) is adding Parts 15 and 15a to Title 37 of the Code of Federal Regulations. Part 15 concerns service of process on the Commsssioner, the Patent and Trademark Office, and employees of the Patent and Trademark Office in their official capacity. Part 15a concerns the testimony of PTO employees regarding official matters and the production of official documents in legal proceedings. Parts 15 and 15a were effective upon publication in the Federal Register. 54 FR 3976-8 (Jan. 26, 1989).

In addition, §§ 1701 and 1701.01 of the Manual of Patent Examining Procedure and §§ 1801 and 1801.01 of the Trademark Manual of Examining Procedure are amended, as indicated below, effective immediately.

Parts 15 and 15a, §§ 1701 and 1701.01 of the Manual of Patent Examining Procedure and §§ 1801 and 1801.01 of the Trademark Manual of Examining Procedure are published in this notice as a convenience to the public. In addition to these materials, the Patent and Trademark Office alerts the public to its position with respect to Standard Packaging Corp. v. Curwood, Inc., 365 F. Supp. 134, 180 USPQ 234 (N.D. Ill. 1973). In the past, parties have attempted, based on Standard Packaging, to obtain answers to questions which the Patent and Trademark Office has regarded to be improper. While the Patent and Trademark Office believes Standard Packaging accurately states the law, the Office believes that the court misapplied the law to the precise questions in issue. Accordingly, the Office agrees with the Federal Circuit's observation in Western Electric Co. v. Piezo Technology, Inc. v. Quigg, 860 F.2d 428, 432, 8 USPQ 2d 1853, 1857 (Fed. Cir. 1988), that there is considerable doubt whether Standard Packaging was correctly decided. The Patent and Trademark Office will not permit examiners to answer questions similar to those which the Standard Packaging court found acceptable.

37 CFR Parts 15 and 15a

[Docket No. 9106-9006]
Service of Process and Testimony of Employees of the Patent and Trademark Office and Production of Documents in Legal Proceedings

Agency: Patent and Trademark Office.
Action: Final rule.
Summary: The Patent and Trademark Office is adding 37 CFR Parts 15 and 15a to supplement 15 CFR Parts 15 and 15a. These new parts prescribe policies and procedures to be followed with respect to service of process on the Patent and Trademark Office, the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, and employees of the Office, the testimony of Office employees regarding official matters, and the production of official documents in legal proceedings. These regulations serve as a statement of Office policy and provide comprehensive guidelines for the Office and its employees, outside agencies, and other persons regarding the appropriate procedures for service of process, testimony, and production of documents.
Effective date: Jan. 26, 1989.
For Further Information Contact: Associate Solicitor John W. Dewhirst by mail at Box 8, U.S. Patent and Trademark Office, Washington, D.C. 20231 and by phone at (703) 557-4035.
Supplementary Information: These regulations are designed to supplement, and be construed consistent with, 15 CFR Parts 15 and 15a. The regulations in Part 15a state the views of the Office with respect to the permissible scope of testimony which may be given by Office employees in connection with their performance of quasi-judicial patent and trademark matters. These Office views are consistent with United States v. Morgan, 313 U.S. 409, 422 (1941); Western Electric Co., Inc. v. Piezo Technology, Inc. v. Quigg, No. 88-1216, 860 F.2d 428, 8 USPQ 2d 1853 (Fed. Cir. Nov. 1, 1988); In re Mayewsky, 162 USPQ 86, 89 (E.D. Va. 1969), and Shaffer Tool Works v. Joy Mfg. Co., 167 USPQ 170 (S.D. Tex. 1970).

Because these regulations concern agency management and personnel, they are not rules or regulations within the meaning of section 1(a) of Executive Order 12291, and they are not subject to the requirements of that Order. Accordingly, no preliminary or final regulatory impact analysis has to be or will be prepared.

These regulations, relating to agency management and personnel, are exempt from all requirements of section 553 of the Administrative Procedure Act [5 USC 553] (including a delayed effective date and therefore will be effective immediately upon publication in the Federal Register.

Because a notice of proposed rule making and an opportunity for public comments are not required to be given for these regulations by section 553 of the APA, or by any other law, no regulatory flexibility analysis has to be or will be prepared for purposes of the Regulatory Flexibility Act [5 U.S.C. 603(a) and 604(a)].

This final rule does not contain policies with Federalism implications sufficient to warrant preparation of a Federalism assessment under Executive Order 12612.

This rule does not contain collections of information for purposes of the Paperwork Reduction Act.

List of subjects in 37 CFR Parts 15 and 15a:

§ 15a.3 Office policy.

The Office policy is that its documents will not be voluntarily produced and Office employees will not voluntarily appear as witnesses or give testimony in a legal proceeding. The reasons for this policy include:

(a) To conserve the time of Office employees for conducting official business.

(b) To minimize the possibility of involving the Office in controversial or other issues which are not related to the mission of the Office.

(c) To prevent the possibility that the public will misconstrue variances between personal opinions of Office employees and Office policy.

(d) To avoid spending the time and money of the United States for private purposes.

(e) To preserve the integrity of the administrative process, minimize disruption of the decision-making process, and prevent interference with the Office's administrative functions.

§ 15a.4 Testimony or production of documents; general rule

(a) No Office employee shall give testimony concerning the official business of the Office or produce any document in any legal proceeding without the prior authorization of the Solicitor. Where appropriate, an Office employee may be instructed in writing by the Commissioner, Solicitor, or other appropriate Office employee not to give testimony or produce a document. Without prior approval, no Office employee shall answer inquiries from a person not employed by the Department of Commerce regarding testimony or documents subject to a demand or a potential demand under the provisions of this Part. All inquiries involving a demand or potential demand on an Office employee shall be referred to the Solicitor.

(b) A certified copy of a document, not otherwise available under Chapter I of this Title, will be provided for use in a legal proceeding upon written request and payment of applicable fees required by law.

(c)(1) Request for testimony or document. A request for testimony of an Office employee or document shall be mailed or hand-delivered to the Office of the Solicitor. The mailing address of the Office of the Solicitor is Box 8, Patent and Trademark Office, Washington, D.C. 20231.

(2) Subpoenas. A subpoena for testimony by an Office employee or a document shall be served in accordance with the Federal Rules of Civil or Criminal Procedure as appropriate, or applicable state procedure, and a copy of the subpoena shall be sent to the Solicitor.

(3) Affidavit. Every request and subpoena shall be accompanied by an affidavit or declaration under 28 U.S.C. 1746 or, if an affidavit or declaration is not feasible, a written statement setting forth the title of the legal proceeding, the forum, the requesting party's interest in the legal proceeding, the reasons for the request or subpoena, a showing that the desired testimony or document is not reasonably available from any other source, and if testimony is requested, the intended use of the testimony, a general summary of the testimony desired, and a showing that no document could be provided and used in lieu of testimony. The purpose of this requirement is to permit the Solicitor to make an informed decision as to whether testimony or production of a document should be authorized.

(d) Any Office employee who is served with a demand shall immediately notify the Office of the Solicitor.

(e) The Solicitor may consult or negotiate with an attorney for a party or the party, if not represented by an attorney, to refine or limit a demand so that compliance is less burdensome or obtain information necessary to make the determination required by paragraph (c) of this section. Failure of the attorney or party to cooperate in good faith to enable an informed determination to be made under this part may serve as the basis for a determination not to comply with the demand.

(f) A determination under this part to comply or not to comply with a demand is not an assertion or waiver of privilege, lack of relevance, technical deficiencies or any other ground for noncompliance. The Commissioner reserves the right to oppose any demand on any legal ground independent of any determination under this part.

§ 15a.5 Testimony of Office employees in proceedings involving the United States.

(a) An Office employee may not testify as an expert or opinion witness for any party other than the United States.

(b) When appropriate, the Solicitor may authorize an Office employee to give testimony as an expert or opinion witness on behalf of the United States. Expert or opinion testimony on behalf of the United States will not be authorized in any legal proceeding involving the validity or enforceability of a patent or registered trademark.

(c) Whenever, in any legal proceeding involving the United States, a request is made by an attorney representing or acting under the authority of the United States, the Solicitor will make all necessary arrangements for the Office employee to give testimony on behalf of the United States. Where appropriate, the Solicitor may require reimbursement to the Office of the expenses associated with an Office employee giving testimony on behalf of the United States.

§ 15a.6 Legal proceedings between private litigants

(a) Testimony by an Office employee and production of documents in a legal proceeding not involving the United States shall be governed by § 15a.4.

(b) If an Office employee is authorized to give testimony in a legal proceeding, the testimony, if otherwise proper, shall be limited to facts within the personal knowledge of the Office employee. An Office employee is prohibited from giving expert or opinion testimony, answering hypothetical or speculative questions, or giving testimony with respect to subject matter which is privileged. If an Office employee is authorized to testify in connection with the employee's involvement or assistance in a quasi-judicial proceeding which took place before the Office, that employee is further prohibited from giving testimony in response to questions which seek:

(1) Information about that employee's:
(i) Background.
(ii) Expertise.
(iii) Qualifications to examine or otherwise consider a particular patent or trademark application.
(iv) Usual practice or whether the employee followed a procedure set out in any Office manual of practice in a particular case.

(D) Any Office manual of practice.
(E) Office regulations.
(F) Patent, trademark, or other law.
(G) The responsibilities of another Office employee.
(vii) Reliance on particular facts or arguments.
(2) To inquire into the manner in and extent to which the employee considered or studied material in performing the quasi-judicial function.
(3) To inquire into the bases, reasons, mental processes, analyses, or conclusions of that Office employee in performing the quasi-judicial function.

§ 15a.7 Procedures when an Office employee receives a subpoena.

(a) Any Office employee who receives a subpoena shall immediately forward the subpoena to the Office of the Solicitor. The Solicitor will determine the extent to which an Office employee will comply with the subpoena.

(b) If the Office employee is not authorized to comply with the subpoena, the Office employee shall appear at the time and place stated in the subpoena, produce a copy of Part 15a of Title 15 and a copy of this part, and respectfully refuse to provide any testimony or produce any document. United States ex rel. Touhy v. Ragen, 340 U.S. 462 (1951).

(c) When necessary or appropriate, the Solicitor will request assistance from the Department of Justice or a U.S. Attorney or otherwise assure the presence of an attorney to represent the interests of the Office or an Office employee.

Dec. 23, 1988

DONALD J. QUIGG
Assistant Secretary and Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks

Revisions to §§ 1701 and 1701.01 of MPEP

§ 1701 Office personnel not to express opinion on validity or patentability of patent

Every patent is presumed to be valid. 35 U.S.C. § 282, first sentence. Public policy demands that every employee of the Patent and Trademark Office refuse to express to any person any opinion as to the validity or invalidity of, or the patentability or unpatentability of any claim in any U.S. Patent, except to the extent necessary to carry out (a) examination of an application seeking to reissue the patent, (b) a reexamination proceeding to reexamine the patent, or (c) an interference involving the patent.

The question of validity or invalidity is otherwise exclusively a matter to be determined by a court. Members of the patent examining corps are cautioned to be especially wary of any inquiry from any person outside the Patent and Trademark Office, including an employee of another Government agency, the answer to which might indicate that a particular patent should not have issued.

When a field of search for an invention is requested, examiners should routinely inquire whether the invention has been patented in the United States. If the invention has been patented, no field of search should be suggested.

Employees of the Patent and Trademark Office, particularly patent examiners who examined an application which matured into a patent or a reissued patent or who conducted a reexamination proceeding, should not discuss or answer inquiries from any person outside the Patent and Trademark Office as to whether or not a certain reference or other particular evidence was considered during the examination or proceeding and whether or not a claim would have been allowed over that reference or other evidence had it been considered during the examination or proceeding. Likewise, employees are cautioned against answering any inquiry concerning any entry in the patent or reexamination file, including the extent of the field of search and any entry relating thereto. The record of the file of a patent or reexamination proceeding must speak for itself.

Practitioners can be of material assistance in this regard by refraining from making improper inquiries of members of the patent examining corps. Inquiries from members of the public relating to the matters discussed above must of necessity be refused and such refusal should not be considered discourteous or an expression of opinion as to validity or patentability.

§ 1701.01 Office personnel not to testify

[Reprint:37 CFR 15a.1
37 CFR 15a.2
37 CFR 15a.3
37 CFR 15a.4
37 CFR 15a.5
37 CFR 15a.6
37 CFR 15a.7]

It is the policy of the Patent and Trademark Office that its employees, including patent examiners, will not appear as witnesses or give testimony in legal proceedings, except under the conditions specified in 37 CFR Part 15a. Any employee who testifies contrary to this policy will be dismissed or removed. The reasons for this policy are set out in 37 CFR 15a.3.

Whenever an employee of the Patent and Trademark Office, including a patent examiner, is asked to testify or receives a subpoena, the employee shall immediately notify the Office of the Solicitor. Inquiries requesting testimony shall be also referred immediately to the Office of the Solicitor.

Patent examiners and other Patent and Trademark Office employees performing or assisting in the performance of quasi-judicial functions, are forbidden to testify as experts or to express opinions as to the validity of any patent.

Any individual desiring the testimony of an employee of the Patent and Trademark Office, including the testimony of a patent examiner or other quasi-judicial employee, must comply with the provisions of 37 CFR Part 15a.

A request for testimony of an employee of the Patent and Trademark Office should be made to the Office of the Solicitor at least ten working days prior to the date of the expected testimony.

If an employee is authorized to testify, the employee will be limited to testifying about facts within the employee's personal knowledge. Employees are prohibited from giving expert or opinion testimony. Fischer & Porter Co. v. Corning Glass Works, 61 F.R.D. 321, 181 USPQ 329 (E.D. Pa. 1974). Likewise, employees are prohibited from answering hypothetical or speculative questions. In re Mayewsky, 162 USPQ 86, 89 (E.D. Va. 1969) (deposition of an examiner must be restricted to relevant matters of fact and must avoid any hypothetical or speculative questions or conclusions based thereon); Shaffer Tool Works v. Joy Mfg. Co., 167 USPQ 170 (S.D. Tex. 1970) (deposition of examiner should be limited to matters of fact and must not go into hypothetical or speculative areas or the bases, reasons, mental processes, analyses, or conclusions of the examiner in acting upon a patent application). Employees will not be permitted to give testimony with respect to subject matter which is privileged. Several court decisions limit testimony with respect to quasi-judicial functions performed by employees. Those decisions include United States v. Morgan, 313 U.S. 409, 422 (1941) (improper to inquire into mental processes of quasi-judicial officer or to examine the manner and extent to which the officer considered an administrative record); Western Electric Co. v. Piezo Technology, Inc. v. Quigg, 860 F.2d 428, 8 USPQ 2d 1853 (Fed. Cir. 1988) (patent examiner may not be compelled to answer questions which probe the examiner's technical knowledge of the subject matter of a patent); McCulloch Gas Processing Co. v. Department of Energy, 650 F.2d 1216, 1229 (Temp. Emer. Ct. App. 1981) (discovery of degree of expertise of individuals performing governmental functions not permitted); In re Nilssen , 851 F.2d 1401, 7 USPQ 2d 1500 (Fed. Cir. 1988) (technical or scientific qualifications of examiners-in-chief are not legally relevant in appeal under 35 U.S.C. § 134 since board members need not be skilled in the art to render obviousness decision); Lange v. Commissioner, 352 F. Supp. 166, 176 USPQ 162 (D.D.C. 1972) (technical qualifications of examiners-in-chief not relevant in § 145 action).

In view of the discussion above, if an employee is authorized to testify in connection with the employee's involvement or assistance in a quasi-judicial proceeding which took place before the Patent and Trademark Office, the employee will not be permitted to give testimony in response to questions which seek:

(1) Information about that employee's:
(A)Background.
(B)Expertise.
(C)Qualifications to examine or otherwise consider a particular patent or trademark application.
(D)Usual practice or whether the employee followed a procedure set out in any Office manual of practice (including the MPEP or TMEP) in a particular case.
(E) Consultation with another Office employee.
(F) Understanding of:
(i) A patented invention, an invention sought to be patented, or patent application, patent, reexamination or interference file.
(ii) Prior art.
(iii) Registered subject matter, subject matter sought to be registered, or a trademark application, registration, opposition, cancellation, interference or concurrent use file.
(iv) Any Office manual of practice.
(v) Office regulations.
(vi) Patent, trademark, or other law.
(vii) The responsibilities of another Office employee.
(G) reliance on particular facts or arguments.
(2) To inquire into the manner in and extent to which the employee considered or studied material in performing a quasi-judicial function.
(3) To inquire into the bases, reasons, mental processes, analyses, or conclusions of that Office employee in performing the quasi-judicial function.

Any request for testimony addressed or delivered to the Office of the Solicitor shall comply with 37 CFR 15a.4(c). All requests must be in writing . The need for a subpoena may be obviated where the request complies with 37 CFR 15a.4(c) if the party requesting the testimony further meets the following conditions:

(1) The party requesting the testimony identifies the civil action or other legal proceeding for which the testimony is being taken. The identification shall include:

(a) the style of the case,
(b) the civil action number,
(c) the district in which the civil action is pending,
(d) the judge assigned to the case, and
(e) the name, address, and telephone number of counsel for all parties in the civil action.

(2) The party agrees not to ask questions seeking information which is precluded by 37 CFR 15a.6(b).
(3) The party shall comply with applicable provisions of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, including Rule 30, and give ten working days notice to the Office of the Solicitor prior to the date a deposition is desired. Fifteen working days notice is required for any deposition which is desired to be taken between Nov. 15 and Jan. 15.
(4) The party agrees to notice the deposition at a place convenient to the Patent and Trademark Office. The Conference Room in the Office of the Solicitor is deemed to be a place convenient to the Office.
(5) The party agrees to supply a copy of the transcript of the deposition to the Patent and Trademark Office for its records.

Absent a written agreement meeting the conditions specified in paragraphs (1) through (5), a party must comply with the precise terms of 37 CFR 15a.4(c) and the Patent and Trademark Office will not permit a deposition without issuance of a subpoena.

Revisions to §§ 1801 and 1801.01 of TMEP

§ 1801 Office personnel not to express opinion on validity of registered trademark

A certificate of registration of a trademark on the Principal Register is prima facie evidence of the validity of the registration. 15 U.S.C. § 1057(b). Public policy demands that every employee of the Patent and Trademark Office refuse to express to any person any opinion as to the validity of any registered trademark, except to the extent necessary to carry out inter partes proceedings at the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board in cancellation and similar proceedings authorized by law.

The question of validity of a registered trademark is otherwise exclusively a matter to be determined by a court. Members of the trademark examining operation are cautioned to be especially wary of any inquiry from any person outside the Patent and Trademark Office, including an employee of another Government agency, the answer to which might indicate that a particular registration should not have been published or issued.

Employees of the Patent and Trademark Office, particularly trademark examining attorneys who examined an application should not discuss or answer inquiries from any person outside the Patent and Trademark Office as to whether or not a certain registration or other particular evidence was considered during the examination of the application or whether a trademark would have been published or registered if the registration or other evidence had been considered during the examination. Likewise, employees are cautioned against answering any inquiry concerning any entry in the trademark registration file, including the extent of the field of search and any entry relating thereto. The record of the file of a trademark registration or inter partes proceedings before the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board must speak for itself.

Practitioners can be of material assistance in this regard by refraining from making improper inquiries of members of the trademark examining operation. Inquiries from members of the public relating to the matters discussed above must of necessity be refused and such refusal should not be considered discourteous or an expression of opinion as to validity of any registration.

37 CFR 15a.7]

It is the policy of the Patent and Trademark Office that its employees, including trademark examining attorneys, will not appear as witnesses or give testimony in legal proceedings, except under the conditions specified in 37 CFR Part 15a. Any employee who testifies contrary to this policy will be dismissed or removed. The reasons for this policy are set out in 37 CFR 15a.3.

Whenever an employee of the Patent and Trademark Office, including a trademark examining attorney, is asked to testify or receives a subpoena, the employee shall immediately notify the Office of the Solicitor. Inquiries requesting testimony shall be also referred immediately to the Office of the Solicitor.

Trademark examining attorneys and other Patent and Trademark Office employees performing or assisting in the performance of quasi-judicial functions, are forbidden to testify as experts or to express opinions as to the validity of any registration.

Any individual desiring the testimony of an employee of the Patent and Trademark Office, including the testimony of a trademark examining attorney or other quasi-judicial employee, must comply with the provisions of 37 CFR Part 15a.

A request for testimony of an employee of the Patent and Trademark Office should be made to the Office of the Solicitor at least ten working days prior to the date of the expected testimony.

If an employee is authorized to testify, the employee will be limited to testifying about facts within the employee's personal knowledge. Employees are prohibited from giving expert or opinion testimony. Fischer & Porter Co. v. Corning Glass Works, 61 F.R.D. 321, 181 USPQ 329 (E.D. Pa. 1974). Likewise, employees are prohibited from answering hypothetical or speculative questions. In re Mayewsky, 162 USPQ 86, 89 (E.D. Va. 1969) (deposition of an examiner must be restricted to relevant matters of fact and must avoid any hypothetical or speculative questions or conclusions based thereon); Shaffer Tool Works v. Joy Mfg. Co., 167 USPQ 170 (S.D. Tex. 1970) (deposition of examiner should be limited to matters of fact and must not go into hypothetical or speculative areas or the bases, reasons, mental processes, analyses, or conclusions of the examiner in acting upon an application). Employees will not be permitted to give testimony with respect to subject matter which is privileged. Several court decisions limit testimony with respect to quasi-judicial functions performed by employees. Those decisions include United States v. Morgan, 313 U.S. 409, 422 (1941) (improper to inquire into mental processes of quasi-judicial officer or to examine the manner and extent to which the officer considered an administrative record); Western Electric Co. v. Piezo Technology, Inc. v. Quigg, 860 F.2d 428, 8 USPQ 2d 1583 (Fed. Cir. 1988) (patent examiner may not be compelled to answer questions which probe the examiner's technical knowledge of the subject matter of a patent); McCulloch Gas Processing Co. v. Department of Energy, 650 F.2d 1216, 1229 (Temp. Emer. Ct. App. 1981) (discovery of degree of expertise of individuals performing governmental functions not permitted); In re Nilssen, 851 F.2d 1401, 7 USPQ 2d 1500 (Fed. Cir. 1988) (technical or scientific qualifications of examiners-in-chief are not legally relevant in appeal under 35 U.S.C. § 134 since board members need not be skilled in the art to render obviousness decision); Lance v. Commissioner, 352 F. Supp. 166, 176 USPQ 162 (D.D.C. 1972) (technical qualifications of examiners-in-chief not relevant in Sec. 145 action).

In view of the discussion above, if an employee is authorized to testify in connection with the employee's involvement or assistance in a quasi-judicial proceeding which took place before the Patent and Trademark Office, the employee will not be permitted to give testimony in response to questions which seek:

(1) Information about that employee's:

(A) Background.
(B) Expertise.
(C) Qualifications to examine or otherwise consider a particular patent or trademark application.
(D) Usual practice or whether the employee followed a procedure set out in any Office manual of practice (including the MPEP or TMEP) in a particular case.
(E) Consultation with another Office employee.
(F) Understanding of:
(i) A patented invention, an invention sought to be patented, or patent application, patent, reexamination or interference file.
(ii) Prior art.
(iii) Registered subject matter, subject matter sought to be registered, or a trademark application, registration, opposition, cancellation, interference or concurrent use file.
(iv) Any Office manual of practice.
(v) Office regulations
(vi) Patent, trademark, or other law.
(vii) The responsibilities of another Office employee.
(G) Reliance on particular facts or arguments.
(2) To inquire into the manner in and extent to which the employee considered or studied material in performing a quasi-judicial function.
(3) To inquire into the bases, reasons, mental processes, analyses, or conclusions of that Office employee in performing the quasi-judicial function.

Any request for testimony addressed or delivered to the Office of the Solicitor shall comply with 37 CFR 15a.4(c). All requests must be in writing. The need for a subpoena may be obviated where the request complies with 37 CFR 15a.4(c) only if the party requesting the testimony further meets the following conditions:

(1) The party requesting the testimony identifies the civil action or other legal proceeding for which the testimony is being taken. The identification shall include:

(a) the style of the case,
(b) the civil action number,
(c) the district in which the civil action is pending,
(d) the judge assigned to the case, and
(e) the name, address, and telephone number of counsel for all parties in the civil action.

(2) The party agrees not to ask questions seeking information which is precluded by 37 CFR 15a.6(b).

(3) The party shall comply with applicable provisions of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, including Rule 30, and give ten working days notice to the Office of the Solicitor prior to the date a deposition is desired.

Fifteen working days notice is required for any deposition which is desired to be taken between Nov. 15 and Jan. 15.

(4) The party agrees to notice the deposition at a place convenient to the Patent and Trademark Office. The Conference Room in the Office of the Solicitor is deemed to be a place convenient to the Office.

(5) The party agrees to supply a copy of the transcript of the deposition to the Patent and Trademark Office for its records.

Absent a written agreement meeting the conditions specified in paragraphs (1) through (5), a party must comply with the precise terms of 37 CFR 15a.4(c) and the Patent and Trademark Office will not permit a deposition without issuance of a subpoena.

VOL 1170 ISS 1 JA 3 1995 UMI

United States Adherence to the International Union for the Protection of New Varieties of Plants (UPOV)

On Nov. 12, 1980, the United States deposited its instrument of acceptance of the 1978 text of the UPOV Convention. The United States was the second State to adhere to this text, New Zealand having earlier done so.

The UPOV Convention will take effect with respect to the United States and the other adherents to the 1978 text upon a total of five adherences, three of which must be by present member States (States adhering to the text of the Convention). We expect at least three present member States to adhere shortly and the 1978 text to take effect, therefore, during 1981.

The United States deposited its instrument of acceptance on the basis of the legal protection offered for asexually reproduced plants under the plant patent law (35 U.S.C. 161-164). Accordingly, the Convention will apply only to asexually reproduced plants protected under this law. Steps are now being taken, however, by the Plant Variety Protection Office of the Department of Agriculture to conform the implementation of the Plant Variety Protection Act (7 U.S.C. 2321 et seq.) to the Convention's requirements. When this is done, the United States will notify the UPOV Secretariat that the Convention is also applicable in the United States to sexually reproduced plants protected under that Act.

Questions concerning the UPOV Convention may be directed to the Office of Legislation and International Affairs of the Patent and Trademark Office. This Office may be addressed as follows: Box 4, Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Washington, D.C. 20231. The Office's telephone number is (703) 557-3065.

(98) Taking Effect in the United States of the International Convention for the Protection of New Varieties of Plants

The International Convention for the Protection of New Varieties of Plants (the UPOV Convention) will take effect in the United States on Nov. 8, 1981. It will apply to all applications for the patenting of plants under the provisions of Title 35, United States Code, which are filed on or after Nov. 8, 1981. The actual filing date will govern in determining whether the Convention will apply to an application, even though the application may be entitled to an earlier effective date under section 119 or 120 of Title 35, United States Code.

In addition to the United States, the UPOV Convention will be in effect as of Nov. 8, 1981, in the following fourteen States: Belgium, Denmark, Federal Republic of Germany, France, Ireland, Israel, Italy, Netherlands, New Zealand, Republic of South Africa, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, and the United Kingdom.

No changes in the patent law are needed to implement the UPOV Convention in the United States. An applicant for a plant patent will be required, however, to submit for registration a variety name for the plant to be patented. Registration is required by Article 13 of the UPOV Convention.

Registrability shall be determined in accordance with the International Code of Nomenclature for Cultivated Plants (1980). As an interim procedure pending the promulgation of an appropriate rule, inclusion of the variety name in the application will be accepted as a submission of the name for registration. No plant patent as a result of an application filed on or after Nov. 8, 1981, shall be issued without the registration of a variety name. Questions concerning this variety naming requirement or the UPOV Convention may be addressed to:

37 CFR Part 10
Cross Appeals in Patent and Trademark Office Disciplinary Proceedings

Agency: Patent and Trademark Office, Commerce.
Action: Notice of proposed rulemaking.
Summary: The Patent and Trademark Office (PTO) proposes to amend its rules of practice in practitioner disciplinary proceedings. The proposed rule change provides for a time period for a party to a disciplinary proceeding to file a cross-appeal, after the other party (the respondent or the Director of the Office of Enrollment and Discipline) to the proceeding has appealed from an initial decision of the administrative law judge to the Commissioner. Currently, PTO rules do not provide for a time period for filing a cross-appeal in a disciplinary case. A party in a disciplinary case may be interested in appealing only if the other party has appealed. Allowing a time period for filing a cross-appeal will give parties to disciplinary cases more flexibility after an initial decision by the administrative law judge. A party need not file a contingent appeal simply to preserve rights in the event the other party files an appeal.
Dates: Written comments must be received on or before Aug. 20, 1993 to ensure consideration. An oral hearing will not be conducted.
Addresses: Address written comments to Box 8, Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Washington, D.C. 20231, marked to the attention of Fred E. McKelvey, Solicitor. Written comments will be available for public inspection in suite 918, on the 9th floor of Crystal Park II, located at 2121 Crystal Drive, Arlington, Va.
For Further Information Contact: Fred E. McKelvey by telephone at (703) 305-9035 or by mail marked to his attention and addressed to Box 8, Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Washington, D.C. 20231.
Supplementary Information: Pursuant to 37 CFR § 10.132 et seq., the Director of the Office of Enrollment and Discipline within the PTO may initiate a disciplinary proceeding against a practitioner. If the proceeding is contested by the practitioner and the Director continues to prosecute, an administrative law judge for the Department of Commerce enters an initial decision which includes findings of fact, conclusions of law and an order. 37 CFR § 10.154.

Either party to the proceeding may appeal from the initial decision of the administrative law judge to the Commissioner with in thirty (30) days of the date of the decision. 37 CFR § 10.155(a). However, § 10.155(a) does not currently address the filing of a cross-appeal. That is, no period of time is specified for the non-appealing party to file a cross-appeal.

With regard to interference proceedings, 37 CFR § 1.304(a) addresses the filing of cross-appeals by stating in pertinent part that:

> the time for filing a cross-appeal [to the Court of Appeals for the FederalCircuit] or cross-action [in a district court] expires (1) 14 days after service of the notice of appeal or the summons and complaint or (2) two months after the date of decision of the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences, whichever is later.

The proposed rule change is similiar to the cross-appeal authorized in interference proceedings.

OTHER CONSIDERATIONS

The proposed rule change is in conformity with the requirements of the Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C. 601 et seq.), Executive Orders 12291 and 12612 and the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et seq.

The General Counsel of the Department of Commerce has certified to the Chief Counsel for Advocacy, Small Business Administration, that the proposed rule change will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities (Regulatory Flexibility Act, 5 U.S.C. 605(b)). The principle impact of the proposed change is to provide a time period to file a cross-appeal in a PTO disciplinary proceeding.

The PTO has determined that the proposed rule change is not a major rule under Executive Order 12291. The annual effect on the economy will be less than $100 million. There will be no major increase in costs or prices for consumers; individuals; industries; Federal, state or local government agencies; or geographic regions. There will be no significant effects on competition, employment, investment, productivity, innovation, or on the ability of the United States-based enterprises to compete with foreign-based enterprises in domestic or export markets.

The PTO has also determined that this notice has no federalism implications affecting the relationship between the National Government and the States as outlined in Executive Order 12612.

The proposed rule change will not impose a burden under the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et seq., since no record keeping or reporting requirements within the coverage of the Act are placed upon the public.

For the reasons set out in the preamble, and pursuant to the authority contained in 35 U.S.C. 6, the PTO proposes to amend 37 CFR part 10 as follows, wherein deletions are indicated by brackets ([]) and additions by arrows (▶◀):

PART 10-REPRESENTATION OF OTHERS BEFORE THE PATENT AND TRADEMARK OFFICE

2. Section 10.155 is proposed to be amended by revising paragraph (a) to read as follows:

§ 10.155 Appeal to the Commissioner

(a) Within thirty (30) days from the date of the initial decision of the administrative law judge under § 10.154, either party may appeal to the Commissioner. ▶If an appeal is taken, the time for filing a cross-appeal expires (1) 14 days after service of the appeal or (2) 30 days after the date of the initial decision of the administrative law judge, whichever is later.◀ An appeal ▶or cross-appeal◀ by the respondent will be filed with the Director in duplicate and will include exceptions to the decisions of the administrative law judge and supporting reasons for those exceptions. If the Director files the appeal ▶or cross-appeal◀, the director shall serve a copy of the appeal ▶or cross-appeal◀. within thirty (30) days after receipt of an appeal ▶, cross-appeal◀ or copy thereof, the other party may file a reply brief, in duplicate with the Director. If the Director files the reply brief, the Director shall serve a copy of the reply brief. Upon the filing of an appeal ▶, cross-appeal◀ or copy thereof, the other party may file a rep.y brief, in duplicate with the Director. If the Director files the reply brief, the Director shall serve a copy of the reply brief. Upon the filing of an appeal ▶, cross-appeal, if any,◀ and [a] reply brief ▶s◀, if any, the Director shall transmit the entire record to the Commissioner.

37 CFR Part 501

[Docket No. 80627-8127]

Uniform Patent Policy for Domestic Rights in Inventions Made by Government Employees

Agency: Under Secretary for Economic Affairs, Department of Commerce.
Action: Final rule.
Summary: Executive Order 10096, as amended by Executive Order 10930, sets forth the policies and procedures for determining the rights in Federal employee inventions with respect to the Federal employee and the Government employer. The Delegation of Authority from the Secretary of Commerce dated Sept. 15, 1988 and effective Nov. 1, 1988, transferred administration of the provisions of Executive Order 10096 as amended by Executive Order 10930 from the Commission of Patents and Trademarks to the under Secretary for Economic Affairs in the Department of Commerce. This final rule establishes 37 CFR Part 501 which sets forth this delegation of authority to the Under Secretary. In addition, each Government agency is authorized to determine whether the results of research, development or other activity constitute an invention with the purview of Executive Order 10096, as amended by Executive Order 10930 and to determine initially the rights therein in accordance with the provisions of section 501.6 and 501.7 herein. By separate notice in today's Federal Register the Patent and Trademark Office is deleting 37 CFR Part 100.
Effective Date: Nov. 1, 1988.

However, all rights, determinations, and appeals submitted to the Commissioner prior to the effective date, will be reviewed by the Commissioner under the procedures of 37 CFR Part 100.
Address: Comments may be sent to Mr. Joseph P. Allen, Acting Director, Federal Technology Management Division, Office of the Under Secretary for Economic Affairs, United States Department of Commerce, Room 4839, Herbert C. Hoover Bldg., Washington, D.C. 20230.
For Further Information Contact: Mr. Joseph P. Allen, by telephone at (202) 377-8100 or Robert B. Ellert by telephone at (202) 377-5394.
Supplementary Information: Executive Order 10096, as amended by Executive Order 10930, sets forth the policies and procedures for determining the rights in Federal Employee inventions with respect to the Federal employer and the Government employer. The Under Secretary for Economic Affairs of the Department of Commerce was delegated responsibility for oversight of the Executive Order on Sept. 15, 1988. Functions required by the Executive Order were previously performed by the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks. This final rule is substantially the same as the rule set out in 37 CFR Part 100, except, the Secretary of Commerce is substituted for the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, and advance approval is given to agency heads to make final determinations relating to determinations of rights decisions of Government employee inventions, subject to employee appeal to the Secretary.

President Reagan in Executive Order 12591, on April 10, 1987 directed all Government agencies to facilitate the transfer of technology developed at federal laboratories to the private sector and to promote its commercialization. To accomplish the goals of E.O. 12591 it is necessary that rights to inventions made by government employees by determined as expidiously as possible. Accordingly, the Secretary has reviewed the existing procedures and policies under 37 CFR Part 100 and concluded that administration of the functions thereunder could be performed on a more efficient basis by confining the role of the Department of Commerce to appeals by employees from disputed agency determinations. Accordingly, under 37 CFR Part 501, each Government agency is given the authority to determine whether the results of research, development or other activates within the agency constitute an invention by an employee, and to determine initially the rights relating to ownership within the provisions of Executive Order 10096 as amended by Executive Order 10930. If no appeal is taken to the secretary by an employee under section 501.8, the initial determination of the agency will be final.

Notwithstanding the fact that this is a final rule, comments are requested.

Because this rule concerns agency management and personnel, it is not a rule or regulation within the meaning of section 1(a) of Executive Order 12291, and it is not subject to the requirements of the Order. Accordingly, no preliminary or final regulatory impact analysis has to be or will be prepared.

Because notice of proposed rulemaking and an opportunity for public comments are not required to be given for this rule by section 553 of the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U.S.C. 533), or by any other law, no regulatory flexibility analysis has to be or will be prepared for purposes of the Regulatory Act (5 U.S.C. 603(a) and 604(a)).

This final rule does not contain policies with Federalism implications sufficient to warrant preparation of a Federalism assessment under Executive Order 12612. This rule does not contain collections of information for purposes of the Paperwork Reduction Act.

The changes in the process of determining employee rights to inventions made by this rule do not have takings implications sufficient to require preparation of a Taking Implications Assessment under Executive Order 12630.

§ 501.1 Purpose

The purpose of this part is to provide for the administration of a uniform patent policy for the Government with respect to the domestic rights in inventions made by Government employees and to prescribe rules and regulations for implementing and effectuating such policy.

§ 501.2 Scope

This part applies to any invention made by a Government employee and to any action taken with respect thereto.

§ 501.3 Definitions

(a) The term "Secretary," as used in this part, means the Under Secretary of Commerce for Economic Affairs.

(b) The term "Government agency" as used in this part, means and Executive department or independent establishment of the Executive branch of the Government (including any independent regulatory commission or board, any corporation wholly owned by the United States, and the Smithsonian Institution), but does not include the Department of Energy for inventions made or conceived under the provisions of 42 U.S.C 2182.

(c) The term "Government employee," as used in this part, means any officer or employee, civilian or military, of any Government agency, including any part-time consultant or part-time employee except as may otherwise be provided for by agency regulation approved by the Secretary.

(d) The term "invention," as used in this part, means any art, machine, manufacture, design or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, or any variety of plant, which is or may be patentable under the Patent laws of the United States.

§ 501.4 Determination of Inventions and rights therein.

Each Government agency has the approval of the Secretary to determine whether the results of research, development, or other activity in the agency constitute an invention within the purview of E.O. 10096, as amended by E.O. 19030 and to determine the rights therein in accordance with the provisions of § 501.6 and 501.7 herein.

§ 501.5 Agency Liaison Officer

Each Government agency shall designate a liaison officer to represent the agency before the secretary. Provided, however, that the Departments of the Army, the Navy, and the Air Force may each designate a liaison officer.

§ 501.6 Criteria for the Determination of Rights In and To Inventions.

(a) The following rules shall be applied in determining the respective rights of the Government and of the inventor in and to any invention that is subject to the provisions of this part:

(1) The Government shall obtain, except as herein otherwise provided, the entire domestic right, title and interest in and to any invention made be any Government employee:

(i) During working hours, or

(ii) With a contribution by the Government of facilities, equipment, materials, funds or information, or of time or services or other Government employees on official duty, or

(iii) Which bears a direct relation to or is made in consequence of the official duties of the inventor.

Foreign patent rights are governed by the provisions of 37 CFR Part 101.

(2) In any case where the contribution of the Government, as measured by any one or more of the criteria set forth in paragraph (a)(1) of this section, to the inventor is insufficient equitable to justify a requirement of assignment to the Government of the entire domestic right, title, and interest in and to such invention, or in any case where the Government has insufficient interest in an invention to obtain the entire domestic right, title, and interest therein (although the Government could obtain same under paragraph(a)(1) of this section), the Government agency concerned shall leave title to such invention in the employees subject however, to the reservation of the government of a non-exclusive, irrevocable, royalty-free license in the invention with power to grant licenses for all governmental purposes, such reservation, in the terms thereof, to appear, where practicable, in any patent, domestic or foreign, which may issue on such invention. Reference is made to section 15 of the Federal Technology Transfer Act of 1986 (15 U.S.C. 3710d) which requires a Government agency to allow the inventor to retain title to any covered invention where the agency does not intend to file a patent application or otherwise promote commercialization.

(3) In applying the provisions of paragraph (a)(1) and (2) of this section to the facts and circumstances relating to the making of a particular invention it shall be presumed that an invention made by an employee who is employed or assigned:

(i) To invent or improve or perfect any art, machine, design, manufacture or composition of matter,

(ii) To conduct or perform research, development work, or both

(iii) To supervise, direct, coordinate, or review Government financed or conducted research, development work, or both, or

(iv) To act in a liaison capacity among governmental or non-governmental agencies or individuals engaged in such research or development work, falls within the provisions of paragraph (a)(1) of this section, and shall be presumed that any invention made by any other employee falls within the provision of paragraph (a)(2) of this section. Either presumption may be rebutted by a showing of the facts and circumstances in the case and shall not preclude a determination that these facts and circumstances justify leaving the entire right, title, and interest in and to the invention in the Government employees, subject to the law.

(4) In any case wherein the Government neither:

(i) Obtains the entire domestic right, title and interest in and to an invention pursuant to the provisions of paragraph (a)(1) of this section nor

(ii) Reserves a non-exclusive, irrevocable, royalty-free license in the invention, with power to grant licenses for all governmental purposes, pursuant to the provisions of paragraph (a)(2) of this section.

The Government shall leave the entire right, title and interest in and to the invention in the government employee, subject to law.

§ 501.7 Agency determination.

(a) If the agency determines that the Government is entitles to obtain title pursuant to § 501.6(a)(1) and the employee does not appeal, no further review is required.

(b) In the event that a Government agency determines, pursuant to paragraph (a)(2) or (a)(4) of § 501.6, that title to an invention shall be left with the employee, the agency shall notify the employee of this determination.

(c) In the case of a determination under either paragraph (a) or (b) of this section, the agency shall promptly prepare, and preserve in appropriate files, accessible to the Secretary, a written, signed, and dated statement concerning the invention including the following:

(1) A description of the invention in sufficient detail to identify the invention and show its relationship to the employee's duties and work assignments;

(2) The name of the employee and employee status, including a detailed statement of official duties and responsibilities at the time the invention was made, and

(3) An explanation of the agency determination and reasons therefor. The agency shall, subject to considerations of national security, or public health, safety, or welfare, submit to the Secretary, if an appeal is taken, a copy of this written statement.

§ 501.8 Appeals by employees.

(a) Any Government employee who is aggrieved by a Government agency determination pursuant to § 501.6(a)(1) or (a)(2), may obtain a review of any agency determination by filing, within 30 days (or such longer period as the Secretary may, for good cause shown in writing, fix in any case) after receiving notice of such determination, two copies of an appeal with the Secretary. The Secretary shall then forward one copy of the appeal to the Government agency.

(b) On receipt of a copy of an appeal filed pursuant to paragraph (a) of this section, the agency official who made the agency determination being appealed shall, subject to considerations of national security or public health, safety, or welfare, promptly furnish both the Secretary and the inventor with a copy of a report containing the following information about the invention involved in the appeal:

(1) A copy of a statement by the agency containing the information specified in § 501.7, and

(2) A detailed statement of the points of dispute or controversy, together with copies of any statements or written arguments filed with the agency, and of any other relevant evidence that the agency considered in making itsdetermination of Government interest. Within 25 days(or such longer periodthat the Secretary may, for good cause shown, fix in any case) after thetransmission of a copy of the agency report of the employee, the employeemay file a reply thereto with the Secretary and file one copy thereof withthe appropriate agency decision maker.

(c) After the time for the inventor's reply to the Government agency's report has expired and if the inventor has so requested in his or her appeal, a date will be set for hearing of oral arguments before the Secretary, by the employee (or by an attorney whom he or she designates by written power of attorney filed before, or at the hearing) and a representative of the Government agency involved. Unless it shall be otherwise ordered before the hearing begins, oral arguments shall be limited to thirty minutes for each side. The employee need not retain an attorney or request an oral hearing to secure full consideration of the facts and his or her arguments. The employee may expedite such consideration by notifying the Secretary when he or she doest not intend to file a reply to the agency report.

(d) After a hearing on the appeal, if a hearing was requested, or after expiration of the period for the inventor's reply to the agency report if no hearing is set, the Secretary shall issue a decision on the matter within 120 days, which decision shall be final after a thirty day period for requesting reconsideration expires or on the date that a decision on a petition for reconsideration is finally disposed of. Any request for reconsideration or modification of the decision must be filed within 30 days from the date of the original decision (or within such an extension thereof as may be set by the Secretary before the original period expires). The decision of the Secretary shall be made after consideration of the statements of fact in the employee's appeal, the agency's report, and the employee's reply, but the Secretary at his or her discretion and with due respect to the rights and convenience of the inventor and the Government agency, may call for further statements on specific questions of fact or may request additional evidence in the form of affidavits or depositions on specific facts in dispute.

§ 501.9 Patent protection.

(a) A Government agency, upon determination that an invention coming within the scope of § 501.6(a)(1) or (a)(2) has been made, shall thereupon determine whether patent protection will be sought in the United States by the Agency for such invention. A controversy over the respective rights of the Government and the employee in any case shall not delay the taking of the actions provided for in this section. In cases coming within the scope of § 501.6(a)(2), agency action looking toward such patent protection shall be contingent upon the consent of the employee.

(b) Where there is an appealed dispute as to whether § 501.6(a)(1) or (a)(2) applies in determining the respective rights of the Government and of an employees in and to any invention, the agency will determine whether patent protection will be sought in the united States pending the Secretary's decision on the dispute and, if it decides that an application for patent should be filed, will take such rights as are specified in § 501.6(a)(2), but this shall be without prejudice to acquiring the rights specified in paragraph (a)(1) of that section should the Secretary so decide.

(c) Where an agency has determined to leave title to an invention with an employee under § 501.6(a)(2), the agency will, upon the filing of an application for patent take the rights specified in that paragraph without prejudice to the subsequent acquisition by the Government of the rights specified in paragraph (a)(1) of that section should the Secretary so decide.

Each Government agency shall disseminate to its employees the provisions of this part, and any appropriate implementing agency regulations and decisions. Copies of any such regulations shall be sent to the Secretary. (101) Practitioner's Responsibility to Avoid Prejudice to the Rights of a Client/Patent Applicant

Under 37 CFR Part 10, a practitioner is responsible for taking reasonable steps to avoid foreseeable prejudice to the rights of a client/patent applicant. This responsibility exists in all circumstances including those where the practitioner is operating through a corporate liaison or foreign agent and has no direct contact with the client/patent applicant, who in most cases is the one being represented.

This notice is intended to clarify the appropriate course of action for a practitioner to follow when the practitioner is operating through such a corporate liaison or foreign agent. In such arrangements, the registered practitioner may rely upon the advice of the corporate liaison or the client/patent applicant's foreign agent as to the action to be taken so long as the practitioner is aware that the client/patent applicant has consented after full disclosure to be represented by the liaison or agent. It will be assumed by the Patent and Trademark Office that the client/patent applicant has an agreement with the liaison or agent, arrived at after full disclosure, to be represented by the liaison or agent. Registered practitioners, if they wish, however, may maintain a copy of the agreement in this regard between the client/patent applicant and the liaison or agent in practitioner's file of the application or other proceeding before the Office. If there is, in fact, no such agreement between the client/patent applicant and the liaison or agent, the registered practitioner must communicate to the client/patent applicant.

In circumstances where the practitioner is aware that there is an agreement between the client/patent applicant and the liaison or agent, the practitioner may fully rely upon the advice of the liaison or agent as to the wishes of the client/patent applicant. For example, if the registered practitioner is instructed by the client/patent applicant's liaison or agent to allow an application to go abandoned rather than to respond to an Office action within a set period for response, the practitioner may properly do so without any further notice to the client/patent applicant.

It is assumed that withdrawal from employment by a practitioner will remain a relatively rare occurrence, particularly in view of this clarification. This notice should not be taken to require or encourage withdrawal. If a practitioner should decide to withdraw, however, the practitioner must take reasonable steps to avoid foreseeable prejudice to the rights of the client/patent applicant including allowing time for employment of another practitioner (37 CFR 10.40). Therefore, at least thirty days would be required between the date of approval by the Office of the withdrawal and the later of the expiration date of the response period or the expiration date of the period which can be obtained by a petition for extension of time and fee under 37 CFR 1.136(a). This is necessary so that the client/patent applicant would have sufficient time to obtain other representation or to take other action. If a period has been set for response and the period may be extended without a showing of cause pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) by filing a petition for extension of time and fee, the practitioner will not be required to seek such extension of time for withdrawal to be approved. In such a situation, however, withdrawal will not be approved unless at least thirty days would remain between the date of approval and the last date on which such a petition for extension of time and fee could properly be filed.

(102) Responsibilities of Practitioners Representing Clients in Proceedings Before The Patent and Trademark Office

This notice is intended to remind practitioners of certain aspects of their responsibilities in representing clients in proceedings before the Office. The Notice is also intended to supplement the discussion set forth in the Official Gazette Notice published at 1086 Official Gazette 457 (Jan. 12, 1988) entitled "Practitioner's Responsibility to Avoid Prejudice to the Rights of a Client/Patent Applicant" and to amplify and supersede the Helpful Hint published at 1084 Official Gazette 34 (Nov. 24, 1987) titled "Correspondence Address and/or Fee Address of Maintenance Fees."

Part 10 of title 37, Code of Federal Regulations, sets forth the Patent and Trademark Office (PTO) Code of Professional Responsibility. Each attorney or agent who practices before the PTO is subject to the rules set forth in Part 10 and should carefully study the rules promulgation originally published at 50 Federal Register 5158 (Feb. 6, 1985) and at 1052 Official Gazette 4 (Mar. 5, 1985) and reproduced as item number 172 in the Consolidated Listing of Official Gazette Notices, published at 1086 Trademark Official Gazette 3 (Jan. 5, 1988).

Practitioner's Client

During the promulgation of Part 10, 37 CFR, several individuals suggested that "it may be difficult to determine the identity of the 'client'. . ., particularly in corporate patent departments." The response to that suggestion was that "[t]he PTO will presume that practitioners know the identities of their clients . . .." 50 Federal Register 5163 (Feb. 6, 1985); 1086 Trademark Official Gazette 356 (Jan. 5, 1988). For example, in a patent application, practitioner's client is ordinarily the inventor who gives practitioner a power of attorney to prosecute the application (37 CFR 1.31). A practitioner may represent only the assignee of the entire interest in a patent application if the assignee has filed a power of attorney and the assignee is conducting the prosecution of the application to the exclusion of the inventor. (37 CFR 1.32).

In the promulgation of Part 10, 37 CFR, a commenter raised a question of who is the client when an application is filed on behalf of an individual, but the individual's assignee pays practitioner's bill. The question was answered in the following manner:

> "Practitioners are expected to know the identities of their clients. If a practitioner is hired by a corporation and wishes to make that fact plain on the record of a patent application, the practitioner may file an assignment and a power of attorney signed by the assignee. If a dispute should then occur between the individual and the assignee, the record would be clear that the assignee is the client." 50 Federal Register 5164 (Feb. 6, 1985); 1086 Trademark Official Gazette 357 (Jan. 5, 1988).

In some instances, practitioners deal with a corporate liaison or foreign agent. Such arrangements do not automatically change the person whom practitioner represents, e.g., the inventor or trademark owner. The fact that a U.S. practitioner receives instructions from the inventor or trademark owner through a foreign attorney or agent does not change the fact that the client is still the inventor or trademark owner rather than the foreign attorney or agent. See Strojirenstvi v. Toyoda, 2 USPQ 2nd 1222 (Comm'r Pat. 1986), which at 1223 cited Yetter Manufacturing Co. v. Hiniker Co., 213 USPQ 119, 120 (D. Minn. 1981) for the principle that "when attorney served as local counsel for a law firm representing Hiniker Co., the attorney represented Hiniker and not the law firm" and also cited Toulmin v. Becker, 105 USPQ 511 (Ohio Ct. App. 1954) for the principle that "foreign patent agents or attorneys were not clients of U.S. patent attorney." The PTO expects practitioners to know the identities of their clients and to take reasonable steps to avoid foreseeable prejudice to the rights of their clients.

Obtaining Instructions Through Persons Other Than The Client

In practice, it is common for instructions relating to the application of an inventor or trademark owner, who is the client of the U.S. practitioner, to be passed to the U.S. practitioner through intermediaries, such as corporate liaisons or foreign agents. Clearly, a client may choose to use a corporate liaison or a foreign agent to convey instructions, etc., to a practitioner. In such an arrangement, the practitioner may rely upon instructions of, and accept compensation from, the corporate liaison or the foreign agent as to the action to be taken in a proceeding before the Office so long as the practitioner is aware that the client has consented to have instructions conveyed through the liaison or agent. See 37 CFR 10.68(a) and (b). An agreement between the client and the liaison or agent establishes an agency relationship between the liaison or agent and the client such that the U.S. practitioner can rely upon the liaison or agent as the representative of the client for the purpose of communicating the client's instructions about the proceeding to the U.S. practitioner. The PTO will assume that the client has an agreement with the liaison or agent to be represented by the liaison or agent. It is the responsibility of the client to notify the practi tioner that the agency relationship between the client and the liaison or agent has ceased to exist and that instructions from the liaison or agent should no longer be accepted.

A practitioner could secure evidence that such an agreement exists by having a patent or trademark applicant sign a statement to that effect at the same time that the power of attorney is executed. For example, the following language could be inserted in an oath, declaration, or power of attorney form:

> "The undersigned hereby authorizes the U.S. attorney or agent named herein to accept and follow instructions from as to any action to be taken in the Patent and Trademark Office regarding this application without direct communication between the U.S. attorney or agent and the undersigned. In the event of a change in the persons from whom instructions may be taken, the U.S. attorney or agent named herein will be so notified by the undersigned."

Without an agency relationship between the liaison or agent and the client, a practitioner would be bound by 37 CFR 10.68(b) to "not permit a person who recommends, employs, or pays the practitioner to render legal services for another, to direct or regulate the practitioner's professional judgment in rendering such legal services."

Practitioner's Responsibility to a Client After the Client's Patent Issues or Trademark is Registered

The Office has received inquiries from practitioners as to their responsibilites to a client (patent or trademark applicant) after the client's patent was issued or trademark has been registered. In response thereto, it is pointed out that a power of attorney given during prosecution of a patent or trademark application is considered to be viable after the patent is issued or the trademark is registered. See 50 Federal Register 5164 (Feb. 6, 1985); 1086 Trademark Official Gazette 357 (Jan. 5, 1988). While the Office considers such a power of attorney to be viable for purposes of the practitioner taking actions in proceedings before the Office if practitioner and the client so desire, the existence of the power of attorney to file and/or prosecute the application through issuance of the patent or registration of the trademark does not establish whether practitioner has a responsibility, and a dutaffirmatively in a proceeding before the Office on behalf of the client after the patent issues or the trademark is registered.

Practitioner's responsibility to take affirmative action in a proceeding before the Office after the patent issues or the trademark is registered depends upon whether practitioner still has a practitioner-client relationship with the client which has continued after the patent issued or trademark is registered. The mere existence of the power of attorney to file and/or prosecute the application through issuance of the patent or registration of the trademark would not establish such a practitioner client relationship in the absence of other facts establishing such a relationship since the purpose for which the power of attorney was originally given has been accomplished.

Practitioner's Responsibility to a Former Client

While practitioner may no longer have a practitioner-client relationship with a client and therefore has no duty to represent the client in a proceeding before the Office, a practitioner nevertheless has certain obligations to a former client. These obligations are placed upon practitioner by the Office rules and are necessary for the proper conduct of proceedings before the Office. Under 37 CFR 10.23(c)(8), practitioners have a duty to inform a client or former client or timely notify the Office of an inability to notify a client or former client of certain correspondence received from the Office and also from the client's or former client's opponent in an inter partes proceeding before the Office. Practitioners have an obligation whether the client is a present client or a former client. Included among the items of correspondence of which practitioners have the obligation to inform clients or former clients are notices regarding maintenance fees, reexamination proceedings, and institution of inter partes patent and trademark proceedings.

Address to Which Correspondence is Sent Regarding Patent Maintenance Fees and Reexamination Proceedings

Under 37 CFR 1.33(d), a "correspondence address" or a change thereto may be filed with the Office during the enforceable life of a patent. This "correspondence address" will be used in any correspondence relating to maintenance fees unless a separate "fee address" has been specified solely for maintenance fee purposes as provided by 37 CFR 1.363. Practitioners who do not wish to receive correspondence relating to maintenance fees must change the correspondence address in the patented file or provide the PTO with a fee address to which the correspondence should be sent. It is not required that a practitioner file a request for permission to withdraw pursuant to 37 CFR 1.36 solely for the purpose of changing the correspondence address in a patent even though a withdrawal of a practitioner would change the correspondence address.

Since 37 CFR 1.33(c) specifies that all notices, official letters and other communications for the patent owner or owners in a reexamination proceeding will be directed to the attorney or agent of record in the patent file, a request for permission to withdraw pursuant to 37 CFR 1.36 must be filed in the patent if the attorney or agent of record does not desire to receive correspondence relating to reexamination. For information on requests to withdraw, see the discussion in the Jan. 12, 1988 Official Gazette Notice cited above.

Contact Points For Information

If a practitioner has questions about the conduct of, or requirements relating to a particular proceeding before the Office, those questions should be directed to the particular area of the Office responsible for the proceeding. If practitioners have questions about their responsibilities to their clients, those questions should be directed to the Office of Enrollment and

Patent and Trademark Office
37 CFR § 1.15
[Docket No. 80515 - 8209]

Requests for Identifiable Records

Agency: Patent and Trademark Office, Commerce
Action: Final Rule.
Summary: This final rule sets forth changes that the Patent and Trademark Office (PTO) is making to the rules governing requests for records not disclosed to the public as part of the regular informational activity of the PTO. The prior rule sets out the PTO Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) procedures. The final rule updates these procedures and specifies that FOIA requests will be processed in accordance with Department of Commerce regulations contained in Part 4 of 15 CFR (Public Information).
Effective Date: Dec. 30, 1988.
For Further Information Contact: Albin F. Drost by telephone at (703) 557-4035 or by mail marked to his attention and addressed to Box 8, Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Washington, D.C. 20231.
Supplementary Information: As presently written, 37 CFR 1.15 describes procedures for obtaining documents under the Freedom of Information Act that have been superseded. The purpose of this rule change is to bring the PTO FOIA procedures into conformity with the Department of Commerce FOIA rules. The final rule directly advises requesters that the PTO will follow the Department of Commerce rules for disclosure of information under FOIA.

A notice of proposed rulemaking was published on July 19, 1988 (53 Fed. Reg. 27 177). Interested parties were requested to submit written comments on or before Sept. 20, 1988. No comments were received.

Other Considerations

This rule change will not have a significant impact on the quality of the human environment or the conservation of energy resources. This rule change is in conformity with the requirements of the Regulatory Flexibility Act (Pub. L. 96-354), Executive Orders 12291 and 12612, and the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. § 3501 et seq.

The General Counsel of the Department of Commerce has certified to the Small Business Administration that the rule change will not have a significant adverse economic impact on a substantial number of small entities [Regulatory Flexibility Act, Pub. L. 96-354] because no increase in fees or paperwork should result from this rule change.

The Patent and Trademark Office has determined that this rule change is not a major rule under Executive Order 12991. The annual effect to the economy will be less than $100 million. There will be no major increase in costs or prices for consumers, individual industries, federal, state or local government agencies, or geographic regions. There will be no significant adverse effects on competition, employment, investment, productivity, innovation, or on the ability of United States-based enterprises to compete with foreign-based enterprises in domestic or export markets.

The PTO has also determined that this notice has no federalism implications affecting the relationship between the National Government and the states as outlined in Executive Order 12612.

The rule change will not impose a burden under the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. § 3501 et seq., since no record keeping or reporting requirement within the coverage of the Act are placed upon the public.

List of Subjects in 37 CFR Part 1

Administrative practice and procedure, Courts, Freedom of Information, Records.

For the reasons set out in the preamble and under the authority granted to the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks by 35 U.S.C. § 6, the Patent and Trademark Office amends Title 37 of the Code of Federal Regulations as set forth below:

PART 1 - RULES OF PRACTICE IN PATENT CASES

1. The authority citation for 37 CFR Part 1 continues to read as follows:

2. Section 1.15 is revised as follows:

§ 1.15 Requests for identifiable records.

(a) Requests for records, not disclosed to the public as part of the regular informational activity of the Patent and Trademark Office and which are not otherwise dealt with in the rules in this part, shall be made in writing, with the envelope and the letter clearly marked "Freedom of Information Request." Each such request, so marked, should be submitted by mail addressed to the "Patent and Trademark Office, Freedom of Information Request Control Desk, Box 8, Washington, D.C. 20231," or hand delivered to the Office of the Solicitor, Patent and Trademark Office, Arlington, Virginia. The request will be processed in accordance with the procedures set forth in Part 4 of Title 15, Code of Federal Regulations.

(b) Any person whose request for records has been initially denied in whole or in part, or has not been timely determined, may submit a written appeal as provided in § 4.8 of Title 15, Code of Federal Regulations.

(c) Procedures applicable in the event of service of process or in connection with testimony of employees on official matters and production of official documents of the Patent and Trademark Office in civil legal proceedings not involving the United States shall be those established in parts 15 and 15a of Title 15, Code of Federal Regulations.

(105) Minimum Requirements for Acceptance of Applications Under 35 U.S.C. 371 (the National Stage of PCT)

The Patent and Trademark Office is continuing to receive application papers which do not clearly identify whether the papers (1) are being submitted to enter the national stage of the Patent Cooperation Treaty (PCT) under 35 U.S.C. 371 or (2) are being filed as a regular national application under 35 U.S.C. 111.

Attention is directed to the notice in the Official Gazette at 1070 O.G. 11 titled "Unity of Invention Practice in International Applications and National Phase Applications Entered Under 35 U.S.C. 371" wherein at item eight it is stated

"(8) Applicants should clearly indicate on all application papers filed forentry under 35 U.S.C. 371 and 37 CFR 1.61 that the filing is being made under § 35 U.S.C. 371. Otherwise, the application papers will be treated as having been filed under 35 U.S.C. 111."

To clearly indicate an international application is being filed under 35 U.S.C. 371 the applicant should use the "Transmittal Letter for United States Designated Office" (Form PTO-1390) as the transmittal letter.

Alternatively, one of the following indications may be used:

1) the applicant shall clearly state in the transmittal or cover letter that he or she is filing under 35 U.S.C. 371 or entering the national stage under the PCT; or

2) the applicant clearly identifies in the oath or declaration the specification to which it is directed by referring to a particular international application by PCT Serial Number and International Filing Date and that he or she is executing the declaration as, and seeking a U.S. Patent as, the inventor of the invention described in the identified international application.

Applicants are cautioned that the identification of the international application, in the oath or declaration or otherwise, as a prior filed application for priority purposes is not considered to be an indication of an intention to file under 35 U.S.C. 371.

If there are any conflicting instructions as to which section of the statute (371 or 111) is intended the application will be accepted under 35 U.S.C. 111. It is strongly recommended that applicant use the Form PTO-1390 in all cases where a filing under 35 U.S.C. 371 is intended.

Revision of Patent Cooperation Treaty Provisions

Agency: Patent and Trademark Office, Commerce
Action: Final Rule
Summary: The Patent and Trademark Office (Office) is amending the rules of practice relating to applications filed under the Patent Cooperation Treaty (PCT): (1) to amend the rules in accordance with revised regulations under the PCT; (2) to bring the rules regarding applications entering the national stage under 35 U.S.C. 371 more in line with existing regulations applicable to national applications filed under 35 U.S.C. 111; and (3) to clarify existing practice under the PCT. The changes will result in more streamlined and simplified procedures for filing and prosecuting international and national stage applications under the PCT.
Effective Date: May 1, 1993.
For Further Information Contact: Vincent Turner by telephone at (703) 305-9384 or by mail addressed to the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Washington, D.C. 20231 and marked to the attention of Vincent Turner (Crystal Park 2, room 919).
Supplementary Information: The Office published a notice of proposed rulemaking relating to revision of the Patent Cooperation Treaty provisions, in the Federal Register, 57 Fed. Reg. 29248 (July 1, 1992) and in the Official Gazette, 1140 Off. Gaz. Pat. Office 27 (July 14, 1992). No oral hearing was held. Eight individuals or organizations submitted written comments in response to the notice of proposed rulemaking. The eight written comments are available for public inspection in the Office of the Assistant Commissioner for Patents, room 919, Crystal Park II, 2121 Crystal Drive, Arlington, Va.

Familiarity with the notice of proposed rulemaking is assumed. Changes in the text of the rules published for comment in the notice of proposed rulemaking are discussed. Comments received in writing in response to the notice of proposed rulemaking are discussed.

This rule change will improve filing and processing procedures for applicants both in the filing of international applications and in the filing of national stage applications under 35 U.S.C. 371.

Background

During the first 14 years under the PCT, the annual volume of international patent applications filed in the U.S Receiving Office has increased from just under 100 to almost 10,000 in fiscal year 1991. The volume of U.S. national stage applications has shown similar growth to the point that the U.S. is now designated more than 10,000 times each year by applicants filing international applications under the PCT. Historically, approximately 60% of those applicants that designate the U.S. enter the national stage in the United States.

On July 8 to 12, 1991, representatives of the patent offices of the member countries, in a series of meetings held in Geneva, Switzerland, agreed upon several changes to the PCT regulations which are designed to make the PCT more user-friendly. These adopted changes require corresponding changes in Title 37, CFR.

The practice under the revised PCT regulations will permit an applicant to provide, in addition to at least one specified designation, a precautionary designation of all other PCT member countries and regions so that any intended designation which may have been overlooked on filing can be corrected within 15 months of the priority date by confirmation of the designation. Applicants are cautioned, however, that in order for the confirmation of a designation of the U.S. to be valid, the inventor must have been named in the application papers as filed, 37 CFR 1.421(b).

International applications are searched and published prior to the 20-month deadline for entry into the national stage. If a demand for preliminary examination is filed before expiration of 19 months from the priority date the time for entry into the national stage is extended to 30 months from the priority date and the international application will be subject to preliminary examination under Chapter II of the PCT. The practice under the revised PCT regulations permits an applicant to indicate in the demand that preliminary examination is to be based on an accompanying PCT Article 34 amendment and, if the amendment is not received with the demand, the applicant will be notified and given a time period within which to file the missing amendment. This new procedure will ensure that examination will go forward based on the desired PCT Article 34 amendment.

Also, the Office is aware that certain applicants have had difficulty in properly filing national stage applications due to the different requirements in the rules for PCT and U.S. national applications. Some differences cannot be avoided due to different procedures required under the PCT from U.S. national practice. It is desirable, however, to minimize these differences and to simplify national stage filing procedures.

International applications have become abandoned for failure to timely provide an oath or declaration, a filing fee and/or an accurate translation. In national practice under 35 U.S.C. 111, if any of these items was not presented at the time of filing, a notice would be mailed to the applicant setting a period of time to provide the missing item(s) and to pay a fee. The amendments to the rules governing entering the national stage will establish a greater degree of uniformity of practice and requirements for filing an application under 35 U.S.C. 111 and entering the national stage in an international application under 35 U.S.C. 371.

Amending sections 1.494 and 1.495 results in regulations much like the present section 1.53. The major exception is that a notification of any missing parts in sections 1.494 and 1.495 will only be mailed in those instances where the applicant has paid the basic national fee within 20 or 30 months from the priority date depending on whether election of the U.S. under Chapter II of the PCT has been made prior to 19 months. Applicants can no longer pay the basic national fee with a surcharge after the 20/30 months deadline. Failure to pay the basic national fee within 20/30 months from the priority date will result in abandonment of the application. Paying the fee gives a clear indication to the Office that the applicant desires to enter the national stage. If the required oath, declaration or translation has not been filed within 20/30 months from the priority date, as appropriate, the Office will send applicant a notice and provide a period of time to supply the deficiency. Upon paying the basic national fee within 20/30 months from the priority date, the applicant will have the opportunity to inform the Office of a U.S. correspondence address, if any. Thus, the Office will avoid unnecessary handling of approximately 40% of those applications that designate the U.S. but do not enter the national stage, and will be able to send a notice to a U.S. correspondence address in most cases.

Often at 20 or 30 months from the priority date, the only communication which has been received by the Office is a copy of the international application from the International Bureau with the address of the foreign attorney or agent who represented the applicant in the international stage. The foreign attorney or agent may not be conversant in English or knowledgeable about U.S. practice, factors which often contribute to complicating the processing of applications. Thus, the new practice, which requires payment of the basic national fee on or before 20 or 30 months from the priority date, has several advantages: (1) it will enable the applicant to identify the U.S. attorney or agent for correspondence from the Office; (2) the Office, after a check of the national stage papers at 20 or 30 months, will mail a notice identifying any deficiencies and affording applicant a period for correction of those deficiencies; and (3) as in national practice under section 1.53, it will enable applicants to extend the period of time under section 1.136 for submission of a proper oath, declaration or translation.

The changes to sections 1.494 and 1.495 address the problems which have been most frequently encountered in entering the national stage in the United States. The new practice of notifying applicants of the omission of a proper oath, declaration or translation and setting an extendable period of time for correction will allow applicants greater flexibility in the time for submission of these documents, thus avoiding the consequence of abandonment and potential loss of rights in the United States.

Implementation

The rule changes which reflect corresponding amendments in the PCT regulations were implemented on 01 July 1992 when the amendments became effective. The remaining rule changes will be effective on 01 May 1993. Setting a date for the rules to take effect several months in the future will allow time for applicants to change their procedures to conform to these rules.

Those international applications entering the national stage under section 1.494 where 20 months from the priority date expires on, or before, 30 April 1993 are under the old rule (section 1.494 effective 01 July 1987) and those international applications entering the national stage under section 1.495 where 30 months from the priority date expires on, or before, 30 April 1993 are under the old rule (section 1.495 effective 01 July 1987). Those international applications entering the national stage under section 1.494 where 20 months from the priority date expires on, or after, 01 May 1993 are under the new rule (section 1.494 effective 01 May 1993) and those international applications entering the national stage under section 1.495 where 30 months from the priority date expires on, or after, 01 May 1993 are under the new rule (section 1.495 effective 01 May 1993). For example:

1) If a copy of an international application (which designates the U.S.) thathas a priority date of 30 August 1991 is filed in the Office by 30 April 1993(within 20 months from the priority date), applicant may enter the nationalstage under 37 CFR 1.494 by submitting any required English translation, thebasic national fee and the oath or declaration not later than 30 June 1993. Of course, the payment of the surcharge and processing fee (37 CFR 1.492(e) and (f)) would also be due.

2) If a copy of an international application (which elected the U.S. beforeexpiration of 19 months from the priority date) that has a priority date of 30 October 1990 is filed in the Office by 30 April 1993 (within 30 months from the priority date), applicant may enter the national stage by submitting any required English translation, the basic national fee and the oath ordeclaration not later than 30 June 1993. Of course, the payment of thesurcharge and processing fee (37 CFR 1.492(e) and (f)) would also be due.

3) If a copy of an international application (which designates the U.S.) thathas a priority date of 01 September 1991 is filed in the Office by 03 May 1993 (within 20 months from the priority date - 01-02 May 1993 being a Saturday and Sunday, respectively), then applicant must pay the basic national fee by 03 May 1993 to avoid abandonment of the application. If the basic national fee is timely paid, a notice will then be sent to applicant giving atime period within which to file the oath or declaration and any required translation (new section 1.494(c)).

4) Any international application having a priority date of 01 September 1991,or later, is under the new rule. Thus, if applicant files papers for thenational stage indicated to be under the procedure of the old rule (section1.494) in the Office before 01 May 1993 (i.e., before expiration of 20 monthsfrom the priority date) but omits the basic national fee, the application will, nonetheless, become abandoned at midnight on 03 May 1993 (after 20 months from the priority date - 01-02 May 1993 being a Saturday and Sunday, because applications where the 20-month deadline expires onafter 01 May 1993 come under the new practice. In accordance with newsection 1.494 (i) copy of the international application must be furnished to the Office, and (ii) the basic national fee must be paid before expiration of 20 months from the priority date.

Response to Comments on the Rules

Eight written comments were received in response to the notice of proposed rulemaking. All of the comments were considered in adopting the changes set forth herein. The comments and responses to the comments follow.

Comment 1. One comment stated that "The proposed addition to section 1.431(b)(1) of 'and the papers filed at the time of receipt of the international application [so] indicate' goes beyond the requirements set forth in the PCT and is contrary to PCT Administrative Instructions, Section 329." Two other similar comments were received and urged, in effect, that section 1.431(b)(1) be revised to adopt the procedure set forth in Section 329 of the PCT Administrative Instructions.

Response: The suggestion has not been adopted. The provisions adopted in section 1.431(b)(1) are consistent with, and required by, Article 11 of the PCT as interpreted by the Office. Section 329 of the PCT Administrative Instructions was issued by the International Bureau after the Bureau was advised that the Office believed new section 329 to be inconsistent with requirements of Article 11 of the Treaty and inconsistent with over 13 years of practice in the United States. In the opinion of the Office, PCT Administrative Instruction 329 is inconsistent with PCT Article 11 and Rule 20.4(a), which require the Office to promptly determine whether the applicant does not obviously lack, by reasons of residence or nationality, the right to file an international application. In accordance with PCT Rule 89.1(b), "The Administrative Instructions shall not be in conflict with the provisions of the Treaty, these regulations, ..." The United States will not follow Administrative Instruction 329.

Comment 2. One comment stated that in section 1.431(c), the reference to "PCT Rule 15.2" should be to "PCT Rule 15" because PCT Rule 15.1 is also relevant, and the reference to section 1.445 "should be changed to refer to" PCT Rules 14 and 16.1" because section 1.445 does not cover the European Patent Office (EPO) search fee which is also paid to the USPTO."

Response: The suggestion has not been adopted. The references to Rule 15.2 and section 1.445 are considered proper in the context in which they are used. The references to Rule 15.2 and section 1.445 are not new and have worked well in directing applicants regarding international application requirements. The EPO search fee is not mentioned in section 1.431, but is published in each issue of the Official Gazette for applicant's information.

Comment 3. One comment stated that in section 1.431(d), the words "one designation fee" should be deleted since this is covered by section 1.432(b) and that "timely made" in line 5 be changed to "paid within the one-month period" for clarity.

Response: The first suggestion in the comment is not adopted. The reference to "one designation fee" in section 1.431(d) is repeated in section 1.432(b) to add clarity on this important point. The second suggestion in the comment is not adopted since it would introduce error into section 1.431(d). Indeed, all the fees must be paid timely, and need not be paid within the one-month period set pursuant to section 1.431(c), e.g., some fee(s) may be paid prior to the one-month period. Presumably the one-month period mentioned in the comment refers to a period set pursuant to section 1.431(c) which may not need to be set in every case.

Comment 4. One comment indicated that (in the fourth paragraph of the Supplementary Information section) the discussion of new section 1.432 includes a reference to a "generic" designation of all countries which, instead, should refer to a precautionary designation of all countries except the required specified designation(s).

Response: The appropriate change has been made to the discussion of section 1.432 to clarify that an applicant may provide, in addition to at least one specified designation, a precautionary designation of all other PCT member countries and regions so that any intended designation which may have been overlooked on filing can be corrected within 15 months of the priority date.

Comment 5. One comment stated that in section 1.432(a) and (b) the word "request" should be capitalized in view of section 1.401(d). A corresponding comment was made with respect to section 1.451(a).

Response: This suggestion is adopted since PCT Rule 4.10 requires the designations to appear on the Request (form RO/101) and section 1.432 continues to require that the designation(s) be indicated in the Request on filing. Similarly, with respect to section 1.451(a), the suggestion is adopted.

Comment 6. One comment stated that in section 1.432(a) "or regions" should be changed to "for the purpose of obtaining national or regional patents."

Response: The suggestion is adopted to the extent that section 1.432(a) has been changed by replacing "or regions" with "including an indication that applicant wishes to obtain a regional patent, where applicable." The adopted wording is preferable since it is the same as the wording of PCT Rule 4.9(a)(ii).

Comment 7. One comment objected to the requirement contained in section 1.432(a) that designations in the international application shall be stated as provided in PCT Rule 4.9(a) and Section 115 of the Administrative Instructions Under the PCT. Also, the comment urged that the PCT Administrative Instructions should be reproduced in sections 1.432 and 1.451 so that applicants have access to them.

Response: Section 115 of the PCT Administrative Instructions makes reference to the names and abbreviations of all countries. Inclusion of such a long list would unnecessarily encumber section 1.432(a). The Administrative Instructions are readily available, and a list of countries is provided in the Manual of Patent Examining Procedure (Chapter 200). Applicants using a current Request form will inherently comply with PCT Rule 4.9(a) and Sections 110 and 115 of the PCT Administrative Instructions.

Comment 8. One comment asked "If an applicant does not pay the fee(s) set out in section 1.432(c)(2) or (3), will he/she be given an additional month to pay the fees described in section 1.432(b)(1) and (2)?"

Response: No extension of time is available to the 15-month deadline of section 1.432(c). The time period set under section 1.432(b) doesnot apply to section 1.432(c). If payment for the designations to be confirmed under section 1.432(c) is not received by 15 months from the priority date, those precautionary designations are considered to be withdrawn, PCT Rule 4.9(b).

Comment 9. One comment suggested adding references to PCT Rule 4.9(a) and (b) in various locations in section 1.432.

Response: The suggestion is adopted by adding appropriate references to PCT Rule 4.9(a) and (b).

Comment 10. One comment suggested that the last sentence in section 1.432(b) be moved to become the second sentence of section 1.432(b) and the third sentence be moved to become the last sentence of section 1.432(b).

Response: These suggestions are not adopted since they would not constitute an improvement to section 1.432(b).

Comment 11. One comment suggested that, in section 1.432(c)(3) unconfirmed designations indicated to be "considered withdrawn" should be changed to "regarded as withdrawn by the applicant."

Response: This suggestion has not been adopted because it does not further clarify section 1.432(c)(3). Unconfirmed designations are considered to be withdrawn by the applicant under PCT Rule 4.9(b)(ii) and are also considered to be withdrawn by the Office.

Comment 12. One comment suggested that section 1.446(d) should be expanded to indicate that a refund of the search fee will be given even after the search copy has been transmitted just so long as the withdrawal is effective before start of the international search.

Response: This suggestion has not been adopted since refunds may or may not be appropriate in the noted instance. For example, if the EPO acting as an international searching authority begins the search after withdrawal but before receipt of the withdrawal from the U.S. receiving office, a refund may not be made.

Comment 13. One comment suggested that in section 1.446(e) "demand" should be capitalized in view of section 1.401(g).

Response: This suggestion is adopted.

Comment 14. One comment suggested that the reference in section 1.451(a) to Section "201" of the Administrative Instructions should be changed to"115."

Response: This suggestion is adopted since Section "201" of the Administrative Instructions has been changed effective July 1, 1992, and is now Section "115.

Comment 15. One comment noted that the proposed change in section 1.455(a) does not reflect that a common representative need not be "appointed."

Response: A new sentence has been inserted into section 1.455(a) to address the situation where no common representative or agent has been appointed. Where no common representative or agent has been appointed, the first mentioned applicant who is entitled to file in the U.S receiving office is considered to be the common representative. PCT Rules 2.2bis and 90.2(b).

Comment 16. One comment noted that the proposed change in section 1.455(a) does not reflect that if a new common representative is appointed, the previous common representative is automatically revoked.

Response: The last sentence of section 1.455(a) has been changed to reflect that the later appointment of an attorney, agent or common representative revokes any earlier appointment unless otherwise indicated.

Comment 17. One comment suggested that "In sections 1.475(a), 1.488(a) and 1.499(e) reference should be added to PCT Rule 13, Administrative Instructions, Section 206, and possibly to Annex B of the Administrative Instructions."

Response: The suggestion is not adopted because it gives no reasons for the proposed change and it is not evident that the change is needed.

Comment 18. One comment stated that in the Supplementary Information discussion of section 1.475(b), the explanation of "specially adapted" was different from the explanation in Annex B, Part I of the Administrative Instructions.

Response: The discussion of section 1.475(b) has been revised to conform to Annex B, Part I of the Administrative Instructions.

Comment 19. One comment stated that in section 1.484(b) no need is seen for adding the last two sentences because "The provision relates only to International Searching Authority practice and is set forth in more detail by the PCT Rules."

Response: Section 1.484(b) is directed to conduct of the International Preliminary Examining Authority rather than theInternational Searching Authority. The explanation in section 1.484(b) is retained because, although it parallels PCT Rule 69.1(e), it informs applicants that delay in submission of an amendment will delay the start of examination. Applicants should be aware that, since the time for issuance of the final report is fixed by PCT Rule 69.2 and may not change, any delay in the start of examination may work to applicants' disadvantage. For example, the minimum time may have to be set for response to any opinions, there may be time for only one opinion and/or there may be less time for interviews.

Comment 20. One comment suggested that section 1.485 should be amended to take into account that amendments are permitted under PCT Rule 66.4b is even after the time period set by the International Preliminary Examining Authority.

Response: This suggestion is not adopted. Section 1.485 sets forth when an amendment may be filed so that it will be considered. Amendments filed at other times may not be considered.

Comment 21. One comment suggested that the beginning of section 1.492 should be changed to reflect that, in view of H.R. 3531, the national stage fees are under 35 U.S.C. 41(a) rather than under 35 U.S.C. 376.

Response: H.R. 3531 was enacted into law (Public Law 102-204). Accordingly, the suggestion in the comment has been adopted by revising the introductory language in section 1.492 to remove the reference to 35 U.S.C. 376.

Comment 22. One comment urged that in the Discussion of Specific Rules for sections 1.494(b) and 1.495(b), the discussion should be modified to clarify that the applicant need only check "his or her" files to be sure that the Bureau's notice regarding transmittal of a copy of the international application has been received.

Response: The language has been revised to eliminate any ambiguity.

Comment 23. One comment suggested that "as filed" in section 1.494(c) should be set off by commas as in section 1.495(c).

Response: Section 1.494(c) has been changed as suggested.

Comment 24. One comment questioned the phrases "accurate translation" and "proper translation" as used in the Supplementary Information discussion and stated that these phrases do not further explain the word "translation" as used in the statute. Another comment suggested that the rule should provide for correction of errors in the translation without penalty of abandonment or surcharge.

Response: The statute (35 U.S.C. 371(c)(2)) requires that applicant file a translation of the international application to avoid abandonment (35 U.S.C. 371(d)). The Office has received purported translations which include amendments to the text of the international application and other inconsistencies with the text of the non-English language document. It is helpful to explain that a translation must be accurate and a proper translation. The Office does not inspect a purported translation for all errors, it only inspects for errors which are apparent on the face of the document. For example, where the non-English language international application has 6 claims and the purported translation has 8 claims, obviously the requirement for a proper translation has not been met. Submission of inaccurate translations require additional processing by the Office, thus the requirement for a processing fee is appropriate.

Comment 25. One comment stated that in the Supplementary Information discussion of sections 1.494 and 1.495 the reference to the U.S. correspondence address should be modified to add "if any" since none is required.

Response: The suggestion has been adopted.

Comment 26. One comment stated that in the preamble of section 1.495(e) there appears to be a contradiction in that the first sentence suggests a translation of the annex may be filed within the time period set under 1.495(c) whereas the second sentence suggests the translation of the annex must be filed by 30 months or "be considered cancelled."

Response: The sentences are compatible. The first sentence applies to the case where the translation, oath or declaration have not been submitted by 30 months. In such case, they (and any annex) may be submitted within the time period of paragraph (c). The second sentence applies to the case where the translation and oath or declaration have been submitted by 30 months, whereupon no additional time is set under paragraph (c). Thus, in the first instance, if applicants are given additional time to submit the translation or oath or declaration, they may also submit the annex in that same additional time. But where the translation and oath or declaration have been submitted by 30 months, an additional time period will not be provided simply for submitting a translation of the annex. Of course, applicant may submit a preliminary amendment under 37 CFR 1.121 including the subject matter of the annex.

Comment 27. One comment suggested that sections 1.494(b)(3) and 1.495(b)(3) should be amended to permit an extension of time for the basic national fee so that it may be submitted, like the declaration and translation, after 20 and 30 months.

Response: The suggestion is not adopted. Submission of the basic national fee gives the Office a clear indication that applicant intends to enter the national stage. This helps the Office to avoid processing of those 40% of the international applications which designate the U.S. but do not enter the national stage. Also, filing of the basic national fee by 20 or 30 months will ordinarily provide the Office with the correspondence address of the person prosecuting the national stage application. Without this correspondence address, the Office would send any notice of missing parts to the correspondence address in the international application (e.g., the person who prosecuted the international stage and who may not be qualified to prosecute the U.S. national stage). The rules as amended address the greatest hurdle for entry into the national stage which has been submission of the oath or declaration by the 22 or 32-month deadline.

Comment 28. One comment suggested that sections 1.494(d) and 1.495(d) should indicate that the PCT Article 19 amendments (which have not been received) are not only considered to be cancelled, but are also "disregarded under PCT Rule 49.5(c-bis)."

Response: The suggestion is not adopted because this additional reference to PCT Rule 49.5(c-bis) is not helpful. The indication that the PCT Article 19 amendments are cancelled is in accordance with 35 U.S.C. 371(d). It is standard practice in the examination of a patent application in the United States to disregard amendments that have been cancelled.

Comment 29. One comment suggested that, with respect to section 1.494, "The proposed rules do not make clear the relationship between paragraphs (c) and (g) as to the time period set for later furnishing of the translation into English."

Response: Paragraph (c) provides that applicant will be provided a period of time to file the translation (if the requirements of paragraph (b) have been met) and paragraph (g) provides that the application becomes abandoned if any required translation is not filed within the time period set in paragraph (c). Thus, where the other requirements have been met but the translation has not been provided, paragraph (c) provides a time period for submission of the translation and paragraph (g) provides the sanction (abandonment) for failing to comply within the set period.

Comment 30. One comment questioned whether the time period for translation of any PCT Article 19 amendments shouldbe extendable with any extension for translation of the international application. A corresponding comment was made with respect to section 1.495.

Response: An extension of time for submission of the translation of any PCT Article 19 amendment is not possible in view of the provisions of 35 U.S.C. 371(d)

Comment 31. One comment suggested that sections 1.494(g) and 1.495(h) should be modified by replacing "the translation" with "any required translation."

Response: The suggestion is adopted. Translations are not required where the international application was filed in English.

Comment 32. One comment suggested that at the beginning of section 1.495(c) after "paragraph (b)" the word "of" should be added.

Response: The suggestion is adopted.

Comment 33. One comment suggested that section 1.495(d) could be deleted since under PCT Rules 70.16 and 74.1 relevant amendments under PCT Article 19 must be annexed to the international preliminary examining report and therefore must be translated under section 1.495(e). It was further noted that superseded PCT Article 19 amendments need not be translated.

Response: The suggestion is not adopted. Section 1.495(d) covers the situation where the PCT Article 19 amendment is not annexed. For example, where applicant enters the national stage in the U.S. and withdraws the international application before issuance of the final report. In this instance, translation of the PCT Article 19 amendments would have to be submitted by the date of commencement of the national stage (which cannot be later than 30 months) or be considered cancelled.

Comment 34. One comment observed that under section 1.495(e) if there is no time period to be set for submission of the translation of the international application and/or the oath or declaration, there is no possibility for extra time (after the 30-month deadline) for submission of translation of the annex. It was suggested that section 1.495(e) be reworded to permit extra time (after the 30-month deadline) for submission of a translation of the annex even where the translation of the international application and/or the oath or declaration had been submitted by 30 months.

Response: The suggestion is not adopted. Where the translation of the international application and/or the oath or declaration have been submitted by 30 months, it is appropriate to promptly forward the application for examination rather than delay examination for a translation of the annex (especially since often it appears that applicant does not wish to proceed on the basis of the annex). Some applicants prefer to submit preliminary amendments under section 1.121 (which may be done even after 30 months) rather than to submit a translation of the annex.

Comment 35. One comment urged that section 1.495(e) is inconsistent in that it states that the 30-month time limit may not be extended, and then states that if the translation of the international application is not filed within 30 months from the priority date additional time may be set under paragraph (c) of this section.

Response: The two statements are not contradictory. The time period for submission of the translation and oath or declaration is a new time period and is not a extension of the 30-month time limit. The fixed time limit for submission of the basic national fee is 30 months from the priority date. If the basic national fee is not paid by this 30-month deadline, the application is abandoned. If, on the other hand, the basic national fee is paid by 30 months from the priority date, the pendency of the international application continues past 30 months. If the translation or oath or declaration have not been filed by the 30-month deadline (but the basic national fee has been paid), the application is not abandoned and a time period is set for submission of the missing translation and oath or declaration.

Comment 36. One comment asked "Is it the intention of the Patent and Trademark Office to affect, in any way, the current practice of assigning a date on which the Section 371(c)(4) requirement (oath or declaration) will be deemed to have been met, if an applicant submits an oath or declaration in response to a Notice of Missing Parts, thereby ultimately affecting the Section 102(e) date to which the eventually granted U.S. patent will be entitled?"

Response: Nothing in the new rule will affect the 35 U.S.C. 102(e) date which will continue to be the date that the last of the 35 U.S.C. 371(c)(1), (2) and (4) requirements are fulfilled.

Comment 37. One comment suggested that section 1.821 be clarified to reflect that the notice requiring compliance with paragraphs (b) through (f) is sent by the international searching authority.

Response: The suggestion is not adopted. Section 1.821 does not specify who will send the notice and there is no need to do so in the rule.

Comment 38. One comment questioned as to section 10.9 whether a pro se applicant from Brazil, who is either an individual or a company, would have the right to practice before the U.S. as an international searching or international preliminary examining authority.

Response: Section 10.9 has been amended to clarify that it is not directed to pro se applicants.

Section 1.431(b)(1) is amended to clarify that an international filing date will be accorded to an International application filed in the United States where at least one applicant is indicated to be a resident or national of the United States in the papers as filed. If the papers, as filed, indicate a residence or nationality for at least one applicant, the United States Receiving Office can promptly determine whether, as required by PCT Article 11, "the applicant does not obviously lack" the requisite residence or nationality to file an international application in the United States Patent and Trademark Office.

Section 1.431(b)(3)(ii) is amended to add a cross-reference to section 1.432 which sets forth the requirements regarding designations.

Section 1.431(c) is amended to reflect that the United States Receiving Office, rather than the International Bureau, will be responsible for collecting fees not paid in full at the time of filing the international application or within one month thereafter. The change reflects the procedural change under the new PCT Regulations that the Receiving Office, rather than the International Bureau, will be responsible for communicating deficiency notices to the applicant and collecting the necessary fees. Under the procedure in paragraph (c), a notice of any fee deficiency will be mailed by the Receiving Office setting a time period of one month for payment of the fee deficiency and a late payment fee equal to the greater of (1) 50% of the amount of the deficient fees up to a maximum amount equal to the basic fee, or (2) an amount equal to the transmittal fee. The time period of one month for response to this notice cannot be extended.

Section 1.431(d) is eliminated as unnecessary since the United States Receiving Office will take over the responsibility for collecting fees in place of the International Bureau.

Section 1.431(e) is redesignated as 1.431(d) and clarifies that the failure to timely pay the fees pursuant to paragraph (c) will result in the withdrawal of the international application.

Section 1.432(a) is amended to clarify that the applicant must specify, on filing, at least one national or regional designation in order to be granted a filing date for the international application. This specific designation is required whether or not all designations are indicated pursuant to paragraph (c) of this section. The reference to Section 201 of the Administrative Instructions has been changed to Section 115 to correspond to the change in the Administrative Instructions.

Section 1.432(b) is amended to establish a procedure for the late payment of fees for designations that were specified on filing an international application, and a procedure, pursuant to PCT Rule 16bis.1(c), in accordance with section 321 of the PCT Administrative Instructions for allocating fees, where the amount paid is insufficient to cover all the fees. The payment of the designation fees with a late payment fee (previously termed a "surcharge") is not new. Under the revised PCT regulations, however, the Receiving Office, rather than the International Bureau, will be responsible for communicating deficiency notices to the applicant. The designation fees may be paid, without necessity for a late payment fee, within one year from the priority date or within one month from the date of receipt of the international application if that month expires after the expiration of one year from the priority date. The applicant will be notified and given one month within which to pay any deficient designation fees plus a late payment fee. The amount of the late payment fee is equal to 50% of the deficient fees, but will not be less than the amount of the transmittal fee (currently $200) and will not exceed the amount of the basic fee (currently $525). The one-month time limit for payment of the deficient designation fees and late payment fee may not be extended. If, after expiration of the one-month time period, at least one designation fee has not been paid (with any late payment fee which is due), the international application will be withdrawn. If, after expiration of the one-month time period, at least one designation fee has been paid (with any late payment fee which is due) but the amount paid is not sufficient to cover the late payment fee and all the designation fees, the amount paid will be allocated, pursuant to PCT Rule 16bis.1(c), in accordance with section 321 of the Administrative Instructions. Section 321 of the Administrative Instructions provides that theamount will be allocated in accordance with any instructions received from the applicant or, if no instructions have been received, in the order in which the designations appear in the request part of the international application. Designations for which no designation fee is timely filed will be withdrawn. In section 1.432(b), the reference to parenthetical numbers (1) and (2) used to describe the late payment fee as proposed has been deleted in the final rule to improve clarity.

New section 1.432(c) establishes a procedure wherein, in addition to the designation(s) under paragraph (a), the applicant could indicate, on filing, all designations permitted under the Treaty and confirm desired designations of countries or regions up to 15 months from the priority date. Section 1.432(c) as promulgated requires that applicant's indication of all designations permitted under the Treaty in addition to the designation(s) under paragraph (a) be made in the Request in accordance with PCT Rule 4.9(b). The confirmation must include both a written notice of the countries or regions being confirmed, the appropriate designation fees and a confirmation fee based on the number of countries or regions being confirmed. If the amount of the fees is insufficient, the Receiving Office will allocate the amount paid in accordance with any priority of designations specified by the applicant or, if no priority is specified, in accordance with section 321 of the Administrative Instructions. A notice reminding applicant of the 15-month deadline will not be provided. Unconfirmed designations will be considered withdrawn.

Section 1.434 is amended to allow applicants to develop their own computer-generated Request form so long as the forms comply with the requirements of sections 102(h) and (i) of the Administrative Instructions. Printed Request form will continue to be available from the United States Patent and Trademark Office.

New section 1.445(a)(4) defines the amount of the confirmation fee required for the designations confirmed under section 1.432(c). The confirmation fee is equal to 50% of the sum of the designation fees for the designations being confirmed. For example, a confirmation of four additional designations (at $127 per designation, or $508) would require a $254 confirmation fee. The total amount of the fees due would be $762, which is the sum of $508 and $254.

Section 1.446(d) is amended to clarify that the international (basic and designation, PCT Rule 15.1) and search fees may be refunded under certain circumstances linked to whether the record copy or search copy has been transmitted to the International Bureau or International Searching Authority, respectively. The transmittal fee and any late payment fees will not be refunded, but will be retained to cover Office processing costs. If the record copy or search copy has been transmitted, the Receiving Office cannot refund or authorize the refund of the international or search fees. Any request for a refund filed after the record copy or search copy has been transmitted should be directed to the International Bureau (for the international fee) or the International Searching Authority (for the international searchfee) for consideration of whether a refund should be made.

New section 1.446(e) indicates that a refund of the handling fee by the International Preliminary Examining Authority is permitted only in the situations where the demand is considered not to have been submitted or upon withdrawal of the demand before the demand has been sent to the International Bureau. If the demand has been sent to the International Bureau, requests for refund of the handling fee should be directed to the International Bureau.

Section 1.451(a) is amended to clarify that the applicant must specify, on filing, the priority of a previously filed application in order to be granted priority in the international application. The right to priority is not necessarily lost if the claim is not on the Request form, but will be lost if the claim does not appear in the papers presented on filing of the application.

Section 1.455(a) is amended to clarify that the term "common representative" means an applicant appointed by the other applicants or considered to be the representative of the other applicants. Further, since attorneys and agents are registered to practice before the Office rather than licensed, section 1.455(a) has been amended by replacing the word "licensed" with "registered." The paragraph also clarifies who can represent applicants in an international application before the U.S. International Searching Authority or the U.S. International Preliminary Examining Authority, e.g., (1) an attorney or agent registered to practice before the Office, and (2) an attorney or agent not registered to practice before the Office, but authorized to practice before the national office with which the international application was filed and for which the United States is an International Searching Authority or International Preliminary Examining Authority. In the latter case, representation is restricted to practicing before the U.S. International Searching Authority and/or the U.S. International Preliminary Examining Authority. For example, if an international application is filed in the Brazilian Patent Office, an agent authorized to practice before the Brazilian Patent Office may prosecute that application before the U.S. International Searching Authority or the U.S. International Preliminary Examining Authority. Paragraph (a) also provides that, unless otherwise indicated, the appointment of an attorney, agent or common representative revokes any earlier appointment as specified in PCT Rule 90.6(b).

Section 1.475 is amended to adopt the unity of invention principles of PCT Rule 13, as amended. Section 1.475 is further amended to reflect that the same unity of invention principles are applied by the international searching and preliminary examining authorities and during the national stage. Duplicative provisions in sections 1.487 and 1.499 are deleted.

The principles of unity of invention are used to determine the types of claimed subject matter and the combinations of claims to different categories of invention that are permitted to be included in a single international or national stage patent application. The basic principle is that an application should relate to only one invention or, if there is more than one invention, that applicant would have a right to include in a single application only those inventions which are so linked as to form a single general inventive concept.

Section 1.475(a) is amended to contain both the definition of the requirement for unity of invention, and the unity of invention criteria that must be satisfied, where a group of inventions is claimed, in order to have a right to include multiple inventions in a single application. A group of inventions is linked to form a single general inventive concept where there is a technical relationship among the inventions that involves at least one common or corresponding special technical feature. The expression "special technical features" is defined as meaning those technical features that define the contribution which each claimed invention, considered as a whole, makes over the prior art. For example, a compound is the common technical feature in an application claiming (1) the compound per se, (2) a method of making the compound and (3) a method of using the compound. A corresponding technical feature is exemplified by a key defined by certain claimed structural characteristics which correspond to the claimed features of a lock to be used with the claimed key.

Section 1.475(b) is amended to define several combinations of different categories of claims which always fulfill the unity of invention requirements of section 1.475(a) where the same or corresponding special technical feature is claimed. There may be other combinations of different categories of claims which fulfill the requirement for unity of invention, but the determination of unity must be made under section 1.475(a), not section 1.475(b).

In section 1.475(b), a process is "specially adapted" for the manufacture of a product if the claimed process inherently produces the claimed product with the technical relationship defined in section 1.475(a) being present between the claimed process and the claimed product. The expression "specially adapted" as used in this section does not imply that the product could not also be manufactured by a different process.

In section 1.475(b), an apparatus or means is "specifically designed" for carrying out the process when the apparatus or means is suitable for carrying out the process with the technical relationship defined in section 1.475(a) being present between the claimed apparatus or means and the claimed process. The expression "specifically designed" does not imply that the apparatus or means could not be used for carrying out another process, nor does it imply that the process could not be carried out using an alternative apparatus or means.

Section 1.475(c) is amended to require that unity of invention might not be present if a combination of categories of invention different from those described in section 1.475(b) are presented in an application. The requirements of section 1.475(a) are always met by the combinations described in section 1.475(b) where the same or corresponding special technical feature is claimed. All other combinations must be tested against the unity of invention standard of section 1.475(a).

Section 1.475(d) is amended by deleting reference to the different combinations of categories of invention that always meet the unity of invention standard (now set forth in section 1.475(b)), and to make reference to the determination of the main invention where multiple products, processes of manufacture or uses are claimed. The significance of determining the main invention is set forth in section 1.476(c).

Section 1.475(e) is amended to require that the determination regarding unity of invention be made without regard to whether a group of inventions is claimed in separate claims or as alternatives within a single claim. The basic criteria for unity of invention are the same, regardless of the manner in which applicant chooses to draft a claim or claims.

Section 1.475(f) is deleted since PCT Rule 13 has been amended and the basic principles of unity of invention are incorporated into other portions of section 1.475.

Section 1.476(a) is amended to delete the reference to section 1.475(f) (which is deleted) and PCT Rule 13.

Section 1.480(b) is amended to allow applicants to develop their own computer-generated Demand form so long as the limitations in sections 102(h) and (i) of the Administrative Instructions are met. Printed Demand forms will continue to be available from the Office.

Section 1.482(a)(2)(i) is amended to clarify that an additional preliminary examination fee may be charged for lack of unity in Chapter II irrespective of whether there was a similar charge in Chapter I. Normally there will be a charge for lack of unity both in Chapter I and in Chapter II. In some instances, although a charge for the search of an additional invention is justified in Chapter I, the examiner chooses to proceed without charging for the search of the additional invention(s). However, circumstances may change (e.g., an amendment submitted with the Demand expanding the claims to the additional invention(s)) in Chapter II so as to warrant the examiner's requirement for an additional fee for examination of the additional invention(s).

Section 1.482(b) is amended to remove the reference to the supplement to the handling fee which had been collected for the benefit of the International Bureau and which has been deleted from the PCT regulations. At present, applicants must pay as many supplements to the handling fee as there are languages into which the elected Offices require translations of the international preliminary examination report. Under the new PCT regulations, all countries will accept an English translation of the international preliminary examination report, thus limiting the International Bureau's translation costs. Accordingly only one handling fee will need to be paid by the applicant, without any supplement, irrespective of the need for a translation of the report.

Section 1.484(b) is amended to permit an applicant to indicate in the demand that international preliminary examination is to begin based on the application as amended rather than on the application as filed. If a PCT Article 19 amendment is not received by the Office by 20 months from the priority date, preliminary examination will proceed. Where the demand indicates examination is to be based on an accompanying PCT Article 34 amendment, but the PCT Article 34 amendment has not been provided to the Office with the demand, the applicant will be notified and given a time period to submit the amendment. Thus, if the applicant wishes preliminary examination based on an amended version of the international application, the demand must so indicate and the amendment (PCT Article 19 or 34) must (1) accompany the demand; or (2) in the case of a PCT Article 19 amendment, be received by 20 months from the priority date; or (3) in the case of a PCT Article 34 amendment, be submitted within the non-extendable time period set by the Office.

Section 1.485 is amended to be consistent with section 1.484 and provides for amendments to be filed with the demand or within a time period set by the International Preliminary Examining Authority.

Section 1.487 is removed as unnecessary because the amendments to section 1.475 address the unity of invention principles to be applied by the International Preliminary Examining Authority.

Section 1.488(a) is amended to replace the reference to section 1.487, which is removed, with a reference to section 1.475.

Section 1.492 is amended to revise the introductory clause to eliminate the reference to 35 U.S.C. 376.

Section 1.492(e) is amended to eliminate the surcharge for filing the basic national fee after 20 or 30 months from the priority date. In accordance with the new practice under sections 1.494 and 1.495, the basic national fee must be filed no later than 20 months, or 30 months if a timely election was filed, from the priority date in order to avoid abandonment of the application.

Sections 1.494 and 1.495 is amended to modify the practice for entering the national stage as a designated or elected office by more closely aligning it with national application practice under section 1.53.

Section 1.494(a) is amended to clarify that absence of a Demand form is no longer the controlling event, but rather failure to elect the United States within 19 months of the priority date will trigger the time periods set forth in paragraphs (b) and (c) of this section.

Section 1.494(b) is amended to require that the basic national fee and a copy of the international application must be filed with the Office by 20 months from the priority date to avoid abandonment. The 22-month period for filing the basic national fee with a surcharge in previous rule 1.494(c) has been eliminated. The International Bureau normally provides the copy of the international application to the Office in accordance with PCT Article 20. At the same time, the International Bureau notifies the applicant of the communication to the Office. In accordance with PCT Rule 47.1, that notice shall be accepted by all designated offices as conclusive evidence that the communication has duly taken place. Thus, if the applicant desires to enter the national stage and applicant has received the notice from the International Bureau, applicant need only pay the basic national fee by 20 months from the priority date. The 20-month time limit for submission of the basic national fee and a copy of the international application is not extendable.

Section 1.494(c) is amended to provide that applicants who have provided the basic national fee and a copy of the international application by 20 months from the priority date but who omit a proper translation, oath or declaration will receive a notification setting a time period for submission of the omitted requirements. The time period set in the notice can be extended pursuant to section 1.136. Filing of the oath or declaration later than 20 months will require the payment of the surcharge set forth in section 1.492(e). Filing of the translation later than 20 months will require the payment of the processing fee set forth in section 1.492(f).

Section 1.494(d) is amended to clarify the existing practice that PCT Article 19 amendments must be submitted by 20 months from the priority date, which time may not be extended. Of course, the failure to do so does not result in loss of the subject matter of the PCT Article 19 amendments. The applicant may submit that subject matter in a preliminary amendment filed under section 1.121. In many cases, filing an amendment under section 1.121 is preferable since grammatical or idiomatic errors may be corrected.

Section 1.494(g) is removed in view of the amendments to sections (b), (c) and (d).

Section 1.494(h) is redesignated as 1.494(g) and is amended to specify when an application that fails to enter the national stage becomes abandoned. Abandonment occurs at 20 months from the priority date if the basic national fee and a copy of the international application have not been provided to the Office. If they have been provided to the Office within 20 months and the translation and/or oath or declaration are not filed timely, abandonment occurs upon expiration of the time limit set in the notification pursuant to paragraph (c). Thus, in the latter situation, abandonment would occur at the expiration of the time period set in the notice to file the missing translation, and/or oath or declaration. The phrase "where the United States has been designated but not elected prior to 19 months from the priority date" (emphasis added) has been changed to "where the United States has been designated but not elected by the expiration of 19 months from the priority date" (emphasis added) for clarity. A corresponding change has been made in section 1.495(h).

Section 1.495(a) is amended to clarify that the election of the U.S. need not be made in the Demand, but can be made subsequently if filed before expiration of 19 months from the priority date to start the time periods set forth in paragraphs (b) and (c) of this section.

Section 1.495(b) is amended to require that the basic national fee and a copy of the international application must be filed with the Office by 30 months from the priority date to avoid abandonment. The 32-month period for filing the basic national fee with a surcharge in previous rule 1.495(c) has been eliminated. The International Bureau normally provides the copy of the international application to the Office in accordance with PCT Article 20. At the same time the International Bureau notifies applicant of the communication to the Office. In accordance with PCT Rule 47.1, that notice shall be accepted by all designated offices as conclusive evidence that the communication has duly taken place. Thus, if the applicant desires to enter the national stage, the applicant normally need only check to be sure the notice from the International Bureau has been received and then pay the basic national fee by 30 months from the priority date. The 30-month time limit for submission of the basic national fee and a copy of the international application is not extendable.

Section 1.495(c) is amended to provide that applicants who have provided the basic national fee and a copy of the international application by 30 months from the priority date, but who omit a proper translation, oath or declaration, will receive a notification setting a time period for submission of the omitted requirements. The time period set in the notice can be extended pursuant to section 1.136. Filing of the oath or declaration later than 30 months will require the payment of the surcharge set forth in section 1.492(e). Filing of the translation later than 30 months will require the payment of the processing fee set forth in section 1.492(f).

Section 1.495(d) is amended to clarify the existing and continuing practice that the PCT Article 19 amendments must be submitted by 30 months from the priority date. The deadline for submitting PCT Article 19 amendments may not be extended. The failure to do so will not result in loss of the subject matter of the PCT Article 19 amendments. Applicant may submit that subject matter in a preliminary amendment filed under section 1.121. In many cases, filing an amendment under section 1.121 is preferable since grammatical or idiomatic errors may be corrected.

Section 1.495(e) is amended to specify that a translation into English of any annexes to the international preliminary examining report which are not received by 30 months from the priority date may only be submitted within the time period set in paragraph (c) for submission of any omitted translation of the international application, or oath or declaration. If any required translation of the international application and oath or declaration have been provided to the Office by 30 months, a notice under paragraph (c) will not be sent, and if the translation of annexes is not submitted within 30 months, the annexes will be considered cancelled.

Section 1.495(h) is removed in view of the amendments to sections (b), (c), (d) and (e).

Section 1.495(i) is redesignated as 1.495(h) and specifies when an application that fails to enter the national stage becomes abandoned if the United States was elected prior to 19 months from the priority date. Abandonment occurs at 30 months from the priority date if the basic national fee and a copy of the international application have not been provide to the Office. If they have been provided to the Office within 30 months and the translation and/or oath or declaration are not filed timely, abandonment occurs upon expiration of the time limit set in the notification pursuant to paragraph (c). Thus, in the latter situation, abandonment would occur at the expiration of the time period set in the notice to file the missing translation, and/or oath or declaration.

Section 1.499 is amended by removing paragraphs (a) through (e) because the amendments to section 1.475 address the unity of invention principles to be applied in the national stage. The reference to the official action being called a requirement for restriction has been eliminated as unnecessary.

Section 1.821(h) is amended to provide that if applicant fails to timely provide the required computer-readable form, the United States International Searching Authority shall search only to the extent that a meaningful search can be carried out.

Section 10.9 is amended to add a new paragraph (c) to be consistent with section 1.455, clarifying that an attorney or agent having the right to act before the national office with which the international application is filed may represent the applicant before the U.S International Searching Authority or the U.S. International Preliminary Examining Authority. An individual who has the right to practice before the national office with which an international application is filed, and who is not registered under section 10.6, may not prosecute patent applications in the national stage in the Office.

Other Considerations:

The rule changes are in conformity with the requirements of the Regulatory Flexibility Act, 5 U.S.C. 601, et seq., Executive Orders 12291 and 12612, and the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501, et seq.

The General Counsel of the Department of Commerce has certified to the Chief Counsel for Advocacy, Small Business Administration, that the rule changes will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities (Regulatory Flexibility Act, 5 U.S.C. 605(b)), because the rules provide more streamlined and simplified procedures for filing and prosecuting international and national stage applications under the PCT.

The Patent and Trademark Office has determined that these rule changes are not a major rule under Executive Order 12291. The annual effect on the economy will be less than $100 million. There will be no major increase in costs or prices for consumers; individual industries; Federal, state or local government agencies; or geographic regions. There will be no significant adverse effects on competition, employment, investment, productivity, innovation, or on the ability of United States-based enterprises to compete with foreign-based enterprises in domestic or export markets.

The Patent and Trademark Office has also determined that this notice has no federalism implications affecting the relationship between the National Government and the States as outlined in Executive Order 12612.

These rule changes will not impose any additional burden under the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501, et seq. The paperwork burden imposed by adherence to the PCT is currently approved by the Office of Management and Budget under control number 0651-0021.

Notice is hereby given that pursuant to the authority granted to the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks by 35 U.S.C. 6, the Patent and Trademark Office amends Title 37 of the Code of Federal Regulations as set forth below.

Part 1 - Rules of Practice in Patent Cases

1. The authority citation for 37 CFR Part 1 continues to read as follows:

2. Section 1.431 is amended by removing paragraph (e) and revising paragraphs (b)(1) through (b)(3)(ii), (c) and (d) to read as follows:

§ 1.431 International application requirements

* * * * *

(b) An international filing date will be accorded by the United States Receiving Office, at the time of receipt of the international application, provided that:

(1) At least one applicant (§ 1.421) is a United States resident or national and the paper filed at the time of receipt of the international application so indicate (35 U.S.C. 361(a), PCT Art. 11(1)(i)).

(2) The international application is in the English language (35 U.S.C. 361(c), PCT Art. 11(1)(ii)).

(3) The international application contains at least the following elements (PCT Art. 11(1)(iii)):

(i) An indication that it is intended as an international application (PCT Rule 4.2);

(ii) The designation of at least one Contracting State of the International Patent Cooperation Union (§ 1.432);

* * * * *

(c) Payment of the basic portion of the international fee (PCT Rule 15.2) and the transmittal and search fees (§ 1.445) may be made in full at the time the international application papers required by paragraph (b) of this section are deposited or within one month thereafter. If the basic, transmittal and search fees are not pa-id within one month from the date of receipt of the international application, applicant will be notified and given one month within which to pay the deficient fees plus a late payment fee equal to the greater of (1) 50% of the amount of the defficient fees up to a maximum amount equal to the basic fee, or (2) an amount equal to the transmittal fee (PCT Rule 16bis). The one-month time limit set in the notice to pay defi, cient fees may not be extended.

(d) If the payment needed to cover the transmittal fee, the basic fee, the search fee, one designation fee and the late payment fee pursuant to paragraph (c) of this section is not timely made, the Receiving Office will declare the international application withdrawn under PCT Article 14(3)(a).

Section 1.432 is revised to read as follows:

§ 1.432 Designation of States and payment of designation fees.

(a) The designation of States including an indication that applicant wishes to obtain a regional patent, where applicable, shall appear in the Request upon filing and must be indicated as set forth in PCT Rule 4.9 and Section 115 of the Administrative Instructions. Applicant must specify at least one national or regional designation on filing of the international application for a filing date to be granted.

(b) If the fees necessary to cover all the national and regional designations specified in the Request are not paid by the applicant within one year from the priority date or within one month from the date of receipt of the international application if that month expires after the expiration of one year from the priority date, applicant will be notified and given one month within which to pay the deficient designation fees plus a late payment fee equal to the greater of 50% of the amount of the deficient fees up to a maximum amount equal to the basic fee, or an amount equal to the transmittal fee (PCT Rule 16bis). The one-month time limit set in the notification of deficient designation fees may not be extended. Failure to timely pay at least one designation fee will result in the withdrawal of the international application. The one designation fee may be paid:

(1) within one year from the priority date,

(2) within one month from the date of receipt of the international application if that month expires after the expiration of one year from the priority date, or

(3) with the late payment fee defined in this paragraph within the time set in the notification of the deficient designation fees. If after notification of deficient designation fees the applicant makes timely payment, but the amount paid is not sufficient to cover the late payment fee and all designation fees, the Receiving Office will, after allocating payment for the basic, search, transmittal and late payment fees, allocate the amount paid in accordance with PCT Rule 16bis.1(c) and withdraw the unpaid designations. The notification of deficient designation fees pursuant to this paragraph may be made simultaneously with any notification pursuant to § 1.431(c).

(c) On filing the international application, in addition to specifying at least one national or regional designation under PCT Rule 4.9(a), applicant may also indicate under PCT Rule 4.9(b) that all other designations permitted under the Treaty are made. The latter indication under PCT Rule 4.9(b) must be made in a statement on the Request that any designation made under this paragraph is subject to confirmation (PCT Rule 4.9(c)) not later than the expiration of 15 months from the priority date by:

(1) filing a written notice with the United States Receiving Office specifying the national and/or regional designations being confirmed;

(2) paying the designation fee for each designation being confirmed; and

(3) paying the confirmation fee specified in § 1.445(a)(4). Unconfirmed designations will be considered withdrawn. If the amount submitted is not sufficient to cover the designation fee and the confirmation fee for each designation being confirmed, the Receiving Office will allocate the amount paid in accordance with any priority of designations specified by applicant. If applicant does not specify any priority of designations, the allocation of the amount paid will be made in accordance with PCT Rule 16bis.1(c).

4. Section 1.434 is amended by revising paragraph (a) to read as follows:

§ 1.434 The request.

(a) The request shall be made on a standardized form (PCT Rules 3 and 4). Copies of printed Request forms are available from the Patent and Trademark Office. Letters requesting printed forms should be marked "Box PCT."

* * * * *

6. Section 1.446 is amended by revising paragraph (d) and adding paragraph (e) to read as follows:

§ 1.446 Refund of international application filing and processing fees.

* * * * *

(d) The international and search fees will be refunded if no international filing date is accorded or if the application is withdrawn before transmittal of the record copy to the International Bureau (PCT Rules 15.6 and 16.2). The search fee will be refunded if the application is withdrawn before transmittal of the search copy to the International Searching Authority. The transmittal fee will not be refunded.

(e) The handling fee (§ 1.482(b)) will be refunded (PCT Rule 57.6) only if:

* * * * *

8. Section 1.455 is amended by revising paragraph (a) to read as follows:

§ 1.455 Representation in international applications.

(a) Applicants of international applications may be represented by attorneys or agents registered to practice before the Patent and Trademark Office or by an applicant appointed as a common representative (PCT Art. 49, Rules 4.8 and 90 and § 10.10). If applicants have not appointed an attorney or agent or one of the applicants to represent them, and there is more than one applicant, the applicant first named in the request and who is entitled to file in the U.S. Receiving Office shall be considered to be the common representative of all the applicants. An attorney or agent having the right to practice before a national office with which an international application is filed and for which the United States is an International Searching Authority or International Preliminary Examining Authority may be appointed to represent the applicants in the international application before that authority. An attorney or agent may appoint an associate attorney or agent who shall also then be of record (PCT Rule 90.1(d)). The appointment of an attorney or agent, or of a common representative, revokes any earlier appointment unless otherwise indicated (PCT Rule 90.6(b) and (c)).

9. Section 1.475 is revised to read as follows:

§ 1.475 Unity of invention before the International Searching Authority, the International Preliminary Examining Authority and during the national stage.

(a) An international and a national stage application shall relate to one invention only or to a group of inventions so linked as to form a single general inventive concept ("requirement of unity of invention"). Where a group of inventions is claimed in an application, the requirement of unity of invention shall be fulfilled only when there is a technical relationship among those inventions involving one or more of the same or corresponding special technical features. The expression "special technical features" shall mean those technical features that define a contribution which each of the claimed inventions, considered as a whole, makes over the prior art.

(b) An international or a national stage application containing claims to different categories of invention will be considered to have unity of invention if the claims are drawn only to one of the following combinations of categories:

(1) a product and a process specially adapted for the manufacture of said product; or

(2) a product and a process of use of said product; or

(3) a product, a process specially adapted for the manufacture of the said product, and a use of the said product; or

(4) a process and an apparatus or means specifically designed for carrying out the said process or

(5) a product, a process specially adapted for the manufacture of the said product, and an apparatus or means specifically designed for carrying out the said process.

(c) If an application contains claims to more or less than one of the combinations of categories of invention set forth in paragraph (b) of this section, unity of invention might not be present.

(d) If multiple products, processes of manufacture or uses are claimed, the first invention of the category first mentioned in the claims of the application and the first recited invention of each of the other categories relate thereto will be considered as the main invention in the claims, see PCT Article 17(3)(a) and § 1.476(c).

(e) The determination whether a group of inventions is so linked as to form a single general inventive concept shall be made without regard to whether the inventions are claimed in separate claims or as alternatives within a single claim.

10. Section 1.476 is amended by revising paragraph (a) to read as follows:

§ 1.476 Determination of unity of invention before the International Searching Authority.

VOL 1170 ISS 1 JA 3 1995 UMI

11. Section 1.480 is amended by revising paragraph (b) to read as follows:

§ 1.480 Demand for international preliminary examination.

§ 1.482 International preliminary examination fees.

(a) * * *

(2) An additional preliminary examination fee when required, per additional invention:

(i) Where the International Searching Authority for the international application was the United States Patent and Trademark Office.....$140.00

* * * * *

(b) The handling fee is due on filing the Demand.

13. Section 1.484 is amended by revising paragraph (b) to read as follows:

§ 1.484 Conduct of international preliminary examination.

* * * * *

(b) International preliminary examination will begin promptly upon receipt of a Demand which requests examination based on the application as filed, or as amended by an amendment which has been received by the United States International Preliminary Examining Authority. Where a Demand requests examination based on a PCT Article 19 amendment which has not been received, examination may begin at 20 months without receipt of a PCT Article 19 amendment. Where a Demand requests examination based on a PCT Article 34 amendment which has not been received, applicant will be notified and given a time period within which to submit the amendment. Examination will begin after the earliest of:

(1) receipt of the amendment;

(2) receipt of applicant's statement that no amendment will be made; or

(3) expiration of the time period set in the notification.

No international preliminary examination report will be established prior to issuance of an international search report.

* * * * *

14. Section 1.485 is revised to read as follows:

Any submission in response to a requirement under this paragraph must be accompanied by a statement that the submission does not include new matter or go beyond the disclosure in the international application as filed. Such a statement must be a verified statement if made by a person not registered to practice before the Office. If applicant fails to timely provide the required computer readable form, the United States International Searching Authority shall search only to the extent that a meaningful search can be performed.

(107) Information Disclosure Statements In PCT National Stage Applications

The purpose of this notice is to announce a change in practice with regard to the need for applicants in a national stage application to file an information disclosure statement with respect to documents cited in an international search report under certain circumstances.

When an international application is filed under the Patent Cooperation Treaty (PCT), prior art documents may be cited by the examiner in the international search report and/or the international preliminary examination report. When a national stage application is filed under 35 U.S.C. 371, or a national application is filed under 35 U.S.C. 111 claiming benefit of the filing date of the international application, it is often desirable to have the examiner consider the documents cited in the international application when examining the national application.

As a result of an agreement among the European Patent Office (EPO), Japanese Patent Office (JPO) and the United States Patent and Trademark Office (USPTO), copies of documents cited in the international search report issued by any one of these International Searching Authority Offices generally are being sent to the other Offices when designated in the international application. Accordingly, in many national stage applications where the international search was conducted by the EPO, JPO, or USPTO, copies of the documents cited in the international search report are made available to the examiner in the national stage application.

At this time, when all the requirements for a national stage application have been completed, applicant is notified (Form PCT/DO/EO/903) of the acceptance of the application under 35 U.S.C. 371, including an itemized list of the items received. The itemized list includes an indication of whether a copy of the international search report and copies of the references cited therein are present in the national stage file. The examiner will consider the documents cited in the international search report, without any further action by applicant under 37 CFR 1.97 and 1.98, when both the international search report and copies of the documents are indicated to be present in the national stage file. Otherwise, applicant must follow the procedures set forth in 37 CFR 1.97 and 1.98 in order to ensure that the examiner considers the documents cited in the international search report.

This notice applies only to documents cited in the international search report relative to a national stage application filed under 35 U.S.C. 371. It does not apply to documents cited in an international preliminary examination report that are not cited in the search report. It does not apply to applications filed under 35 U.S.C. 111 claiming the benefit of an international application filing date.

Practice relating to documents cited in a search report in an international application filed under the Patent Cooperation Treaty as set forth in § 609 of the Manual of Patent Examining Procedure will be modified in accordance with this notice.

[Docket No. 940547-4147]
RIN: 0651-AA72

Revision of Patent Cooperation Treaty Provisions

Agency: Patent and Trademark Office, Commerce
Action: Notice of proposed rulemaking
Summary: The Patent and Trademark Office (Office) proposes to amend the rules of practice relating to applications filed under the Patent Cooperation Treaty (PCT) in accordance with revised regulations under the PCT. The proposed changes will result in a procedure whereby international applications improperly filed in the United States Receiving Office (RO/US) will, for a fee, be forwarded for processing by the International Bureau as Receiving Office.
Dates: Written comments must be submitted on or before Aug. 29, 1994.
Addresses: Address written comments to the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Washington, D.C. 20231, Attention: Charles Pearson, Crystal Park II, Room 919, or by Fax to (703) 308-6459. No oral hearing will be held.
For Further Information Contact: Charles Pearson by telephone at (703) 308-6515or by mail marked to his attention and addressed as above.
Supplementary Information: These proposed rule changes will improve filing and processing procedures for applicants in the filing of international applications.

On September 20 to 29, 1993, representatives of the patent offices of the member countries, in a series of meetings held in Geneva, Switzerland, agreed upon several changes to the PCT regulations which are designed to make the PCT more user-friendly. One of the significant changes to the PCT regulations was the addition of a new section (PCT Rule 19.4) which provides for transmittal of an international application to the International Bureau, acting in its capacity as Receiving Office, in certain instances. Several other changes were agreed upon including modifications to certain existing regulations. Some of these adopted changes require corresponding changes in Title 37, CFR.

Under the regulations currently in effect, an applicant is required, on filing the international application in the United States, to specify an applicant who is a resident or national of the United States.

The practice under the revised PCT regulations permits an international application filed with the United States Receiving Office to be forwarded to the International Bureau for processing in its capacity as a receiving office if the international application has an applicant who is a resident or national of a PCT Contracting State or has no residence or nationality indicated, but does not have an applicant who is indicated as being a U.S. resident or national. The Receiving Office of the International Bureau will consider the international application to be received as of the date accorded by the United States Receiving Office. This practice will avoid the loss of a filing date in those instances where the United States Receiving Office is not competent to act, but where the international application is filed by an applicant who is a national or resident of a PCT Contracting State. Where questions arise regarding residence or nationality, e.g., where residence and nationality are not clearly set forth, the application will be forwarded to the International Bureau as Receiving Office. If all of the applicants are indicated to be residents and nationals of non-PCT Contracting States, PCT Rule 19.4 does not apply and the application is denied an international filing date.

Discussion of Specific Rules

Section 1.412 (c)(6), if added as proposed, would reflect that the United States Receiving Office, where it is not a competent Receiving Office under PCT Rule 19.1 or 19.2, could transmit the international application to the International Bureau for processing in its capacity as a Receiving Office.

Section 1.421(a), if amended as proposed, would clarify that applications filed by applicants who are not residents or nationals of the United States, but who are residents or nationals of a PCT Contracting state or who indicate no residence or nationality, will, upon timely payment of the proper fee, have their application forwarded to the International Bureau for processing in its capacity as a Receiving Office.

Section 1.445(a)(5), if added as proposed, would establish a fee equivalent to the transmittal fee in paragraph (a)(1) of this section for transmittal of an international application to the International Bureau for processing in its capacity as a Receiving Office.

Section 10.9, if amended as proposed, would add a new provision to be consistent with the change to PCT Rule 90.1, clarifying that an attorney or agent having the right to act before the International Bureau when acting as Receiving Office may represent the applicant before the U.S. International Searching Authority or the U.S. International Preliminary Examining Authority. An individual who has the right to practice before the International Bureau when acting as Receiving Office, and who is not registered under section 10.6, may not prosecute patent applications in the national stage in the Office.

Other Considerations:

The proposed rule changes are in conformity with the requirements of the Regulatory Flexibility Act, 5 U.S.C. 601 et seq., Executive Order 12612, and the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et seq. This proposed rule has been determined to be not significant for the purposes of E.O. 12866.

The General Counsel of the Department of Commerce has certified to the Chief Counsel for Advocacy, Small Business Administration, that the proposed rule changes will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities (Regulatory Flexibility Act, 5 U.S.C. 605(b)), because the proposed rules would affect only a small number of international applications and would provide more streamlined and simplified procedures for filing and prosecuting international applications under the PCT.

The Patent and Trademark Office has also determined that this notice has no federalism implications affecting the relationship between the National government and the States as outlined in Executive Order 12612.

These rule changes will not impose any additional burden under the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et seq. The paperwork burden imposed by adherence to the PCT is currently approved by the Office of Management and Budget under control number 0651-0021.

TRADEMARK APPLICATION EXAMINATION AND CONTENT

(109) Interviews Involving Trademark Application

Interviews frequently result in a better understanding of the issues involved, shorten the prosecution and facilitate disposal of applications.

Interviews for discussion of registrability of the mark of a pending application will not be had before the first official Office action thereon and ordinarily not before filing the first response. Arrangements for an interview should be made in advance so that the Examiner may review the case and be familiar with the details involved.

Interviews on Friday will no longer be prohibited as a matter of policy but all interviews should be set at a time satisfactory to all parties concerned.

A memorandum summarizing the conclusions reached at the interview should be prepared by the Examiner and placed in the application file. The memorandum will be retained in the application file until the prosecution is completed. Such procedure will not, however, relieve the applicant of the responsibility of complying with the requirements of Trademark Rule 2.62.

(110) Trademark Examining Procedure for Amended Applications; Reporting Oldest Dates of Amended Trademark Applications

Effective immediately, the order in which amendments to trademark applications are examined is changed. Previously, Examiners have usually acted on amended cases in order of filing date of the application which the amendment concerned, i.e., amended cases with the oldest filing date were examined first. Under the new procedure, amended cases will normally be examined in the order in which the amendment or other response is received, i.e., amendments that are received first will normally be examined first.

Effective with this issue of the Official Gazette (Trademark Section) in order to reflect more accurately the condition of division dockets, the column reporting the date of the oldest amended application in each division has been changed to indicate the date of receipt of the oldest filed amendment. Under this new method of reporting the oldest date of receipt of a filed amendment upon which no action has been taken by an Examiner will be indicated for each division of the Trademark Examining Operation.

(111) Trademark Office Actions

Effective immediately Applicants or their attorneys will be provided with only one carbon copy of any office action, and the mailing of an additional carbon copy will be discontinued.

This change is consistent with the current practice in the patent examining operations and should result in greater efficiency in the preparation and mailing of office actions.

(112) Petition to Make Trademark Applications Special

The practice of expediting the prosecution of new trademark applications on request of the applicant (accelerated prosecution) was rescinded, effective Aug. 1, 1971 (36 F.R. 13231, July 16, 1971; 825 O.G. 2). This action was taken after a careful study of the practice, including a recommendation of the Public Advisory Committee for Trademark Affairs that the Patent Office terminate accelerated prosecution of trademark applications. The study considered both the effect of the procedure on the workload of the Trademark Operations and the broader interest of examining trademark applications in an order which is equitable to all applicants.

Since the termination of this practice, the Office has experienced some increase in the number of petitions requesting the Commissioner to invoke his supervisory authority pursuant to Rule 2.146 in order to advance the examination of applications out of their regular order. This was to be expected since applicants who might have been able to show special circumstances entitling them to advanced examination could previously achieve this special treatment without resorting to a petition. However, some of the petitions now being received are not considered sufficient to justify the extraordinary relief of invoking the supervisory authority of the Commissioner for the purpose of advancing the applications out of their regular order.

In particular, a number of such petitions have been based on the ground that the applicant is about to embark on an advertising campaign or to commit advertising or promotional expenditures in which the mark applied for is material. Such a ground is not considered to constitute appropriate circumstances justifying the advancement of the application out of its regular turn and the petitions based on such ground have been and will continue to be denied. The principal reason for the denial is that these circumstances are applicable to a substantial portion of the trademark applications filed in the Patent Office. The supervisory authority of the Commissioner should be exercised only where an extraordinary reason for such action has been disclosed. See Anderson & Dyer v. Lewry, 89 O.G. 1861, 1899 C.D. 230, and Wilputte v. Van Ackeren, 103 USPQ 235. Thus, the extraordinary remedy of invoking the supervisory authority of the Commissioner is not considered appropriate under these circumstances.

In the interest of equitable treatment of all applicants, the policy of the Office in granting such petitions will be restricted to those cases in which particular and very special circumstances exist, such as a demonstrable possibility of loss of substantial rights, rather than circumstances which would be equally applicable to a large number of other applicants for trademark registration.

(113) Title 37-Patents, Trademarks, and Copyrights

Chapter I-Patent Office, Department of Commerce

Parts 2 and 6-Rules of Practice in Trademark Cases
International Trademark Classification

A proposal was published at 37 F.R. 6404 to revise § 6.1 of the Rules of Practice in Trademark Cases. The Patent Office proposed to establish the "International Classification of Goods and Services to Which Trademarks Are Applied" (the subject of the "Nice Agreement Concerning the International Classification of Goods and Services for the Purposes of the Registration of Marks" of 1957, as revised at Stockholm on July 14, 1967) as the primary classification of goods and services for registration of trademarks and service marks. Pursuant to the Notice, written comments have been received, and a public hearing was held on June 14, 1972. Full consideration has been given to all matter presented, and changes in the text of the original proposal have been made in view thereof. It has been determined that adoption of the international classification system is desirable.

The Patent Office has studied the international classification and, since Mar. 5, 1968, has indicated the appropriate international class in all publications and on all issued registrations and renewals as a subsidiary classification. Based on this experience and the comments received, it is now believed that adoption of the international schedule as the primary classification system is desirable. The international system is easier to administer because of fewer classes of goods and the availability of an alphabetical listing of goods and services.

The Nice Agreement provides for an International Committee of Experts whose objective is to keep the classification current. The classification of specific goods and services is set forth in the Alphabetical List entitled "International Classification of Goods and Services to Which Trademarks Are Applied" (published by the World Intellectual Property Organization). In addition, the International Trademark Classification List contains the names of the classes setting forth the basic contents of each class. The Alphabetical List also comprises explanatory notes which serve as guidelines for determining the appropriate international class for a specific product or service.

The alphabetical listing within the International Trademark Classification Manual is currently used by the Office as a guideline for determining the degree of particularity of identification of goods. See "Identification of Goods and Services in Trademark Applications," 36 F.R. 13232; July 16, 1971.

Applications for registrations filed on or after Sept. 1, 1973, and registrations issuing thereon, will be classified according to the international classification set forth in the new § 6.1. Accordingly, the international classification is adopted under Section 30 of the Trademark Act of all purposes under the statute and rules; and, therefore, will be the criterion for determining, inter alia, fees.

Applications for the registration of marks filed on or before Aug. 31, 1973, appeals or petitions to revive or oppositions filed in connection with said applications, and affidavits, renewals and petitions for cancellation filed in connection with registrations issuing thereon, will continue to be processed under the classification system existing at the time the mark was registered.

All applications which are published and registrations which are issued will carry both the appropriate international classification and existing U.S. classification number.

An insufficient fee, in connection with an appeal or opposition on any application or in connection with an affidavit or renewal filed in connection with any registration, will not render the same unacceptable, if the proper fee is submitted within a time limit set forth in a notification of the defect, providing the proper fee for at least one class has been originally submitted within the applicable time limit. This will be the case even if the full fee is not received within the sixth year in the case of an affidavit filed under Section 8 or before the end of the twentieth year, including the grace period, in the case of renewal applications, or within the six-month statutory response period in the case of an appeal, or within the thirty-day opposition period, or any extension thereof in the case of the filing of an opposition.

The existing classification system will continue to be used for searching registered and pending marks until all documents in the search file are organized on the basis of the international system of classification. Until this changeover is effected, the U.S. class designation will continue to be printed on all published applications and registrations issued under the existing or the international classification system to facilitate searching on the basis of the existing U.S. system of classification.

Until all applications filed on or before Aug. 31, 1973, have been disposed of, the trademark sections of the Official Gazette, which are organized by class, will include two sections: one for applications published or registrations issued on the basis of applications filed on or before Aug. 31, 1973, organized by class according to the U.S. schedule of classes; the other section for applications published or registrations issued on the basis of applications filed on or after Sept. 1, 1973, organized by class according to the new international schedule.

Certification marks and collective membership marks will continue to be classified as set forth in redesignated §§ 6.3 and 6.4.

Efforts will be made to have the International Trademark Classification List printed by the Government Printing Office or otherwise assure the availability of the List from local sources. Notification will appear in the Official Gazette when the List is available from local sources of the Government Printing Office.

The English edition of the "International Classification of Goods and Services to Which Trademarks Are Applied" can presently be ordered from:

Sales Branch, The Patent Office, Block C
Station Square House, St. Mary Cray
Orpington, Kent, England

Certain modifications and additions to the international trademark classification have been published as supplements and are also available from the British Office. In addition, and inasmuch as the World Intellectual Property Organization (WIPO) has issued the List in several languages, it is anticipated that an English version will be published by that organization.

We have been advised by the Patent Office of the United Kingdom that the only acceptable methods of payment for the International Trademark Classification List are by International Postal Money Order or by banker's draft payable in sterling and drawn on a bank in the United Kingdom.

(114) Wording In Verification or Declaration of Trademark Application

Applicants and attorneys are requested to use the following wording in the part of the verification or declaration of the trademark application which indicates the signer's belief that the mark applied for does not resemble another person's mark:

> —that no other person, firm, corporation, or association, to the best of his knowledge and belief, has the right to use such mark in commerce either in the identical form thereof or in such near resemblance thereto as to be likely when applied to the goods of such other person, to cause confusion, or cause likely, mistake, or to deceive: —

The wording emphasized conforms to the language of both Sections 1(a)(1) and 2(d) of the Trademark Act of 1946.

Some applicants and attorneys, instead of using the wording emphasized above, are still using the now obsolete wording "as might be calculated to deceive" which was promulgated in the forms under the Trademark Act of 1905 and inadvertently continued by the Act of 1946 up to October 1962 in Section 1(a)(1) and in the forms connected with the Act. Section 1(a)(1) of the 1946 Act was amended by Act of October 9, 1962 (Public Law 772, 87th Congress, 76 Stat. 769) to conform it to the language of Section 2(d) of the 1946 Act, since the language of Section 2(d) reflects the thinking at the time the 1946 Act was written. The wording of the trademark forms for the 1946 Act has also been amended appropriately.

It is desirable that proper wording be used. However, since the differences in wording referred to above are considered to be differences of form rather than of substance. Examiners will not require new verifications or declarations. When the obsolete wording is observed and a letter is to be written for other reasons, Examiners will at that time call attention to the fact that the wording is obsolete and should be modified in applications in the future.

(115) Standardized Disclaimers

Beginning with the Nov. 9, 1982 issue of the Official Gazette, disclaimers in marks published for opposition and in those registered on the Supplemental Register will be printed in a standardized form, regardless of the text submitted. Certificates of registration for marks issued on the Supplemental Register will also contain the standardized disclaimer as of that date. Certificates of registration for marks issued on the Principal Register will contain the uniform statement beginning Feb. 1, 1983. The disclaimed matter will be taken from the disclaimer of record and inserted into a standardized disclaimer for printing and data base purposes. The new disclaimer text will take the following form:

No claim is made to the exclusive right to use apart from the mark as shown.

(116) Trademark "Revivals" and "Reinstatements"

It would be of great assistance to the Office if the heading or caption of "Petitions to Revive" or "Requests for Reinstatement" of abandoned trademark applications carried the following identifying data:

1. Address Paper to the Attention of:
   Office of Director, Trademark Examining Operation
2. Serial Number
3. Mark
4. Applicant's Name
5. A title indicating the nature of the paper

Use of this heading for "Petitions to Revive" or "Requests for Reinstatement" of abandoned trademark applications will help ensure that the papers are promptly routed to the proper Office, which will prevent needless delay in its consideration.

(117) T-Search Printouts as Section 2(d) References

As part of its ongoing automation program, the PTO is pleased to announce that on or about July 1, 1986, Trademark Examining Attorneys will use the automated Trademark search system (T-Search) exclusively for searching word marks. The Examining Attorneys will use computer printouts to advise applicants about Section 2(d) references. The printouts will include computer-generated facsimiles of the drawing where appropriate. The printouts will be used for word marks, whether the word is depicted in a typed drawing or in stylized form. Photocopies of certificates of registration will continue to be used for design marks.

The Patent and Trademark Office, in consultation with the Public Advisory Committee for Trademark Affairs, has established accuracy standards for the computerized data. Data elements which are not essential for examiner searching are being systematically checked and corrected. The following data elements which are essential for examiner searching purposes are essentially complete:

1. MARK
2. SERIAL NUMBER
3. REGISTRATION NUMBER
4. FILING DATE
5. REGISTRATION DATE
6. GOODS AND SERVICES
7. INTERNATIONAL CLASS
8. U.S. CLASS

Subject to the above caveat, the printouts will contain all the information that appears on the certificate of registration with one exception. If an application for registration was based on Section 44, 15 U.S.C. 1126, the printout will indicate that the registration or application was filed under the provisions of Section 44 (using the notation "SECT 44"). The printout will also show the priority date if the application was filed under the provisions of Section 44(d). However, it will not indicate the country or certificate number of the foreign registration on which the U.S. registration was based.

The printouts will also contain additional registration information which was not provided under the non-automated system, as follows:

A. Change in registration—This will indicate that a registration was changed after registration, such as by an amendment of the mark or identification of goods/services. The current information will be displayed in the printout.

B. Affidavits—This indicates that a Section 8 affidavit of continued use was accepted, that a Section 15 affidavit of incontestability was acknowledged, or that a mark was republished under the provisions of Section 12(c).

C. Renewals—Applicable renewal information, such as "1st Renewal" or "2nd Renewal" will be shown.

D. Owner—In addition to listing the original registrant, the last known owner, as the change of ownership is acknowledged by the Office by virtue of examining an affidavit or renewal, will be included.

The following provides an explanation of the terms/symbols used in the printout:

1. Goods or services appearing in double parentheses "(( ))" were not included in a Section 15 affidavit.
2. Goods or services appearing in brackets "[ ]" were deleted after registration by amendment, correction, restriction or at the time of renewal.
3. Dates will appear as year, month and day. For example, June 20, 1983 will appear as 1983.06.20.
4. Goods and services will be indicated with the international class (IC), the prior U.S. classification (US), the identification, date of first use and date of first use in commerce.
5. Registrants (OWNER) will be listed showing the owner's name, entity designation (e.g., individual, partnership, corporation), country of citizenship or state or country of incorporation, and address.
6. Pseudo mark—This material is merely a search aid and has no bearing on the registration information.
7. Design search code—This is also merely an aid for computerized searching of design marks, by which a number is assigned to describe a particular design element. It has no bearing on the registration information.
8. Mark drawing code—This indicates the appearance of the mark, and again is not part of the registration data. There are six mark drawing codes.
   1—typed drawing
   2—design only
   3—words, letters and/or numbers and design
   4—words, letters and/or number in block form (block letters; not typed drawing)
   5—words, letters and/or numbers in a stylized form
   6—sound marks

An example of a computer printout and a facsimile of a stylized word mark follow.

(118) Nonregistrability of Misleading Geographic Indications—Amendment of the Trademark Act by the North American Free Trade Agreement Implementation Act

Article 1712 of the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) requires the United States, Canada and Mexico to prohibit the use or Trademark registration of geographical indications in connection with goods that do not originate in the indicated territory, region or locality, if the public would be misled as to the geographical origin of the goods.1

President Clinton signed the "North American Free Trade Agreement Implementation Act," Public Law 103-182, 107 Stat. 2057, on Dec. 8, 1993. The legislation. amending Sections 2(e), 2(f) and 23(a) of the Trademark Act, applies to applications filed on or after Dec. 8, 1993, and took effect on Jan. 1, 1994. The Act, entitled "An Act to provide for the registration and protection of trademarks in commerce, to carry out the provisions of certain international conventions, and for other purposes," approved July 5, 1946, commonly referred to as the Trademark Act of 1946, has been amended as indicated. Amendments are shown in italics:

I. Subsection 2(e) (15 U.S.C. 1052(e)):

"(e) Consists of a mark which (1) when used on or in connection with the goods of the applicant is merely descriptive or deceptively misdescriptive of them, (2) when used on or in connection with the goods of the applicant is primarily geographically descriptive of them, except as indications of regional origin may be registrable under section 4, (3) when used on or in connection with the goods of the applicant is primarily geographically deceptively misdescriptive of them, or (4) is primarily merely a surname."

II. Subsection (f) (15 U.S.C. 1052(f)):

"(f) Except as expressly excluded in paragraphs (a), (b), (c), (d), and (e)(3) of this section, nothing herein shall prevent the registration of a mark used by the applicant which has become distinctive of the applicant's goods in commerce. The Commissioner may accept as prima facie evidence that the mark has become distinctive, as used on or in connection with the applicant's goods in commerce, proof of substantially exclusive and continuous use thereof as a mark by the applicant in commerce for the five years before the date on which the claim of distinctiveness is made. Nothing in this section shall prevent the registration of a mark which, when used on or in connection with the goods of the goods of the applicant, is primarily geographically deceptively misdescriptive of them, and which became distinctive of the applicant's goods in commerce before the date of the enactment of the North American Free Trade Agreement Implementation Act."

III. Section 23(a)(15 U.S.C 1091(a)):

"(a) In addition to the principle register, the Commissioner shall keep a continuation of the register provided in paragraph (b) of section 1 of the Act of March 19, 1920, entitled "An Act to give effect to certain provisions of the convention for the protection of trademarks and commercial names, made and signed in the city of Buenos Aires, in the Argentine Republic, August 20, 1910, and for other purposes", to be called the supplemental register. All marks capable of distinguishing applicant's goods or services and not register herein provided, except those declared to be unregistrable under subsections (a), (b), (c), (d), and (e)(3) of section 2 of this Act, which are in lawful use in commerce by the owner thereof, on or in connection with any goods or services may be registered on the supplemental register upon the payment of the prescribed fee and compliance with the provisions of subsections (a) and (e) of section 1 so far as they are applicable. Nothing in this section shall prevent the registration on the supplemental register of a mark, capable of distinguishing the applicant's goods or services and not registrable on the principal register under this Act, that is declared to be unregistrable under section 2(e)(3), if such mark has been in lawful use in commerce by the owner thereof, on or in connection with any goods or services, since before the date of the enactment of the North American Free Trade Agreement Implementation Act."

A mark which is unregistrable on the Principal Register under 2(e)(3) of the Trademark Act, as amended, on the ground that it is primarily geographically deceptively misdescriptive of the goods or services, may be registered under 2(f) only if it became distinctive of the goods or services in commerce before December 8, 1993. Similarly, such a mark, capable of distinguishing the applicant's goods or services, may be registered on the Supplemental Register only if it has been in lawful use in commerce by the owner since before December 8, 1993. A mark that is unregistrable under 2 (e)(3) because it contains matter which is primarily geographically deceptively misdescriptive of the goods or services will not be rendered registrable by a disclaimer of the geographically deceptively misdescriptive component. Matter which is primarily geographically deceptively misdescrip- tive may be omitted or deleted from the drawing in appropriate cases.

(119) Trademark Drawings

Effective July 3, 1989, the requirement of Trademark Rule 2.52(c) (37 CFR 2.52(c)) that drawings in trademark applications be limited in size to 4 inches by 4 inches will be strictly enforced for the purpose of assigning a filing date, pursuant to Trademark Rule 2.21(a)(3) (37 CFR § 2.21(a)(3)). [This notice rescinds the prior notice concerning this issue in the Official Gazette of June 30, 1987, at 1079 TMOG 12.]

The drawing size limitation is necessary to permit entry of the drawing in the automated trademark search system (T-Search) as soon as possible after receipt of the application by the Patent and Trademark Office (PTO). Oversized or poor quality drawings require additional processing before they can be digitized (copied) and entered in T-Search. If the PTO must reduce a drawing, not only is there often a loss of detail and overall drawing quality, but drawing reduction processing lengthens the time before the mark and information about the application are available to the public. Furthermore, an oversized drawing that is not reduced by the PTO cannot be scanned in its entirety for entry in T-Search, resulting in the possible loss of portions of the mark.

Enforcement of the drawing size limitation rule as a requirement for receipt of a filing date will permit the PTO to expedite application processing and permit the applicant to control the reduction process and, thus, control the quality of the representation of the mark as it will appear in T-Search, in the Official Gazette, and on the registration certificate.

The Trademark Law Revision Act of 1988 [Title I of Pub. L. 100-667, 102 Stat. 3935 (15 U.S.C. 1051)] will be implemented on Nov. 16, 1989. Two important provisions of the new law are that (1) an application for registration of the Principal Register may be filed based upon a bona fide intention to use a mark in commerce (15 U.S.C. 1051(b), as amended), and (2) for all applications filed on or after Nov. 16, 1989, upon the registration of a mark on the Principal Register, the application filing date becomes a constructive date of first use of the mark (15 U.S.C. 1057(c), as amended). Therefore, expedited processing to permit timely public notification of the filing of an application on the Principal Register will be particularly important.

(120) Trademark Drawing Requirements Trademark Rule 2.52, 37 C.F.R. § 2.52

For an application to satisfy the filing date requirement under Trademark Rule 2.21(a)(3), 37 C.F.R. § 2.21(a)(3), it must include a drawing of the mark substantially meeting all the requirements of Trademark Rule 2.52, 37 C.F.R. § 2.52. Because the granting of a filing date to an application potentially establishes a date of constructive use of the mark, timely public notification of the filing of applications is important. Marks must be accurately and expeditiously entered into the automated search system and filed in the Trademark Search Library.

The purpose of this notice is to identify recurring problems which have resulted in the loss of filing dates for failure to comply with Rule 2.21(a)(3).

Color in the Mark

Rule 2.52(a) requires that every line and letter in a drawing, including color lining and lines used for shading, must be black. Color in a mark can be shown only by using the linings depicted in the color chart in Rule 2.52(e). This requirement is strictly enforced. The Office denies filing dates to applications where color appears on the drawing.

Drawing Size

The requirement of Rule 2.52(c) that the mark on a drawing be limited in size to 4 inches wide by 4 inches high continues to be strictly enforced. In re Fuller-Jeffrey Broadcasting Corp. of Santa Rosa, 16 USPQ2d 1456 (Comm'r Pats. 1990). See Official Gazette Notice at 1102 TMOG 6.

Two Drawings Submitted With One Application

A single application may seek registration of only one mark. Therefore, as a matter of policy, the Office denies a filing date to any application which is accompanied by two drawing, each displaying a different mark.

Heading

Rule 2.52(d) requires that the drawing include a heading which lists the applicant's name and address, the goods and services, the dates of first use of the mark for an application based on use in commerce under 15 U.S.C. § 1051(a), and the priority filing date for an application based upon a foreign application under 15 U.S.C § 1126(d). If the heading is ommitted in its entirety, a filing date is denied to the application. See In re Hackmack, 16 USPQ2d 1895 (Comm'r Pats. 1990).

Two Page Drawings in Trademark Applications

The Office denies a filing date to any application in which the mark does not appear on the first page of the drawing.

Rule 2.52(d) requires that the drawing include a heading which lists, among other things, the goods and services for which registration is sought; and Rule 2.52(c) requires that there be a margin of at least one inch on the sides and bottom of the paper, and at least one inch between the mark and the heading.

Implicit in Rule 2.52 is a requirement that the mark and heading appear on a single page, in all but the most exceptional circumstances. There is an administrative need for a filing system that utilizes single page drawings, to expedite filing of mark drawings in the Trademark Search Library and entry of accurate information into the automated database. More importantly, there is a risk that the individual pages from multi-page drawings might become detached and separated in the Index of Pending Applications.

Historically, the Office has permitted the filing of drawings in which the heading continues onto a second page only where the goods and services covered by the application are so numerous that they cannot be listed within the heading margins on a single page. Trademark Manual of Examining Procedure § 807.02.

Although the Office prefers that the identification of goods or services in such cases be abbreviated so that the entire drawing will fit onto one page, the Office will continue to accept drawings on which the list of goods or services continues onto a second page, in appropriate circumstances.

If the goods and services are abbreviated in the drawing heading, as recommened here, this will in no way limit the goods and services covered by the application. For purposes of determining the goods and services covered by an application, the written application is always controlling. See In re Tokiwa Mfg. Co. Ltd., 21 USPQ2d 1395 (Comm'r Pats. 1991).

If an applicant deems it to be necessary, the heading of a drawing may be continued onto a second page. However, in all cases, the mark and a portion of the heading must appear on the first sheet. The Office denies a filing date to any application which fails to display the mark, in accordance with the size and margin requirements of Rule 2.52(c), on the first page of the drawing. This requirement is strictly enforced.

(121) Wavier of Trademark Rule 2.76(a)

Trademark Rule 2.76(a) now provides that an intent-to-use application under Section 1(b) of the Trademark Act may be amended to allege use of the mark in commerce, under Section 1(c) of the Act, at any time between the filing date of the application and either (1) the date the examining attorney approves the mark for publication or (2) the date of the expiration of the six-month period after issuance of a final refusal. Thus, if the examining attorney issues a final refusal and the applicant files an appeal to the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board six months thereafter, any amendment to allege use filed subsequently is considered untimely.

The Patent and Trademark Office has now had several years' experience with intent-to-use applications and with the filing of amendments to allege use and has had an opportunity to observe the effect of this rule in connection with the appeal process. We have found that the strict time limit set by the rule has forced some applicants to pursue appeals that might otherwise have been dismissed as moot. Thus, a Section 1(b) intent-to-use applicant cannot under the present rule, obtain a remand of its application from the Board to the examining attorney to allow consideration of an amendment to the Supplememtal Register or a claim of acquired distinctiveness under Section 2(f). Even though such a remand is likely to lead to registration or to publication of the mark for oppostion the Board may not grant the request for remand unless the applicant filed an amendment to allege use before the expiration of the unable to grant remand, because use of the mark is a prerequisite to registration on the Supplemental Register and Rule 2.76(a) precludes the applicant from filing an amendment to allege use. The same result would follow where an intent-to-use applicant sought to assert acquired distinctiveness under Section 2(f). Because the Board has no discretion to remand applications in such situations, the rule has worked to delay or frustrate the registration process.

Accordingly, application of Rule 2.76(a) is hereby waived, in pertinent part, to eliminate the time limit during which an amendment to allege use may be filed after the examining attorney's final refusal to register. It should be noted that, although an amendment to allege use will now be considered timely even if filed during the pendency of an ex parte appeal, the Board retains jurisdiction over the application once an appeal is filed. The Board may, in its discretion, suspend action on the appeal and remand the application to the examining attorney for consideration of the amendment to the allege use; or it may continue action on the appeal, thus deferring examination of the amendment to allege use until after disposition of the appeal.

The Patent and Trademark Office will, in due course, publish a notice of proposed rulemaking to amend Trademark Rule 2.76(a).

(122) Questions and Answers

I. New Trademark Application Filing Requirements

The Trademark Law Revision Act of 1988, which was implemented on Nov. 16, 1989, contains the most significant amendments to the Lanham Act since its enactment in 1947. The Patent and Trademark Office has significantly revised the Trademark Rules of Practice to reflect the changes in the law. Additionally, the PTO has issued a supplement to Revision 7 of the Trademark Manual of Examining Procedure that reflects the changes in the law, rules, and Office policy and is available from the Government Printing Office.

The PTO's Office of the Assistant Commissioner for Trademarks has prepared a series of "Questions and Answers" about Office practice under the new law and rules. This first in the series concerns the requirements for the initial filing of an application. Subsequent "Questions and Answers" will address various examination issues, the statement of use, requests for extension of time to file the statement of use, the amendment to allege use and notice of allowance.

Q. What is an intent-to-use application?

A. The Trademark Law Revision Act of 1988 became effective on Nov. 16, 1989. It amended the Trademark Act to add a new basis for filing an application for Federal trademark registration on the Principal Register. A party with a bona fide intention to use a specific mark in commerce in relation to specific goods or services may now file an application. However, before the mark will be registered, the applicant must use the mark in commerce in connection with the specified goods or services and submit specimens evidencing use and a verified allegation concerning that use.

First, an intent-to-use application will be examined in relation to all substantive and procedural requirements, except use-related issues, and, if acceptable, published for opposition. If there is no opposition, or any opposition is resolved in the applicant's favor, the applicant will receive a notice of allowance.

The applicant must submit a statement of use within six months of that date, or request a six-month extension of time. The applicant may then request up to four additional six-month extensions of time in which to file the statement of use. The grant of such extensions is predicated, in part, upon the applicant's showing of "good cause" as to why the mark has not yet been used. Thus, an applicant may have up to 36 months from the mailing of the notice of allowance within which to file a statement of use. (See Trademark Rules 2.88 and 2.89 concerning the requirements for a statement of use and extension requests.) Upon filing, the statement of use will be examined and, if accepted, the mark will register.

Q. How does an intent-to-use application differ from an application based upon use in commerce?

A. The primary difference between the two types of applications is the basis for filing. Because of that difference, the filing requirements and processing of the two types of applications differ.

A party may not file an application based upon use of a mark in commerce until after that use has occured. Instead of asserting a bona fide intent to use the mark in commerce, the use-based application must include allegations concerning dates of use and specimens evidencing use as a filing requirement. The use-based application will be examined and, if acceptable, published for opposition. If the mark is not opposed, or any opposition is resolved in the applicant's favor, the mark will register. This procedure differs from the application procedure for an intent-to-use application, as noted above.

However, in all other respects the legal reasons for refusing registration (such as descriptiveness, likelihood of confusion, etc.) and the procedural requirements (such as specificity of identifications of goods, signature by applicant, etc.) are exactly the same for the two types of applications. Additionally, upon registration, the filing date of any application on the Principal Register is a constructive date of first use of the mark.

Q. What are the requirements for filing an intent-to-use application?

A. A complete intent-to-use application consists of a written application, a drawing of the mark, and the required filing fee for each class of goods. The requirements for a written intent-to-use application are set forth in Trademark Rule 2.33. The application must be made to the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, must include a request for registration, and must be signed and verified (sworn to) by the applicant.

The application must specify: the name and address of the applicant; information about the applicant's legal entity; a claim that the applicant has a bona fide intention to use the mark in commerce; the particular goods or services on or in connection with which the applicant has a bona fide intention to use the mark; the class of goods or services according to the official classification, if known to the applicant; and the intended mode, manner or method of applying, affixing or otherwise using the mark on or in connection with the goods or services specified.

The applicant must sign a verfication of the application which includes, in part, averments that the applicant is believed to be entitled to use the mark sought to be registered; that to the best of the declarant's knowledge and belief no other entity has the right to use the mark in commerce, either in the identical form or in such near resemblance as to be likely, when applied to the goods or services of such other entity, to cause confusion, or to cause mistake, or to deceive; and that the facts set forth in the application are true.

Please note that Rule 2.33 differs form section 1(b) of the Act because the rule requires the above verification to include a statement that "the applicant is the owner of the mark" rather than that "the applicant believes it is entitled to use the mark." This specific requirement of the rule should be disregarded to the extent that it differs from the statute. The rule will be amended in due course.

Q. What are the minimum requirements for receipt of a filing date for an intent-to-use application?

A. Trademark Rule 2.21 sets forth the minimum requirements for receipt of a filing date for intent-to-use applications, as well as other types of applications. These minimum formal requirements do not include all of the requirements which may ultimately be necessary to obtain registration, but merely those which must be satisified to receive a filing date.

An intent-to-use application must include the following elements in order to receive a filing date: the name of the applicant, the name and address to which communications can be directed, a drawing of the mark substantially meeting all of the requirements of Trademark Rule 2.52, an identification of goods or services, a claim of a bona fide intention to use the mark in commerce, a verification or declaration under Trademark Rule 2.33(b) signed by the applicant, and the required filing fee for at least one class of goods or services. If an application lacks any one of these elements, it will be denied a filing date and all papers will be returned to the applicant as informal.

Q. Is there any change in the requirements for applications based upon either use in commerce or Section 44 of the Trademark Act?

A. Yes. Effective Nov. 16, 1989, an application must be signed in order to receive a filing date. Trademark Rule 2.21 has been amended to require that an application include a verification or declaration in accordance with Trademark Rule 2.33(b), signed by the applicant, to receive a filing date. This requirement applies to all applications filed after Nov. 16, 1989, regardless of the basis for filing. Unsigned applications will be returned to the applicant as informal. A verified assertion, signed by the applicant, of the basis for filing, is believed to be essential because of the importance of the filing date as a constructive date of first use of the mark for registration of the Principal Register.

All other filing requirements for use-based applications remain unchanged.

Concerning Section 44 which permits, under certain circumstances, the filing of an application in the United States based upon an application or registration in another country, there are two additional changes. Effective Nov. 16, 1989, an application filed under Section 44(d) or Section 44(e) of the Trademark Act must include an allegation that the applicant has a bona fide intention to use the mark in commerce. However, Section 44 applicants will still be exempt from any use requirement as a condition to registration. In other words, Section 44 applicants are not required to file specimens evidencing use of the mark or an allegation of use in order to obtain registration.

As a requirement for obtaining a filing date, an application filed pursuant to Section 44(d) must include in the heading of the drawing the date of the foreign filing which forms the basis of its priority claim.

Q. Who can sign an application?

A. There are two issues that may arise with respect to the signature on an application: (1) whether the signature is sufficient for receipt of a filing date, and (2) whether the signature is that of the applicant.

The following persons can properly sign an application for an applicant: an individual applicant, a general partner of a partnership, or an officer of a corporation or association.

If an application is signed by an improper party, but the improper party had "color of authority" to act for applicant, the Office will require re-execution of the application, but will not invalidate the filing date. (See Trademark Rule 2.71(c) concerning "color of authority.") The Examining Attorney will determine whether the signatory had color of authority to sign the application for the applicant. A person has such color of authority if he or she has firsthand knowledge of the relevant facts and implied or actual authority to act on behalf of the applicant. A general manager may qualify under this standard. The applicant's attorney will not ordinarily be regarded as possessing color of authority to sign on behalf of a client. Attorneys, who are not employees of a corporate applicant, do not usually have firsthand knowledge of a client's business or the authority to act on behalf of a client, other than as legal representative.

If the signature is acceptable for the purpose of receiving a filing date (i.e., if the signatory had color of authority), but is not the signature of the applicant, a substitute verification by the applicant of the facts in the application will be required. If the person who signed did not have even color of authority, the Examining Attorney will refuse registration because the applicant did not meet the minimum requirements of Rule 2.21 for receipt of a filing date. An application signed by a party without color of authority is void ab initio and cannot be corrected by submission of a substitute declaration.

Q. Are "fax" copies of signatures acceptable?

A. The Trademark Operation does not have the equipment to accept documents transmitted by "fax" for purposes of receiving a filing date. However, the signature on a properly filed application may be a photocopy or "fax" copy of the original signature. The subsequent submission of the original document will be required by the Examining Attorney.

Q. What is the significance of the filing date?

A. Section 7 of the Trademark Act has been amended to provide that the filing date of an application of the Principal Register is a constructive date of first use of the mark in commerce, provided the application matures into a registration. Thus, filing affords the applicant nationwide priority over others, with the exception of parties who had used the mark before the applicant's filing date, parties who had filed before the applicant, or parties who are entitled to an earlier priority filing date based upon the filing of a foreign application under Section 44(d) of the Trademark Act.

Q. Can an application be based upon both use and intent-to-use?

A. No. Section 1(a) of the Trademark provides for the filing of applications based upon actual use in commerce, while Section 1(b) provides for the filing of applications based upon intent-to-use. Trademark Rule 2.33(d) states that an applicant may not file under both Sections 1(a) and 1(b) of the Act in a single application, nor may an applicant in an application under Section 1(a) of the Act amend to seek registration under Section 1(b). Any application filed under both Sections 1(a) and 1(b) of the Trademark Act will be denied a filing date and returned to the applicant.

Q. Can an applicant assert both a Section 44 claim and an intent-to-use or use claim in the same application?

A. Yes. Section 44(d) provides for applications based upon an application for registration filed in an applicant's country of origin, and section 44(e) provides for applications based upon a registration in applicant's country of origin. An application may be based upon both a foreign application or registration under Section 44 and either use in commerce under Section 1(a) or intent-to-use under Section 1(b).

Q. Since a Section 44 application contains a statement of a bona fide intent to use the mark in commerce, isn't this also an intent-to-use application?

A. No. The statement of a bona fide intent to use a mark is one of the statutory requirements for a Section 44 filing and the PTO will not consider the mere inclusion of such a statement to constitute the assertion of a basis for filing under Section 1(b) of the Act. In other words, once the requirements for Section 44 are met and the application successfully completes the opposition period, the mark will register (rather than a notice of allowance issuing in the application).

A Section 44 applicant may also assert an intent-to-use basis by explicitly stating, after its statement of a bona fide intent to use the mark in commerce, that it is also asserting a Section 1(b) basis for filing.

Q. Can an intent-to-use application be filed on the Supplemental Register?

A. No. An intent-to-use application initially filed on the Supplemental Register will be denied a filing date and returned to the applicant. No amendment of an intent-to-use application to the Supplemental Register will be accepted until after use has commenced and after the filing and acceptance of an amendment to allege use or a statement of use. In such a case, the effective filing date of the application will be changed to the date on which the applicant filed the amendment to allege use under Section 1(c) of the Trademark Act or the statement of use under Section 1(d) of the Act.

Q. Must an intent-to-use applicant begin using the mark before a registration will issue?

A. Yes. An intent-to-use application may not mature into a registration until use of the mark has begun. After use begins, the applicant must verify such use in either (1) an amendment to allege use or (2) a statement of use. In addition, applicant must submit specimens evidencing use and a fee of $100 per class of goods or services in the application.

Q. What is the difference between an amendment to allege use and a statement of use?

A. The primary difference between the amendment to allege use and the statement of use is the time of filing. The amendment to allege use may be filed during initial examination of the application, i.e., after the filing date of the application and before the date on which the Examining Attorney approves the mark for publication. If the amendment to allege use is accepted, the application will then be processed for publication and issuance in the same manner as a use-based application.

If no amendment to allege use is filed before the Examining Attorney approves the mark for publication, the mark will be published for opposition. After the successful completion of the opposition period, the PTO will issue a notice of allowance. The applicant will then have six months from the date of the notice of allowance in which it must file a statement of use, or file a written request for an extension of time in which to file the statement of use. Successive extensions of time, aggregating no more than 36 months from the notice of allowance, may be obtained pursuant to Trademark Rule 2.89.

(123) Receipt of a Filing Date Under Section 44 of the Trademark Act - Claim of a Bona Fide Intention to Use the Mark in Commerce Required

For purposes of receiving a filing date, applications filed in the United States based on prior registrations in an applicant's country of origin under Section 44(e) of the Trademark Act, 15 U.S.C. § 1126(e), and applications claiming the benefit of a priority filing date in the United States based on prior application in a Paris Convention country under Section 44(d) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 1126(d), must include a statement "that the applicant has a bona fide intention to use the mark in commerce," 15 U.S.C. 1126(d) and (e); Trademark Rules 2.21(a)(5) (ii) and (iii); 37 C.F.R. § 2.21(a) (5) (ii) and (iii).

The claim of a bona fide intention to use the mark in commerce is expressly required by the statute and cannot be waived by the Commissioner for any reason. The claim is required in all applications filed under Section 44, even if the applicant has commenced use of the mark in commerce, and even if the applicant is also filing on the basis of use in commerce under Section 1(a) of the Act.

Where a Section 44 applicant has used the mark in commerce, it may choose to submit for the record an additional statement regarding actual use. For example, an applicant could state that it "has a bona fide intention to use the mark in commerce, as evidenced by the fact that actual use in commerce with the United States has commenced." In this way, the application will contain the statutorily required language of a "bona fide intention to use the mark in commerce," as well as the additional clarifying language that, in this particular instance, the mark is actually in use in commerce.

(124) Reminders Concerning the Revised Rules of Practice in Trademark Cases

The Office offers the following reminders concerning certain requirements under the revised Rules of Practice in Trademark Cases to ensure proper and efficient processing of trademark papers.

1. Statement of A Bona Fide Intention to Use in Commerce

The Office has received a number of applications filed based on Trademark Act Section 44 which contain no claim of bona fide intention to use the mark in commerce. Sections 44(d)(2) and 44(e), and revised Trademark Rule 2.21 state the requirements for filing a trademark application based on a foreign application or registration. These sections require, among other things, that all applications filed pursuant to Section 44 state a bona fide intention to use the mark in commerce. Therefore if the application is filed based only on Section 44, and applicant has not recited a claim of bona fide intention to use the mark in commerce, the application will not be accorded a filing date and will be returned to the applicant.

This statement must include the words "in commerce." The statement should be set forth in its entirety prominently in the opening statement of the application to ensure that the application is accorded a filing date. The applicant may repeat the statement in the application declaration, if desired.

2. Assertion of Two Bases

If the applicant wishes to file based on both a bona fide intention to use the mark in commerce under Trademark Act Section 1(b) and a foreign application or registration under Trademark Act Section 44, the applicant must clearly indicate its intention to do so. In a Section 44 filing the Office will not presume Trademark Act Section 1(b) as an additional basis for filing by the mere statement of a bona fide intention to use the mark in commerce. If the applicant wishes to claim an additional basis under Section 1(b) of the Act it should indicate its intention with a separate statement claiming a basis under Section 1(b).

3. Filing Papers Before Notification of Serial Number

The Office recommends that applicants wait until they have received the filing fee receipt before filing any papers related to a trademark application. The filing fee receipt includes the assigned application serial number. The applicant should refer to the serial number in filing any paper to ensure that the paper is associated with the correct application file. For example, if applicant has filed a photocopy of its application in order to receive a filing date and follows up the photocopy with an original document, the applicant should wait for the filing fee receipt in order to have a serial number with which to reference the second document. Without the reference number, the papers may be returned to the applicant or the papers may be identified as a new filing, and accorded a new serial number.

In the same manner, it is preferable that amendments to allege use under Trademark Act Section 1(c) should not be filed until a filing fee receipt has issued and applicant can reference the serial number of the appropriate application when it submits its amendment to allege use.

The filing of an amendment to allege use has important ramifications in the publication of the mark and production of the Official Gazette. Therefore it is especially important that the Office be able to identify and process those papers promptly.

If the applicant files an amendment to allege use along with other amendments, it would be helpful if the applicant provides some indication that the filing is both an amendment to allege use and other amendments.

4. Section 8 Affidavit Requirements

Trademark Act Section 8, as amended, and revised Trademark Rule 2.162 requires, among other things, that registrants set forth the "goods or services recited in the registration on or in connection with which the mark is in use in commerce." The goods and services must also be set forth in any affidavit asserting excusable nonuse. Formerly, applicants were not required to set forth the specific goods and services. Applicant may meet the requirement to specify the goods or services either by listing the goods or services or by incorporating the goods and services by reference, e.g., "The registered mark is in use in commerce with all the goods and services listed in the registration." The list of goods and services or applicant's incorporation of the goods and services by reference should appear somewhere in the body of the affidavit.

Applicants should also take note of the revised requirement for a specimen or facsimile for each class of goods or services in the registration. The specimen or facsimile for each class must be filed prior to the end of the sixth year. Failure to meet these revised requirements may result in cancellation of all or part of a registration.

5. Filing of Miscellaneous Papers

Every paper filed with the Office which relates to an application or registration should include the serial number of the application or the registration number of the registration. The best practice would be to have the application number or registration number appear on every single sheet of paper which an applicant or registrant files with the Office, including any substitute specimens which applicant may file. Those papers filed with the Office which do not have the application serial number or the registration number reference on them must be identified by Office personnel using alternative means such as looking up the mark or owner in the automated search system. However, if papers become detached, the information which the Office needs to join a particular piece of correspondence to the correct file may not be available.

6. Time for Filing Corrections to Amendments to Allege Use

Applicants should note that Rule 2.76(a) provides that filing an amendment to allege use of a mark in commerce under section 1(c) is only permitted be- tween the time of filing the application and the time the examiner approves the mark for publication. If applicant's amendment to allege use fails to meet the minumum requirements for an amendment to allege use as set out in Rule 2.76(e)(3), applicant must correct those defects prior to approval of the mark for publication or the application will be published without any consideration of the amendment to allege use. If the file is approved for publication before applicant can correct its amendment to allege use, applicant will be required to wait until a notice of allowance issues before it can file its affidavit of use. In these circumstances the fee applicant submitted for its original amendment to allege use will not be refunded or applied to the later filed statement of use.
